Johnston Hits Foreign Deals

AUSSIE STATE OPENS FIGHT ON H'WOOD

Sydney, March 31.—Charges of "a Hollywood film monopoly" led to passage of a bill in the Queensland legislature giving the government virtual control of the motion picture business. Debate on the bill brought out a score of fulminations against Hollywood and high rental charges made on American films distributed here. The newly-passed measure also establishes a committee to settle all disputes between distributors and exhibitors. Bigwigs in the Australian film business expressed the opinion today that the steps taken by Queensland politicos may result in government interference in picture distribution throughout Australia.

HUGHES WILL SUE MPAA FOR NIX ON OUTLAW ADS

New York, March 31. — Howard Hughes' appeal to Eric Johnston on stand taken by industry's advertising code authority regarding "The Outlaw" stills, ads and posters, has been nixed on 90 per cent of the items submitted to the Motion Picture Association prexy. Charles Poletti, acting for Hughes, made the appeal to

Ginsberg's Mother Dies in New York

Mrs. David Ginsberg, mother of Henry Ginsberg, vice president in charge of studio operations and production at Paramount, died in New York yesterday. Ginsberg leaves on the Constellation today to attend funeral services, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Riverside Chapel. A widow, Mrs. Ginsberg also is survived by two other sons in New York.

Turner Coming Home

New York, March 31.—Lana Turner started back to Hollywood today, on last leg of vacation trip which took her to South America and Miami.

RANK'S $4 MILLION AUSSIE DEAL OKED

Sydney, March 31.—Stockholders of Greater Union Theatres voted approval of J. Arthur Rank's 50 per cent buy-in on company, in a deal involving $4,000,000. Deal also covers 50 per cent of British Empire Films' National Theatres Supply Co.

Norman Rydge remains as managing director of GUT with five Rank nominees to be placed on the board of directors.

$31 MILLION TAX IN SOCK BIZ MONTH

Washington, March 31.—January was another good month at the box-office on the basis of Internal Revenue Bureau figures announced tonight. The admissions take for the entire country was $31,466,372, more than $5,000,000 above January, 1945. However, the total fell more than $2,000,000 below the sock $33,741,349 reported for December, 1945. Above 90 per cent of the total tax take comes from film houses.

Broadway also enjoyed a busy time at the turnstiles in January. Collections for the third annual Internal Revenue District of New York were $1,700,000 under the terrific December, 1945, figures however.

'Amber' On Vacation

Twentieth hopes to have "Forever Amber" shooting again by mid-week. Work was shut down Friday due to the illness of Peggy Cummins.

'ST. LOUIS WOMAN' FAIRLY BRIGHT BUT SAGS MIDWAY

New York, March 31.—"St. Louis Woman," all colored musical comedy, opened with fair promise at Beck Saturday night. Best of score seems to be in first act, Pearl Bailey clicking best with comic lyric "Legalize My Name." Ruby Hill, attractive newcomer, does well with "Any Place I Hang My Hat Is Home."

Cakewalk first act finale is one of show's highlights with Jumping Harold Nicholas doing his stuff. Featured with his brother, Fayard, he plays sustained part of Little Augie, who takes Della Green away from Biglow Bully, owner of elaborate St. Louis Bar. Nicholas Brothers are very good in duo dance near closing. Rex Ingram plays male heavy very well. June Hawkins ditto with laments. Rouben Mamoulian restaged show during tryouts, backed entirely with Hollywood coin.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

ORPHEUM theatre, downtown four-a-day spot, is running idea which harks back to vaude's heyday—a weekly tryout performance at which acts show wares for benefit of agents and bookers. Event, at least five acts weekly, is slipped into supper show each Monday. Idea has definitely served purpose in that talent has been bought after show-casing. Frank Sinatra bought Stan Early for former's recent personal at Golden Gate, San Francisco, after lamping performer at the Orph. Doug Wright Trio was inked for Earl Carroll's after act went on view. Two other turns, Jay Howard, chalk-board artist, and the Hi-Hatters, showed to such good effect, Orph itself set them for a week. Performers are given a flat $15 a head for the single performance, which the theatre has made no effort to play up in ads or publicity. Word is merely passed to agents and bookers each week as to whom will be displayed.

"HORSE stores" doing business with studio personnel have been hotter than a firecracker for a week, with the gendarmes threatening investigation of asserted horse betting activities on studio lots, it was disclosed yesterday. Trouble is said to have started when a big time producer won a bet and got argument instead of payoff from the bookie. Incident was finally reported to district attorney's office and the heat was on. Scratch sheets and form charts were even excluded from studio newsstands. Beef, however, is supposed to have been blown down and bookies and players looked for everything to be six, two and even again this week.

As a result of Johnston affirming code decisions on the disputed material, Poletti said he would file suit shortly against the MPAA in Federal District court here. He will probably charge conspiracy injuring his client's business.

Johnstonites are also squawking about the recent trade-paper ads with actual "Outlaw" gross figures. 'BILLIE' HODGES, 1ST FEMME CASTING DIRECTOR, DIES

Hollywood today mourned the passing of Wilhelmina "Billie" Hodges, the little Pennsylvania-Dutch girl who became the industry's first woman casting director.

"Billie," an industry landmark of 30 years ago, with her knickerbocker attire and mannish bob, died suddenly last Saturday in Van Nuys from a cerebral hemorrhage. She was 50 years of age.

She came to Hollywood in 1916 as a script girl for Rex Ingram at the old Metro studios on Cole Avenue. She soon became casting director for the company. "Billie" took time out during World War I to serve in a civilian capacity with the U. S. Marine Corps. In 1920 she joined the William Fox Corp. as studio casting director. She served in that capacity until 1925 when she left for her first marriage to Jack Phelps.

Among the many players "Billie" first cast in minor roles who later became luminaries in old time films, were Theda Bara, Betty Blythe, Tom Mix, George O'Brien, Ramon Novarro, Alice Terry, Evelyn Brent, Priscilla Dean, Shirley Mason, Viola Dana and Marian Nixon.

In recent years "Billie" had been living on a ranch near Ranier, Oregon, with her second husband, Jack Riggs, who survives her. Also surviving are her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Marsh.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Jones and Meyer mortuary, Van Nuys. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery, Chatsworth.

B'nai B'rith Dormitory Will Close Today

Dormitory operated for past three years on Crescent Heights boulevard by the Beverly Hills lodge of B'nai B'rith closes today. Funds for project, which housed and fed 75,000 servicemen during the three years, were obtained from lodge members and motion picture people by Arthur Stebbins, general chairman. Lack of voluntary personnel to operate project is reason for closing today. Lodge is turning dormitory over to veterans organization at UCLA for use as housing center for students unable to find other facilities for shelter.

Hollywood Blvd. Will Be 'Outlaw' Lane

"The Outlaw," Howard Hughes' production, will be an inescapable attraction on Hollywood boulevard. Deal was set yesterday for the Marcal theatre to show the film, starting Wednesday on its first run, along with the four Music Hall theatres. Film will play three theatres in a seven-block stretch of the boulevard, with the Hawaii and Hollywood Music Hall on both sides of the Marcal.

Lena Horne set in a top role in Metro's "The Pirate," Judy Garland-Gene Kelly starrer.

BOGART TELLS WHY HE AND 'BABY' REFUSED 'STALLION'

Humphrey Bogart last night discussed his "latest" supension at Warner Bros. Actor, however, denied that his wife, Lauren "Baby" Bacall had also been "placed on suspense" for refusing, along with himself, her role in "Stallion Road."

"My suspension shouldn't be newsworthy any more," Bogart said. "I guess I have put in as much time on Warners suspension list as on their payroll.

"But if they suspend 'Baby', it would make me burn, and you may quote me. I told Jack Warner in New York, over the phone, that my wife and myself did not consider the screenplay indicative of a good vehicle for us.

"Jack said, 'you can trust me,' but I pointed out to him the fact that after 'Baby' had made a hit in 'To Have And Have Not' they cast her, over her objections, in 'Confidential Agent.' That film didn't do a thing for her career.

"Money doesn't mean a thing now-a-days but it takes excellence of product to keep a player alive. Take Joan Crawford for an example, she refused roles for nearly two years before accepting 'Mildred Pierce.'

"As to 'Stallion Road,' the whole thing was script trouble. I have only seen 62 pages of the screenplay and frankly I don't think the rest of the shooting script has been completed. If Warners doesn't care about casting us in any type of films, we do, and will continue to object against such practices."

When asked how long his contract at Warner Bros. had to go, actor replied:

"About two and one-half years more—and, I guess one could say, I'd then have enough points to get out."

Zachary Scott and Eleanor Parker were set over the weekend for 'Stallion Road,' roles nixed by Bogart and Bacall. Alex Gottlieb will produce and James Kern direct the filmization of the Stephen Longstreet novel.

WB Pix Go Indoors

Two pictures were forced inside by rain at Warners' Friday and Saturday. As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

Russia's dramatic move in being the first nation to pay its contribution to the United Nations capital fund is, as represented, a gesture of the Soviet to show its belief in the United Nations. Stalin's statement to AP's Eddy Gilmore also was purposeful, as almost every move in the Soviet. These expressions of confidence and hope in the UNO are hard for us to reconcile with Russia's use of a threat of force in Iran and Manchuria, but they are nevertheless sincere. Russia is just the big peasant in a soldier's uniform who has been a main force in winning a war, who throws his weight around, who wants to be respected as one of the boys, one who makes crude errors, who insists on equalities, and who means well . . . The heavy vote in Greece, despite the left appeals to abstain from voting, helps corroborate the idea that the Left in Greece makes a lot of noise, but is only a tiny minority that happens to be well organized and vocal. The election also makes it apparent that the Left, Communist influenced, wanted the election postponed or the vote to be light, only because it feared an election would show its weakness.

Film Review

It Happened At The Inn

(French Language)

METRO INTERNATIONAL RELEASE of a Minerva Production, produced in France. Director, Jacques Becker. Screenplay, Pierre Very. Based on "Goupi Mains Rouges," by Pierre Very. Photography, Jean Bourgoin. Music, Alfaro. English titles, Marjorie Adams.

CAST—Fernand Ledoux, Maurice Schutz, Georges Rollin, Blanchette Brunoy, Arthur Devere, Guy Faviere, Germaine Kerjean, Rene Genin, Marcelle Hainia, Line Noro, Le Vigan, Albert Remy, Marcel Peres, Pierre Labry.

REVIEWED at Esquire Theatre, Los Angeles, Calif., March 29, 1946. Running time: 98 MINS.

This sinister Gallic comedy-drama is an interesting and beautifully-photographed film which should find generous response in those houses where French-language pictures are shown. For the average American, however, even with its English titles, feature is not readily comprehensible, life as it unfolds in a French provincial inn and centering around the eccentric Goupi family is not a subject to appeal popularly.

"It Happened at the Inn" is a notable example of French product. Excellently directed and enacted throughout, and produced in the realistic school, film strikes a grim note early, constantly relieved by light humor, that carries through to a hilarious conclusion.

This is a story of a family which even in provincial France is singular, each member endowed with strange traits. Son of the innkeeper, whom latter has not seen since boy's mother took him to Paris 25 years before, is summoned by father, in hope that he will marry his cousin. Arriving, young Parisian, a cravat salesman whom his unknown family always has believed to be a big store-owner, immediately tastes strange behavior of his breed, and is accused of murdering his aunt. Story thereafter concerns itself with solution of murder, disclosure of family treasure which only one member knows where it is buried.

Film is not an average mystery or murder story. More than anything else, it is a faithful and skillful attempt to characterize an eccentric family who lives by its own tenets. In the telling, there is revealed top acting, particularly by Fernand Ledoux, Maurice Schutz, George Rollin, Le Vigan, Arthur Devere and Guy Faviere, every part being finely portrayed. Direction by Jacques Becker is strong, too, Jean Bourgoin's photography matchless. Pierre Very did splendid job with screenplay, adapted from his own story, "Goupi Mains Rouges."

Rank Lends Actress For Universal Film

Phyllis Calvert, British actress, has been borrowed by Universal from J. Arthur Rank to play the lead in "Time Out of Mind," scheduled for mid-summer production. Miss Calvert, known to American audiences for her performances in the British made films, "Man in Grey" and "Madonna of the Seven Moons," is the second star to be brought here on Universal talent-loan arrangement with Rank. Patricia Roc was previously brought over.

Determination to strengthen the Export Association was highlight of the MPAA board of directors meeting here over the weekend. It was pointed out that Export setup was formed as a united front for film companies and all companies must stand together in the fight against quotas and restrictions instead of individual outfits trying to make gains at the expense of others.

CLOSE TIE-UPS

Past few months there have been a number of tie-ups between domestic film companies and foreign combines, particularly in Great Britain. These, along with distribution deals made in other foreign spots by single companies, are believed to be reason for Johnston's call for unit.

Board meeting was presided over by Johnston and was attended by top executives of most of the member-companies. Among these were Nicholas Schenck, Barney Balaban, Nate J. Blumberg, Samuel Schneider, Arthur Loew, Eddie Mannix, W. C. Michel, Ned Depinet, and J. Robert Rubin.

100G FOR SCHOOL PIX

Board of directors appropriated $100,000 for production of seven educational films in 16m for use in schools. Arthur Mayer, operator of New York's Rialto theatre, was named production chief to serve without pay. A group of educators, headed by Dr. Mark May of Yale, will supervise subject matter and scripts. No subjects were decided on and distribution will be by MPAA's teaching film custodian's outfit.

U Signs 10 Year Deal With Greater Union

New York, March 31.—Universal International has signed a 10-year exhibition franchise deal with Greater Union Theatres of Australia, it was disclosed today by Joseph Seidelman, company prexy, prior to leaving for the J. Arthur Rank convention in London. Deal will give Universal product wide coverage in that area.

Aussie circuit, half owned by Rank, has 100 theatres and plans building an unestimated number of new houses under expansion plans recently announced. The pact was signed in Sydney by Norman Rydge, managing director of the circuit; Al Daff, Universal International veepee and Herb McIntyre, Universal's Australian managing director. Daff and McIntyre are flying to London with the contracts to meet Seidelman. With Universal and Rank, already partners in United World Pictures, new deal establishes closer affiliation between the two organizations.

THE GRAPEVINE: The town is standing on its ear over the advertisements in downtown newspapers heralding Jane Russell's appearance in "The Outlaw" at the Music Hall theatres. The ads read, "The Music Halls get the big ones! What are the two great reasons for Jane Russell's rise to stardom?" and answered the question in a line drawing of Miss Russell below. Only one paper, the L.A. Times, turned down the ads. If there are some fireworks in the next few days, you can be sure it isn't a premature celebration of the Fourth of July... A Hollywood interior decorator tossing a party tonight is having seven pounds of fresh sturgeon shipped by air freight from NY . . . Dolores Del Rio will produce two films in Mexico City this year, one of them co-starring herself with Arturo de Cordova . . . Marie Wilson has been set for a role in Loew-Lewin's "Bel Ami," which indicates a change of pace for her. Part calls for a blonde who is "buxom and brainy" . . . Big question on the babble and prattle circuit over the weekend was whether Ava Gardner is going to divorce Artie Shaw. They had a rumpus in a Bevhills restaurant several nights ago . . . George Skouras tossed the most exclusive party in months at Perino's—all former OSS specialists now in Hollywood were invited. Among those present were Milton Sperling, Stirling Hayden, Ray Kellogg, Peter Ortiz (he was OSS contact with the Maquis in France), Cy Bartlett, Bob Cordell, Louis de Rochemont and Richard Maibaum.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Buddy Rogers, ex-Navy man, and Ralph Cohn, ex-Army man, had a friendly argument over a character to be portrayed in their forthcoming production of "Little Iodine." He was supposed to be a villainous ex-serviceman in the picture. Neither wanted the script to show him as a former member of their branch of service, so they compromised—he'll be a civilian . . . Today's opportunity: Producer Seymour Nebenzal is looking for a technical advisor for bar scenes in "The Chase" . . . When Hal Roach was shown blueprints for the new commissary on his lot, he pointed to a corner in which another room was indicated. "What's this?" he asked. "A small private dining room for you and some of the top people on the lot," he was told. Roach scratched out the lines, saying "None of my executives nor myself are so important we can't eat with the others" . . . Claire Trevor just wound up her role in RKO's "Crackup," currently is playing in Andrew Stone's "The Bachelor's Daughters" and then goes in RKO's "Deadlier than the Male." After that, she'll take a six-month vacation to "get more acquainted" with her young daughter. From now on, she'll make a maximum of three films a year, she says . . . After-dark notes: The Dane Clarks and Craig Stevenses (Alexis Smith) hitting the spots together. Dick Erdman and Patricia White re-united after her return from NY. David Street and Anne Sterling at Glenn Billingsley's. The Al Sacks entertaining at their home for members of the "Maisie" show.

CALL SHEET: ANN SHERIDAN is playing a pip of a record for friends in her dressing room at Warners. It's a disc of "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," sung in Chinese by May Lee, vocalist at San Francisco's Khubla Khan. She had the record made while on location in SF for "The Sentence" . . . ZORINA'S wedding gown, for her marriage to Goddard Libberson, was designed by Travis Banton, who did her wardrobe for Universal's "Lover Come Back" . . . METRO SEZ ONE BIG BOMB PICTURE IS ALL ITS OWN

New York, March 31.—Contrary to reports that Hal Wallis will act as consultant producer on Metro's atom bomb picture, "The Beginning or the End," and will also get percentage of gross, Metro yesterday announced that company had bought out Wallis completely and that latter had no further interest in film. Company refused to disclose price paid Wallis.

"Beginning" is not slated to roll for several months. This indicates that Metro will be enabled to take advantage from postponed Navy A-bomb tests, if they go through.

The House of Squibb has built on solid radio ground in fusing its institutional prestige with the high dramatic quality of stars and craftsmen to be projected in the Academy Award series, exposed to the air for the first time last Saturday. The opener, Bette Davis, in a you-all'ish costume piece of 1938 Oscar vintage, "Jezebel," is what is known in the trade as "playing it safe." Combination of Davis and dramatics is double indemnity against mediocrity for any client. A pair of old hands at such selectivity, Don Shaw and Tom McAvity, know the advantage of getting off with a good one.

For a first show it came off smoothly, with credit to the reining of Dee Engelbach and the script of Frank Wilson. Every element was blended with sure strokes and the net result must have been satisfying to the men who live in the house that Squibb built. Not without its faults, it hewed to the line of tried-and-true formula to hold them at minimum. Coming out of the dress rehearsal three minutes, 40 seconds over, a fast job and editing and tightening was in order and the revise accounted for some choppy passages. Set-sitters around the country could follow the story line without too much transitional jolt in theme yet there may be the complaint raised, "but was there enough of it?" Which brings up another point, long moot in the trade and an easy pitfall for directors. Music.

Given 28 men, Leith Stevens and Engelbach sought to make the most of this dramatic facet by keeping the mood alive and to bridge the scene changes. In pictures, mood music forms a backdrop without intruding unnecessarily into the spoken action. It seemed to this reviewer that music took up too much of the dramatic time and broke the thread of the story in too many places. Scoring was highly skilled but this was tense, dramatic make-believe and the overplay could have been disconcerting to the dialer.

In its dramatic unfoldment the running was smooth and the track fast. Miss Davis had competent support from Ann Revere, substitute for the ailing Fay Bainter, and some solid stockers. Engelbach moved his characters around with even pace and kept the pitch subdued to the tempo of the play's southern locale. Hugh Brundage intoned the sponsor's institutional copy and held to the prestige motif, never once raising his voice in the manner of radio pitchmen.

Jean Hersholt, as prexy of the Academy, made a brief talk about the significance of the Academy-Squibb tieup, which incidentally, nets the Acad $1,600 a week for the mere use of its name. Next Saturday "Kitty Foyle" is revived with its Academy winner, Ginger Rogers.

LIGHT AND AIRY

—By JACK HELLMAN—

Where there's an X someone must be on the spot but who moved in when Jimmy Saphier moved off is anyone's guess. All we know is that Saph decamped that marked space in one of his typical eleventh hour rallies and pulled one out of the fire when the coals were cooling for him. Right under the collective noses of MCA's Hal Hackett and J. Walter Thompson's John U. Reber a package sale for "Man Called X" was made by Saphier to Foote, Cone & Belding as summer sub for Bob Hope. Holding a firm offer from Chase & Sanborn, deal was struck with MCA and everything was on the line but the delivery. Hackett, however, had reckoned without Herbert Marshall, who had done so well with "X" before, but Reber insisted on Marshall. It so happens that Saphier is Marshall's agent and he was still trying to peddle the show with that trump card.

When Saph's option to sell the show expired and the owners of "X," J. Richard Kennedy and George Corey, turned the package over to MCA, it was with the understanding that Saphier could retain his interest only insofar as Lever Bros. was concerned. When MCA couldn't deliver Marshall and Basil Rathbone was unavailable, Saphier used this chain of circumstances as wedge to the Pepsodent sale. When the deal was closed with FCB last Friday, it came as a blow to the Thompsonites, who figured Reber had it all sewed up back east.

Another element of the transaction played into Saphier's hand when the package owners gave preference to the Hope time over the Charlie McCarthy spot. Marshall had done "X" last summer for Pepsodent and fared so well rating-wise that it was reasoned a high Hooper in the summer makes a fall sale easier. Saphier was cleared by Hackett of any dealings under the table, dismissing the matter as one of those things. It marked the second time in weeks that Saphier came through with an eleventh-hour sale. He closed with Campbell soup for "Corliss Archer" an hour before his option expired on the deal. Young & Rubicam put in with a protest and threatened legal action to protect its rights. Saphier's attorney okayed both deals. Jack Johnstone, as in previous seasons, produces "Man Called X."

Were it not for an occasional unique device by the comedy section, big time radio would be wallowing in the slough of stagnation. Bob Hope seized upon an innovation last week that showed a flair for novelty and produced hilarious results. When a gag on his show rolled over and died, he skipped over to the contiguous Red Skelton program and planted it again, before a new audience. It didn't come off there either because the redhead had tipped the audience to play dead. When Red worked the same gag it boffed the sitters. Which recalls another neat piece of clowning last season by Jack Benny. When he was crowded off his last show by the NBC timekeeper, he moved over to Fitch Bandwagon long enough to say, "Good bye, folks." It's those fresh, crisp pieces of business that distinguish the thinker from the plodder.

Chain breaks . . . Charles Vanda has signed a new three-year deal with CBS as executive producer and will be relieved of administrative duties so he can devote full time to production. Programs earmarked for hiatus duty by Vanda and Davidson Taylor, CBS program chief, will be sifted upon Taylor's return to N.Y. this week . . . Tommy Riggs show has been bought by Young & Rubicam for Borden as summer filler for Ginny Simms. Vanda produced the successful audition but won't be at the controls when it rolls . . . Nattiest dresser among the writers is Dick McNight, whose gay toggery brightens up the Jack Carson rehearsals . . . The soap opera, "When a Girl Marries," kicked up so many suds in Tom Breneman's eye that he was eased out of the Hooper daytime lead. Differentials in that listing rarely get out of fractions and once they do will drop out of the league . . . Frank Hodek due back in mid-May after roaming the Pacific outposts with a USO unit . . . There have been so many rumors making the rounds about deals for Bing Crosby that we approach each new one with timidity. For what it's worth, the latest has The Groaner hooked up with ABC on a platter deal in which Bing will be paid off in network stock.

A moment of silent tribute to the memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt on the first anniversary of his death April 12 would be observed on every station in the country if the suggestion of Howard London of National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is accepted. He further proposes that the period around 4:35 p.m. EST, when the war president passed away, be in the nature of a memorial to radio's greatest friend. The networks have been approached and their acceptance would automatically swing all other stations into line.

Hitch hikes . . . Reputed to be the highest writing budget in radio is the $4,500 earmarked for the Frank Morgan-Pall Mall show which falls into the Jack Benny slot June 2. Robert Riley Crutcher is reported to draw down $3,000 a week and the remaining $1,500 will be split up among two other writers. Morgan's deal with American Tobacco is for 43 weeks, with 17 in the Benny spot followed by five weeks layoff and then 26 in another time niche probably the first half of the present Kay Kyser time, which reverts to American first of the year . . . Larry Berns, producer of the Jack Carson show, under treatment at Cedars of Lebanon following slight heart attack . . . Van Johnson's guest price of $5,000 precludes repeats . . . Georgia Gibbs got her wish doubled—she sings with Bing again Thursday . . . C. E. Hooper's analysis of his rating operation expected to draw a capacity turnout at the Roosevelt Wednesday, Thursday and Friday . . . Jim Andrews didn't survive his first option as a writer at Paramount and checks off the lot.

"PHONE AGAIN" HITS, MISSES, DRAGS BUT GOES WELL

Like the bromide it paraphrases, "Phone Again Finnegan," a serio-comic of the incessantly ringing telephone, and the fun it makes for all but the patient and suffering subject, is on again and off again. Some of it hits, some of it misses and some of it drags. But all considered, for an opener, it went well. It should make 'em tune in again—even if some listeners are too often uncomfortably reminded of the sponsor, Household Finance.

Stuart Erwin acquits himself admirably in the tailored role of an harassed apartment house manager whose trials are multiplied by the not-so-funny housing shortage and attendant headaches. With but an occasional and forgivable fluff, he breezed, and characteristically groaned, through lead role of father-advisor to a house full of tantalizing tenants, hapless help and ludicrous landlady, ably assisted by a keyed cast, including Florence Lake, Harry Stewart, Lou Merrill and June Foray.

Idea is topical, fairly well storied and, obviously, as well directed. Hobart Donovan, writer-director, rates some kudos, with aides, for making a show of what could have easily been a mess. More showmanly guides would have cut it short—and made for sustained interest.

'Calamity Jane' Just 'Passable' in Bow

The crusading small-town editor and his handy girl Friday have been around the networks for some time now but apparently the premise is still lush and green. As replacements for the late Marlin Hurt's "Beulah," Lewis-Howe (Tums) made a fast decision last Thursday and bought Jim Doane's packaged "Calamity Jane" as a starring vehicle for Agnes Moorehead. Putting together a show on two days' notice can't be expected to produce startling results and in deference to all hands what they did get on the air was of passable quality.

Once on the beam the dramatic piece should sail in calmer seas and perhaps generate sufficient voltage to build an audience in one of the toughest spots in radio—opposite Charlie McCarthy. Miss Moorehead, an able and versatile trouper, producer Paul Franklin and scripter Kirby Hawkes know their way around and should gradually weld their talents into a smooth running vehicle. It is more than a coincidence that Miss Moorehead, also appearing with Lionel Barrymore in "Mayor of the Town," should be cast in the same type of show, and Bill Johnstone as the rampaging editor. This can't be excused on the ground that the opener was a rush job. Subsequent weeks will determine whether "Calamity" finds a fall niche on CBS waiting after a summer run. The featherweight budget won't be much help.

For the kickoff Miss Moorehead and her support broke up a racket ring preying on returned war veterans by selling the city old quonset huts. It's a timely subject but the dramatic effect was short on impact and pounded along in the tracks of similar formulated vehicles, that of pointing up the shady side of political maneuverings.

IBEW, AFRA SLATED TO JOIN IN TALKS WITH B'CASTERS

Prospect of an IBEW-AFRA alliance to strengthen unions' positions in present negotiations looms for opposing Southern California Broadcasters. Unions are demanding pay increases for technicians and announcers. With broadcasters and AFRA so far unable to reach mutually agreeable bargaining point, and impasse imminent, possibility of actor group calling on IBEW to assist by combining for joint stand is indicated.

Claude McCue, AFRA exec secretary, and Roy Tindell, IBEW rep, are known to have met this week. Neither side would admit that an understanding had been reached. However, it's known that unions have some cooperative notions concerning other matters, and may well group their new objectives.

KFOX, KGER Agree To Hire Musicians

Agreement has been reached between musicians union and stations KFOX and KGER whereby stations will each employ a musician. In return stations are permitted to pick up remote band music from spots operating with union orchestras. Under union rule music of members may not be picked up on remotes unless station employes a musician or musicians. Union has also contacted stations KFAC, KIEV, KFVD and KSFG, extending invitation for similar agreements with them.

Republic's "G.I. War Brides" rolls April 17, with George Blair handling directorial chore.

'IODINE' STARTS HER PRANKS APRIL 8

Comet Productions goes into high gear this week, with its first film, "Little Iodine," starting next Monday and its second, tentatively tagged "Miss Television," being readied to go upon completion of the first.

Co-producers Buddy Rogers and Ralph Cohn have signed Hal Borne to be musical director and composer for "Miss Television." Borne will write six songs for the musical. Meanwhile producers are testing 15-year old girl singers for the title role.

Further assignments on "Little Iodine," which Reginald LeBorg will direct, include signing over the weekend of Robert Pittack as lenser, and Frank Fox as assistant director. LeBorg also will direct "Miss Television."

Janitors Tell Prods They've Gone Indie

Janitors union local 278 at a mass meeting at Carpenters Hall yesterday voted unanimously to withdraw from the Building Service Employes International and the Conference of Studio Unions. The producers were notified to suspend all negotiations in behalf of the janitors with the International as local 278 had decided to sever all connections and act independently.

Preps 'Madeleine'

Louis de Rochemont arrived over the weekend from Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, and checks back into 20th-Fox today to prepare actual start of "32 Rue Madeleine."

'Costa' Rehearsals

Leonide Massine, choreographer, starts rehearsals today with Vera-Ellen and ballet chorus of 45 for 20th-Fox's "Carnival in Costa Rica." Massine will also dance in film.

PAINTER COMMITTEE VOTED RIGHT TO CALL STRIKE

Membership of Moving Picture Painters, Local 644, yesterday voted authority to call a strike to its negotiating committee. Vote, by secret ballot, was 324 to 89, and empowered committee to take action if contract negotiations bog down and it is found that producers are not bargaining in good faith. On the committee are Herbert Sorrell, Carl Head, Jack Kistner and William Ball.

Other Conference of Studio Unions locals are slated to meet individually this week to hold secret ballot on empowering negotiating committees to take strike action if necessary. Painters have been without a contract since Jan. 1, 1944.

Studio Flacks To Debate Federal Or IA Charter

Open meeting of studio publicists takes place tonight in the Roosevelt Hotel Aviation Room for discussion of the pros and cons of an IATSE charter versus a Federal Charter. Among speakers will be Arthur Hilton and Roy Brewer.

IA charter obtained by flacks who split from the Screen Publicists Guild will be installed at tonight's meeting and membership cards passed out to those who have joined new group.

All studio flacks are invited to the session to hear arguments in favor of the IA affiliation. Members of two committees representing SPG and IA local failed to get together on a solution to the split in the publicists field at a meeting last Thursday with Tom Randall, AFL conciliator. IA group held firm that any NLRB election to determine bargaining representation be among the nine major studios, while SPG wants vote to be industry wide.

WB Tickets Lydon

Jimmy Lydon signed by Warner Bros. to a term acting ticket and was assigned a top role in "Life with Father." The William Powell-Irene Dunne starrer rolls within two weeks.

TOPS IN PERSONALITY AND SONG

THESE TWO LITTLE SONGS ARE RACING TO THE MARKET

"Kilroy Was Here" is identical title of two newly released, different songs and a race is currently afoot to get recorded versions of them on market first.

One of the ditties is authored by Paul Page, NBC morning-showman, is a BMI song and published by Paradise Music Co. Other is by Ted Fio Rito and Slim Coates and has not been spread on retail sheet-music yet, but when it is it will be ASCAP tune, since Fio Rito is member of Society.

Bel-Tone Records over weekend was hastening production of a platter using Page's work. Adrianna Caselotti and Pinto Colvig, pair of Walt Disney "voices," have disced the Fio Rito-Coates' version for 4 Star Records. Miss Caselotti spieled the "Snowwhite" role in Disney feature cartoon of decade ago.

Oddly, same pressing plant is prepping both "Kilroy" discs. Dick Nelson, owner of 4 Star, does Bel-Tone production on job-lot basis. Fact that both songs have identical title stems from scrawling of legend in latrines of U.S. Army around the world. Thing started as gag about a year ago, and has been brought to civilian public attention by article in current Esquire mag issue.

Very few times in current century have two ditties simultaneously been released under same tag, a practice copyright law does not prohibit. Last memorable instance was score of years back when two "When My Baby Smiles At Me" hit market at same time.

OBITUARIES

MRS. HELEN T. CRAIG

ONE MAN RADIO ROW GOING TO ARBITRATION

Arbitrators have been named to settle dispute between NBC and AFRA over abolition of the "junior" classification for announcers. Matter is heading for settlement after year and a half of wrangling. Though a sore point with both sides, matter, at present, concerns only one man in that category at NBC, but it is a matter of principle with both sides —and a sore spot.

When union signed with local net stations November, 1944, all but NBC agreed to discontinuance of the junior classification. At present NBC has one man getting $165 monthly as junior. Others gets $268, though union contends duties are identical. Union named Jack Dales as its arbitrator, and net named Cecil Underwood. Pair will name third party.

SHOOTING: THE JOLSON STORY

VOL. 1 MONDAY, APRIL 1, 1946 NO. 2

ON THE SET with SIDNEY SKOLSKY

THERE was sex on the set of "The Jolson Story" when I arrived to watch the filming of this celluloid biography of Al Jolson. The sex was there in the person of Evelyn Keyes, in Technicolor yet. In fact I'd say that the set was crowded with Jolsons and sex.

THERE was Al Jolson in person, and there was Larry Parks, who portrays Al Jolson in the film, and there was Evelyn Keyes, who was singing "California Here I Come," doing an impersonation of Al Jolson. Evelyn Keyes is playing the role of the dancer, the show girl, the woman in Jolson's life, and in this particular sequence—a party at Jolson's New York apartment—Jolson, that is, Larry Parks, grabs Evelyn by the wrist and takes her out on the balcony overlooking Broadway. Then he makes love to her and sex enters the picture.

WHILE they were rehearsing this scene, I asked Al Jolson if he knew where the dark spot was. He said that he hadn't seen Sidney Skolsky, the producer. But I know my Skolsky, and with sex around I knew that Skolsky couldn't be far away. I finally located him. Skolsky, the producer, was sitting in a far corner of the stage in a chair with Evelyn Keyes' name on it. I walked over to him and said, "I figure that's about the only way you can get next to Evelyn Keyes.

"So it's you again," said Skolsky, the producer, to Skolsky, the columnist. "I figured you'd be around again to heckle me. What have I done to you?"

"Enough,' said Skolsky, the col to Skolsky, the prod, enough. You've turned producer on me, and I can't think of anything worse than that. I have now become a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and you know which one Skolsky, the prod is!"

"Quiet!" shouted Director Al Green to the couple of Skolsky's. "We want to shoot this scene."

PARKS stood on the balcony making with the nice words with Evelyn Keyes, and I couldn't blame him for she looked plenty sexy. They said practically everything, but the scene concluded with the customary clinch and kiss. "That was fine," said Jolson. "I didn't do better myself when it happened."

"But," said Parks, "why didn't you kiss the girl so I could kiss Evelyn?"

"What do you want from my life?" asked Jolson.

THIS caused Skolsky, part-columnist, part-producer, to laugh. It was the first time that Skolsky ever laughed at Skolsky. I happen to know that Skolsky resents being called a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, for he insists that beside being a columnist and a producer he is also a human being. But there is some question about that. Anyway, next week Al Jolson in "The Jolson Story" will be on Broadway performing in the way that made him famous, and I will be on the set to tell you about it and to check on Skolsky, all three of me.

EVELYN KEYES-THE GIRL IN THE JOLSON STORY

TECHNICOLOR STAR. Evelyn Keyes plays the romantic dancing lead opposite Larry Parks in Columbia's "The Jolson Story". It's her third technicolor picture in a row, following her outstanding success in "1001 Nights" and the leading feminine role in soon-to-be-released "The Renegades."

CHARGES PLAN TO KILL THEATRE ACTIVITIES

St. Louis, April 1.—Charges that distributors had attempted to scuttle the War Activities Committee at the outset and that the same forces are still operative were made at the opening of the Theatre Activities Committee convention here today by E. V. Richards, president of Paramount-Richards Theatres, of New Orleans. Richards declared he would "call a spade a spade" and said the late Sydney Kent and other bigwigs asked prominent figures such as Spyros Skouras not to serve on the WAC. He said Skouras, however, insisted.

Richards read a telegram from Skouras to Roger Wilby, head of the Wilby-Kincey Circuit, Atlanta, asking support in the current Red Cross

50 KILOWATT SPOTS GRAB 21 OF NETS $60 MILLION

Washington, April 1.—The 53 U.S. stations which operate with a top power of 50 kw. chalked up net time sales amounting to $60,981,196 in 1945 — A figure 4.3 per cent above their take in 1944, the FCC announced today. Of that figure the top power stations received $21,772,835 for the sale of time to the major nets. Indicating the importance of the 50 kilowatters as selling media, their take amounted to approximately 37 per cent of all money paid out by the major webs to affiliates last year.

Forty of the 53 stations reported increases and 13 decreases in 1945 net time sales.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

NBC got its own wires a little crossed in reporting on show-must-go-on story behind last week's "Telephone Hour." When "D" string on Jascha Heifetz's violin split in middle of a passage, David Firsina, concert master and first violinist, jumped to the rescue. Handing over of latter's instrument to Heifetz was so speedily handled that virtuoso lost hardly a second. Except for the cleff clinker caused by sound of busting string listeners were unaware of drama. Audience had to be restrained by announcer from cheering such expert upholding of show traditions—but NBC failed to carry through equally well. Net released story that conductor Don Vorhees had to interrupt the broadcast while fiddle was fixed.

ALLIED STATES WILL FIGHT PERCENTAGE CHECK SYSTEM

Minneapolis, April 1. — North Central Allied States, indie exhibitors organization, decided at its convention today to "go to the highest court in the land for a showdown" if distributors attempt to send auditors to recheck percentage pictures. The convention also went on record to press for theatre divorcement through national and state legislation if the big five monopoly suit fails to order it.

President Bennie Berger declared that distributors "have muscled in on exhibitors as partners through percentage without making any investment." Berger also emphasized that theatre ownership by producers is "the root of the industry's evils." The exhibitors organization also charged that distributors have been trying to take credit "for the industry's entire accomplishments in raising funds for worthy causes."

Organization also decided to campaign for discontinuance of the federal admission tax.

Sherwood Back East

Robert E. Sherwood is en route back to New York, having wound up script of MacKinlay Kantor's "Glory for Me," for Samuel Goldwyn.

MAY SERVICE PIX BY REMOTE CONTROL

New York, April 1.—Walkout of all backroom employes in Detroit exchanges except Paramount and 20th has led to threat that distributors may permanently service Detroit territory from other nearby exchange points such as Chicago, Milwaukee, Cincinnati and Cleveland. This is being done as a result of the strike.

While backroom unions are out 25 other branches have made new deals ranging up to 15 per cent increase that would raise present minimum from $25 to $40. Strike of shippers in one central building housing all the exchanges, except Paramount and 20th, was complicated last week when building service employes struck.

'ROAD TO UTOPIA' LEADING WITH 60 G'S SECOND WEEK

"Road to Utopia," on second week at the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramount theatres, is still out in front of other local first run bills. The Bing Crosby-Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour comedy is sighting record second frame of $60,000 or near after establishing an all-time high of $73,100 on the first week.

First week of "Sentimental Journey" and "She Went to the Races" at the State, Chinese and Uptown is shooting for nice $53,000 or close. "Sailor Takes a Wife's" second week at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz is coming through with estimated $54,000 and holds through next Monday before "Zeigfeld Follies" takes over. Fourth frame for "Saratoga Trunk" continues husky at Warners Downtown, Hollywood and Wiltern theatres with possible $54,000 in sight. "The Bandit of Sherwood Forest," in third week at the Pantages and Hillstreet, is pulling neat $29,500.

Showcasing of "The Seventh Veil," British-made film being released through Universal, at the Carthay Circle is paying off big. Third week of the picture is already ahead of the second frame and may finish Thursday night with $13,500. It holds for indefinite stay.

Four Music Halls are marking time with "Breakfast in Hollywood" until "The Outlaw" debuts tomorrow. Marcal theatre has been added to string to give the Howard Hughes production a fifth showcase for the run.

Granville Gets Role of Mickey's Girl Friend

Bonita Granville draws role of Mickey Rooney's gal friend in Metro's "Uncle Andy Hardy," which rolls under producership of Bob Sisk in two weeks. Actress played same role in Mickey's last picture, "Andy Hardy's Blonde Trouble."

Grahame Tops 'Life'

Gloria Grahame goes on loanout to Liberty from Metro, for top featured role in Frank Capra's "It's a Wonderful Life."

SOMEBODY CARELESS WITH ATOM BOMB

New York, April 1.—A statement correcting one given out yesterday that Metro had bought out all financial interest of Hal Wallis and Joseph H. Hazen in atom bomb picture, was handed to Daily Variety today.

Declaration stated that "original announcement stands," that "both companies will have a financial interest." Misunderstanding of a Metro exec led to erroneous report of yesterday.

Wallis and Eddie Mannix confabbed today on picture, with further consultations slated when Wallis returns from England.

Plan 'Abie's' 25th Anni Party on Roach Set

With "Abie's Irish Rose" now in its 25th year—it was first produced early in 1922—Bing Crosby and Producer-Director Eddie Sutherland are planning to toss a Silver Anniversary party on the set at the Hal Roach studio, where the picture goes into work on April 15. Anne Nichols, author of the play, will be the guest of honor.

Janitors Do Split

Officers of Janitors Local 278 yesterday declared that meeting held Sunday by a group of the local's members did not have the sanction of the union and as a consequence any action group might take would not be binding on the local. Local 278, which has a closed shop agreement with the producers, is currently under trusteeship of the International. Trustees are John C. Stevenson and George Bradley.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

John L. Lewis, who would like to show the CIO he is a better labor leader than those who won wage increases for automobile and steel workers, and who does not believe in any government wage and price policy, is in a splendid strategic position as he begins his battle. The man with the eyebrows can negate the effect of settling the other labor disputes since coal is basic, and also if he gains his demands for a 10-cent-a-ton royalty for his health and welfare fund, plus a wage increase of as least 18½ cents an hour, the price of coal will undoubtedly not only have to be raised, but he will have started another chain of costs that will diminish the effect of the previous wage gains, and that also will seriously affect the stability of the wage-price policy. Lewis has said that he believes in unrestrained freedom of enterprise, as he sees it, and he's out to prove it. To make his battle more effective, John starts with the health and welfare demand, still not specific, and hasn't even mentioned wages so far. He has the appeal of battling for the country's most dangerous industry, and rugged individualist John L. will make the most of it.

(Drama)

WARNER BROS. RELEASE. Producer, Robert Buckner. Director, Curtis Bernhardt. Assistant director, Jesse Hibbs. Screenplay by Keith Winter. Original story by Theodore Reeves. Photography, Ernest Haller. Art director, Robert M. Haas. Special effects by Jack Holden, Jack Oakie and Rex Wimpy. Set decorations, Casey Roberts. Montages, Don Siegel and James Leicester. Music by Erich Wolfgang Korngold. Musical director, Leo F. Forbstein. Dialogue director, James Vincent. Sound, Stanley Jones. Makeup, Perc Westmore. Gowns, Milo Anderson. Film editor, Rudi Fehr.

TRADESHOWN at Warner Bros. Studios, Mar. 26, 1946. Running time: 104 MINS.

"Devotion" is lavishly produced biographical drama with the biography, for the most part, laid on thicker than the drama. Low key photography of the pic is pretty apt expression of the heavy mood of the story, which is based on the lives of the authors, Charlotte and Emily Bronte. Moderate femme appeal, such marquee names as Ida Lupino, Olivia de Havilland, Paul Henreid and Sydney Greenstreet, and luxuriously appointed production constitute the picture's chief bid for box office returns.

Director Curtis Bernhardt and the top cast succeed to considerable degree in highlighting the situations, but they don't have an easy time of it. Their job isn't made any easier by the scripters' use of dialogue styled in the stilted, literary formalism of the "Jane Eyre" and "Wuthering Heights" period.

Miss Lupin oscores nicely as Emily Bronte and Miss de Havilland depicts a Charlotte who is more convincing in her determined and unrelenting ambition than in her gentler moods. Arthur Kennedy is impressive in the part of Bramwell Bronte, the alcoholic and near-psychopathic brother, which calls for some of the heaviest acting of the show. Paul Henreid as the young curate with whom both girls are in love, Sydney Greenstreet as the author, Thackeray, Nancy Coleman, as Anne Bronte, a younger sister, and Victor Francen, all do noteworthy work. Rest of the cast furnishes them excellent support throughout.

Robert Buckner has produced the show without apparent regard for expense and settings are richly designed and executed. Ernest Haller's photography combines with Bernhardt's direction and the Keith Winter screenplay to give color and dramatic interest to a story that is a bit too tenuous for 104 minutes of running time. Score by Erich Wolfgang Korngold is effective in maintaining atmosphere of the picture.

NOAH BEERY DIES AS HE REHEARSES RADIO SHOW

Noah Beery, Sr., 62, veteran screen actor, died of a heart attack yesterday in the arms of his brother, Wallace, at the latter's home at 816 North Alpine drive. The two brothers were rehearsing their roles for an appearance on the Lux Radio Theater last night. Wallace and his daughter, Carol Ann, went on the show as scheduled, with Ed Max taking the Noah Beery part.

Beery was here on a vacation from New York where he had been appearing in the stage show, "Up In Central Park."

He was born in Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 17, 1884, and got his first acting experience with a Kansas City stock company. He and Wallace played together for three years in a stock company that toured the country, playing the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine." He entered pictures in 1920 and played heavies and character parts from silent days on to recent years, when he appeared in occasional bit parts.

For a number of years he operated a trout farm near Palmdale.

Surviving, besides his brother, Wallace, are his widow, the former stage actress, Marguerite Lindsey; his son, Noah, Jr., and his brother, William.

Arrangements for funeral services at Forest Lawn are being made, with the date tentatively set for Wednesday.

' JUST FOR VARIETY '

THE GRAPEVINE: Fritz Lang and Milton Sperling, director and producer on "Cloak and Dagger" at Warners, are a-feudin' like demented, and report has it that Director Lang has barred Producer Sperling from the sets of his picture . . Metro's calling him Florenz Freed, now that "Till the Clouds Roll By" has already totted up a $2,500,000 cost, with three more big sequences still to be shot . . . Charles Laughton and Orson Welles are lining up a cast for their forthcoming Broadway production of a play based on the life of Galileo. Laughton will play the medieval scientist . . . Dick Powell and June Allyson spent more than $25,000 on improvements on their new house . . . Joel McGinnis defines a rich playboy as a man who keeps his diary in a checkbook . . . Olga San Juan, Paramount starlet, received a watch and ring on her 19th birthday from John Auer, who designed the jewelry himself and had it put together in NY . . . Reconciliation was effected by Sy Bartlett and Ellen Drew, latter explaining: "After six weeks' separation, we find that our small differences are really very unimportant!" Which is about as sensible a declaration as any made in many moons . . . Good Samaritan, night club style: Charlie Beal, Florentine Gardens pianist, found four patrons waiting for a taxi in the rain, bundled them in his car and drove them home . . . L.O.P. had a bad night with the stork, predicting a baby was on the way for Shirley Temple over her airshow, but catching the late editions of the Examiner with a denial of her own rumor.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Frank Capra's lineup for the Liberty Films Production "It's a Wonderful World" reads like a section of the Metro contract list. James Stewart, now freelancing but formerly a Metro star, heads the cast, and Donna Reed, Lionel Barrymore and Gloria Grahame, all still under contract at the Culver City studio, are in support . . . Frank Kerwin press-previewed his Seacomber at Malibu, and unexpectedly provided a reunion for Commander Jack Dempsey, Captain Dick Hyland and Kyle Palmer. In the kitchen they bumped into chef Hoy Lee, who was cook for the 2nd Coast Guard—and the trio—off Okinawa a year ago . . . Paul Price did a double-take the other night at Ciro's—strolling among the dancers was a big shaggy dog, who later drifted out with his nose in the air . . . Maria Montez's first night out since the birth of her daughter was with her husband, Jean Pierre Aumont, and the Charles Boyers . . . Wedding of the Muses: Lupe Rodriguez, stripper at the Burbank Follies downtown, and Roberto Serri, operatic tenor, have obtained a marriage license . . . Paul Diamond, David Niven's standin on "The Perfect Marriage," got himself a part in Paramount's "Suddenly It's Spring" playing an Army officer—which he was until a few months ago . . . Cuff-notes on the cafes: Edmund Lowe and Lady Thelma Furness as the Bar of Music, Agnes Morehead at Harout's Har-Omar . . . John Shelton is giving Lynne Baggett a whirl . . . Al Sack spotted this typo on a sports page: "Many loyal fans are planning to follow the team to the scene of the bottle."

CALL SHEET: CHARLES PERRY, L.A. fight manager, plays—of all things —a fight manager in RKO's "A Likely Story" and "Criminal Court" . . . FRITZ LANG loaded the "Cloak and Dagger" set at Warners with enough international atmosphere for a dozen Oppenheim novels. Lang was born in Vienna, as was Lilli Palmer. J. Edward Bromberg's birthplace was Hungary; Helen Thimig's Bavaria; Vladimir Sokoloff, Moscow; Pat O'Moore, Ireland; cameraman Sol Polito, Palermo, Sicily; technical advisor Lieut. Michael Burke, Limerick, Ireland; propman Scotty More, Scotland; unit flack J. M. Ruddy, England; and Gary Cooper, Montana, which happens to be part of the U.S. . . . ALLAN JONES' opening at the Chez Paree was a hit, though he followed Tony Martin's record-breaking engagement . . . LLOYD BACON has been feasting on strawberries, shipped here by air-freight by a couple of ex-Navy men he entertained during their Hollywood visit . . . ELAINE RILEY, Paramount starlet, took off for New York yesterday for a three-week vacation . . . VIVIAN COSBY is making a comeback, after her backstage tragedy of several years ago, and has a story in a national mag . . . SELENA ROYLE'S 25th anniversary in show business was celebrated by John Dall, Jane Withers, Stanley Richards and many others . . . MICHAEL ARDEN, the Seattle "shiver singer," makes his Hollywood debut Thursday over CBS's "You're in the Act" program.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Mrs. Bob Hope will be hostess at a garden party for the benefit of Children of War-Torn Europe Sunday, with a guest list including Dorothy Lamour, Margaret O'Brien, Irene Dunne, Burns and Allen, the Ronald Reagans, the Joe E. Browns, the Bing Crosbys, Leo McCarey and Jerry Colonna. At booths set up in the Hope garden will be Dinah Shore in the "music box"; Joe E. Brown in "Harvey House," selling rabbits; the Pat O'Briens in the "nursery bar," and Ray Milland presiding over the "coke bar" . . . Jack Carson is telling about the female mosquito who passed her first screen test . . . Love scenes between Ann Sheridan and Kent Smith in Warners' "The Sentence" are so torrid they're closing the set to messenger girls. A few have swooned and interrupted production—they claim . . . Freddy Martin opens his music shop in the Ambassador May 15. Custom-built radios will be a sideline . . . Bill Gargan's younger son, whom he named for the late Leslie Howard (they had a long Broadway run together), is being enrolled at St. Mary's school in San Jose . . . Elliott Nugent's daughter Barbara and her classmate at Bryn Mawr, Patty Hochschild, arrived by Constellation yesterday to spend the Easter vacation here . . . Alfred Ryder, NY actor, is playing in Paramount's "Golden Slippers" by day and directing the new Tennessee Williams play "Mooney's Kd Won't Cry" at the Actors' Lab by night. A perfect balance for the theatrical ego!———D.D.T.

CONSOLIDATED LOT LOADING UP; HAS 3 INDIES WORKING

With Lou Moss Productions, recently incorporated, moving into Consolidated studios, trio of indie producers now are quartered permanently at Sunset Blvd. lot, a fourth, Golden Gate Productions, slated to take over offices there within 30 days. Other two are W. Lee Wilder Productions and Steve Sekely Productions.

Moss has just made one-picture releasing deal with Republic, for Johnny Weissmuller starrer, "Shark Man." It is his first production as an indie.

Construction started yesterday on sets for Golden Gate's "Accent On Horror," with company moving over from Gordon Street studio to finish picture. Walt Mattox, just appointed associate producer for company, has been shooting for past week at Gordon studios, but must shift to Consolidated first of next week due to prior Gordon studio commitments. Hereafter, all of Golden Gate's product will be filmed at Consolidated. Golden Gate formerly was Action Pictures.

Wilder starts "Yankee Faker" within six weeks, and Sekely wound up "Fabulous Suzanne" last week. Walter Colmes also is prepping his next picture, "Snow Cinderella," for shooting at Consolidated.

Dalya Here for 'Queen'

Jacqueline Dalya has arrived from New York to start work in PRC's "Queen of Burlesque." She recently wound Broadway role in "The French Touch."

Light 'n' Airy

(on the ½ shell)

by JACK HELLMAN

Two questions:

Does radio take itself too seriously?

Why is it such a killing business?

Producers and writers, breaking under the strain of turning out new shows every week, become hypochondriacs and physical wrecks long before middle age. Many have been told by physicians, "Get out of radio," that the nerve-wracking grind cannot be long endured without serious physical breakdown. Name me a successful producer and I'll put my finger on a gent with ulcers. Young men, too.

It could easily be overcome if radio took stock of itself and spread the hours of work instead of such frenzied bearing down just before air time. Quite true, sponsors demand last-minute changes, actors cancel out and other discrepancies occur to bang on the nerves but why can't the condition be alleviated? The timing is only split-second when on the air so why should it be that way from one broadcast to another through 39 torrid weeks? So the script isn't perfect and Joe Blow had to be substituted. They take it in stride in other businesses but radio must make every item a hassel.

The producer will blame it on the client, who is interested only in a good show. He is entitled to the best results for his outlay but not to the point of man-killing, enervating labor that wrecks men when they ought to be in their very prime. Closer cooperation all around could minimize the condition and make everyone healthier and happier. No show is worth a man's health but that's how it's working out. In a week there are 168 hours yet a few hours preparation and a half hour on the air is so badly spaced that the nervous system must absorb all the shock.

Slow down, fellows, it isn't worth it.

Chain breaks . . . Young & Rubicam has withdrawn its interest in "Corliss Archer" and "elected not to recommend it to any of its clients." Program was recently acquired by Campbell soup over the protest of Y & Y . . . Ted Collins has canceled the Hollywood trip for Kate Smith. His demands were too stiff for Paramount to meet . . . Meredith Willson and his music take the Burns and Allen summer shift, with the King Sisters and a solo vocalist aiding and abetting . . . "Gildersleeve" takes a full 13 off this summer and lets NBC take the fill . . . Bob Ballin to Chicago Sunday to set up audience studio for Jack Benny's May 12 broadcast.

School Days, School Days

Flushest college boy in town this morning is 20-year-old Jimmy Higson, full-time philosophy student at U.C.L.A who made $1,500 in seven days ending last night. Aside from his attendance at classes, Higson also batons Teen Agers band, which yesterday wound up week at Vaudfilm Orpheum, and handles all musical arranging and scoring for Hoagy Carmichael's NBC commercial. Teen-Agers grossed slightly more than $6,500 last week, with four-a-day stanza, plus Carmichael show. Student plays one-niters with ork in this area, but does not personal with crew, all 17 of whom are under 21, when band travels beyond zone which would keep him from classroom.

JOHNSTON SEEKS 500 MILLION AUDIENCE FOR U.S. FILMS

Nw York, April 1.—In the belief "salesmanship" can build the world audience for U.S. films from 250,000,000 to 500,000,000 persons weekly, Eric Johnston will begin the first of a series of trips abroad in May. He will spend about 60 days in Europe, he said today, followed by a jaunt to Asia and later junkets to all parts of the map.

Johnston said he will leave as soon as the cancer campaign ends and his term as president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce expires, both in May.

KFOX May Protest FCC Granting Valley Permit

KFOX, Long Beach, may file protest with federal communications commission against granting of license to proposed station in San Fernando Valley. Occupying 1280 band now, KFOX has engineers checking liklihood of interference from tentatively lettered KSFV which has applied for the 1260 ribbon. Result of engineers survey will determine action. Aware of KFOX's position and checkup, KSFV will take stand that mountain range eliminates possibility of lanes overlapping.

20TH BUYS RANCH FOR LOCATION SITE

Purchase of the Brent's Crags ranch, consisting of 2300 acres in the Lake Malibu area was announced yesterday by 20th-Fox. Price was stated as being more than $250,000.

Studio execs said property abuts on Lake Malibu at its tip, contains a lake near the center of the property, a waterfall and expanse that permits 360 degree camera shots for location scenes.

Plan is to use the tract currently for location shooting. Studio officials said they also are looking to possible future need for studio sites.

BREEN WARNS CODE SPIRIT MUST BE MAINTAINED

the code but not its spirit. Intimation is that Breen feels that both in filming and ballyhoo the picture makers have been cutting corners, using material that cannot be fingered as a direct violation of the regulations laid down by the Motion Picture Association of America but that still borders on the objectionable.

Breen has pointed out to producers "the need in these changing times for the greatest possible care in order that pictures may not be seized upon by critical censorship boards at home and abroad as an excuse for curtailing the freedom of the screen."

Beefs on ballyhoo used in the newspaper and magazine ads, especially on certain independent productions, and recent censorship battle over Walter Wanger's "Scarlet Street" are reported to have sparked the current code confabs.

NBC B'CASTERS TOLD BUYERS MARKET IS IN OFFING

Problems affecting NBC and its affiliate stations may have to be compromised but not at the expense of qualitative programming, Prexy Niles Trammell told managers of NBC's owned and operated and member stations at yesterday's opening session of the annual western division meeting at the Ambassador. He indicated that the process of meeting certain changes would be costly to the network but that NBC was determined to maintain its leadership in the broadcast field.

Another post-war trend was pointed up by Roy Witmer, v.p. in charge of sales, when the 70 broadcasters in attendance heard the prediction that an early change from the present seller's market to a buyers market was surely developing. He warned the station operators to be prepared to meet the reversal.

Other speakers at the opening session were Charles Hammond, director of advertising and promotion; Harold J. Bock, director of public relations, western division; Jennings Pierce, division head of public service, and Trammell, who welcomed the delegates and spoke on "The Washington Picture and Labor."

On today's agenda are talks by Easton Wooley on "Economics of Network Broadcasting"; Clarence Menser on "Programming the NBC Network"; John Cameron Swayze on "News and Special Events"; Sheldon Hickox on "Cooperative Programming." Up for discussion with NBC officials will be subjects developed during yesterday's meeting of affiliates, presided over by W. B. Ryan, manager of KFI, and Karl Wyler.

OUT OF HORN'S MOUTH

Lud Gluskin batons his musical score today for PRC's "Avalanche."

Karl Hajos today pre-records eight tunes by Kim Gannon and Walter Kent for "Missouri Hayride" at PRC.

Morton Scott will be musical director for "Under Nevada Skies" at Republic.

Janis Paige recorded "Goin' Back Home to Cheyenne" for Warners' "Cheyenne."

Max Steiner winds scoring today for "The Beast with Five Fingers" at Warners.

Gene Autry premiered "There's Happiness on the Range Again," a western song on which he and Nat Vincent collaborated, on one of his recent CBS broadcasts for Wrigley's, and is set to wax the tune for Columbia.

Mark Warnow and his orchestra, with Vera Barton doing the vocals, have made a Sonora recording of "I'll Be Yours," a French ballad published by Peer International.

David Street's first record made for Diamond will hit the stands April 10. The first of the series of 32 sides, the Street songs are "Love in Vain" and "Who's Sorry Now?"

Costello Sandwiches Radio and Politics

Lou Costello heads east on May 10, following washup of "Ghost Steps Out," to soap-box campaign for Harold Hoffman, who is running for governor of New Jersey. Costello is old friend of Hoffman, onetime governor of state, and will stump for three weeks on a tour now being quietly laid out by Republican campaign strategists. Bud Abbott and rest of team's radio show will accompany Costello eastward, remaining in NY from which broadcast will emanate on May 16-23-30.

PRODUCERS SEEKING NLRB ELECTION FOR PUBLICISTS

National Labor Relations Board election could solve.

Joining in the request, filed by Homer I. Mitchell of O'Melveny & Myers, were Columbia, Loew's, Paramount, RKO, Republic, Samuel Goldwyn, 20th-Fox, Universal and Warners. Studios ask that NLRB order an investigation of the controversy and issue a certificate as bargaining representative for group having a clear majority in the publicist field. Studio move was made possible by regulations which permit an employer to seek an election when disputing unions fail to take such action.

Motion Picture Studio Publicists, Local 798, IATSE, met last night at the Hollywood Roosevelt to install the charter, nominate and elect officers. Group also heard talk by Roy Brewer and Arthur Hilton concerning advantages that will accrue to flacks through the IA affiliation, which grants an autonomous local charter to publicists.

Elected as temporary officers to serve for three months were Casey Shawhan, president; Phil Gersdorf, Mel Boyd, and Jack Parks, vice-president; Frank McFadden, treasurer, and Jean Bosquet, secretary.

OBITUARY

HARRY JOHN RACKETT

Funeral services will be held this afternoon, 1:30 p.m., at Wee Kirk o' the Heather, Forest Lawn, for Harry John Rackett, 87, veteran vaudeville headliner and musician, who died Friday at his home here. He is survived by his widow, Ada, son, Gerald, and two sisters. He was a member of John Phillip Sousa and Arthur Pryor bands, as well as Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and appeared locally on opening program of Orpheum Theatre. Rackett was life member of Chicago Federation of Musicians.

Bogart Burns

Lauren Bacall followed her husband, Humphrey Bogart, on Warners' suspension list for also refusing to play one of the leads in "Stallion Road." Bogart warned "it would really make me burn if they suspend Baby" Sunday after receiving his own suspension notice. Zachary Scott and Eleanor Parker have been assigned to the Bogart and Bacall roles, film going before the cameras today.

drive, which recited the Kent story. He implied that "propaganda against the TAC as a group of monopolists and circuits" originated from distributors. He added in an interview to Variety that producers and distributors unduly emphasize sales and that they oppose effective national theatre organization.

S. H. Fabian, chairman of the interim committee, keynoted the meet by categorically denying charges of Allied States and others, that organization would stooge for government, charities or distributors. There is no intention, he said, to deprive individual exhibs of the right to operate their own business in their own best interests. He detailed plans to improve public relations and to combat extortionate taxes. He said TAC would study and act as advocate on taxes, building codes, licensing, censorship, interstate commerce, public health and discriminatory legislation.

The finance committee of the convention will recommend tomorrow the raising of $100,000 in the first year to subsidize TAC activities, the money to be assessed according to exchange area film percentages and then subdivided into state assessment. Method of collection is to be left exhibs in each state.

GRANZ BILLS 21 JAZZ CONCERT DATES

Norman Granz, local live-talent agent, has put together a jazz-concert lineup which opens cross-country tour here at Embassy Auditorium on April 22. Cast includes Coleman Hawkins, Buck Clayton, Lester Young, Shadow Wilson and Ken Kercey grouped as an ork, and 88er Meade Lux Lewis and chirp Helen Humes as soloists.

Music Corp. of America is booking layout from local office as far as Denver, east of which Billy Shaw of Moe Gale agency in NY does the penciling. To date engagements in 21 cities have been set to follow break-in here. Show is getting $1,250 against 60 per cent of gate, or $1,500 against 50 per cent, per stand.

Granz is billing show "Jazz at the Philharmonic," albeit he no longer can book his hot-item concerts at the L.A. Philharmonic after management became incensed at show fostered by Granz in the hall last January during which jazz-knowing spectators were said to have scorched carpets with cigaret butts and started fights over relative merits of jazz-elite performers on podium.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

Perhaps the most extravagant post-war press party thrown in this neck of the woods was not hosted by any movie company, but by Grover Whalen on behalf of Coty, Inc. To attend the christening of a new perfume, 2000 guests gathered in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria for an elaborate sit-down luncheon, preceded by cocktails. An orchestra, fashion show, trans-Atlantic broadcast from Paris and perfumed souvenirs, highlighted this prandial event. Not even in pre-war times, or in Hollywood, has there been such a lavish publicity send-off, reported costing in the neighborhood of $100,000. But, to me, what stamped the whole affair with incredible irony was the fact that at each table was a little white printed card, asking the guests to please cooperate with the management in their conservation of bread for the conservation of wheat! !

ADD ARRIVALS: Jean Sablon at the Waldorf . . . Hugh Herbert at the Beverly . . . Louise Albritton at the Plaza . . . Albert Basserman at 853 Seventh Ave.

BROADWAY BALLYHOO: Irwin Shaw, who has followed Erich Remarque's original novel very closely in his adaptation of "Arch of Triumph" has been asked for a re-write draft to build up the role of "Joan Madou"—for Ida Lupino? Ronald Colman and Cary Grant are being noised about for "Radic" . . . When Desi Arnaz opens at the Copa, sharing the spotlight with him—as a ringside rooter—will be his "Ball" and wife, Lucille . . . The Broadway flops of "Rebecca" and "Song of Bernadette" should serve as a warning to Hunt Stromberg, Jr., to keep his stage version of "Laura" on the road for any hix pix Miriam Hopkins draw . . . The Irving Berlins have leased the Dwight Wimans' beach home in Bermuda for the summer, where Irving will just relax under "blue skies" (adv.) and dream up his next Music Box Revue . . . Thelma Schnee, who scored such a personal success in "Corn Is Green" and has been unable to find a worthy successor since, isn't dissipating her idle moments. She has just finished a dramatization of a Russian domestic comedy, "Days and Nights," by Konstantin Simonov, which her husband, Paul Moss, now in Hollywood, hopes to tee-off as his initial Broadway venture . . . Could that midnight supper huddle in the Oak Room of the Plaza between Moss Hart and Gertrude Lawrence have anything to do with the new play that Moss is writing for a certain "lady in the dark"?

MEMO TO METRO'S PRESS DEPT.: In announcing that Claudette Colbert's next co-starring picture with Walter Pidgeon will be adapted by Anne Morrison Chapin, you would have had a good human interest yarn in the fact that it is this same Anne Morrison, who 23 years ago, gave Claudette her first break in the theatre, when she especially wrote in three lines for her to say in her comedy, "The Wild Westcotts." Miss M., I'm sure, can supply you with further details of the "I Knew Her When" variety.

"SCHOOLS" OF LEARNING: Although everyone in the cast of "Show Boat" is rooting for understudy, Nancy Kenyon, to take over Jan Clayton's role, Rodgers and Hammerstein are still considering Victoria Schools, who was their No. 1 choice before Jan. Miss Schools, currently chanteusing in the Persian Room, is the same Victoria-n Miss, who Sam Goldwyn had under personal contract, when she was just a gauche adolescent of fifteen. Now, with her acquired poise, maturer beauty and developed talent, she has all the requisites of a Goldwyn glamour girl yet, the odds are 10 to 1 that some other producer will nab her.

MOVIE-ING ALONG: When Eddie Dowling leaves "Glass Menagerie" for Eugene O'Neill's "Ice Man Cometh," Laurette Taylor will bow out too, unless she gets another co-star of equal stature . . . Now that Leonard Sillman's "Cinderella, '46, doesn't go into rehearsal until early summer, composer, David Raksin, will fly back to the Coast to write an original score for Casey Robinson's dancing showcase for his wife, Tamanova "Pavolva" . . . When John Krimsky checks in to Buchanan's home office, he'll start becoming a Long Island commuter. His frau, Angela, answering the UNOwhat apartment problem, has taken a year's lease on a house in Westbury . . . Moss Hart beaued Claudette Colbert and Sylvia Fine to the New Haven try-out of "Annie Get Your Gun," which drew a heavy Broadway mob to cheer another socco smash for those two aspiring producers—Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein . . . With every wolf in town howling for a date with Lana Turner, she turned up at "Harvey" with another gal, Sara Hamilton, her middle-aged chaperon, as her preferred companion . . . If Louis Calhern had any marital plans in mind, he'll have to forget them now that Natalie Schaefer, who went to Reno to divorce him, decided she didn't like to share her room with another "Renotable"—and promptly returned to the Garden of Allah in Hollywood! . . . Ray Milland and Loretta Young threw the audience of "Born Yesterday" into such a dither that at least ten minutes of the opening dialogue was lost in the excitement—which burned up Loretta and Ray as much as it did the cast! . . . Arthur Blake invited Carol Bruce, Ray Bolger, Connee Boswell, Gertrude Niessen, Margie Hart, Mitzi Green and Henny Youngman to his "imitation of life" party at the Stork and then asked them to audition for him, so that he could ape them for his Embassy act. Luckily, none of their ten percenters were around at those prices—just Blake's own Russell Birdwell!

WOO AND HOWE JOIN TO BUILD CHINA'S FILM INDUSTRY

Walter Woo, Chinese film topper has arrived for series of conferences with James Wong Howe, Warner Bros. director of photography, on plans calling for expansion of China's film industry. Initial step in the program are plans, already blueprinted, for the formation of a commercial film laboratory service, with headquarters in Shanghai. Lab, headed by Woo, who also is a graduate chemist, will be inaugurated this summer. Howe will serve in an advisory capacity.

"I am grateful for the opportunity America has given me," Howe explained yesterday, "but I feel that I can be of service to the inadequate film industry of my native country.

"The present-day Chinese film industry is outmoded and restricted. That vast country has only about 400 motion picture theatres servicing approximately 450,000,000 people. Around 10 small film companies produce a total of only 125 pictures of all types annually.

"Motion pictures are virtually unknown in the interior of China. Here the populace relies on primitive shadow plays for entertainment. Greatest source of revenue on Chinese films comes from the Malay states."

The Shanghai lab, Howe stated, will be prepared to service American film companies as well as the Chinese film industry. Outfit's long-range policy will aim to bring Hollywood technical standards to the Chinese industry.

Major services to be performed by the organization will include the making available of complete technical facilities for the development and processing of films; reps to act as technical advisers on production; checking theatre illumination as projection, and the shooting of miniatures and special effects.

Howe and Woo plan to set a new precedent in aiding American film makers. Hollywood studios currently ship as many as seven prints of a single film to China for distribution, footing individual export and duty on each print. Projected plans of the Howe-Woo combo call for American film companies to send one "lavender" print to the Orient, from which dupe negatives and prints can be made. By utilizing this service, Hol-

Morgenthau Signed For Air Comment

New York, April 2.—Henry Morgenthau is going on the air with a 15-minute commentary. Private network of stations is being lined up after his rejection for a major hookup. Lineup is expected to completed in 10 days. Coast outlet is reportedly KFWB, Hollywood, with WMCA for New York. Plan is to sell the ex-treasury secretary on a participating basis.

PRC Hires First Vet Under Interview Plan

Gordon Clark yesterday became first actor signed by PRC under studio's "veterans interviews plan." Just released from the Army after nearly four years' service, actor's initial screen role will be in "Queen of Burlesque." Clark was stand-in for Douglas Fairbanks Jr., for seven years prior to the war.

Schine Adds To String

New York, April 2.—J. Meyer Schine added the Ritz-Carlton hotel, Atlantic City, to his chain of four hotels and 160 upstate theatres. Purchase price for $2,250,000. Another showman, Herman Robbins, head of National Screen Service, plans to convert his 96-room estate at Lake Champlain into a resort inn.

Pete Smith's next short will be "The Origin of Sport," revealing history of many present-day sports. Dave O'Brien will direct the short.

500 AUTOMAT THEATRES PLANNED FOR 16M PIX

New York, April 2.—Five hundred "one-man operated" newsreel theatres using 16m film are planned by National Industries, Inc., manufacturers of beauty shop apparatus. The idea revolves around a 16m projector which will repeat a 45-minute show without an operator's attention. Edward Leven of National Industries claims he has made a deal with a major company for delivery of newsreels and shorts. Full-scale admission prices would be charged.

MAJORS DROPPING POOLS; PAR IS SETTING THE PACE

New York, April 2.—Regardless of the final outcome of the government's anti-trust suit against producers and distributors, the majors are showing a disposition to seek early dissolution of theatre pools as contracts run out or by mutual consent.

Paramount, spearheading the move, has already dropped pools in Brooklyn and Minneapolis, and is preparing to eliminate one with Warners in Philadelphia. Paramount has four houses pooled with Warners there, with the latter operating. They are the Tower, Roosevelt, Nixon and Frankford. Previously, Paramount had dissolved its Minneapolis pool with RKO.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

TWO of the four rooms of late Cornelius Vanderbilt II's recent Fifth Avenue mansion, which were purchased by Andrew Stone some time ago after being years in storage, are being used in producer-director's "The Bachelor's Daughters." One is small salon, the other grand ballroom, both of which once held New York's 400 at heyday of Gotham society. Rooms, which consist of paneling specially built for Vanderbilt in Europe, with many of the decorations in solid gold, cost a large fortune. Included is portrait of Gladys Vanderbilt, painted by B. C. Porter, a celebrated artist, in 1895, around which entire furnishings and decorations of room were designed. Also in picture will be solid gold and glass door, reported to have cost approximately $50,000. Stone acquired rooms through a dealer, taking a chance, sight unseen, on rooms and furnishings which had been in storage since house was dismantled in 1927.

CHARLEY Venturo, featured tenor sax with Gene Krupa's ork, is mulling idea of breaking away from band when it winds up stand at Meadowbrook here on April 14, going to NY and forming crew of own. Understood the bankroll necessary for the project has just about been secured. Krupa and his saxman remain on terms personally, and the drummer boy-leader has largely been responsible for the buildup in public consciousness Venturo has received in recent months, largely on platters and stage dates. One recent near-rift occurred this week when the tenor hornman learned that on one-niters undertaken en route east jumps will be made by plane. He went to Krupa and said he didn't want to fly. Matter hasn't been straightened yet, and won't have to be if Venturo has picked up his own baton by then.

METRO is giving local showing of "Ziegfeld Follies" its biggest advertising splurge in a year. Company has taken over an additonal 100 spots on the four major stations, KNX, KHJ, KECA and KFI, which will give picture approximately 200 spot announcements daily, on all station commitments, and more than doubled streetcar and bus advertising. Bus-streetcar coverage is reported to be biggest ever sponsored by any studio in Los Angeles. In addition, billboard space has been increased 25 per cent and for first time since Metro started using Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz theatres for its showcase group, all Los Angeles county is being plastered.

RKO LEADS MAJORS IN RELEASE OF INDIE FILMS

RKO has currently scheduled the biggest list of independent productions ever released by a major company. Only exception is United Artists, in which the structural set-up is confined to independent distribution.

Understood that 50 per cent of RKO's volume of rental during the past several months has been from distribution of the indie product. Recently, prexy N. Peter Rathvon had revealed that 35 per cent of company's total biz throughout the world last three-year period, was from indie films.

With company currently bidding on releasing rights for several unattached loner units, indications point towards RKO maintaining its high proportion of indie product.

Oldest associations between RKO and its indie producers are with Samuel Goldwyn and Walt Disney. Newest are with Liberty Films and the Robert Riskin Productions. Set-ups vary from the former, which are straight distribution deals, to the type where RKO puts up all the coin and takes over the complete financing.

A complete list of indie product on the current RKO releasing slate includes "Make Mine Music," from Walt Disney; "Tomorrow Is Forever" and "The Stranger," from International; "It's A Wonderful Life," from Liberty Films; "The Magic City," from Robert Riskin Productions; "The Kid From Brooklyn," from Samuel Goldwyn; "Without Reservations," from Jesse L. Lasky and Walter MacEwen; "Heartbeat," from Robert and Raymond Hakim; "The Bells of St. Mary's," from Rainbow Productions; "The Robe," from Frank Ross Productions; "Partners In Time," from Jack Votion Productions, and "So Well Remembered," which will be produced in England in association with J. Arthur Rank.

The Crime Doctor's Warning

(Murder Mystery)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Rudolph C. Flothow. Director, William Castle. Assistant director, Leonard Shapiro. Story and screenplay by Eric Taylor. Based on the radio program, "Crime Doctor," by Max Marcin. Photography, L. W. O'Connell. Musical director, Paul Sawtell. Sound, Hugh McDowell.

CAST — Warner Baxter, John Litel, Dusty Anderson, Coulter Irwin, Miles Mander, John Abbott, Edward Ciannelli, Alma Kruger, J. M. Kerrigan, Franco Corsaro.

REVIEWED at Guild Theatre, Hollywood, Cal., April 2, 1946. Running time: 69 MINS.

"The Crime Doctor's Warning" is standard for the Columbia mystery series with Warner Baxter putting on a good show as psychiatrist detective. Story has a good measure of mystery and suspense and is adequately directed and acted. Production by Rudolph Flothow, however, shows the mark of quickie methods.

Coulter Irwin gives a good performance as the chief murder suspect of the show—a youthful artist subject to mental blackouts and ignorant himself of whether or not he has murdered two beautiful models during one of his amnesia spells.

Baxter's job in the picture is about evenly divided between hunting down the killer and ferreting out the complexes in Irwin's psyche. Miles Mander, as a swank art dealer, and J. M. Kerrigan, as ditto not so swank, make the most of good character roles and Dusty Anderson, one of the models, is appealing in the brief space in which the picture allows her to live. Edward Ciannelli and Franco Corsaro meet the demands of exacting roles.

Story is well scripted by Eric Taylor and Director William Castle has worked it successfully for drama and suspense.

Photography of L. W. O'Connell is good in spots, elsewhere showing over-hurried handling.

Devil Bat's Daughter

PRC RELEASE. Producer-director, Frank Wisbar. Associate producer, Carl Pierson. Screenplay, Griffin Jay. Original story, Frank Wisbar, Ernst Jaeger. Photography, James S. Brown, Jr. Musical score, Alexander Steinert. Art director, Edward C. Jewell. Set decorations, Glenn P. Thompson. Sound, Earl Sitar. Editor, Douglas W. Bagier. Wardrobe, Karlice.

CAST—Features Rosemary La Planche, John James. Supporting players, Michael Hale, Molly Lamont, Nolan Leary, Monica Mars, Edward Cassidy, Eddie Kane.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 2, 1946. Running time: 67 MINS.

"Devil Bat's Daughter" is a neatly contrived horror melodrama which adequately carries elements of popular appeal. Story is well worked out and direction builds up suspense expertly. Only false note is enactment of the romance, but otherwise production is first-rate and should be a money-maker for PRC.

Plot revolves around Rosemary La Planche, daughter of a scientist known in small New York town as the Devil Bat, because he superstitiously is believed to be a vampire. He was killed by one of the bats he was experimenting on several years before girl appears on scene, and by design she is made to think she inherits her father's murderous strain, several murders having been attributed to him while he was alive. Actually, making girl believe she is murderess is cover-up for psychiatrist treating her to dispose of his wife.

Frank Wisbar, as producer-director, takes this story and succeeds in fashioning a picture filled with many stirring moments. Circumstantial evidence theme is handled to showmanship effect, with few letdowns in interest. Script by Griffin Jay, from original by Wisbar and Ernst Jaeger, is believable, and James S. Brown, Jr.'s photography is interesting. Other department credits match up.

Miss LaPlanche, co-featured with John James, portrays a somewhat difficult role satisfactorily, and James fulfills requirements of part of murdered woman's son who unravels the mystery. Michael Hale is standout as psychiatrist, Molly Lamont lovely as his wife, and Nolan Leary gives good account of himself as village doctor. Monica Mars scores, too, as Hale's inamorata.

Liberty Signs Pair

Frank Faylen and Gloria Grahame have been set by Liberty Films for featured roles in "It's a Wonderful Life." Actress is on loanout from Metro and Faylen comes in from Paramount.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

This morning at 8, PST. That's the moment when we begin to hear what happens in the Russo-Iranian case. As the time draws near, there is reason to believe all will be settled satisfactorily—except maybe from the standpoint of the Iranians. The Russian troops are withdrawing, so the United Nations will be satisfied on its demand that the Russians withdraw, since they promised to leave by March 2. And the Russians, because they had their troops in Iran as a show of force, will get wanted concessions from Iran; so they also will be satisfied. Of course it remains to be seen whether the Russians will have an answer ready today, and whether Iran, now that it has been defended, will take courage and stand out against granting concessions, the effect of which they fear. I am informed by a son of a former Iranian premier that the Russians are not so much interested in oil, as in the port of Bandar Shapur on the Persian Gulf. They may seek the same kind of arrangement they made in Manchuria with China for Darien and Port Arthur.

The Dark Corner

(Crime Melodrama)

TWENTIETH-FOX RELEASE. Producer, Fred Kohlmar. Director, Henry Hathaway. Screenplay by Jay Dratler and Bernard Schoenfeld. Based on a story by Leo Rosten. Photography, Joe MacDonald. Art direction, James Basevi and Leland Fuller. Set decorations, Thomas Little and Paul S. Fox. Special photographic effects, Fred Sersen. Music, Cyril Mockridge. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Orchestral arrangements, Maurice de Packh. Sound, W. D. Flick and Harry M. Leonard. Costumes, Kay Nelson. Makeup, Ben Nye. Film editor, J. Watson Webb.

CAST—Lucille Ball, Clifton Webb, William Bendix, Mark Stevens, Kurt Kreuger, Cathy Downs, Reed Hadley, Constance Collier, Molly Lamont, Forbes Murray, Regina Wallace, John Goldworthy, Charles Wagenheim, Minerva Urecal, Matt McHugh, Hope Landin, Gisela Werbisek, Vincent Graeff, Frieda Stoll, Thomas Martin, Mary Field, Ellen Corby, Eloise Hardt, Steve Olsen.

TRADESHOWN at Twentieth-Fox Studios, Westwood, Cal., April 1, 1946. Running time: 99 MINS.

"The Dark Corner" is a tightly plotted, fast moving detective thriller. The story gets the audience right out on the edge of the seats in the first few feet of film and pretty well keeps them there to the clinch finish. The principal players—Lucille Ball, Clifton Webb, William Bendix and Mark Stevens—have name value at the box office and the picture looks to be off to sizable grosses.

Mark Stevens has what it takes to be convincing as a tough, hard-hitting private detective fighting his way out of a mysterious frame-up that threatens to land him in the electric chair. He is also plausible as the male romantic interest in the piece, doing a promising job of acting.

Miss Ball is tops as the other half of the romance team in role of Stevens' secretary who shares his danger, and gives him staunch aid in running down the killer who is out to get him.

Clifton Webb gives an excellent characterization as the wily, murdering aesthete who plots deviously to hang his crimes on Stevens.

William Bendix as the hoodlum hired to frame Stevens with a killing and Kurt Kreuger, as a smooth, double-crossing heel with a way with women, get over effectively in roles that are anything but sympathetic. Cathy Downs scores heavily as Webb's wayward wife; Eddie Heywood and his orchestra earn a hand with brief musical number in a night club sequence, and balance of supporting cast gives top performance.

Plot and continuity of the script by Jay Dratler and Bernard Schoenfeld are better than the dialogue which strains for gag lines in spots.

Story makes no attempt at posing a murder mystery. Audience is in on the secret of the killings early in the filming and suspense is built up around Stevens' efforts to untangle himself from the web of intrigue. A good portion of the credit for keeping the picture thrilling and free from dull moments goes to Henry Hathaway's direction.

Producer Fred Kohlmar has mounted the picture nicely and fashioned his materials into a good show. Camera work of Joe MacDonald is fully adequate to the production, Cyril Mockridge's score is excellently tailored to the action and rest of credits are standard.

NEW THEATRE SETUP NAMES FABIAN AS PRESIDENT

St. Louis, April 2.—The American Theatres Association, newly adopted permanent name of Theatres Activities Committee, today elected Si Fabian prez as organization's convention concluded. Ted Gamble was elected chairman of board; Charles Skouras, first v.p.; Bill Skirball, second v.p.; Sam Pinanski, treasurer; William Crockett, secretary. All jobs are non-paying and tenure in office indefinite pending time when ATA can hold regular elections.

Convention voted to limit theatre charity drives to one yearly, in which charitable organizations would share. Following current cancer drive, no more will be held this year, members voted. For purpose of selecting objects of charity drives, committee of seven exhibs will serve, and they will determine percentage allotment made to charities and amount to be withheld for emergencies arising during year. All houses are free to accept or reject recommendations of this committee, according to local needs.

As to playing government films, committee of 14 will be appointed by exec committee: 11 from ATA, one invited from PCCITO, one from Allied and one from Film Distributors Committee. This group will survey all film offerings from government and a two-thirds vote must approve. No film will be shown unless "it shall be of importance to public interest, shall be factual only, and shall contain no matters of a political or control nature."

Constitution adopted by ATA provides board of directors be chosen on basis of state population, with one director from area of less than one million, two directors for one to three million, and three for areas greater, with no more than one director from state of over three million. Exec committee consists of prexy, veepee and 20 members with limit of five affiliates. Limitations have been set to assure indies that majors won't dominate. Fifteen regional v.p.'s have also been named.

Any discussion of film rentals was ruled out by preamble to constitution which provides organization will not handle "matters pertaining to sale and delivery of films."

Industry's Cancer Drive Kicks Off

New York, April 2.—The film industry's participation in April drive of American Cancer Society commenced today on Times Square with dedication of a symbolic tower by Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, metropolitan chairman of drive. Nationwide theatre collections, April 21-28, are pointed toward $12,000,000 goal.

CIRO ASKS STAY ON DRINK SUSPENSION

Ciro's has filed a petition for reconsideration of Board of Equalization ruling suspending the nitery's liquor license for 30 days. Next meeting of the Board is slated for April 18, three days before the suspension is slated to take place. Greg Bautzer, attorney for Ciro's, stated to date the nitery has not received official notification of license hiatus, although it has been printed in the newspapers.

• JUST FOR VARIETY •

THE GRAPEVINE: Studios are reported hot after James M. Cain's forthcoming novel "Past All Dishonor," due for publication this spring. And another sparring match with censorship is indicated. Several sequences make his previous works seem like the "Bobbsey Twins, on a Houseboat." Cain's newest has a Civil War background, and one stretch of writing is so—er frank that even the publishers—with less stringent blue laws—are chewing their fingernails . . . Two other members of the hardboiled set are doing all right, too. Dashiell Hammett, out of the Army after five years in the Aleutians, has written "Valley Sheep Are Fatter" concerning the returning-GI problem, and Danny Mainwaring (Geoffrey Homes) has sold six novels to Bantam Books for reprint . . . To All Hearst editors: Jiggers! The Chief has taken up residence, as of yesterday morning, at the Santa Monica beach home. He's conferring with Richard Berlin on the Hearst magazine set-up . . . Four around a nightclub table: Bob Hutton and June Haver, Frederick de Cordova and Martha Vickers . . . Bob Hope wants Harry Von Zell for a role in "Where There's Life" . . . Sheila O'Malley, daughter of the famous Pat, arrived yesterday, all excited about her role in Eugene O'Neill's forthcoming "Moon of the Misbegotten" . . . Both Milton Sperling and Fritz Lang say they aren't feuding but like each other so much they want to make another film together . . . The downtown papers aren't exactly spreading it around, but the smallpox situation has plenty of people worried. Warners, for instance, is having a mobile unit inoculate all employes who consent. Arrangements were made by the studio's SOEG unit.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Don't think Zachary Scott is unhappy about "Stallion Road" since Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall went on suspension rather than play the leads. Scott says he's thinking of sending a wire to Bogart thanking him for "my biggest opportunity." It doesn't take a very long memory to recall "The Maltese Falcon." George Raft balked at playing the lead, and Warners handed it to Bogart, who zoomed to the upper strata of stardom . . . Jimmy Stewart tested for his role in Liberty Films' "It's a Wonderful Life" yesterday wearing his good luck hat. He wore the grey fedora in his first film role in 1935. Incidentally, D.D.T. put his foot in his mouth and called the picture "It's a Wonderful World"—which happened to be the title of a film Stewart made at Metro before going into the Army Air Forces. So it wasn't sabotage, Mr. Capra, just an intellectual confusion over "life" and "world" . . . Fairfax Burgher, film actor and parttime magician, did his tricks for a weekend party at Floyd Odlum's ranch, with Rosalind Russell and Jacqueline Cochran (Mrs. Odlum) volunteering as his assistants . . . Irving Wallace and his wife Sylvia, former editor of Modern Screen, are taking off for a tour of the Orient in six weeks. Wallace has sold three stories to slick magazines since leaving the Army and expects to gather more material in the Far East.

CALL SHEET: RICHARD CARLSON has just completed his novel "Arthur Was Not an Ordinary Acrobat," which is about an acrobat named Arthur, believe it or not . . . PEGGY FEARS, now in NY, has slapped a "for sale" sign on her Malibu Beach property next to Clifton Webb's place . . . GINNY SIMMS arrives today to await the arrival of her baby . . . PAUL HENREID will board a Constellation to Paris this summer, then proceed to Vienna to bring his mother to the U.S. . . . ROBERT MITCHUM was elected president of Theatre Production Guild, promising production of plays on the West Coast "on a par with Broadway." Patrick Desmond and Richard Crane were elected vice presidents; Max Cole, secretary, and Josef Montaigue, treasurer . . . MRS. CURTIS BERNHARDT returned yesterday from three weeks of skiing in Utah . . . BRIAN DONLEVY is making plans for his first indie production, "The Minister and the Safecracker," half of which he expects to shoot in New York . . . RONALD REAGAN faced his first camera yesterday on "Stallion Road," returning to Warners after four years in the A.A.F. . . . DIANA LYNN says she won't wear Henry Willson's engagement ring "until I make up my mind." Meanwhile, she wears a gold ring inscribed with his name . . . GERALDINE FITZGERALD played a guest shot on CBS airshow "This Is My Best" yesterday . . . JOHN MURRAY complained to his writing partner, Ben Freedman, that their press agent's work was falling off recently, saying, "The last time I saw my name in print I had to look it up in a telephone book." Well, lads, he planted this one, didn't he?

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: The rough stuff started yesterday on "Perils of Pauline" at Paramount, with the dignified Constance Collier on the receiving end of a gooey custard pod. In the "picture-within-a-picture" she plays a comedy duchess who invades her kitchen to bawl out the chefs, Hank Mann, Jimmy Finlayson and Chester Conklin, who fill the air with flying desserts . . . Even the Barnum-brain of Paul McNamara is in a whirl with the latest suggestion for exploiting "Duel in the Sun." Ed Brady, KGFJ announcer recently discharged from the A.A.F., has proposed to stage an aerial duel over Hollywood with another fighter pilot (with CAA approval), the "downed" plane spinning to earth and spewing out a payload of ad leaflets. McNamara is still pondering this stunt . . . Sid Rogell, executive producer at RKO, offered his five-year-old son a role in "Criminal Court" yesterday. "What would I have to say?" Anthony Rogell asked. "Just walk into the scene and say, 'Hello, mother,' " Rogell explained. "If I were a producer, I'd be ashamed to give my little boy such a small part," the boy snorted . . . Bill Thomas, his wife and daughter will visit Mrs. Thomas' parents in Fort Worth next week . . . The Adolphe Wenland ad agency may have to take a tip from the "Queen for a Day" airshow which broadcast from the open air in Chicago, if its office-seeking luck doesn't change . . . Newest taffy-pull in the song world is Pentagon Music's "Iggidy Song," introduced on the Bob Hope show. Presumably they found that one in a bowl of alphabet soup.—D.D.T.

GOLDSTONE HEADING LEGIT REPERTORY; 8 PLAYS PLANNED

Headed by Nat C. Goldstone and with a backing of $40,000, Los Angeles Repertory Theatre Company is being incorporated this week. Permanent stock company of legit players will be assembled and guest stars and directors from the motion picture industry will be invited to appear in the productions.

Home of the new outfit will be at the Mayan theatre, which will be refurbished and redecorated. Plan for the L.A. Rep company calls for eight plays, five established hits and three new ones, to be put on for four weeks each during the 32-week season, which will start Sept. 1. Subscriptions to the season will be in blocks of four plays, selling for $10 per subscription.

With Goldstone, who is prexy of the Rep operation, are Jack Present and Harry Zevin, local legit producers, who will be veepee and treasurer respectively, and Jerry Horwin of the Goldstone Agency, who will act as coordinator of the project. Zevin left Monday for San Francisco to see about acquiring a theatre there for a similar operation, which would have the plays from here moving North. First play for the season is reported to be "Golden Boy," Clifford Odets' Broadway click of nine years ago. Tentative cast set for the initial production is understood to be Cornel Wilde, Pat Knight and Morris Carnovsky. Group is also reading an original play submitted by Jimmy Gleason for possible early production.

Golden Gate To Make 12 Films This Year

Golden Gate Pictures plans to make 12 features during the coming year, under supervision of William B. David, production chief. Company will make untitled South Sea island story starting April 20, upon completion of "Scared to Death" now lensing.

Light 'n' Airy

by JACK HELLMAN

Radio success is a fickle thing, compounded of the generally accepted elements with a dash of good fortune and a generous helping of showmanship. This latter ingredient gets high priority in our book for the long, sustained haul. In other words, staying in the running against any and all competition. Ten years is a long life in this fast moving phase of show business yet in C. E. Hooper's flashback to the ratings of 1936 we find that nine of the Forst 15 are still prime favorites with the nation's dialing millions. Contributing most importantly to this longevity is that rara avis of radio called showmanship. Shows can be uniformly good, year in and out, scripts can be top hole and the comics funnier than all-get-out, yet if that constant touch with the public and its changing moods were lost sight of, the turnover of shows in the Hooper listing would be far more variable.

Scan the table of Hooper leaders 10 years ago and you will note that nine of the top 15 still flourishing belong in the category of showmen. They are, in the order of their then standing, Burns and Allen, Rudy Vallee, Fred Allen, Jack Benny, Amos 'n' Andy, Eddie Cantor, Lux Radio Theatre and Walter Winchell. You'll find them all still riding high in public favor.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 2.—A footnote to motion picture history, nearly 40 years old, was aired in New York last week when Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress, addressed the National Board of Review. It may be as new to many of you as it was to Hullabaloo, so here goes.

On Christmas Eve, in 1908, Mayor George B. McClellan shut down the picture theatres of New York because of "agitation to protect an innocent and virtuous public against the alleged evils of motion pictures," Evans said.

Mayor McClellan said in a statement he was doing it "because of the serious opposition presented by the rectors and pastors of practically all the Christian denominations of the city and because of the further opposition of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and of the Society for the Prevention of Crime." Nice business!

The New York Times was out two days later with an editorial blast which declared in part: "Nothing like the closing, summarily and practically without warning, of over 500 public and duly licensed places of amusement ever happened in this city. The moving picture shows . . . are a source of general diversion and educational development to countless persons of all ages."

The People's Institute, which was a predecessor of the National Board of Review, acted as conciliator between the mayor and the infant industry. The following year, the National Board of Review came into being and offered to review films in advance to prevent objectionable ones from reaching the screen.

Best local laugh in some time occurred last week at the boxoffice of the National theatre, sole D.C. legit house. Theatre was playing "West of the Moon," new play which laid the biggest egg of the year and which played to slim audiences throughout. A woman dashed up to the boxoffice one afternoon and said: "Please, is it possible to get just one ticket for any performance? I know how hard it is to get seats in Washington, to any play." The house cashier assured her he had just one left, took her money and then went back to gloomy contemplation of the loaded ticket racks around him.

Rep. Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), author of the bill to end the high wartime excise tax rates on admissions and several luxury items by July 1, sees little chance of getting his bill through congress. However, Knutson, ranking Republican on the powerful Ways and Means Committee, has another card up his sleeve, he tells us. He may introduce a simple resolution to restore excise taxes to the 1942 rates. If he can get away with this one, he will cut the admissions tax to the old 10 per cent effective July 1. But don't count on it.

Indications here are that our people will act pretty tough when they sit down to negotiate on the motion picture export situation with the French economic delegation now in this country. This is an angle which ties in with the French bid for a large loan. While the state department spokesmen are not too certain of the outcome, they predict some genuine benefit for our pic exporters will come out of the dickering.

Hollywood, which sets the pace for high powered flackery and public relations, was absent when the American Public Relations Association, in a three-day convention here, bestowed awards for outstanding examples of the art of press agentry.

Filmdom was one of the industries asked to submit candidates for this Oscar of the hot air (a silver anvil, by the way), but was the only one which failed to participate.

They are doing a little wondering in Washington over the delay of the special expediting court in New York in handing down a ruling in the Big Five motion picture divorcement case. Purpose of an expediting court is to expedite and the judges are relieved of all other work until they finish the one case to which they are assigned. This three-man court has moved much more slowly than is generally the situation. All of which has aroused speculation that the judges have been split wide apart on the case and that they are running into rough water in trying to write their decree.

NBC MEET PONDERS TELEVISION, FM AT CLOSING SESSION

Concluding session of NBC's western division meeting at the Ambassador today will spotlight the two new offshoots of broadcasting—television and frequency. Affiliates from the 12 western states and network department heads will hear of the chain's progress in video from Noran Kersta, manager of the tele department; Robert Shelby, director of technical development, and Prexy Niles Trammell, who'll also discuss the development of FM. Easton Woolley, director of station relations, will talk on "Joint Planning."

At yesterday's session, Clarence Menser, v.p. in charge of programs, spoke on the early jump on summer shows by having them booked and approved well in advance. In his comments on cooperative programs, Sheldon Hickox revealed that nine such shows are now airing from New York and two from Hollywood.

Jack Benny last night emceed the entertainment feature following the dinner and winding up the three-day session attended by 75 network and affiliate reps. Meeting here was the last of five regionals cross-country and by week-end most of the visiting NBC execs will be enroute back to New York. Menser stays over for a few days of program sessions with Lewis Frost, division program director, and station production heads.

Goldmark Made Coast Pro Head For Leeds

Goldie Goldmark has been named West Coast professional manager of Leeds Music. Title is usually held by New York offices of publishing firms but Lou Levy, Leeds prexy, established dual use of title in recognition of importance of West Coast operation. He shares label with Al Gallico, eastern head. Goldmark replaces Happy Goday who has been promoted to vice president of firm, headquartering in east.

MEX UNION PUTTING BOOT TO U.S. ORKS IN REPRISAL

Mexico City, April 2.—As reprisal for U.S. preventing Luis Arcaras and his orchestra from playing a San Antonio engagement two weeks ago, Mexican Musicians Federation today requested Everett Hoagland, Ciro's nitery maestro "to get out of Mexico." Baton-waver has been playing in the spot since 1942 and he and his sidemen are members of the Mexican musicians union as well as the American Federation of Musicians.

All U.S. orchestras will be required to stop playing in Mexico, Hoagland said the union secretary told him at time of notifying him of his heave-ho.

Effect of the Mexico ban on U.S. orchestras is, outside of the Hoagland incident, nil with regard to cramping incomes, according to statements issued yesterday by several spokesmen for band offices here. Bud Overbeck of Music Corporation of America stated that Hoagland is only band on the MCA roster south of the border. Neither MCA nor any of the other agencies have bands in Mexico nor were there plans to send any down. Most agents feel that labor and trade restrictions, plus meager peso payoff isn't worth the headaches.

International Buys Maugham 'Ashenden'

International yesterday closed negotiations for purchase of W. Somerset Maugham's "Ashenden" and for James Hilton to write the screenplay. Joe Sistrom, who will produce, and Hilton leave today for New York for conferences with Maugham on initial screen treatment of the yarn. Film has been earmarked by the William Goetz-Leo Spitz combo for an early United World Pictures' release.

Gilbert Joins Agency

Frances Gilbert, formerly with music dept. of PRC studios, has joined Coast office of Harold Oxley agency, locally chiefed by Al Katz. Miss Gilbert will take over job of peddling to films the bands and acts handled by agency.

Police Inspector Denny

Reginald Denny draws one of top supporting roles in Benedict Bogeaus' "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber," playing police inspector.

IA PUBLICISTS WON'T PAL WITH GUILD

Prospects for a mass meeting of all screen publicists in an attempt to find a solution for jurisdictional squabble are now dead. Motion Picture Studio Publicists, Local 798, IATSE, has voted unanimously not to participate in any mass meetings with the Screen Publicists Guild or other flacks.

Notification of action, taken at membership meeting Monday night, has been sent to Tom Randall, AFL representative now here gathering data on the jurisdictional split. Randall had told publicists he would call a mass session only if both sides were agreeable to such action.

DANCE BANDS FIND TILLS TOLL FOR PODIUM CAPERS

Dance music, maestro, please! That's the tune being wailed by the ballroom operators paying the pipers who are "showing" instead of playing for dancers while the tills toll mournfully. Ballroom receipts, generally, have dived. Managements are blaming it on a change in the cycle that has apparently arrived unrecognized by the jammers and "specialty" maestri who, locally are suffering admission malnutrition. Conversely, turn has revived the maligned schmaltz stylists.

Bands sticking to noise and "production" are playing to very little trade. Managements at first couldn't believe they'd picked them wrong and started more elaborate checking of each other. The survey seems to point to the end of the podium gapers.

Examples are the Meadowbrook, laying an egg with Gene Krupa, and the Palladium dying with Buddy Rich. Trianon is swimming in the red with Benny Carter. Reverse is found at Aragon where Lawrence Welk, accordionist, has been renewed and is selling tickets. New Avodon ballroom management was unable to get a band to open spot May 8 and "settled" for Jan Garber. He never went wild but remained conservative and commercial and that will pay off at the Avodon.

IA ACTS TO OPEN DETROIT THEATRE EXCHANGES

New York, April 2.—The IATSE is set to exert every effort to straighten out the union muddle in Detroit and get exchanges re-opened, according to Richard Walsh, IA prexy. All Detroit branches with exception of Paramount and 20th-Fox, are shuttered because of breakdown in wage negotiations with backroom employes.

Meantime, distributors insist that their threat to permanently service the Detroit territory from nearby points is not an idle one.

While backroom employes in 25 other exchanges have settled on deals ranging up to 15 per cent in increases with retroactive pay to Dec. 1, 1944, the Detroit shippers are demanding a boost of minimums from $25 to $40 weekly. Union walked out two weeks ago following the deadlock.

Harbach Here To Prep 'Roberta' For Opera

Otto Harbach arrived yesterday from New York to handle rewrite chores as well as working out new lyrics and production ideas for "Roberta." Jerome Kern-Otto Harbach musical bows in San Francisco as opener of the Civic Light Opera season at the Curran theatre May 6. Civic announced that the season will open here May 3, with "Vagabond King" at the Philharmonic.

Variety Club Raising 325G For Hospital

Minneapolis, April 2.—Northwest Variety Club drive to raise $325,000 for a heart hospital on the University of Minnesota campus already is assured of going over the top by May 1, when campaign ends, according to Art Anderson, chief barker. Contributions and collections to date are well over the $100,000 mark.

Pollack Easts Saturday

Ben Pollack, prez of Jewel Records, heads east on Saturday on two-week jaunt during which he'll set up distribs in nine key towns, winding up in NY.

CAPITOL RECORDS SELLS SHARES IN NEW FINANCING

New York, April 2.—Capitol Records has completed a financial deal whereby it figures to solidify its position as fourth major pop-plattery. Firm's organizers and top execs Buddy De Silva, Johnny Mercer and Glenn Wallichs have realized an undisclosed sum through disposal of treasury shares to Blyth & Co., and Union Securities Corp., Wall St. investment houses. No figures have been revealed, but banking circles rumor an $8,000,000 figure.

Radio Writers, CBS To Meet Next Wk. on Deal

Don Thornburgh, CBS v-p in charge of Coast, has set next Wednesday as date for start of negotiations with Radio Writers Guild on new contract for writers of CBS continuity department. Union drafted proposals yesterday for new agreement, following meeting with CBS unit members, and notified Thornburgh who set date.

PRC Launching Its Bonus Sales Drive

PRC's annual 20-week sales drive, known as Employes' Bonus Drive, will get under way April 20, simultaneously with national release of "The Wife of Monte Cristo." Prizes will be awarded to every member of the winning branches from manager to porter and messenger, it was announced by Harry H. Thomas, company prexy. Top branch will be awarded four weeks' pay down through fourth place branch, which will be given one week's pay. Close of the drive is slated for Sept. 20.

Gwenn For 'Father'

Edmund Gwenn yesterday was inked for role of Rev. Dr. Lloyd in Warners' "Life with Father." Actor returns to Burbank lot for the first time since "Of Human Bondage" chores.

'Kid' Preems At Astor

Samuel Goldwyn announced yesterday that world preem of Danny Kaye picture, "Kid from Brooklyn," will be held April 18 at Astor theatre, in New York.

HOPE IS DOING AN ALBUM OF RETAKES OF WAR HUMOR

Bob Hope is recording for Capitol —on a retake. An album of Hope's humor as expressed on the wartime camp circuit is being prepped from air-check discs, and with radio commercials deleted except for one Pepsodent plug.

Biscuits will be pop price bracketed with Capitol aiming at revived interest among service men who heard his regular air show while in khaki or blue. Complete programs, as broadcast from camps, are being used. Where sponsor was worked into the script platter will be without any other plug. On others Hope will spot a gag commercial as introduction. One show from an Army Camp, and one each from Coast Guard, Navy and Marine stations are included.

Marks something of a departure in recording biz. Capitol had to get sponsor permission to use air-checks. Star will get regular royalty per disc. Capitol is rushing deal for release as early as possible.

Foreign Technicians To Study Metro Methods

Metro marshalled sound technicians and recording engineers yesterday from France, Italy and Spain to the studio for study of the latest recording methods. Trio includes Jean Monchablon, France; P. Cavassuti, Italy; L. Serra, Spain. They will stay on the lot for three weeks prior to returning to New York and then to their respective countries.

Riggs Casting 'Cloud'

Lynn Riggs, author of "Green Grow the Lilacs" on which "Oklahoma" is based, arrived to cast top femme screen star for his new play, "Laughter from a Cloud."

alternative of flat price" was denounced by the gathering of Allied exhibs as were "demands for preferred playing-time without consideration of reasonable profit for the exhibitor."

Convention went on record as opposed to future theatre collections unless such were authorized by Allied directors, and adopted a resolution pointing out "the thin line between legitimate publicity and propaganda." The indie exhibs are thumbs down on "any movement to set up special machinery within industry to encourage such use of screens now that war is over."

Also adopted by Allied conventioneers today were resolutions opposing state and local admish taxes and demand was made for immediate repeal of federal 10 per cent war tax. A board investigation of "exhibitor complaints on cost of National Screen Trailer and advertising services" was decided upon, and board was also charged to eliminate, if possible, objectionable clauses from existing film contracts and write new contracts mutually agreeable to all parties. Bennie Berger was reelected president of Allied and given vote of confidence.

Ex-Flyer At Universal To Help Sell 'My Love'

Charles Lockwood, ex-Army flyer pioneering film selling and exploitation by aeroplane, arrived at Universal yesterday from New York to take on his first film assignment—selling campaign for the Skirball-Manning "So Goes My Love." Plane in which he will make his sales tour will be named "So Goes My Love" in special christening ceremony by Myrna Loy at Grand Central Airport today.

Hook Goes Legal

Myron J. Hook, second senior engineer at KFWB, takes bar examination next week. With Warners for 15 years, Hook completed law studies prior to entry into Navy as lieutenant in 1942. He plans specializing in law pertaining to radio and television engineering, and will remain with station awaiting developments in FM and television in hope of eventual call to front office post as counsel.

TELE TWO MINUTES BEHIND BLOWS FOR BIG FIGHT

New York, April 2.—Engineers, working out plans for Paramount's television broadcast of the Conn-Louis fight, are reported to have licked the problem of fuzzy images by obtaining 99 per cent perfect reproduction.

Engineers are practically ready with intermediate system of theatre television. They have achieved reproduction with time lag of less than two minutes from the moment the images appear on the kinescope screen until projected on theatre screen.

If negotiations to televise are successful it is understood the method will be used on a special upped-scale show.

LENSERS SQUABBLE OVER UNO DUE TO BREAK OUT

New York, April 2.—Anticipated showdown between film and television newsreel cameramen at UNO conference here last week was averted when Council recessed until tomorrow. Union squabble between IATSE and IBEW is likely to flare anew with resumption of conclave.

Dispute involves refusal of IATSE cameramen to shoot commercial reels if members of IBEW taking pictures for video pool continue to work at conference. CBS supplied lensers on pooling arrangement with other New York telecasters. Latter are expected to resume on Saturday (6) when they are scheduled to return.

Questionnaire Aims To Develop Light Lamp

Questionnaire aimed at establishing specifications for the development of new lightweight lamp equipment is being submitted to directors of photography, operative cameramen and gaffers by an Academy Research Council Committee. Chairman of the committee is Fred Geiger of Paramount. Questions pertain to types of lamps now needed but not available; whether separate lamps should be designed for color and black-and-white; should lamps be designed for mounting on cameras, etc.

ing, cutting rooms, fil mvaults, a writers and producers building and a large commissary. Studio will be equipped throughout with all the newest technical developments.

It is understood that the combo has formed a corporation with each member producer holding equal shares. None of the stock will be sold on the open market, it was indicated. Arrangements among the five indie producers call for equal division of shooting time and use of facilities. Under the agreement, studio facilities will be offered other producers on a rental basis, whenever available.

Application will be made immediately to the Civilian Production Administration which recently issued the building limitations order. Combo expects to get an early green light on the basis that it is an essential industry suffering a hardship due to current studio space shortage.

Whether the five indie units will negotiate for a common distribution setup was a matter of conjecture last night. Their current releasing outlets are as follows: Sol Lesser, RKO and UA; Leo McCarey, RKO; Pine-Thomas, Paramount; Lester Cowan, UA, and James Cagney, UA.

CHURCH AND INDUSTRY DRIVE ON 'OUTLAW' ADS

Religious and industry drive against assertedly "indecent" motion picture advertising is in the making. Particular target will be the newspaper copy exploiting Howard Hughes' "The Outlaw." Sensational nature of copy plugging film's local run and that used for other engagements has caused an uproar among religious groups and the film industry which is expected to culminate in a crackdown designed to dry clean future ad copy.

National Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures of the National Catholic Welfare Conference is readying a strong protest on the asserted breakdown of standards in film advertising, it is understood. Conferences are now going on in New York between Monsignor John J. McClafferty, chairman of the board of the Catholic Legion of Decency, and William H. Moring, film editor of the

But Coin Rolls In

Howard Hughes' "The Outlaw" smashed through to an all-time opening day record in the four Music Halls yesterday, finishing with estimated $11,500 on the day. Take is extraordinary considering fact that seating capacity in four houses is only 3,127, as compared, for instance, with the Los Angeles Paramount's 3,398 capacity. On basis of opening day, film should hit approximately $70,000 on the week.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

LOCAL record companies who are linked with distribs in the east have been jolted this week by demand that they pay shipping costs, which amount to approximately three cents per platter, in the future. Indications are that distribs from Chicago eastward have gotten together and made the move to shuck off the costs which distribs have always borne in past. About one-third of the eastern distribs have asked simultaneously for lower purchase price, and this bid also appears to have had its inception following get-together of distribs, albeit they are not known to have an organization. Heretofore average price paid by distribs has been 37c; they now want to pay but 32c for disc retailed at 75c. Many of the pop-platteries here have been operating on such slender margin of profit they can't continue in biz on new terms and are unable to underwrite cost of setting up own selling branches in east because volume of output wouldn't warrant it. Only recourse obviously is to cease shipping product across country.

JOSEPH Bernhard and Milton Sperling, heads of United States Pictures producing unit at Warners, want it generally known that they have plenty of excellent technical advice on "Cloak and Dagger," OSS yarn they are currently filming. They've been virtually deluged with letters from experts on Europe, language authorities, technical experts of all sorts and even a few ex-gangsters. Applications for work in the picture have come from men who served with the Office of Strategic Services in various theatres of operation. The producers are trying to get the word around that they have former OSS experts actually at work on the film. Included in the list are Lieut. Michael Burk, USNR, awarded the Silver Star for OSS operations in Italy in 1942 and recommended for the Navy Cross for work in France with the Maquis. Also Andreis Deinum, of the morale section of the OSS, expert in cryptography. Both men are technical advisors on the picture.

ASSOCIATED Broadcasting System was trying to strengthen its local and coastwise position via affiliation with embryo Universal Broadcasting network when it folded. Associated hoped to avert recent collapse by consolidation with other to afford greater coverage of some Coast areas, in addition to adding prestige. Universal was aware of the "fifth" national net's precarious position and shied pending outcome of talk about Associated's imminent dissolution. Hookup would have been effected with regional U's KXLA here and others in San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, etc. where affiliates are or are planned. Though deal would have been on paper ony while Universal formed, it is believed that connection would have helped when the storm came. Now U. goes it slow way completing organization in solo.

JAMES Cain is reported to have turned thumbs down on major studio offer of $110,000 for film rights to his novel, "Past All Dishonor," due to fact company refused to grant him participation in profits and in production of his work. Author is heading writer movement in Hollywood for writers to share in film profits derived from their scribblings, and is insistent upon embodying such provision in any negotiations for his latest book, which Knopf will put out in May. Cain has advised second major company which wants to film book that he's willing to sell at considerably reduced figure, but deal must include profit participation or no deal.

CREW of Paramount's "Suddenly It's Spring" is pointing to sudden transfer of railroad station from the backlot to a sound stage as one of the fastest jobs of major set moving yet handled. Set was originally built as an exterior, but threat of rain caused the shift inside. Crew laid 195 feet of standard gauge track and an asphalt railroad platform on a sound stage in one day. Hurry-up was necessary because Director Mitchell Leisen had no "cover" sequence to film while waiting for break in the weather.

DINAH Shore's Columbia recording "Doin' What Comes Naturally" will feature the revised lyrics of the Irving Berlin tune. Lyrics became an issue when networks objected to alleged double entendre. Berlin then rewrote them—but not before Jan Garber, and possibly others, had already recorded the "cute" lines. Tune is novelty in legit production "Annie Got Her Gun," now trying out.

For years the trotters trotted round in many a county fair

And now the trotters come to town

And when they try to figure same, the bookies tear their hair.

Along about 1946 the farmer got lucky. A modern twist on an old story. Not only are the harness hosses invading the sacred precincts of Santa Anita, but the films are breaking out with a couple of harness hoss stories. One is "Dan Patch," the tale of the big black pacer that never was beaten and the other is "The First Mrs. Shanks," a yarn about Grand Circuit racing. Strange thing about harness racing is that the drivers don't begin to click until they are three score and ten. When you were a youngster of fifty years and tried to interview Ed Geers, who was a youngster of approximately eighty, he would shift his tobacco from one cheek to the other and say, "Don't bother me, youngster."

Some day somebody will make a picture of the trots at Goshen, New York, where the boys come up from Manhattan once a year and are duly stung by the hick bookmakers.

You never see a Louis B. Mayer or a Vanderbilt or a Howard warming up his horses in the early morning, but you can see a wealthy brewer or a tobacco millionaire sitting on the tail of his favorite trotter and having a heluva time in the early dawn. In the trotting game the owner is a real horseman who revels in the aroma of the stable.

U.S. DISTRIBS GET 40% TAKE ON NORWAY SALES

Washington, April 3.—U.S. film distributors will get a better break in Norway under a new agreement just disclosed here today by the State Department. Deal provides that percentage selling can go up to 40 per cent for first runs in the top situations. Four percentage rates were agreed to by the Norwegian Exhibitors Organization, depending upon the run—25, 30, 35, and 40 per cent. Heretofore, American films have been limited to a top of 30 per cent while the Norwegian product could go to 40 per cent.

The new arrangement puts us on the same basis as the domestic producers. The film rental plan was suggested by our industry and informally accepted last month by the Norwegians.

Bookings on the new basis have been made retroactive to March 26, when the deal was consummated, and releases under the plan commence May 1. This is a trial agreement which is to continue until Aug. 1, 1947 to determine whether it shall be made permanent.

JOHNSTON PLEA FOR GOVT. FILM DEPT. SET FOR MONDAY

Washington, April 3.—In an effort to forestall plan to "demote" the Commerce Department motion picture department, Eric Johnston has arranged a tentative appointment with Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace for Monday.

The motion picture department is reportedly scheduled to lose its independent status and be merged into a new "General Products" division, which would include such things as typewriters, office furniture, rubber, foreign construction, etc. Pictures would lose their status as a special commodity group.

The State Department also is planning to move its commercial motion picture set-up into the Commercial Policy Division. Picture producers feel that such action would have tendency to pigeon-hole their interests with relatively small-fry business.

Judge Takes McDonald Case Under Submission

Suit of Marie McDonald to break her seven-year contract with Hunt Stromberg was taken under submission yesterday by Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull. In final arguments Attorney Lester Roth for Miss McDonald asserted Stromberg had failed to live up to agreement to further actress' career. Charles E. Milliken for Stromberg insisted the producer has done his best to make a star out of the actress during the two years the contract has been operative.

HEARST DROPS PLEA FOR FM IN FRISCO

Washington, April 3. — Hearst Publications, Inc., today withdrew its application for a frequency modulation station in San Francisco. At the same time bids for new stations were received at Federal Communications Commission from U.S. Commissioner of Education John Studebaker and his son for an FM outlet in San Diego; D & K Broadcasting Co. for local watter in Palo Alto, Cal.; Robert Schuler, Sheldon Anderson and Lester Chenault for a regional in Fresno, and C. Merwyn Dobyns for a kilowatt percolator in San Bernardino.

'Horse and Buggy' and Modern Preems for Film

Republic's dual world preem of "In Old Sacramento," at Capitol and Hippodrome theatres in Sacramento, April 24, will carry double motif. One house will have modern opening, with other to have horse-and-buggy celebration. Bill Elliott and Constance Moore, leads in picture, will be present for both events, and will head street parade prior to evening's festivities.

WB Works 24 Stars, 9 Film At Same Time

Warners will have 24 stars before the lenses at studio within the next 10 days working in nine features. Six films are currently in production and three more will get under way by mid-April.

Drew's First Col Chore

Ellen Drew will have the lead opposite Robert Stanton in "Sing While You Dance" as her first chore at Columbia. Actress replaces Lynn Merrick. Taking Miss Drew's place in "His Face Was Their Fortune" will be Anita Louise.

Easel Does It

Pin-up pictures of Jane Russell are being by-passed now by her fans, at least 90 per cent of requests in actress' fan mail asking for prints of Andrew Loomis' painting of star which adorns national mag ads for "Young Widow." That's the one where she's reclining in a diaphanous negligee and looking slumbrous.

PAUL MUNI UP FOR LEAD IN 'TRIUMPH'

Paul Muni was being considered yesterday for the lead role in Enterprise Pictures' "Arch of Triumph" but both actor and company reported no definite deal as yet. For one thing, Muni has just finished work in Charles R. Rogers' "Angel On My Shoulder," which wound up shooting yesterday, and wants a rest before entering into another picture commitment.

Kosiner To London For Small's 'Doone'

New York, April 3. — Harry Kosiner, eastern rep of Edward Small Productions, flies to England next week to arrange for filming of Technicolor location tests, for Small's forthcoming picturization of R. D. Blackmore's "Lorna Doone," which he plans later to film there. Kosiner also will make survey of distribution problems for Small in Britain and on Continent.

Vaude Union Puts Silva On Its 'Unfair' List

American Guild of Variety Artists has declared singer Linda Silva nationally "unfair" and she's been dropped from live-talent union's roll for "conduct unbecoming a member." Charges were that she played a recent casual date on contract that had not been approved by AGVA and then, when she was not paid for working, wanted union to collect for her.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The Iran proposal to shelve its case if the Russians agree to withdraw without conditions by 6 May opens the way to settlement of the immediate issue, Russian failure to live up to its promise to leave by 2 March. They can then continue to negotiate between themselves, and Andrei Gromyko can come back and sit down with the Security Council. However, even though we may thus get the sun out from behind the clouds for the instant, there are plenty of other clouds on the horizon. Iran and Russia are wide apart on the Azerbaijan and oil issue, according to the statements made by Gromyko and Ala. They will face new difficulties because of the Russian-organized, Russian-armed and Russian-trained Kurd revolt in Iran, Iraq and Turkey. This will affect oil interests in Iraq, since the Kurd mountain strongholds command the rich wells there, and the situation in Turkey as the Soviet demands Kars, Ardahan and a strip of Black Sea coast. The Soviet is operating in an area where the miserable feudal conditions of the people present an opportunity, where such a people as the Kurds have never been any more than nominally a part of Iran, Iraq and Turkey, since they have refused conscription, taxation and free access to their supposed rulers, and where they can quote the late President Wilson back at us about Kars, Ardahan and that strip of Black Sea coast. The situation is such that we should not see red, nor think it's all black and white.

74 CHI COPS GUARD QUEEN AT WORLD'S BUSIEST CORNER

Chicago, April 3.—With 200,000 women, largest Loop crowd in Chicago history and probably the largest ever to witness a straight commercial airshow, screaming, pushing and tearing for a chance at the giveaways, Mutual's "Queen for a Day" went on the air Tuesday from State and Madison Sts., "world's busiest corner."

Promotion stunt, engineered with the help of State St. Council, climaxed the program's five-day stay in Chicago. Requiring 74 cops, mob blocked downtown traffic for four hours. Stunt got publicity breaks in all sheets and was shot by all newsreels and wire services.

"Queen" for the day was an elderly widow who offered her four-room apartment to homeless ex-GI and his bride.

Peace Or Battle Sesh Today For Announcers

Announcer wage wrangle between AFRA and indie stations either crystallizes to a negotiable point today or crashes into real battle between opposing sides. Meeting was held all yesterday afternoon between AFRA reps and Dean Johnson, attorney, assisted for first time by trio of station managers. Another meeting before agreement or blowup, will be held this afternoon in Johnson's office. Situation is admittedly delicate. Managements are agreeable to a raise but consider union demands too steep. Union has nixed counter offers proffered as basis for negotiation.

Claud Morris Will Do 'Sun' Bally in Texas

Claud Morris was signed yesterday by Paul McNamara, director of publicity for David O. Selznick, to handle special exploitation for "Duel in the Sun" in Texas. Morris will headquarter in Dallas. Other state appointments will be made by McNamara shortly.

Autry Follows Rodeo With Wrigley Air Talk

Gene Autry will make a three-day appearance in Phoenix April 11-12-13 with a rodeo and then heads for Chicago to talk further with the Wrigley interests on negotiations to stretch his present 15-minute show to 30 minutes. Autry will do his April 14 broadcast from Phoenix. He opens with his own rodeo show in Washington April 23.

Party For Jessel

Party for George Jessel was given last night in a private dining room at Dave Chasen's instead of the Beverly Hills Club. The party was composed largely of comics and song writers who made Jessel the butt of their pranks.

REP BOOSTS COLOR WESTERNS TO SIX

Republic is upping number of Magnacolor westerns from four, this season, to six, for 1946-47 program. Monte Hale-Adrian Booth saddlers emerged so satisfactory, in first two, that studio plans to continue series indefinitely. Series originally was launched strictly as an experiment with Magnacolor. Lou Gray will continue to produce them.

SET CONSTRUCTION ECONOMY ASKED BY CPA HEAD

Louis C. Dreves, regional director for the Civilian Production Administration, yesterday called upon the film industry to plan stringent economy on projected set construction.

In a meeting with major studio business and production managers, Dreves outlined action to be followed under terms of the CPA building-limitations order. He described the method of applying for construction permit over the $15,000 exemption set by the CPA.

Studios were asked to prepare an estimate of the set construction requirements for a production and the total cost, and then to file for blanket approval. Cost of reclaimed material should not be included in the estimate, Dreves explained, and applications need only be filed on productions not yet started. While ordinary applications will take around a week to process, emergency applications will be examined within an hour. Dreves advised that major studios appoint a single representative to present applications and serve as the film industry contact with the CPA.

Harry Gold Leading 'Outlaw' Back to SF

Harry Gold, representing Howard Hughes on "The Outlaw," left for San Francisco yesterday to line up theatre dates for the picture. It will be second time controversial film has played the Bay City. It had its roadshow debut there in February 1943 and then went out of release until three weeks ago.

THE GRAPEVINE: Director who is very unhappy on his lot is being prodded by his wife, member of another Hollywood dynasty, who would like to see him working for papa . . . Incidentally, Henry Cohn is bringing up his heavy artillery to counter-attack the projected suit by Charles Vidor . . . In a last-minute switch, Vera Gordon plays the Mrs. Cohen role in "Abie's Irish Rose," with George E. Stone as Mr. Cohen and Michael Checkov as Solomon Levy. Remember her as the mother in the silent version of "Humoresque"? . . . Some GI's specialized in samurai swords and kimonos in their souvenir-hunts in the Pacific. But Billy Sherman, ex-vocalist, latched onto a Korean love song titled "Ah Ri Rung," re-wrote the music and provided English lyrics. Now he's peddling his souvenir to the song-publishers . . . Wallace Beery, bereaved by the death of his brother Noah, has decided to carry on with his personal appearance in Cheyenne, where he will be the guest of Governor Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming over the weekend. Sunday "Bad Bascomb," in which Beery co-stars with Margaret O'Brien, will open simultaneously in 73 Wyoming theatres . . . Spring madness notes: Olga San Juan is alternating between John Auer and Bob Graham. David Street and Jane Nigh dined at Billingsley's, leaving Dave Rose well-Nigh unhappy . . . Jean Porter and Guy Madison, who played in "Till the End of Time" together, lunched at the Beverly Hills Club . . . Linda Darnell, now a 16m fan, received a new projector from her husband, Pev Marley.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Irwin Parnes, the impresario, is borrowing a trick from the wrestling business. On May 13 at the Wilshire Ebell he is presenting a masked pianist billed only as "Mr. X" but advertised as "one of the world's foremost artists, formerly soloist with the Boston, London and Vienna symphonies." No doubt he will be unmasked at the proper time, unlike the "masked marvels" of the wrestling pit . . . Mary Treen is being funny all over the Republic picture schedule, having performed chores in "A Guy Should Change," "One Exciting Week" and "Great Impersonation" . . . Jack Carson can turn the heat on Warners any day now. He's bought an 800-seat theatre in Madison, Wis., to be managed by his brother . . . Ever been stung by one of those virulent reviews of the films in the New Yorker? The New Yorker editor's wife, Mrs. Harold (Ariane Allen) Ross is going to play a role in Paramount's "Welcome Stranger" . . . Curt Massey and Dave Rose have patented a violin for commercial band use made partially of plastic. Are they going to call it a nyolin? . . . Mark Hellinger's trademark for years, the white tie, has been abandoned due to shortages, but Mark has an order in for 1000 of them . . . Music Row is kidding Santly-Joy about their new number "It Couldn't Be True"—a fitting followup to the firm's record of five smash hits in 1945. Last year the firm published "Dreams Are Getting Better," "Bell Bottom Trousers," Till the End of Time," "Chickery Chick" and the current ear-pounder "Oh, What It Seemed to Be."

CALL SHEET: BILL GOODWIN took his young daughter to lunch at the Beverly Tropics and after she consumed a seven-course meal asked her if she'd like anything else. "Yes," she replied, "a pair of skates" . . . WILLIAM POWELL will live in his dressing room during filming of "Life with Father." Warners is installing a ktchen for his use . . . JOE E. BROWN is doing a 15-minute before-the-curtain stint every night after Act III of "Harvey," and holding court in his dressing room afterwards. Sid Grauman and Earl Carroll paid their respects last night . . . HEDDA HOPPER'S notorious hat collection was brought over to Paramount in four trucks yesterday for filming in a sequence of a Jerry Fairbanks "Unusual Occupations" short. Hedda's hats—ranging from beanies to two-story birdcage types—have been donated to the Braille Institute . . . MONTY WESTMORE, JR., son of the late Monty of the makeup clan, went to work in his Uncle Perc's department at Warners yesterday . . . HAL McINTYRE'S orchestra, now trouping along the Atlantic seaboard, is being offered to Coast ballrooms for summer dates at $4750 per week by the William Morris office . . . GERALDINE FITZGERALD, her role in Paramount's "O.S.S." completed, left yesterday for a six-week vacation in New York . . . GENE LESTER shot a mag layout of Osa Massen shopping at the Ranch Market on Vine street yesterday and the owner gave him 17 pounds of butter for copies of the pix—the Ranch market, that is.

ON THE SOUND TRACK: It's Gene Fowler's story of Jack Dempsey's "comeback." Recently the latter returned to his Los Feliz home one night to find someone splashing merrily about his swimming pool. Dempsey couldn't recognize the trespasser so he invited him to come out of the pool. The unidentified swimmer told him what he could do, a very impolite suggestion indeed. The ex-heavyweight champion reached in and dragged his impromptu guest out of the pool, giving him a smart back-of-his-hand. It might have been a massacre until Jack noticed his opponent was a midget! "My God," Dempsey exclaimed, "where's the rest of you?" . . . Dick Nelson, Four Star Records prexy, is poshing about in a Packard equipped with gold-plated window-cranks and door-handles and air-conditioning. They're due on the set of Warners' "Cheyenne" at six, but get up an hour earlier to watch Walsh's horses work out at Hollywood Park . . . Clark Gable and Gary Cooper were discussing their next hunting trip to Montana over lunch at Romanoff's . . . Irving Carlin will celebrate his 25th year and coincident retirement from show business April 9 with a party at the Ambassador Gold Room. He operated theatres and sold film for Metro . . . To all screen-writers: Did you celebrate William Shakespeare's birthday yesterday? Ingrates! . . . Remember vaccination today can keep smallpox away.——D.D.T.

ACTORS GUILD PUTS TWO COMPANIES ON UNFAIR LIST

Two production companies and their officers were placed on the unfair list yesterday by the Screen Actors Guild board of directors. Action, almost unprecedented in the guild history, resulted from failure of Continental Films, Inc., and Historical Productions, Inc., to pay actors whom they employed.

Continental was involved, along with Ali Ipar, Necip Ipar and William Rowland, for failure to go through with plans to make a picture in Mexico City. SAG charges company has failed to make the film or to reimburse the actors, although performers went to Mexico City for work.

Historical Productions, a New York company, and its prexy, Jack T. Cosman, has refused to arbitrate claim of New York actors totaling $800, as provided in its pact with SAG, according to the guild.

All actors have been notified not to negotiate or accept employment with either company or individuals until settlement has been made and the unfair listing cancelled.

DAVE ROSE'S MELODY REPLACES ANDREWS SISTERS ON CBS

From the jumpy rhythms of the Andrews Sisters to the sweet and sophisticated melodies of David Rose. That's the musical transition bridged by Nash-Kelvinator in the late season series that took its first downbeat last night on CBS from the fair-haired lad of the moderns. For somewhere around half of the budget for the preceding show, the client is underwriting what might be called a semi-classical music with the appeal on a loftier plane. Perhaps, he reasoned, the higher earning bracket would be a safer buying potential for Nash cars and Kelvinator refrigerators than the hepsters who get merry with the Andrews.

What came off the line last night was stylized music without the over-orchestrated flourishes of a Morton Gould or Andre Kostelanetz. It was solid and earthy with the heavy burden on the string section. Particularly distinguished were the arrangement and rendition of "Lover Come Back To Me." It was only natural that "Holiday For Strings" would be given a lush spot, for it was Rose who composed it and it was "Holiday" that sprang him to eminence. The novelty of the number has been worn thin by repeated playing but under Rose's baton it carried especial significance.

Curt Massey bore the weight of the vocals and came off three to one with Kitty Kallen. Their tunes were more in the popular strain and given refreshing interpretation. Massey is fast moving into the crooner class with some of the tricks used to such advantage by a couple of other crooners, Crosby and Sinatra by name. They will at least keep the show on firm ground and hold some of the Andrews' following, the feeling persisting that Rose verges on symphonic flights of music fancy. They are both in the groovy class and that should please the youngsters who have something to say about where the dial is set on the home receiver.

Production of Ed Cashman was skilled and smooth and for a first show it was without a flaw. Program has no emcee and every one takes a hand in the musical lead-ins. Commercials of Harlow Wilcox are easy to take but were spread a little thick. When he wasn't extolling the virtues of the two products he took time to talk about the program being a holiday for listeners too and those whose requested tunes are played are rewarded with an album of Rose's music and a recording machine.

If the attempt is successful, that of combining class string and reed music with popular singing, N-K will come off the winner. The ratings will have to tell which way the scales are tipped. The sales won't start spiralling for some time yet so the audience must sit in judgment.

Fire Damages Force Decca To Slow Down

Decca closed down recording yesterday morning and canceled all wax dates for the coming week. Discery studios were damaged when a fire in the Melrose Grotto kitchen next door forced firemen to chop a hole in the wall between the two buildings. Damage is not expected to be repaired for a week in the sound studio.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

Top radio talent, benefit-weary after the war years, are asking for relief from these extra-curricular chores. Not that they would shirk a worthy cause but they feel it is being piled on a little too thick. Too often, they feel, they're called upon to do a radio show that wouldn't pass muster with the counterpart of legit's Theatre Authority or the Hollywood Victory Committee due to the strained use of the word "benefit." One performer, who has been getting anywhere from one to three calls a week for radio and personal apparances, has suggested the formation of such a body as Theatre Authority to pass on the merit of requests for benefits. In that way, he offers, the worthy causes can be sifted from those taking advantage of a good thing.

Networks plagued for free time are also said to be getting a little fed up and some means of counteracting the deluge of free shots are under study. It is generally agreed that such promotions as a city's centennial should not command the free time of actors, whose talent has a price except in cases of pure charity and other commendable projects. Dozen or so top stars, who have never turned down a worthy cause, are the particular target of the benefit-givers and in our opinion they have a just complaint. They've done a whale of a job and are entitled to their reward of rest and perhaps pick up a few odd pay jobs. Those who have done yeoman duty should be exempted except in cases of dire necessity and the others called upon to aid in the cause of sweet charity. We could name quite a few who did little war service and generally slough bids for free shows. The networks know who they are and when the calls come in they should be asked to pinch hit for the tired stars. It's only fair.

Signs of an active interest in spreading the work among AFRA members outside the favored circle are beginning to take form and if proposals now under study by Radio Directors Guild and the actors union crystallize into the hoped-for project a commendable job will have been performed. Taking his cue from this activated influence of two of the major radio organizations, Hal Hudson, western program director of CBS, comes up with a suggestion of unquestionable merit. He would have directors serve on rotating committees, pass on the qualifications of actors and submit the list to producers, who would be asked to use one new supporting player each week. If they carried through it would give work to more than 100 actors each week and that after all is the nub of the whole substance. Claude McCue of AFRA and Paul Franklin, local head of the Directors Guild, favor such a setup so the fat is in the fire and all that remains is to keep the coals hot. Give the kids a break, fellows. One small part will do so much good and can't possibly hurt your show.

Chain breaks . . . It will be heart-warming to Larry Berns to know that he has so many friends in the industry. No less than a half dozen top producers volunteered to do his Jack Carson show last night but with the stipulation that it be on a basis of friendship and the full check go to Berns. All the offers were declined with thanks by Diana Bourbon of the Ward Wheelock agency, who took over the controls herself. Late reports from the hospital were that Berns was holding his own and now has a good chance of recovery . . . Everett Crosby is continuing negotiations in New York for brother Bing with Ed Noble of ABC and Texaco. ABC stock deal is being studied by The Groaner's lawyer and tax expert . . . Harry Witt trains to New York Saturday for gabfests with CBS brass hats . . . Donna Clark of the J. Walter Thompson secretariat, will be married today to Irving Hardekopf . . . NBC was both thanked and praised by its affiliates in two resolutions passed at conclusion of western division meeting, lauding its spirit of cooperation and open discussion of their mutual problems. Niles Trammell, accepting the kudos, said the meeting here was one of the best of the five held country-wide and complimented the station managers on their constructive suggestions.

From the looks of the summer buys there won't be much excitement at the dials after the regulars scatter to their havens of rest. Purse-strings have been drawn so taut that any show with a price tag of over $3,500 gets the fishy-eye. What ought to be the proving grounds to incubate new type shows is sloughed for the more convenient dodge of keeping the spot warm and hang the rating. One of these bright mornings some client is going to pound the desk and demand to know why car radios are not checked by the rates, especially in the good old summertime. There may be a few million persons dialed to shows that constitute as much of a listening audience as those squatted before their home sets. Once assured a better rating clients would be disposed to take greater interest in their summer standbys and hypo the budget. Almost as many cars could be checked at busy intersections as are tabbed by phone and inasmuch as shows live or die by their rated audience it would put a different complexion on the run of off-season substitutes.

Hitch hikes . . . Al Pearce, Will Wright and the gang have deferred their four-week trip to N.Y. until summer when hotel space may open up . . . What press agents won't do for a client: Singer Gale Robbins has been crowned "Duchess of the Hoboes" . . . Bill Gargan's beer sponsor has decided to keep "Murder Will Out" on the air and make cuts elsewhere due to the grain situash . . . Tip Corning goes on staff at KNX as announcer . . . Emerson Foote (Cone & Belding) due in today, also Jack Burnett, FCB publicity director . . . Hubbell Robinson's yarn on girl singers, "The Vitamin Kids," appears in the May issue of Esquire . . . Burns and Allen have been renewed for next season which doesn't surprise anyone.

SORRELL ANKLES PRODUCER MEETING OVER OPEN SHOP

for Analysts, he was told producers would grant no closed shop to the union because it had imposed "such excessive and unreasonable fines on members whose services are needed by the studios." Issue was also raised on closed shop for International Association of Machinists, non-AFL, and Sorrell charged producers acted in bad faith when they employed members of AFL Machinists Local 23968, recently chartered.

Sorrell group withdrew from meeting with remark, "An open shop for one is an open shop for all." In a statement later, Sorrell said: "We have been dealing with the Motion Picture Producers Association since 1937 with union shop conditions. Today we were offered an open shop before having any opportunity to discuss either wages or working conditions. This step backward we will never accede to."

Producers point out that studios are currently employing members of both the IAM and the new federal charter machinists union, although it has no contract with the non-AFL group. Price said that in no case where a member of the federal union has been employed has such an employe replaced any member of the IAM.

JOSEPH HARRIS

Funeral services for Joseph Harold Glover Harris, 58, still cameraman who died here last Monday, will be held at one o'clock this afternoon, at Pierce Bros. Hollywood Chapel. Survivors include his widow, Marie, and daughter, Josephine. He had been in motion picture industry for 34 years.

THOMAS DIXON

Thomas Dixon, 82, whose novel, "The Clansman," was basis for D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation," died at his home in Raleigh, N. C., yesterday, following long illness. Author, who had versatile career as lyceum lecturer, lawyer and legislator, and who wrote 20 novels, nine plays and six motion pictures, is reported to have received $1,250,000 as his share of profits from "Nation," which still is running. He is survived by a son, Thomas, Jr., now in Hollywood.

COLOR FILM NEEDS SURVEY MADE BY ANSCO EXPERTS

Maj. Garland C. Misener and J. Kneeland Nunan, here from the east on assignment from General Aniline & Film Corp.'s Ansco Division, will make comprehensive survey on most recent practices and requirements of process photography in color field. Result of their findings will be used in Binghamton, N.Y., lab of company in adapting Ansco color process to perfect motion picture production.

This research, according to company officials, does not necessarily indicate that Ansco will immediately enter Hollywood color production. Certain techniques must be perfected, first, and additional production facilities provided, before company can guarantee high speed negative-positive color processing to film industry.

Misener and Nunan are allocating to different studios 2000 foot units of Ansco Colorpak for testing purposes, in effort to demonstrate versatility of film. They expect to obtain detailed reaction from studio technicians in use of this film. Colorpak carries a speed about equivalent to other color films, it is reported.

June Vincent Replaces Gardner in 'Angel'

June Vincent takes over role formerly announced for Ava Gardner in Universal's "The Black Angel," for first screen appearance since birth of her baby last November. She will co-star with Dan Duryea and Peter Lorre, in film to roll April 9 under direction of Roy William Neill.

Border Actors Arrive

Jose R. Goula, character actor, and Manuel Arvide arrived yesterday from Mexico City, first of a contingent of Mexican screen players signed to play in RKO's Shirley Temple starrer, "Honeymoon."

Donnell's 'Blues'

Jeff Donnell yesterday was set to be teamed again with Ken Curtis in "Cowboy Blues," third western musical on Columbia's sked.

CINECOLOR TRYING 3-COLOR FILM FOR USE IN FEATURES

Cinecolor, which heretofore has been a two-color process, is now making limited use of three-color photography, which company hopes to adapt to features. At present time, three-color utilization is confined to shorts and newsreels.

Three-color process currently is being used to film "Popeye" cartoons for Paramount, and also for Fox-Movietone. Latter is blown up from 16m Kodachrome to 35m separation negative, then three-color process is used.

3-COLOR PROJECTION

Company is experimenting with three-color projection, to enlarge its use from direct filming of cartoons and adaptation of 16m Kodachrome to a point where it will become practical for filming of features. Cinecolor officials state that they cannot determine when three-color photography will be made available for features, but hope this can be accomplished within a year.

Currently, only available method is three-strip camera in 35m monopack, from which separation negatives can be made. If this monopack system is okay, after further experimentation, for features, then Cinecolor in three colors will be ready for features in considerably less than a year. Company figures that if this is okay, then there is no use in going ahead with expensive development of a special camera.

BIG BOOST IN OUTPUT

Cinecolor is now processing approximately 1,750,000 feet of film monthly in its two-color process, increase of more than half a million feet over this time last year. By Fall, it is estimated that company will be processing between 6 and 8,000,000 feet of film per month, through use of equipment now under construction.

Universal has just announced use of Cinecolor for "The Wichita Kid," a western, hard on heels of Comet slating its new product for this process and Hal Roach announcing his entire annual program of 12 pictures in this color.

Metro recently completed "Star From Heaven," PRC is doing western series and will do feature to follow "Enchanted Forest" and Pine-Thomas has scheduled a summer production for Cinecolor. Golden Gate's entire product will be in Cinecolor.

Talk H'wood

Publicists for the Benedict Bogeaus-Casey Robinson production, "The Short and Happy Life of Francis Macomber," which started shooting on the General Service lot yesterday, announced the studio had started classes to school players in the Swahili dialect for certain sequences in the picture. Oh well, if the actors find Swahili too tough they can always fall back on flackery double talk.

Williams' New Pact

Bill Williams' contract with RKO was torn up and studio yesterday handed him a new long termer. He was signed by RKO 18 months ago and currently is co-starring with Barbara Hale in "A Likely Story."

LONE FILM PRODS FACE EXTRA TAX OF $25 MILLION

the giant indie growth, it is believed that the government agency believes that some producers, directors and stars had taxes, or reduction of them, in mind when they undertook independent productions. By investing services and money, some top talent have been operating indie units under capital gains regulations, where the government's take is 25 per cent as against the box car figures assessed against personal income.

Development culminates a nearly year-long Treasury investigation of the Hollywood scene. It has long been known that the Revenue Bureau had frowned on the incorporating of single features.

Joseph Nunan, chief of the Revenue Bureau, made a personal survey of the situation in Hollywood last summer. Even at that time, a Treasury spokesman claimed the situation was out of hand with producers, directors and players incorporating themselves for single pictures and then selling these productions to major companies for distribution.

Treasury toppers today would not disclose whether they expected to publicize the situation by an expose highlighting a few "horrible examples." Such action, however, is considered a definite possibility. Some government officials believe that the publicizing of some such individual cases would be a deterrent on others attemptng similar practices.

NELSON, KATZ GIRD FOR POP-PLATTER MARKET BATTLE

Battle in pop-platter production looms here, with the protagonists Richard Nelson, prez of Four Star and Gilt-Edge Records, and Al Katz, Coast chief of Harold Oxley band-booking agency. During last several months Nelson has been acquiring small, indie pressing and stamping plants in this area and he now owns a chain of ten.

Katz apparently has been working on extreme quiet for some time and, although he owns no plants, he has tied up four to job-lot for him full-time and exclusively. Nelson is currently handling production of at least 13 different labels aside from his own pair. Katz is said to have landed two local accounts this week, which he'll not reveal, and it is known he has signed up Bullet Records, Nashville, Tenn., race-record label which formerly had discs punched out by Nelson.

No price war has developed to date. Katz is hacking away at Nelson accounts by offering to produce more speedily. He this week also incorporated under his legal name of A. G. Katzenberger, a firm which will produce and market records on label F-M. What talent he's set for this venture he won't reveal, but it is figured he's making overtures to performers now handled by Oxley agency.

Indie pop record makers here, and there are more than 100 now locally, seem to have been taken by surprise, first by Nelson buying up plants all over town, and now by Katz moving in. Until now the platter-plant situation was not very complex. Small mills dotted the area, each individually owned and doing business on own. Now they seem to be turning into chains overnight, and demand for their services remains intense for machinery continues to reach market in a trickle only from steel industry re-gearing after the war.

MEX PICTURE BIZ HIT BY LIFTING ARGENTINA BAN

Argentine restrictions on our pictures.

George Canty, commercial film head for the State Department, said FEA will shortly permit the flow of raw stock into Argentina on a commercial basis because of a recommendation by the State Department. Reason given for lifting of restriction was the general improvement in supply since V-J Day. Actually the step is tied up with the shift in diplomatic tactics. It is generally known here that there has been a great deal of pressure from all fields of business to ease the diplomatic situation to protect the valuable market for our trade.

END OF BLACK MARKET

Revocation of the ban is expected to have far-reaching effects on Argentine motion picture production. For one thing, it will put an end to the current black market in raw stock. The Argentine studios, unable to buy from us, were getting some stock at black market prices from other South American countries to which we had been shipping.

Second, unable to get as much film as they needed, the Argentine producers were forced to cut down their output of pictures. This mostly benefitted Mexico, whose production has been growing largely through help from this country. Now that Argentine studios can throw the throttle wide open again, the Mexican boom is expected to be hit.

H'D HIT SLIGHTLY

State Department and commerce officials believe that our own product will suffer very little because of the unique and very solid position of Hollywood pictures. Our market in Spain is likely to be the one most affected, it is believed, because of future Argentine films going there.

Reports that we cracked on the ban because Great Britain and Belgium stood ready to supply the raw stock are apparently exaggerated since neither country is in a position to do much more than take orders for future delivery. We can deliver now.

Restrictions in Argentina, which we are striving to ease, are:

1—Since Dec. 31, 1943, Argentina has had a law requiring screening an Argentine newsreel of not less than six minutes with each program. Since very few exhibitors could afford more than one newsreel, this eliminated ours.

TAX SUBSIDY ON PIX

2—Since January 11, 1944, theatres devoting 20 to 75 per cent of their playing time to an Argentine program have received weekly refunds of municipal taxes, based on the percentage of time devoted to the domestic product. This has had two results—the domestic pictures got more bookings than they could achieve on a strict competitive basis and Argentine producers could demand higher prices for their pictures on the ground that the exhibitors got the override back in tax refunds.

3—Since last October, all first run houses in Buenos Aires with more than 2,500 seats have had to show a domestic feature film at least one full week in every two months.

UNION ENCOURAGES NEGRO TEENAGERS WITH TALENT

Local chapter of National Association of Negro Musicians, group of windjamming members of Local 767 who have formed purely social club, has donated $2,000 out of treasury for series of concerts to which colored school children will be admitted free.

Hall at Jefferson High School has been promoted and on April 23 violinist Isaac Stern, currently recording Warner Bros.' "Humoresque," will be heard by kids. Eula Beale will give a recital on May 7 and Samuel Lippman, 10-year-young piano prodigy, on May 27.

Local 767 has promoted truckload of musical instruments which will be given free to any school kids attending who evince interest in musicking. Interesting angle is that the union members who are bringing the long-hair fare to the teen-agers are themselves musicians of the jump-jam variety.

CHURCH HITS 'OUTLAW' ADS

Catholic Press Service and columnist for The Tidings. Talks are understood to cover various aspects of the film industry and advertising format.

Indignation at "The Outlaw" ad campaign reached its peak this week in the religious field at a reported discussion among a large group of priests. His Excellency John J. Cantwell, Archbishop of Los Angeles and one of the founders of the Legion of Decency, is reported to have deplored the ad campaign, branding it as blatantly false and a defiance of the Legion's request for decency in films and in the industry's advertising. Meeting reflected the great concern being evidenced by both lay and clerical Catholic leaders on asserted breakdown of advertising standards.

FIGHT NOT ONE-SIDED

Fight will not be one-sided. Hughes has expressed himself indignant over nix placed on ad copy, stills, etc., for his picture by the industry's Production Code Authority, and has served notice through counsel that he intends to file suit in Federal Court over the ban. Because of his appeal to Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Association prexy, clearing of all ad copy was transferred to the New York office of MPA. Local copy has not been approved by the association's Hollywood office.

PENALTIES HUGHES FACES

Most drastic step MPA can take against Hughes is withdrawal of the association purity seal from the film. Such a step, aimed solely at the use of ad copy that has been disapproved, would be without precedent. Hughes, who is a member of the Association in New York, although not locally, would also be subject to fines ranging up to $5,000 for each use of disapproved copy, it is believed. United Artists, distributor of the film, is not a member of the MPA.

National attention will be drawn to the industry's "dirty laundry washing" by Time magazine, which is readying an article, including reprint of much of the controversial copy being used to plug "The Outlaw."

Local Paramount theatres are not above seizing on "Outlaw" catchlines, judging by current takeoff on "BUSTS" being used for "The Road to Utopia." Par copy, unlike the Music Halls, which claim to get all the big ones, is selling three busts with the catchline, "Speaking of BUSTS."

ANNOUNCING THE FORMATION OF THE LOS ANGELES REPERTORY THEATRE COMPANY

. . . which will present a series of 8 productions each to run 4 weeks . . . including 3 new plays and 5 proven hits . . . starring top personalities of the theatre and Hollywood.

First Production to Be Announced Shortly

To Open On Or About

SEPTEMBER 1, 1946

NEW MAYAN THEATRE

11th and Hill, L.A.

The Los Angeles Repertory Theatre Company will bring outstanding plays of the past, and fine new ones to the local boards. It will give actors and actresses of standing the opportunity to perform on the legitimate stage without making the long trek back to Broadway. It will give playwrights with new scripts the chance to see their works performed in excellent pre-Broadway presentations, and afford opportunities to screen directors with a yen to try their hand at the live drama.

PLATTER MAKERS ON TRAIL OF BIG NAME STARS FOR DISCS

Attempt will shortly be made to get top flight personalities, particularly radio stars, on transcriptions. Long-standing nix on biscuits practiced by agencies, sponsors and other controlling interests is nettling disc makers. Latest instance was refusal of Ginny Simms on Capitol Transcriptions—after singer had agreed and deal was in the works. At last minute she found the big "NO" in her radio contract which sent Cap scurrying for another canary.

With weight of its recording sister, Capitol Records, assisting, Cap will enlist aid of others in business, particularly those with record company affiliations.

Artists are generally willing to make platters, being assured of perfection in performance. Often they are not even aware of nix in contracts until called to their attention. They are expected to ally with complainants. Agents and managers, too, are not likely to oppose. Pressuring, therefore will center on ad agencies, producers, sponsors and networks. Latter is believed toughest nut to crack.

Zanuck Emcees Feed

Darryl Zanuck will emcee dinner for Dr. Harold C. Urey, Nobel Prize-winning scientist who helped develop atom bomb, to be held at Beverly Wilshire hotel, April 9.

OUT OF HORN'S MOUTH

Ronnie Ralph will disc moppetunes for Spotlight discs with 12-piece orchestra accompaniment.

Linda Darnell records two tunes for "My Darling Clementine" tomorrow at 20th-Fox.

Desi Arnaz winds his three-month stand at Ciro's tonight and leaves for Mission Beach weekend date.

Eddie Dean, John Carradine, Mabel Todd and a quartet and girls trio wound two days of recording eight tunes yesterday for "Missouri Hayride" at PRC.

Veloz and Yolanda arrive today for concert dates here April 12 and 13.

King Cole Trio slices Frankie Laine's "Brother That's Liberty" today for Capitol transcriptions.

Matty Malneck has penned three new songs: "Professor, Play Those Blues," "We're Not Getting Any Younger" and "Chameleon."

Theodora Lynch begins recording sessions for American Recording Artists on an album of songs from Universal's "Fandango" next week.

"There's Happiness Again on the Range," a new song by Gene Autry and Nat Vincent, is being published by Ralph S. Peer's Southern Music Co.

Al Sack has signed Maury Bercov, Chuck Hall, Harold Smith, Lenny Hartman and Joe Palange for the woodwind section of his 34-piece orchestra.

Frankie Carlson, drummer who recently left Bob Crosby band, has joined Spike Jones' combo.

Henry James and his orchestra yesterday started recording on 20th-Fox's "That's for Me." The tunes and lyrics are by Josef Myrow and Eddie de Lange.

Isabella Meric has replaced Francis Twining in recording division of Universal Broadcasting.

David Rose yesterday completed musical score for "Ramona," 20th-Fox tinter.

Jan Garber's band, after winding up on June 18 its six weeks at Avodon ballroom, treks east on one-niters and into Casino, Pittsburgh, for fortnight stand starting July 26.

INDUSTRY WILL HEAR SPAATZ STORY OF ITS AID TO WAR

General Carl A. Spaatz will detail official inside story of motion picture contribution to victory and the job facing the film industry in international affairs at a luncheon at Romanoff's next Monday.

Luncheon, arranged by Fred Brisson, former air force colonel, will be attended by 40 film industry leaders, headed by the board of governors and the directors of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences. Gen. Spaatz will speak both on and off the record and will answer questions regarding film industry participation in international affairs.

The general and his staff will be guests Monday night at a dinner at the home of Producer Hal Roach. He arrives here Monday by special plane and leaves for Washington Tuesday.

MANAGERS TIE UP THREE VINNICOF THEATRES

Tie-up of film deliveries and picketing of three theatres operated by Harry Vinnicof was ordered yesterday by Associated Theatre Operating Managers after failure to get together on union's demands for recognition. ATOM, which also has demands on file with Fox West Coast, had picketed Vinnicof's Centro theatre Tuesday night and yesterday added the American and Vermont to its list.

Vinnicof who, in association with James Edwards and Jack Berman, operates a large string of Southern California theatres, may be faced with picket lines at all houses unless accord is reached with the managers. Through union's tie-up with the Teamsters film deliveries to all theatres in the chain may be halted. There also is a possibility that projectionists may not wish to cross a teamsters' picket line, which would completely darken the houses.

Meanwhile, negotiations are expected to get under way next week between Charles P. Skouras and union on demands presented to that circuit. Participating in the huddles will be Dave Beck and Ray Leheney of the Teamsters union, which issued a charter to the managers. Skouras, John Bertero, circuit legal counsel, and Joseph Schenck, met last week briefly with Beck and Leheney on the negotiations.

HOT 'STUDIO MURDER' COOLS OFF TO ZERO

Hollywood's latest murder mystery cooled off to zero last night as police attributed the death of Edward W. Gray, studio electrician, to an accidental fall from a 65-foot backdrop. Gray was found dying after a set party celebrating the finish of "Angel On My Shoulder" at General Service.

While police authorities accepted the death as accidental, all evidence in the case will be submitted to a coroner's jury inquest next Wednesday morning. Rumors were flying around town yesterday that two studio grips had come to blows at the party over a strike issue.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

GEORGE Jessel, one of show business' most inveterate ribbers, took a long session of a rib recently, the string to which was finally pulled late Wednesday night at the birthday party tossed the 20th-Fox producer by his comedian pals at Dave Chassen's Blueroom. Few weeks back Jessel used 20th-Fox stationery to write bandleaders suggesting they plug "Dreamland Rendezvous," ditty Jessel wrote with vet songwriter L. Wolfe Gilbert and Ben Oakland. Tune is published by Magnetic Music Co., firm started by the three writers. Henry Busse, bandleader current at Palace hotel, SF, sent copy of letter to his brother-in-law, Bill Perlberg. Immediately it was framed that a small stockholder in 20th-Fox had written studio wanting to know why one of its producers was using firm's letterheads to promote a private venture. Joe Schenck and Darryl Zanuck got in on the gag and each had Jessel "on carpet." The needling continued and then intensified as Jessel noticed more and more people learned of incident and commented upon it. It is understood comic grew so sensitive on subject that he had reached blow-up stage when finally he learned it was but a cooked-up gag.

IT looks as if the ordinary film fans are going to snatch "Henry V" right away from the highbrows. United Artists got caught with its release down when the pic, English-made feature produced and starred in by Laurence Olivier, opened at the Esquire theatre in Boston yesterday with an $8,000 advance sale. The UA execs had put the show in the small-seater on a road-show basis and did all its selling to schools and institutions at reduced rates for blocks of tickets. Theatre Guild was given a percentage of the receipts in return for sponsorship. Company admitted complete surprise when Time Mag gave the picture the biggest plug in its history, handing the show a front cover and four pages of type and stills. In addition, the picture received terrific "you-must-see" notices in the Boston papers. And no Broadway opening in sight.

ALL the Comet Productions toppers were late at their own press conference yesterday at the Brown Derby. Every key position in the organization is held down by a former serviceman. Just before the group left for the luncheon-meeting, publicist Sam Abarbanel noticed that not a single one of them, including himself, was wearing the discharge insignia in his lapel. A frantic search was made on the Goldwyn lot for the buttons and co-producers Buddy Rogers and Ralph Cohn triumphantly led the delegation into the conference room with buttons gleaming on their coats—a half hour late.

NOT content with the race track and ice show takes, Examiner is paging studios for new tieups for its charity fund. Dave Brandman of sheet's promotion department is giving studios thorough combing for new coin stunts. Latest acquisition is the preem of the "Ziegfeld Follies" next Monday at the Chinese and picture is drawing lots of free reading matter. Then comes the "Ice Capades" in which all the downtown papers share. And, judging from the large gobs of advance publicity, the Harness meeting at Santa Anita must be a contributor to sweet charity.

DURING the filming of old-time silent flicker sequences for Paramount's "Perils of Pauline," director George Marshall yesterday used two Technicolor cameras to film closeup and long shots of every scene simultaneously. The double camera method is speeding up filming time and simplifying the problem of matching shots of fast-moving and frequently spontaneous action. Lenser Ray Rennahan is in charge of the dual setup.

Retakes

In melodrama days of old the lithographs ran wild,
Depicting loud and lurid scenes of "Fireman Save My Child."
You paid your fifteen cents to buy a seat beneath the ceiling
And when you saw the play you had a disappointed feeling.
The action ogled on the stage was loudly, roundly roasted;
It didn't quite approximate the bills the posters posted.
And now the motion picture fans put on a loud uprising—
The hot and hectic pictures don't approach the advertising.

Sports grow more and more important in motion pictures, particularly in the shorts departments. Gordon Hollingshead is producing a briefie on tennis at Warners, and Pete Smith at Metro is doing a series on the origin of modern games, before sport developed into a paying business.

Film music, we are informed, is going back to simpler forms, instead of crowding too heavily on the spoken word. Even before sound barged into Hollywood, there was film music on the studio sets, generally a four-piece orchestra playing "Hearts and Flowers" and other old reliable tear jerkers while the stars emoted in silence.

Film Previews

She-Wolf of London

(Melodrama)

UNIVERSAL RELEASE. Producer, Ben Pivar. Director, Jean Yarbrough. Screenplay, George Bricker. Original story, Dwight V. Babcock. Photography, Maury Gertsman. Editor, Paul Landres. Musical director, William Lava. Art direction, Jack Otterson, Abraham Grossman. Sound, Bernard B. Brown, Joe Lapis. Set decorations, Russell A. Gausman, Leigh Smith. Gowns, Vera West.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 4, 1946. Running time: 60 MINS.

"She-Wolf of London" stacks up favorably with horror bills, carrying a plot which builds suspense as a girl is made to believe she is an insane murderess. Characters are made credible through the sensible direction of Jean Yarbrough, who drained script by George Bricker of its melodramatic possibilities, and Ben Pivar garmented piece with showmanship production values.

London at turn of the century is the setting against which this story of murder unfolds. On successive nights, a man, a small boy, then a Scotland Yard detective are killed in the fog, their throats horribly torn. On each occasion, a woman is glimpsed nearby, who disappears before she can be caught. June Lockhart, who lives with Sara Haden and latter's daughter, Jan Wiley, in large house in vicinity, after each murder, finds her slippers coated with mud, and blood on her hands and dressing gown. She logically comes to conclusion that she must be the guilty party in all these ghastly affairs, particularly in view of fact she is supposed to be descended from an insane lineage.

Plot is well developed and reaches satisfactory ending, an excellent job of editing by Paul Landres keeping action swift-paced to final scene. Other technical credits are on par, photography by Maury Gertsman being particularly outstanding.

Miss Lockhart does excellently with somewhat thankless role, and Don Porter, opposite her, turns in standard performance. Miss Wiley probably outstanding character in film, in which Miss Haden, Eily Malyon, Dennis Hoey also deliver soundly. Players are all well cast.

Cornelia Otis Skinner Signs For Coast Legit

Cornelia Otis Skinner has been signed for the role of Mrs. Erlynne in "Lady Windermere's Fan." Production, first Coast contribution to the Theatre Guild subscription series, will open at the Curran theatre in San Francisco Aug. 26 to be followed with a Biltmore theatre bow Sept. 24. Homer Curran is producing in association with Russell Lewis and Howard Young.

HALEY WILL MAKE 'VAUDE' BRIEFS

Jack Haley is organizing production set-up for series of short subjects titled "Vaudeville." Comedian will direct and narrate two-reelers, each of which will feature three famous vaudeville acts of former days.

Haley plans to complete six films this year and is now lining up talent for the first of the series.

The Cat Creeps

(Melodrama)

UNIVERSAL RELEASE. Executive producer, Howard Welsch. Associate producer, Will Cowan. Director, Erle C. Kenton. Screenplay, Edward Dein, Jerry Warner. Original story, Gerald Geraghty. Photography, George Robinson. Editor, Russell Schoengarth. Musical director, Paul Sawtell. Art direction, Jack Otterson, Abraham Grossman. Set decorations, Russell A. Gausman, T. F. Offenbecker. Sound, Bernard B. Brown. Technicians, William Hedgecock. Gowns, Vera West.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 4, 1946. Running time: 57 MINS.

"The Cat Creeps" is a straight mystery which qualifies for second billing and should do well in this spot. Story doesn't always admit close scrutiny, and after it winds up audiences may wonder exactly what it's all about, but during the unreeling action is sufficiently engaging to keep spectators entertained.

Story opens confusedly, and as a script writer's dream of how newspaper reporters should act, but don't. Fred Brady, star reporter, and Noah Beery, Jr., photographer, are assigned task of reviving 15-year-old murder mystery, in publisher's attempt to tag murder rap on Jonathan Hale, running for Senate post in opposition to his brother-in-law.

Hale happens to be father of Brady's fiancee, Lois Collier, but this doesn't stop him from taking over assignment, but with intention of trying to clear his future in-law's good name. Most of action takes place on an island somewhere off San Francisco Bay, where practically a delegation goes in an effort to find a missing $200,000, which somehow will prove that Hale is a murderer.

Erle C. Kenton makes the most of a sometimes careless script, in his direction which keeps characters constantly moving. Will Cowan handled his associate producer chores with an eye to best expenditure of a modest budget, and had benefit of first-class technical assistance.

Cast is well portrayed throughout, and not until final scenes does audience get glimmer of who is back of all the trouble. Miss Collier makes a pretty heroine, Brady does well as possible with a character that doesn't always jell, and Beery is in for laughs. Iris Clive is in for an interesting bit, too, others matching up in their respective performances.

Home On The Range

(Musical Western-Magnacolor)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Associate producer, Louis Gray. Director, Robert Springsteen. Original story by Betty Burbridge and Bernard McConville. Screenplay, Betty Burbridge. Photography, Marcel LePicard. Art direction, Hilyard Brown. Set decorations, John McCarthy, Jr. and George Milo. Musical score, Dale Butts. Musical director, Morton Scott. Sound, Frank Dyke. Special effects, Howard and Theodore Lydecker. Costumes, Adele Palmer. Makeup, Bob Mark. Film editor, Charles Craft.

PREVIEWED at RCA Studios, Hollywood, Cal., April 4, 1946. Running time: 55 MINS.

"Home on the Range" is a rewrite of the standard singing cowboy story done during be-kind-to-animals week. Monte Hale, latest vocalizing cow-poke to be introduced to the screen by Republic, sings, rides and fights well, uses a horse whose work is liable to give Trigger an acute attack of professional jealousy, and does an adequate romancing job with Adrian Booth. Usual western action is slowed up by introduction of game refuge propaganda, but animal scenes and work of Bobby Blake will go big with the kid audience.

Story revolves around the efforts of Tom Chatterton, as "Grizzy" Garth, to make a game refuge of his ranch against the opposition of neighbors who insist the bears lairedup on the place are killing their cattle. Chatterton is a character who quotes Scripture freely and preaches kindness to animals at every opportunity. The villains of the piece, headed by LeRoy Mason, range around with a killer bear in a wagon, feeding him on the ranchers' calves. It's a new twist to the time-honored Western melodrama situation in which the villain plots to force rancher to sell out the old homestead.

Show features four original songs —"Happy-Go-Lucky Cowboy" and "Down at the Old Hoe Down" by Gordon Forster; "Over the Rainbow Trail" by Ken Carson and "Take Your Time" by Glenn Spencer. First named is best of the lot.

Direction of Robert Springsteen keeps the action moving as dramatically as the script allows and Louis Gray has given the show good production values for its class. Camera work of Marcel Le Picard is at the mercy of color process that doesn't work out too well. Color shows a tendency to blur throughout and virtually blacks out on shots in shade.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The United Nations has met its first great test successfully. It has not punished the Soviet for failing to move its troops out of Iran by the promised treaty date, nor for boycotting the meetings of the security council. But the present United Nations, an association of very sovereign states, in which the veto is the main expression of that fact, an association still without a police force, and operating in a world where national armies are still counted in millions, could not take any action against the Soviet, and continue. The council did, through the mere force of world public opinion, especially in the United States, force the Soviet to withdraw its troops, thus obtaining, even if belated, a recognition of the sanctity of treaties. It was able to obtain, despite the Soviet objection, operation of the principle that a small state has as much right to be heard as a large one. And it has opened the way for the Soviet to return to that vacant chair. No more can be expected until we eliminate the veto, replace national armies by an international police force, until we replace the present suspicious chauvinism with international maturity, until we achieve a world government.

Film Review

Sheriff of Redwood Valley

(Western)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Producer, Sidney Picker. Director, R. G. Springsteen. Screenplay, Earle Snell. Photography, Reggie Lanning. Musical director, Richard Cherwin. Art, Fred A. Ritter. Film editor, Ralph Dixon. Sound, Fred Stahl. Makeup, Bob Mark. Sets, John McCarthy, Jr. and Allan Alperin.

CAST—Bill Elliott, Bobby Blake, Bob Steele, Alice Fleming, Peggy Stewart, Arthur Loft, James Craven, Tom London, Kenne Duncan, Bud Geary, John Wayne Wright, Tom Chatterton, Budd Buster, Frank McCarroll.

REVIEWED at Hitching Post, Hollywood, Calif., April 4, 1946. Running time: 57 MINS.

Wild Bill Elliott, who lately doffed the sombrero to become a store-suit actor in dramatic films, teams with another time-tested westerner, Bob Steele, in turning out one of most satisfactory sagebrush sagas to emerge from the mesa mills in some time. Certainly, it's about the best of the "Red Ryder" series. If this is Elliott's farewell to chaps and six-guns, he exited a-shootin'.

Pic is blessed with pace and action, and doesn't bog down as so many recently have, in a welter of dialog and plot-pawkiness. There's a sprightly succession of stickups, chases and dust-bitin' with just enough yarn to tie it together without impeding the action.

Elliott is the marshal, out after Steele, who has been so framed as to seem an outlaw to the folks 'roundabout. Working alternately together and apart, they finally see justice is done in a fast, effective 57 minutes. Vet crew of western heavies make presence felt, Arthur Loft and James Craven, as well-respective hypocrites running the cowtown, and Kenne Duncan and Bud Geary as their uncouth accomplices.

Bobby Blake, in his serial role of Injun tot, Little Beaver, adds some novelty and scripter Earle Snell wisely kept comedy tries brief and pointed and the part tight, which helped mightily in score Master Blake achieves. Stock role is far sounder than recently it's been in "Ryder" routines. Alice Fleming as "Duchess" keeps apace others, as does Peggy Stewart as Steele's wife, a sympathetic role she keeps from becoming insipid.

Producer Sidney Picker afforded the piece some good sets, not just a sheaf of flats, as well as some pretty pastureland for the hosses to pound hoofs. R. G. Springsteen, directing, salaamed to those prime prerequisites of oats operas, shootin' and ridin'. Reggie Lanning, on camera, pepped up chases and finely framed the fisticuffs.

PIANIST MUST USE 'ONE-ZY' LYRICS

Martin Music Co., publisher of "On-Zy, Two-Zy," last night notified Harry "The Hipster" Gibson, pianologist at Billy Berg's, to drop the ditty from his routine at nitery or adhere to precise lyrics.

According to law, a copyrighted song must be sung as written and interpolations cannot be inserted sans permission of owner. Rarely in recent years has a publisher been insistent in the matter and in some instances permission has been given to openly and blatently ridicule tunes.

JOHNSTON ASKS NO BUILDING CURB ON FILM SETS

New York, April 4.—Eric Johnston has made a personal appeal to the Civilian Production Administration to exempt studio set construction from the recently issued building-limitations order. The Motion Picture Association prexy stated that he expected a ruling on his request within three days.

Johnston pointed out that breakdown on set costs reveal 80 per cent for labor and 20 per cent for materials.

"Bearing these figures in mind," Johnston stated, "it is apparent that set construction has little bearing on shortage of building material. If the one-set limit is $15,000, that's one thing, but if the figure applies to a whole picture, it's ridiculous."

' JUST FOR VARIETY '

THE GRAPEVINE: You'd have thought they stored gunpowder instead of facepowder in the Poudre Room of a Sunset Strip nightclub the other midnight. The wife of a producer and his starlet protege met there, a la Clare Boothe's "The Women." Wife had been gunning for starlet ever since a certain location jaunt, from which many stories came drifting back concerning her husband and the actress . . . Note for sybarites: "The Casserole" is delivering a complete chicken dinner to the doors of their customers. But who picks your teeth? . . . Late bulletin from Times Square—Artie Shaw is returning to Hollywood Sunday, will sell his home here and return to NY at once. Wouldn't comment on reports he and Ava Gardner are separating . . . can't call Bill Demarest "sourpuss" anymore. It's sweetpuss now. In "Perils of Pauline" yesterday at Paramount, Demarest exposed his profile to a chocolate cream-pie, informally presented by Betty Hutton's throwing arm . . . Eddie Albert, having wound up his role in "Rendezvous with Annie" at Republic, leaves with his bride Margo tomorrow on a cruise aboard his ketch "Cynthia" . . . Today's anticlimax: Jane Wyman's pink garters with ermine decorations—don't get excited, fellers—were removed from her gams to Dennis Morgan's arms. He needed armbands to hold up his sleeves in a scene for Warners' "Cheyenne." On her, they looked good.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Harry Gold, sales head for Howard Hughes, and John Krimsky, of the Buchanan agency handling the advertising on "The Outlaw," will bet you that the picture will gross $12,000,000 on the domestic market . . . Warners' commissary has lengthened its lunch-time one hour to accommodate a flood-tide of employes currently on the lot. Six pix are shooting, three more start by mid-month . . . So you think British writers are strictly tea-and-crumpets, vicars, Stately Old Homes and Bertie Wooster? Two of the toughest books on the American market are British authored—"Kiss the Blood Off My Hands," a shocker that makes Chandler read like Harold Bell Wright, and "Night and the City," written nine years ago by Gerald Kersh and recently published here . . . Nat Pendleton burbles that slumber is wood used in building sleeping porches . . . His pals gave Georgie Jessel the third degree Wednesday night at the birthday party they tossed for him in a Dave Chasen private dining room, but he clammed up and wouldn't tell his age. He hasn't for years, silly boy . . . Leroy Mason plays his 205th badman in "Under Nevada Skies" at Republic, with Steve Darrell, another snarl artist, helping make life miserable for Roy Rogers for seven and one-half reels . . . Michael Arden scored on his "You're in the Act" song shot with N.T.G. and guests at the Troc Saturday night.

CALL SHEET: BOBBY VREELAND, assistant director on "Life with Father," is resisting all efforts of Mike Curtiz to test his red-headed son, Bobby Jr., for one of the Day sons. "Anything but an actor!" is Vreeland's horrified reaction. JIMMY LYDON, who was signed to play Clarence, the oldest son, almost originated that role on Broadway. Seven years ago Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse caught him in a summer stock show at Skowhegan, Me., and wanted him for the part, but RKO intervened with a contract offer which Jimmy accepted . . . FRED MACMURRAY and CLAUDE BINYON plan to repeat last year's hunting trip to South Dakota in the fall. Last time they each got their full bag of pheasants. MacMurray claims Binyon almost got a peasant too, but to heck with anagrams . . . REX HARRISON and his wife, Lilli Palmer, stood in line before a Hollywood film house last night without a soul recognizing them. Give them six months, however, and the ticket-line will dissolve into fiends bearing autograph books . . . PAULETTE GODDARD'S parrot eats ice cream with a spoon, according to the earnest young men of the Paramount flackery. What kind, tutti-fruiti? . . . BOB HOPE overheard his director, Sidney Lanfield, and his makeup man in a strenuous debate over whether Bob should have a neck trim or not. Hope intervened: "Listen, this is a Bob Hope picture. The audience won't be seeing the back of my head!"

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Karl Hajos, music director at PRC, is incapac- itated by a sprained ankle, result of getting to excited over his music. Hajos, pre-recording the score for "Missouri Hayride," closed with a vigorous batonic flourish, slipped and fell from the podium . . . Lynn Merrick, Columbia contract player, got herself crowned queen of the Los Angeles police show—no, she wasn't crowned with a nightstick—at the City Hall yesterday. That's a tip, gentle reader. Don't take it on the lam if a cop—officer, that is—approaches you smiling sweetly. He may only want you to buy a police show ticket . . . Shirley Ross and Ken Dolan are tossing a party at the Biltmore Bowl . . . Lou Weiner, publicizing Crosby Enterprises' "Rhapsody in Swimtime" in San Antonio, writes that the Crosbys are searching for a historical character of the Southwest who "can be adapted to Bing's screen personality." Better not make a crooner out of Sam Houston, Davy Crocker or James Bowie, or there'll be an army of Texans marching on Hollywood and they won't be singing "Love in Bloom" . . . Joan Crawford started her spring garden yesterday—two pots of chives . . . Elliott Nugent's daughter Barbara and her Bryn Mawr classmate, Patty Hochschild, both here on their Easter vacation, are playing a pair of collegians in Nugent's "Welcome Stranger" at Paramount . . . SORRELL WIRES NEW STRIKE THREAT TO JOHNSTON

While locals in the Conference of Studio Unions were busy yesterday discussing the "open shop" question raised in CSU contract negotiations with major studios, the IATSE basic agreement unions refused to comment and indicated they were considering no statement on the situation.

Herbert K. Sorrell, who with eight union representatives walked out on producers when "open shop" question was brought into negotiations Wednesday, is awaiting reply from Eric Johnston, president of Motion Picture Association, to protest wire sent east Wednesday night. Full report on situation was given at a general meeting of lot stewards last night, along with CSU locals' opinion on granting negotiating committees the right to call a strike.

Sorrell's wire to Johnston charged that "it has been apparent for some months now that your subordinates have not been dealing in good faith. At our meeting today (Wednesday) with producer representatives we were told our union contracts must be replaced by open shop agreements. I do not believe this corresponds with your stated policy. We do not believe in striking for anything that cannot be won by honest arbitration. However we will be forced to fight on the issue of continuance of union security. If you are sincere as I believe you are, you will immediately take action to prevent the repitition of another bitter strike in this industry."

Wires were also sent by Sorrell to international presidents advising them of the situation. Only one answer had been received by last night. It was an acknowledgment from Harvey W. Brown, prexy of International Association of Machinists, a non-AFL union, who stated he had also wired Johnston.

CBS production in Hollywood gets new and fresh impetus with the creation of the new post of director of network programs and the appointment thereto of Ernest Martin, who has been functioning as assistant to Don Thornburgh and Harry Witt additional to his duties as national sales service rep. New job marks the entry of Martin into production and devolving upon him are the creation of new shows for package sale by the network and supervision of house shows across the land wires. Under his direction and assignment will be the chain's three staff producers—Charles Vanda, William N. Robson and Larry Berns.

Martin leaves Tuesday for New York where he'll pass three months getting conditioned for his new job and boning up on program policies under the tutelage of Davidson Taylor and Ed Murrow with an assist from William Paley, CBS prexy, who has become production-minded of late. He will take up his new post in mid-summer. Martin was up for the CBS Coast television job but this was tabled when the program chiefs put in a bid for him. He came to CBS in 1942 after graduation from college and moved up through the ranks from the lobby to the fifth floor at Columbia Square.

By RADIE HARRIS

High spot of the week was the gala preem of "St. Louis Woman" at the Martin Beck: With tickets harder to get than a kind word for Gloria Vanderbilt, Jr., the cheering section included Sam Katz (a slightly prejudiced observer), Jack L. Warner, Hal Wallis, John Royal, Deems Taylor, Loretta Young, Tom Lewis, Jack Kapp, Lenora Corbett, John C. Wilson, Jim Moriarity, Virginia Field, Jack Kapp, Robert Ross et al. To this inveterate first nighter, the applause was as spontaneous and prolonged as anything I've heard in the theatre this season—an audience reaction completely glossed over by some of the "juke" fraternity. In spite of the mixed notices, I'm willing to gamble with "Little Auggie" that Sam Katz and Arthur Freed, the Metro angels of this "Alliance Prod." will have a clear track ahead, and in this race, the jockey who romped home with the purse is Rouben Mamoulian. For only those behind the scenes know what a Herculean job he accomplished when he took over complete supervision in answer to an urgent S.O.S. The brilliant result justifies his exhaustless effort, even if, as in all obligations like this, he claims, "I wouldn't go through anything like that again for a million dollars . . . but I wouldn't give a million not to have done it!" With no holiday interlude, Mamoulian reports back to Metro next week to start immediate direction of "Ah Wilderness," leaving "St. Louis Woman," "Carousel" and "Oklahoma" to represent him on Broadway . . . and in the U.S. treasury!

YOUNGER GENERATION: Gloria Swanson's jeune fille, Michelle Farmer, at boarding school here in the east, celebrated her 14th birthday at a large party, hostessed by her mother in her Fifth avenue apartment this week. And here's a tip to you talent scouts—keep your eyes on this "Farmer's daughter"—even as a sub-deb she's inherited that same "Glorious" personality that brought her maternal parent fame, fortune—and five husbands! . . . Jennifer Howard, daughter of the late Sidney Howard, currently the "Mistress Anne" in the Theatre Guild's touring company of "Merry Wives of Windsor," will become the bride of stage manager, Morty Halpern. Their romance blossomed when they met earlier in the season during run of "Winter's Tale."

Geraldine Stroock, youngest offspring of Bianca and Jimmie Stroock, checks in at Warners next week for an exhaustive screen test for two specific roles that William Blanke has in mind for her. Memo to the stags at eve: she'll be chaperoned by her mother and on the 21st, will be joined by her father (Mr. Brooks Costume to every show in town), who is planing out to supervise the extensive wardrobe for the new "Ice Capades." Elder sister, Gloria, is off to Louisville for a six-week repertory engagement with the Blue Grass Stock Co. (no matinee Derby Day!). Dont be surprised if Bianca, who has dressed most of the plays in town, doesn't wind up with some sort of contract too. After all, she doesn't want anyone to point an accusing finger at her and say, "Everyone works but mother!"

SCOOPING AROUND: Charles Boyer played host at "Born Yesterday" to Henri Bernstein on his last evening in N.Y. Bernstein flew back to Paris to re-open his famous Henri Bernstein theatre, shuttered since the war, where Boyer got his early groundwork in the theatre, appearing in nine of Bernstein's plays. This most famous of any living French playwright won't re-open his beautiful apartment, where the literary and theatrical great thronged his salon, but will headquarter at the George V . . . Also returning to her not so gay Paree, is Claude Alphand, who could have extended her supper club engagements here indefinitely, but hasn't the heart for it now in the face of so many sad letters from her fellow artists at home . . . Lillian Gish is at the Elysee . . . Too bad that Wynn Gibson, who was so delighted with her swell break in "Annie Get Your Gun" and was so well received in the New Haven try-out, has handed in her notice because her part was whittled to the bone. Lea Penman, an entirely opposite type, replaces her . . . The Bennett Cerfs are hoping it's a girl, Barbara, in the Lenor Hill nursery, and this is one "crib" that even Leonard Lyons can't cry over!

PARDON MY IMPRESSION: Florence Desmond, in her first supper club appearance since 1937, is making "The Blue Angel" the most popular spot in town. Her impressions of Bette Davis, Ingrid Bergman, Claudette Colbert, Marlene Dietrich, Gracie Fields, Betty Hutton, Carmen Miranda, Gertie Lawrence and Tallulah Bankhead stamp her as the most brilliant mimic since Elsie Janis. All this and plenty s.a. too! On her last visit, Miss Desmond made one picture for 20th-Fox, but she'd rather not revive that memory; "I'm not interested in films this time," she insists, "but L would like to go to Hollywood for cabaret work.

GOLDWYN-D FALL: If the sidewalks of New York are a little more decorative this week, it's "on account of" six of the "Kid from Brooklyn's" most glamorous Goldwyn Girls have arrived in town co-incidentally enough, when a Goldwyn picture called "The Kid from Brooklyn" just happens to be opening at the Astor. And the schedule that p.a. Ben Washer has lined up for them makes Mrs. Roosevelt's "My Day" look like a slow motion crawl! 16 style shows—7 luncheons—12 broadcasts—a New England Shoe and Leather Convention—a discussion at Yale on the drama (wanna bet there's no absenteeism!), winding up with a p.a. at the gala preem. Their evenings are their own, and let it be quickly added that they are ensconced at the Barbizon Club for Women, where the wolves can only howl as far as the elevator. Clever people, this Sam Goldwyn!

IA NEWSREELERS WIN IBEW ROW OVER TELE CAMERAMEN

New York, April 4.—Settlement of the union jurisdictional row leaves the IATSE newsreel cameramen inside the IBEW and the television newsreel cameramen outside, the IATSE claiming jurisdiction over all film cameras, whether for theatrical showing or television playback.

The IBEW contends that films for television are not covered by the IATSE charter and claims the IATSE move is part of a multi-pronged drive to organize.

Teitlebaum Buys Into 20th Recording Plant

Deal whereby Cosmo Records was to buy into 20th Century Recordings' plant for $50,000 as partner in latter's jobbing operation has collapsed. Instead, Ben Teitlebaum, erstwhile indie film distributor, has bought in and now owns controlling interest in plant at 1032 North Sycamore. Latter's investment said to exceed $60,000.

Schlesinger Arrives

EXTRAS GUILD IS GIVEN NOD AS BARGAINER

Screen Extras Guild was certified yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board as exclusive collective bargaining agency for extra players in all studios. Certification follows SEG's winning of an NLRB election March 3 naming it as representing a majority of film extras over the Screen Players Union.

Certification will permit SEG officers and directors to complete negotiations with producers for a contract providing wage increases, retroactive pay and improved working conditions. Producers recently granted SEG an extras' guild shop in major studios, effective April 8, pending completion of contract negotiations.

Votion Sails Sunday To Assume Duties Abroad

New York, April 4.—Jack Votion, newly-appointed RKO European production chief, sails for England Sunday to assume new duties. Cresson Smith, personal rep of Phil Reisman, RKO's foreign distribution head, is sailing Monday for Capetown on tour of South Africa, Near East and Europe.

UA BUYING THEATRE IN LONDON for trip to London by Sears, Mary Pickford and Walter Gould.

Dave Coplan, British manager, had sold the picture to the New Gallery theatre, a small house off the beaten path. Selznick balked at the deal and refused to okay the contract. As a result Odeon said it wouldn't take other UA pictures either. Negotiations to smooth things with Odeon are now going on.

UA also has a 17-year lease on the Pavilion, which it is retaining.

TELE WILL FEED YOUTH TO PIX, SEZ TRAMMELL

Television as a "feeder" for pictures to help develop and popularize young players is foreseen by Niles Trammell, NBC prexy, as one of the functions of the new electronic art that should have an especial appeal for Hollywood. "We did it with sound and we can do it with sight," he declared, adding that he hoped the film industry would find it profitable to make pictures especially for video.

NBC's television station here, if the petition is approved by Federal Communications Commission at a hearing in L.A. May 20, would be in operation by the fall of 1947, Trammell said. Transmitter site is on Occidental Peak, a short distance from Mt. Wilson and the highest elevation in southern California. He estimated that the transcontinental coaxial cable would be ready by 1949.

COLOR TELE IN SIGHT

Color television is still in the laboratory an five years away, he quoted NBC engineers as predicting. New equipment would be necessary for the transmission of tinted images and until standards are established no one knows how to proceed, he declared.

Trammell is hopeful that after the first three years, NBC's television operation will begin showing a profit. He quoted manufacturers as saying 300,000 receiving sets will be sold by the end of the year, barring further work stoppages, and by 1948 there will be a million sets receiving televised programs. Two types of sets will be marketed this year, one with a five-inch square screen costing around $150, and the larger 18 x 24 screen set with combination television, standard radio, frequency modulation and possibly phonograph turntable to cost from $500 to $600.

PROBLEM FOR FM

Frequency modulation can be developed rapidly only through the duplication of programs broadcast on the standard band, he said, and defined FM as merely an improved method of transmitting sound. The shadow of James C. Petrillo hovers over the imminence of both television and FM and in Trammell's opinion is retarding the full development of both.

Hollywood's importance as a production center will be greatly enhanced with the advent of television, declared Trammell, and with the completion of NBC's two studios there will be a further influx of big shows from the east. It's only a natural development with the great concentration of stars here and tele, like standard broadcast, must follow the talent, he said.

Trammell remains here until Tuesday and then leaves for Frisco to pass a few days before returning to New York.

ILL HEALTH FORCES PUNER TO QUIT AS MUSICRAFT PREZ

New York City, April 4.—Paul Puner resigned his post as president of Musicraft Records, today, giving ill health as his reason for the bow-out. Puner, one of the company's founders, will enter a hospital in May for surgery. He expects to return to the record firm in the Fall.

Bobby Weiss, recently appointed coast chief for the discery, will divide his time between the Coast and the East, acting as assistant to the incoming prexy, supervising recording and surveying the general recording field. Formerly publicity chief for Capitol Records, Weiss joined Musicraft in February.

KWKW SEEKS HIKE IN POWER, CHANGE IN FREQUENCY

Bill Beaton, manager of KWKW, leaves for Washington, D.C., next week to press station's precedental application for change of frequency and power boost. Boost from 1,000 to 5,000 watts, and change from 1430 band to 830 is sought. Matter comes before commish on April 18. Paul Spargo, chief engineer of station, accompanies Beaton. Marks first time in 15 years an L.A. station seeking frequency change.

Matter is expected to be strongly contested by Orange County Broadcasting Co., which has applied for a new station, in Santa Ana, on KWKW's requested new frequency. Reed Callister and Dave Cannon, co-owners of KIEV, here, are in partnership with Carrol Hauser in Santa Ana operation. KWKW will plead on basis of area requiring greater coverage, and that it now suffers interference from KARM, Fresno, and KLO, Ogden, Utah. It's also probable that question of duopoly will be entered in proceedings due to partners being interested in KIEV, which to a degree, serves same territory.

FCC Hears Merits of KGB Hike in Power

Washington, April 4. — Federal Communications Commission today called a hearing on the merits of a hike in power for the Don Lee station in San Diego, KGB. The commision explained that the station's request to boost its power from one to five kilowatts might cause interference to existing stations.

What The Doctor Ordered

This little saga speaks for itself. Last Friday Larry Berns, producer of the Jack Carson air show, was stricken with a heart attack and taken to Cedars of Lebanon hospital. Mrs. Berns, to be with her husband, also took a room at the hospital. She was awakened at 6 a.m. Monday by the nurse, who requested she immediately get a copy of Daily Variety for Mr. Berns. Anxious to do anything to keep Berns from becoming excited, Mrs. Berns took off in the early morning to run down a copy of the paper. News stands were shuttered, and so was Daily Variety's office when she finally reached Vine street. The janitor saved the day, letting her in to grab an issue hot off the presses. It was rushed to the hospital, given to Berns, who lay in an oxygen tent. He leafed through to read the line covering his hospitalization, closed the paper with the remark, "Not much of a notice," and went to sleep.

terest as a stockholder. This amount represents Paramount's interest in the combined undistributed earnings for 1945 of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries. Figure compares with company's $1,745,000 share for the undistributed earnings in 1944.

The 1945 estimated earnings represent $4.75 per share on the 3,752,136 shares of common stock outstanding on Dec. 29 of last year, comparing with the $4.39 per share for the year ending Dec. 30, 1944.

Company earnings for the quarter ending Dec. 29, 1945 reached an estimated $3,980,000, showing a loss of $32,000 under the $4,012,000 figure registered for the corresponding quarter of 1944. Earnings for the three-month period represents $1.06 per share on the 3,752,136 shares of common stock outstanding on that date.

KFI Tops Will Attend Clear Channel Meet

Trio of KFI executives leave for Washington next week to attend FCC clear channel hearings. W. B. Ryan, general manager, trains out Tuesday. He will be followed by H. L. Blatterman, chief engineer, next Friday, and Nelson McIntosh, farm commentator, on April 13. Hearings start on April 16 and will be attended by reps of all clear channel stations in the country.

Fresno Stations Get FCC Modulation Okay

Washington, April 4. — Two Fresno, Calif., broadcasters were among nine holders of conditional grants for frequency modulation stations who won FCC approval today for their basic engineering plans for FM operation. J. E. Rodman and station KARM, Fresno, were both given the green light in an action which stopped just short of awarding the stations final FM permits.

FOX RETURNS IN MAY FOR ANOTHER CHECK ON ROYALTIES

Harry Fox, general manager of Music Publishers' Protective Association, pays the Coast another visit early in May, it was learned yesterday. When visiting here in February Fox collected nearly $40,000 in unpaid royalties from recording companies here after checking books of numerous firms and pointing out they had not paid fees of 2c per side on discs using pop songs. Firms pleaded ignorance and paid up.

In returning, Fox will be on another prowl, but hereafter the MPPA exec will have a valuable ally in the American Federation of Musicians, with whom he has just made a deal whereby the union will let publishers' organization know what pop-platteries are discing tunes and when. This tie-up will be of help to Fox, who in past had to dig up information himself and in view of fact there are more than 250 platteries in nation, frequently felt some existed of which he had no knowledge.

Valley Station Applies For 1260 Radio Band

Washington, April 4. — San Fernando Valley Broadcasting Co. of San Fernando, Calif., has applied to FCC for a new standard station on the 1260 kilocycle band using one kilowatt of power. President of the company is J. G. Paltridge, 2002 North Serrano Ave., Los Angeles.

(Reprinted from Weekly Variety of April 3, 1946)

$20 Million In Tin Pan Gold; Bonanza Split By Discs, ASCAP

By ABEL GREEN

Almost $20,000,000 per year from just two avenues of its industry, not to mention the ever-multiplying income from standard hits for their Hollywood film usage, puts the music business in the best economic position in its entire history.

Some $10,000,000 in phonograph record royalties in particular spells a growing bull market for music publishers and songsmiths alike. ASCAP accounts for the other $10,000,000 annual potential. And there's no estimating the total gross from sheet sales.

As assistant treasurer Irving Caesar reported at the annual meeting of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, in New York, the 1945 gross income exceeded $8,881,000 from a total of 29,489 licensees (radio stations, theatres, hotels, niteries, etc.), or a net of over $7,244,000. As industry expands the music-in-industry potential alone may exceed the wildest expectations and it's certainly figured that the present near $9,000,000 realized by ASCAP should hit $10,000,000 this year.

Considering that the music business traditionally has looked upon its sheet music sales as the fundamental business - getter, with mechanical (discs) synchronization (films) and performing rights as adjuncts, this certainly spells new horizons for Tin Pan Alley.

It's figured 500,000,000 records will be sold in 1946, according to 103 disc licensees now turning out platters. Victor's 8,000,000 a month; Decca's 7,000,000; and Columbia's 6,000,000 (with the aid of a new production plant in Kings Mill, O.), means $1,500,000 royalties per year to the music publishers from Victor and Decca alone; and about $1,000,000 a year from Columbia.

HALF BILLION DISCS A YEAR

The half-billion discs, figured on an average of 2c royalty per record means almost $10,000,000 in gross royalties. Reason why it's not double is because many standards are royalty-free; and the statutory 2c-per-side has been cut to 1¼c and 1½c for the 35c and 50c platters. Full 2c is paid per side on the 75c records; also the album stuff.

Production ceilings on recordings are being constantly raised as new presses become available. The limitations on disc pressings now aren't dependent on materials, as during the war when shellac, etc., were scarce, but if it isn't the presses, there are dies, tools, and even more important, labor problems to curb production.

Columbia's new plant in Ohio now enables that company to get out 6,000,000 platters every month. RCA-Victor which was high with 8,000,000 discs of all types (including a heavy catalog of standards, red seals, etc.), hopes to turn out 25 per cent more by the year's end. Decca has been able to press 7,000,000 records monthly and is also upping its production. Capitol likewise plans expansion.

Of the 103 licensees registered with the Music Publishers Protective Assn., for recording, some are promoters, admittedly, but most are in business to stay. The new ARA (Hollywood) label, which Boris Morros sold to J. C. Leff and Mark Leff, former Pittsburgh hotel and liquor people, has 20 presses. Signature has 25 presses. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's forthcoming label, Majestic, Capitol, Sonora, Musicraft and others are certain to be reckoned with.

THE MODEST BRACKET DISCERS

Then there are the discers content with modest returns on modest production. For example, Bluenote has been specializing in hot jazz recordings since 1938. Or an outfit like DeLuxe in New Jersey, which has a tie-in with a string of juke-boxes, and thus is assured of a profit from the start.

As a matter of fact, all some of these lesser discers need is just one coin machine operator to be sure of a steady income because they thrive on the fact the majors can't fill the demand.

While a buyer may compromise on some standard platters, for home or gift purposes, the jukes thrive on current pops. The only way to make sure of getting what they need, coincidental with any song's current vogue, is to have a distributor-manufacturer who can service them. That's how the lesser recorders have sprung up.

It's figured that as the established firms expand and are able to extend their merchandising outlets, giving full service, they must inevitably decimate the lesser outfits, for the simple reasons their artists are superior, production quality is better, and they have all the plus factors which go with an outstanding product as against the cut-rate proposition.

The record business, like any other commodity, experiences the same story which is true of all American industry: the money (i.e. customers) is there but the merchandise isn't.

Lawrence Welk will make a musical short at Universal.

Spade Cooley and his musicrew will play in Bakersfield April 16.

Ferde Grofe re-elected to national council of Song Writers' Protective Association for another term.

Phil Regan disced four tunes yesterday for Majestic.

Jeri Sullavan cleffed a new ditty, "Coo, Baby, Coo."

Herb Jeffries plaqued by S.F. Jazz Foundation for his "outstanding contribution to jazz in 1945."

Allan Roberts-Doris Fisher tune, "People Have More Fun than Anyone," added to score of Columbia's "Down to Earth."

Ken Curtis will record two of his own tunes for Mercury wax next Wednesday.

Anita Ellis will be backed by Harry Geller and 22-piece musicrew for Standard transcription date.

Burl Ives opens at Ciro's tonight for two weeks of ballad chanting. Garwood Van and his musicrew take over the stand for an indefinite run.

Jean Byron opened at the Trocadero last night as vocalist with Spike Jones.

Joan Barton, Desi Arnaz ork chirp, inked for platters yesterday by Pan-American.

Al Donahue band inked into Pacific Square, San Diego, May 17-18-19.

Barney Bigard, former Ellington clarinetist who has been working in film studio combos, has formed sextet of own and set for vaude week at Golden Gate, San Francisco, April 17.

Leighton Noble ork set for pair of weeks at Jantzen Beach, Oregon, starting April 30.

Henry King band inked for week's stand at Trianon, Seattle, May 27.

Jan Garber ork has backlogged 30 songs on Capitol Transcriptions for July release.

Henry Spitzer, general manager of Edwin H. (Buddy) Morris music interests (Mayfair, Melrose and Morris companies) planed in yesterday from New York. He will remain until April 23 checking operation of West Coast offices.

Burl Ives has signed new two-year contract with Decca Records, and outfit is rushing out new album songs from 20th-Fox's "Smokey" in which Ives appears. Popular priced album will include all folk songs Ives does in the film.

CIVIC OPERA HAS ADVANCE SALE OF $129,856

With the seat sale only two and one-half weeks old, Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Association yesterday had rung up an advance sale of $129,856. Thus far, Civic has only mailed notice to guarantors, members and subscribers, with approximately half of that number replying with orders for seats. Although prices for season tickets are slightly better than 10 per cent above last year's figure amount of coin mailed in is better than 50 per cent over the figure at this time last year.

Biggest day's take was yesterday, when mail orders amounted to $22,860. Season ticket price for orchestra seats amounts to $14.70 for four performances. Orders have been averaging $40 per letter. Spokesman for the Civic stated that most amazing fact was that no advertising for the season had been run as yet. According to Civic officials, overall gross of better than $1,000,000 between here and San Francisco is expected this year.

8 MAJORS POOLING EXPORT FILMS; SHARE PROFIT

It can not handle all films, so only the best will be picked, idea being that all companies will profit the most this way.

In 9 countries, the joint marketing agreement is binding on the companies for three years. They are Austria, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Netherlands, Dutch East Indies, Poland, Rumania and Russia. Agreement is for one year in Germany, Japan and Korea, following which any company may go it alone by filing a six months notice.

Republic and PRC have been invited to join in the joint marketing plan, but no answers have been received as yet, according to Johnston.

NO STATE DEPT. CURB

The MPPA prexy stated there will be no State Department "interference" in the selection of pictures to be exported. It is known, however, that Johnston, at a meeting of company heads at which the joint marketing agreement was made last Friday, read a letter from Will Clayton, Assistant Secretary of State, urging action to get U.S. pictures on the world's screens as soon as possible.

"Most countries where the joint marketing applies have monopolistic control of the film business," Johnston said, "so our only defense is to deal with them as a collective unit. We will thus have the same advantage they have in dealing with us. However, I hope the arrangement won't last too long as we don't believe in cartels. They merely protect the inefficient. We'd rather do business as competing companies."

POOL STARTS TODAY

Most countries can be augmented anytime, Johnston said, but can not be cut without a majority vote of the MPAA board. A big wrangle developed at last week's meeting over some of the companies' demand for a unanimous, instead of majority, vote in this regard.

Pooling arrangement goes into effect today, Johnston asserted.

Hinds in 'Life'

Samuel Hinds was signed yesterday for a featured role in Frank Capra's production for Liberty Films, "It's a Wonderful Life."

SHORT SHORTS

ILL IN PIX

William Faralla, assistant director, collapsed on the set of "O.S.S." yesterday at Paramount and was rushed to California Lutheran hospital where he was reported to have acute appendicitis.

June Haver into St. John's hospital at Santa Monica for a checkup.

Mark Stevens, 20th-Fox star, is in hospital recovering from an operation to correct a long-standing spinal injury.

BETTY HUTTON WILL MAKE FIRST DISCS IN SIX MONTHS

Betty Hutton will wax four sides, her first under new pact with RCA-Victor and first recording in six months, first week in May, according to plans set yesterday. Eli Oberstein, recording chief of pop stuff for platery, will arrive from NY on April 29 to supervise Miss Hutton's discings.

Selections to be cut by warbler have not been chosen and items continue to be matter of great interest to trade, which is trying to peek to see if they will be ballads. Last January Miss Hutton walked out of Capitol Records because, reportedly, waxery would not let her do ballads, but insisted she continue on novelties and specialties.

At that time her "Doctor, Lawyer, Indian Chief" disc was national top seller. When she went to RCA-Victor, Capitol summarily ceased distributing her releases, with result they became collectors' items.

Bowman For 'Rio'

Lee Bowman yesterday was selected for the male lead in "Rio" at Columbia. Actor will appear opposite Evelyn Keyes and Ann Miller in the musical.

Edward Buzzell, Metro director, heads for New York Friday on his first vacation in two and a half years.

TUGEND TO DO 3 OR FOUR FILMS A YEAR

Harry Tugend is giving up most of his duties as an executive producer at Paramount to return to active film production. Aide to Henry Ginsberg, top man on Par lot, has a busy year ahead of him. He has three pictures on his schedule at present and probably will do a fourth.

Tover For 'Rose'

Leo Tover, for a long time one of the industry's top cameramen, has been signed to photograph "Abie's Irish Rose," which starts production next Monday at the Hal Roach studio.

ALFRED REEVES DIES AT 77; 30 YEARS CHAPLIN MANAGER

Alfred Reeves, 77, manager for Charlie Chaplin since 1917 and vice president of the Chaplin studios, died Saturday night in his Playa del Rey home following a heart attack. Reeves toured the Continent before the turn of the century as manager-press agent-sketch artist of Saenger's Circus, later becoming manager of the Fred Karno repertory company. He brought the company to the U.S. in 1910, with Charlie Chaplin first rising to fame in "A Night in an English Music Hall." In 1912 Stan Laurel joined the same troupe.

Chaplin sent for Reeves in 1917 after building his own studio and entering production, and Alf Reeves had been his manager ever since.

His widow, Clara Amy Minister, former dancer in the Karno troupe, is his sole survivor. Funeral arrangements are being made by Forest Lawn.

$240 MILLION EMPIRE HAS 1000 HOUSES

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

AVODON ballroom, downtown caper-hall which debuts in May, notified band-bookers over weekend that orks must be popular in jukeboxes or will get not datings. This slightly new and blunt approach in choosing musicrews probably stems from fact Jack Rogers, prez of Avodon Corp., as well as his veepee Emmett Abernathy, own eateries around this area, and in them jukes are almost as numerous as waitresses. Over weekend Joe Glaser, on phone from NY, got nix when he submitted Ina Ray Hutton at reported $3,250 a week. Avodonites inquired about her discs and though Glaser pointed out she recently cut eight sides for Vogue, ballroom management said they hadn't heard them here. Music Corp. of America's local office got a turndown on Skinnay Ennis, since he hasn't disced with band he's formed for touring after Bob Hope airshow fades for summer on June 11. It's been learned ballroom chose Bobby Sherwood and Jan Garber to preem spot, on basis of juke checks. Sherwood on Capitol label has been popular hereabouts, and Black & White has given Garber buildup during last few months. Just before he landed Avodon pact, B.&W. issued four sides of Garber quickly, apparently to help him sell self.

NEW recording companies continue to flow in at terrific rate, musicians union listing another two dozen newcomers for month of March. Figure ups total here to 124, and indications point to as many more being added next month. Only seven outfits have folded for one reason or another since recording ban was listed in December 1943, others remain licensed, though extent of operations is not known. Average appears to be one per day in view of the 90 listed three months ago. Latest entries are Aladdin, All Star, Bliss, Cardinal, Carlee, Dial, Doris, Eckart, Excelsior, Eccles, Fran-Tone, K & L, Maestro, Master, Memory's Garden, Mills, Neeko, Royal, Radionic, Tempo, Tele-Tone, Tech-Art and Teleways.

ANNOUNCERS will no longer have anything to do with handling of discs on radio station turntables if IBEW is successful in pushing through one of conditions of proposed new contract with indie broadcasters. During war gabbers were permitted greater freedom due to manpower shortage. But now that normalcy has returned technician union wants to get its own people to handle exclusive platters. Change would not mean any decrease in announcer employment nor cause any friction with AFRA. Stations would still be required to have same number of announcers, but their dual job would be eliminated to afford engineer placement.

MUCH dissension is attendant on recent buy-in of outside interests into local recording plant. Majority stockholders are in disagreement with others, some of whom have been relieved of positions, while opposing factions bounce blame for discord from one to other. New interests are actually operating business. Others are just sitting by clipping what coupons fall. Latter feel newcomers won't last long and business will fade, at which time they will step back into picture. Opposition says biz is going full blast and chance at resumption under old regime is out.

METRO currently has a total of 30 writers on its roster, plus an additional 10 juniors, greatest number in studio's history and probably largest aggregation of scribblers ever assembled on one lot. Moreover, every one is actively engaged on writing assignment. Number compares with approximately 35 to 40 which major studios ordinarily employ. Last week, one Metro producer asked for a writer to take on a new assignment, and was told he'd either have to wait for one to finish or arrange to bring in one off lot.

WITH an eye to the heated debate currently going on in New York over the pros and cons of bringing burlesque back, PRC will rush its "Queen of Burlesque" into fast release for a Broadway opening. Studio distribution toppers feel that New Yorkers, starved for burlesque since the LaGuardia ban of several years ago, will give film a long run inasmuch as the return of the real McCoy is not considered likely under the current O'Dwyer regime.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

Gromyko should have been satisfied to be able to return to that vacant chair with an "I told you so," on the Iran affair. But now we learn that he's going to top that and ask that the Iran case be withdrawn altogether from the agenda, since it is "no longer a threat to peace and security." And we had thought, because Russia blundered with force in Iran, in violation of a treaty promise, that she was a blundering bear in diplomacy. And there are some who think that maybe that threat of force helped gain the newly announced treaty. In any case, we have the happy ending of everyone being able to smile and think they won—the United Nations, Iran and the Soviet.

PREVIEWED at Universal Studios, Studio City, April 5, 1946. Running time: 84 MINS.

"Night in Paradise" is fantastic comedy drama of fun and fable and love in the days of King Croesus. It is flamboyant with color, lavishly costumed and mounted and has plenty of straight action drama to keep it moving. Show is strictly for entertainment and doesn't try to prove anything except, maybe, that a wise guy with a good fable can get farther with a woman than a king with gold. Merle Oberon and Turhan Bey are good names to draw with and it looks as though the box office staff is in for some busy nights.

Miss Oberon is sufficiently exciting as a Persian princess betrothed to Croesus (Thomas Gomez). Her figure is adequate to the revealing costumes and she is competently torrid in the love scenes with Bey.

Bey, in the role of Aesop (the one who wrote the fables), shows a flair for romance and adventure and gives a thoroughly convincing performance.

Gomez makes Croesus a generally jolly monarch, not too bright and with a whimsical tendency to deal out death sentences at odd moments. He combines a craze for gold with a yen for femme lovelies which results in livening of the palace scenes with a profusion of shapely handmaidens and houris.

Gale Sondergaard as a witch woman, highly skilled in black magic, and Ray Collins as the rascally, intriguing chancellor with comedy traits crowd the principals for acting honors. Ernest Truex, George Dolenz, Jerome Cowan, Douglass Dumbrille, Paul Cavanaugh and Moroni Olsen all earn special mention. Balance of supporting cast is generally excellent.

The story has to do with the love of Aesop, at the court of Croesus as an ambassador from Samos, for the princess. He gets off wrong with Croesus on his first appearance and the princess, intrigued by his fables, saves him from one of the ever-ready death sentences. The king also has it in for Samos, a country which has sent him an ambassador instead of gold. From there on the picture is an exciting mixture of love, death sentences, threats of a military expedition against Samos. Aesop in the end saves his country, gets the princess and lives happily ever after—but only after numerous narrow escapes.

DECCA BIZ $7 MILLION FOR FIRST QUARTER

New York, April 7.—Decca Records, Inc., registered an estimated sales volume of $7,000,000 for the first quarter of the current year ending March 31. Record-breaking figure represents the largest for any period in the history of the company. Decca's new sales high doubles the $3,500,000 sales of the corresponding period of last year and compares with the $15,500,000 for all of 1945.

It is indicated that earnings for the first quarter of 1946 will be at least double the 58 cents a share reported for the same period in 1945. The hike in earnings this year is traced to the elimination of the excess profits tax and a substantial increase in firm's production.

Decca's output of records has skyrocketed from the 2,000,000 mark of last August to the current production of 7,000,000 platters monthly. With company's new Los Angeles and Chicago plants expected to reach full production this fall, Decca is shooting at a 10 to 12,000,000 figure per month.

If Decca continues its past policy of distributing about half its earnings in the form of dividends, stockholders, it is reported, this year may get more than the $1.50 they received in 1945. Currently Decca is paying 30 cents each quarter and in past few years has paid another 30 cents at the close of the year.

Jack Warner in Town, Cold Keeps Harry in NY

New York, April 7.—Jack Warner flew to the Coast over the weekend without his brother, Harry, who is bedded with a cold in his Hotel Gotham suite. Latter probably will follow Thursday. Mrs. Jack Warner is staying here as her husband is due back in about three weeks.

Peer Host At Disney's

Ralph S. Peer, president of Peer Music Enterprises, and Walt Disney will be hosts at a special screening of the Disney production, "Make Mine Music," at the Disney studios today at 2:30 p.m.

'Stagecoach' Rides

"Stagecoach to Denver," Republic's second Red Ryder western starring Allan Lane, rolls today with R. G. Springsteen directing for producer Sidney Picker.

MANAGERS TO PICKET 41 RKO THEATRES

New York, April 7.—Motion Picture Theatre Operating Managers will start picketing 41 RKO theatres in New York and Westchester county tomorrow, charging that RKO refused to accept a National Labor Relations Board decision. NLRB directive had called for an $85-140 scale for managers, $40-75 for their assistants, three week's vacation after five years, severance pay and a 48-hour week.

Ford Puts 'Clementine' Production To Work

John Ford put "My Darling Clementine" before cameras at 20th-Fox Saturday, with Henry Fonda, Linda Darnell, Victor Mature and Walter Brennan in top roles. Company will be here until May, when Ford takes troupe to Monument Valley in Arizona for six weeks of locations. Tim Holt also is in picture, with Sam Engel producing.

Metro Signs La Cava To Direct 'Living'

Gregory La Cava has inked director deal with Metro, to handle reins on "Life's for the Living." La Cava some months ago instituted suit against Mary Pickford for over one million dollars, charging breach of contract when latter did not start "One Touch of Venus."

Boyer and Bergman For 'Triumph' Stars

When Charles Boyer returns from New York this week, he'll tell Charles Einfeld that he will play the role of Ravic, the refugee German surgeon, in "Arch of Triumph," first picture on Enterprise Productions schedule. Ingrid Bergman is slated, for the feminine star spot.

Fala Gift Print

Walter Pidgeon, on behalf of Metro, will present today to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library a print of Pete Smith Specialty, "Fala at Hyde Park."

HERSHOLT HONORED BY INDIES FOR 40 YRS' SERVICE

Jean Hersholt, president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, has been honored by Independent Motion Picture Producers Association for his 40 years "of distinguished service to the public on stage, screen and radio" and in private life. Plaque, presented by I. E. Chadwick, prexy, Trem Carr, and Reeves Espy, vice presidents of IMPPA, is inscribed:

"To Jean Hersholt because of your forty years of distinguished service to the public on stage, screen and radio; and because of your valuable contribution to literature by the collection, preservation, translation and publication of the Fairy Tales of Hans Christian Andersen; because your humanitarian activities as President of the Motion Picture Relief Fund have brought dignity yet felicitous care to the worthy, sick and needy in our industry; and because of your splendid contribution to war activities and war charities, especially Danish War Relief; and because of your vigorous leadership as President of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences, you have brought the greatest measure of public esteem to the motion picture industry, we, the Independent Motion Picture Producers Association present this plaque."

TOLERANCE PLAY FAILS TO MAKE PASSING GRADE

Princeton, April 7.—While "This Too Shall Pass" has a timely and worthy motif, it has neither the sparkle, substance, nor facility in stage craftsmanship to justify either serious stage or screen consideration.

With high possibilities, its plea for tolerance peters out early and continues to drop in tempo and interest. Its tone is morbid throughout with appeal resorting to implausible theatrics that lack conviction.

Presented by Richard Krakeur it tells of a Christian and Jewish soldier returning from the wars to the home of the former. Love interest that develops between the latter boy and his companion's sister is thwarted by the girl's mother who admits bigotry is the basis of her disapproval. The lovers leave home to marry but only after tragedy strikes, when the girl's brother meets with a fatal automobile accident attributable to the bitter quarrels.

The moral is tolerance but the fault lies chiefly in the script by Don Appell, which is weighted down with words and prolonged doleful scenes.

Ralph Morgan, as the physician father; Kathryn Givney, as the mother; and John Wanamaker, as the Jewish ex-soldier, are standouts. Its action could stand plenty of hypo by author-director Appell. Raymond Sovey's one-setter is in excellent taste.

'Swimtime' Starts Run With San Antonio Debut

San Antonio, April 7. — "Rhapsody in Swimtime—Hollywood Water Follies of 1946" held its world premiere showing here at the Woodlawn swimming pool under the joint sponsorship of the local Chamber of Commerce and the Crosby Enterprises. Hollywood revue consists of swimming, stage and ballet numbers as well as a local bathing beauty contest. Opening show ran over three hours and could stand cutting.

Topping the cast was Helen Crlenkovich Morgan, world's champion diver, who made her professional debut. Featured are Lita O'Neill, water ballerina who trained with the Monte Carlo Ballet, Joe Peterson, Adelle Hannibal, Jack Thomas, Frank Foster, Jim Rice, Wave Winters and Katie Manley. Stage acts included the Morello Trio of roller skaters, Owen and Johnson and Harman Hyde as emcee and vocalist. Production was directed by William King, while original music was written by Cecil Stewart which included the title song, "Rhapsody in Swimtime."

MGM POSTPONES ALL 'YEARS' TRADESHOWS

New York, April 7. — Metro is postponing all trade showings on "The Green Years," originally slated for April 19, to give film a more elaborate buildup. Decision followed rave reviews given picture on its opening at the Music Hall last Thursday.

Company executives are lining up special invitational screenings in key cities and hope to get state governors, church dignitaries and others to attend. Picture may be spotted in several key cities soon. General release has been held up until after the Music Hall run, possibly June or July.

ANTI-PETRILLO BILL IN WHITE HOUSE FOR TRUMAN NOD

Washington, April 7.—The Senate has passed the anti-Petrillo bill 47 to 3 and sent it to the White House, where it is expected to receive the presidential signature. The overwhelming vote by which Congress passed it indicates that a veto would be overridden.

Not a kind word was expressed for American Federation of Musicians prexy James C. Petrillo. The sole objections raised were that others may be hurt by the admittedly stiff Bill. Sen. Glen H. Taylor (D., Utah), radio singing cowboy, led the opposition to the measure. He claimed Bill would work hardship on all profession so far as radio is concerned.

"You've missed Petrillo and hit every entertainer in America, instead," he warned. Taylor and other Senators had received joint wire from Bing Crosby, Lawrence Tibbett, Dinah Shore, Arch Oboler, Eddie Cantor, James Melton, Norman Corwin, Frank Sinatra, Jean Hersholt and Bob Hope.

Taylor argued that, under provision which prevents Petrillo from barring foreign-originated musical programs, a network could set up an orchestra in Mexico, pay less than union scales, pipe the program into U.S. and cut musicians from jobs.

Goldwyn Puts Two Features To Work

Samuel Goldwyn sets two productions simultaneously today before the cameras. Norman Z. McLeod handles directorial chore on "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," Danny Kaye starrer. William Wyler starts directing "The Best Years of Our Lives," from a script by Robert Sherwood based on the MacKinlay Kantor yarn, "Glory for Me."

Adams Goes Up

New York, April 7. — Vernon Adams has been promoted to Oklahoma City branch manager for Warner Bros., it was announced yesterday by Ben Kalmenson, general sales manager.

Satori To London

New York, April 7. — William Satori, Monogram's new European representative, sailed today on the Queen Mary to establish his headquarters in London.

' JUST FOR VARIETY '

THE GRAPEVINE: Robert Montgomery's successor in the "A Woman of My Own" lead at Metro probably will be Richard Hart, who came out from Broadway a week ago after scoring in "Dark of the Moon." Montgomery walked off the set after 18 days of shooting over differences with Director George Cukor. Hart was immediately tested for the role. Cukor and Montgomery are to meet today in a last effort to settle their dispute but little hope is held for a reconciliation of views . . . Bobby-soxers tried to crash Maria Montez's party but only got as far as the kitchen . . . How-serious-can-you-get dept.: Ted Ryan, disc jockey at KGFJ, wears a blue jockey's cap while spinning the wax . . . Gary Cooper plans to try out his Lagonda racing car on Muroc dry lake when "Cloak and Dagger" is finished . . . Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse have completed the first draft of their sequel to "Life with Father." It's titled "Life with Mother"—opening a long vista of family life behind the footlights . . . Georgianna Young, Loretta Young's sister, is being tested at Metro for the tall girl role opposite Mickey Rooney in "Uncle Andy Hardy" . . . Warners execs believe footage thus far pieced together on "The Sentence" shows Ann Sheridan doing a better acting job than she did in "King's Row" . . . Skippy Homeier checked off the Metro lot after two years, during which his only assignment was the loanout to Lester Cowan for "Tomorrow the World." He's rated one of the best juvenile actors . . . Ex-soldier who was overseas spotted Yola D'Avril playing a nurse in "Cloak and Dagger," recalling she played a French girl in "All Quiet on the Western Front" who was lured to the boudoir with a gift of salami. "In our war we used chocolate bars," he told her.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: The stork seems to have been telling a lot of lies to Louella. Last Wednesday she reported Shirley Ballard, Goldwyn Girl, "has another date with the stork." Her father, Kenneth Ballard, L.A. auditor, did a burn and reportedly hastened to a lawyer—because Shirley Ballard is under 21, unmarried, never visited by the stork and not expecting a visit. Coming on top of her similar misstep with Shirley Temple last Sunday, it was not a good week for Miss Parsons . . . At the Burl Ives opening at Ciro's: James Cagney and Robert Montgomery sharing a table with their wives, Greg Bautzer and Tanis Chandler, Jane Nigh and David Street, the Gregory Pecks and a party . . . Bentley Ryan and Janis Paige were two-gether at Glen Billingsley's . . . Semi-finals in the local flack corps' gin rummy tournament wound up with Claire Warns beating Bernie Milligan and Jack Cooper taking Harry Kerr . . . Ed Wynn's condition is reported serious, and his son Keenan is ready to plane to NY on a moment's notice . . . Howard Hughes must be getting bored with watching the big parade to boxoffices for "The Outlaw." On April 19 he will take a Constellation on another attempt to break the transcontinental record. Peter Lawford and Frank Sinatra will accompany him .

CALL SHEET: ROBERT TAYLOR will take a six-week vacation on com-pletion of "Undercurrent" at Metro. He and Barbara Stanwyck plan to board their station wagon and take off for a trip to Baja California, if film commitments don't hold her here . . . ARMAND DEUTSCH, Story Productions president, planed in with one child yesterday while his wife, Benay Venuta, arrives today with the other. Deutsch bought Artie Shaw's home for a reported 100 grand . . . JIMMY DURANTE has bought a house on Beverly drive and plans to make his permanent home there . . . MARILYN THORPE, Mary Astor's daughter, makes her debut over a national network next week. She's 14 . . . JOE L. BROWN, son of the comedian now wowing them in "Harvey," is handling the publicity for the Hollywood Stars ball team . . . WINSTON CHURCHILL asked to see only one show currently on Broadway, "State of the Union," which Paramount will film from the Lindsay-Crouse script . . . GENE AUTRY hosted a dinner for the harness racehorse owners at Tom Breneman's . . . BUDDY ROGERS and RALPH COHN took time out to write all persons who suggested candidates for the "Little Iodine" role and also sent "better luck next time" notes to the tribe of little girls interviewed for the part . . . EDDIE CANTOR Pacific Airlined home from Sacramento over the weekend after a talk with Governor Warren . . . ROSALIND RUSSELL and FRED BRISSON returned from Palm Springs to welcome their guest, General Carl Spaatz, for his overnight stay. Industry will give him a luncheon today at Romanoff's, Hal Roach plays host at a black-tie dinner tonight for the A.A.F. chief. He leaves for Washington tomorrow.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: L. Wolfe Gilbert, who hasn't used his tonsils professionally since that last split-week in Medicine Hat, will stand up to a mike with N.T.G. today on the "You're in the Act" airer. He will sing the song he wrote 35 years ago, "Waitin' for the Robert E. Lee" . . . Al Jarvis is fairly well covered in the flack field. He has his own personal press agent, Red Doff, the KLAC praiser Paul Sloane and the Ray Morgan ad agency all plugging away. Now along comes copy and pictures from the Renzo Cesana office—how praiseworthy can you get? . . . Andrew Stone kicked out $1000 for a gown which Gail Russell wears in "The Bachelor's Daughters," but it makes her look like a million so there's a profit somewhere for somebody . . . Warners has more than 100 hosses on the payroll, or hayroll, with "Cheyenne" and "Stallion Road" now shooting . . . Booth Tarkington sidelight: Elizabeth Taylor, Metro's 14-year-old player, was invited by Roddy McDowall, now 17, to attend the "Zeigfeld Follies" preem at the Egyptian, but she was told by her parents she couldn't have any dates until she was 16. "Well, if I wait that long Roddy will be an old man and going steady and it will be too late," she complained . . . Seymour Nebenzal tells about an actor telling a friend how he asked his manager for a raise. "How'd he take it?" the friend asked. "Like a lamb," replied the actor. "All he said was 'Bah!' " . . . Remember: vaccination today will keep smallpox away.—D.D.T.

ROACH LAUNCHING PROGRAM WITH A JUVE COMEDY

Hal Roach launches his new production program next Thursday, with start of "Curley," juvenile comedy co-starring Larry Olsen, aged seven, in title role, and Irene Janssen, six years old. Robert McGowan will produce first of Roach's announced 12 feature comedies annually, and Bernard Carr will direct, Holly Morse acting as his assistant. Frances Rafferty has been inked by Roach to term contract and will be femme lead in picture, to be filmed in Cinecolor. Roach will cast a third moppet, around seven years old, for third top juv role.

Negro Local Pulls Bands Out of Shepp's Nitery

Musicians' Local 767, Negro union, pulled two bands out of Shepp's Playhouse, downtown black-and-tannery, over weekend. Spot will remain musicless until both outfits, Joe Hunter and Floyd Ray combos, have been paid back salaries for last week and union further has declared nitery must post cash bond of $2,000 with local before any other orks go in.

Collins Due Today To Discuss 'Kilowatt'

Ashton B. Collins arrives from New York today to discuss future production plans with Walt Lantz, who just completed a commercial film, "Reddy Kilowatt," for Collins. Cartune, based on the story of electricity, will be specially screened during Collins' stay here.

Nelson's Loan Chore

Donald M. Nelson yesterday accepted chairmanship of the California Committee on International Economic Policy, which is being organized by business, industrial, agricultural and labor leaders of the state to present facts concerning the proposed $3,750,000,00 credit to Great Britain.

METRO JOINS HEGIRA FROM BLACK, WHITE TO COLOR TELEVISH

Washington, April 7.—Metro, in Hollywood, and Marcus Loew Booking Agency, New York, have joined growing parade of applicants pulling out of low frequency black and white television. A request to kill applications of both was filed with FCC over weekend. Loew interests also recently pulled its plea for a Washington, D.C., video channel.

Yankee network of New England also withdrew its request for Hartford, Conn., and Boston, Mass., outlets, over the weekend, and bowed out of Providence short time later. Loyola U, New Orleans, also filed demurrer for its once planned video venture.

Recalls have been going on for some time. Government construction freeze recently announced is believed to have kayoed low frequency, black and white. Those yanking have announced intention to sit it out and await event of full color television in the ultra high spectrum.

Kushner Transcribes Tall Sports Stories

Morri Kushner is packaging a new transcribed show, "Now I'll Tell one." It is a collection of tall tales in sports patterned after newspaper cartoon feature of same title. Sports-believe-it-or-nots are narrated by Sam Balter and announced by Rod O'Connor. Babe Herman guests on initial platter to be cut at NBC today. Jack Strausberg is originator and writer of quarter-hour series.

RCA-Victor Pacts Brown For Comedy Records

Joe E. Brown has been pacted by RCA-Victor for series of serio-comic albums which will present Brown anecdotes that occurred during the 195,000 miles of touring world battlefronts to entertain GIs. Art Rush, RCA-Victor Coast chief, due back from NY flyer today, will shortly set dates for discings, which will be made at plattery's local studio.

'Water' Goes Today

Columbia greenlights "Hot Water," Gus Schilling-Dick Lane two-reeler today, with Edward Bernds directing for producer Hugh McCollum. Others in the cast are Christine McIntyre, Helga Storme, Rebel Randall, Dick Curtis and Vernon Dent.

TELE IN FULL SWING IN JULY SEZ CBS TOP

Harry R. Lubcke, director of Don Lee Television System, states video will be in full swing by July, and remote pickups will be strong point of his programming, absorbing about 40 per cent of planned 28 hours weekly.

Live studio shows and films will share equally the other 60 per cent. New million dollar studio atop Mt. Lee is completed and ready to go, and will be called KTSL when commercial. It operates fortnightly now as W6XAO.

New radio and tele studios planned by Mutual at Homewood and Fountain on Vine Street will soon go into work. A 180-foot tower will top the structure as relay station to afford greater coverage.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

Value of personal contact between high executive panels in New York and the Coast operations, which went into practical eclipse during the war years for obvious reasons, was proved beyond reasonable doubt in the recent junkets of the NBC executive cabinet and C. E. Hooper. Affiliates found great comfort is being able to sit down with Niles Trammell and his NBC brain trusters for a fine-combing of their mutual problems. Three-day session disposed of many troublesome dilemmas but more importantly it was in solemn council with the network chiefs meeting them on common ground and showing a personal interest in their far-away operations. That alone generated a feeling of friendship that could not have been achieved through the usual channels of communication. Affiliates of the network were so elated at the results of the deliberations that resolutions were struck off commending the network heads for their fine spirit of cooperation. That alone should have compensated the chain gang for their long haul across the country.

Another junket, this a one-man affair, will set at rest in the minds of the agency men any thoughts of hocus-pocus used by C. E. Hooper and his tabulators in arriving at ratings and their differentials. Hooper explained the process with analytical thoroughness and those who attended any of the three sessions came away convinced that the Hooper system, while not infallible, is a competent index to a program's audience pull. Many of the doubting Thomases had to be shown the error of their thinking and the "fallacies of analyses" went for the end book. They came away convinced and that's why "Hoop" came out. The results more than justified the time and expense involved and getting the story from the headman accomplished what otherwise may have been taken as mere hearsay with some vestige of doubt lingering in the minds of those who know the weighty impact of the figures that make up the Hooper list.

Chain breaks . . . There'll be a splurge of Vino accounts on the air in the months to come and the rubber bands are coming off the bankrolls. Vintners will take advantage of the beer and hard likker shortage which will call for reduced budgets in all media . . . Elevation of Ernie Martin to director of network programs at CBS recalls a line in this column some months ago, to wit, "that he's this pillar's candidate as the success boy of 1946" . . . Howard Green, veteran screen writer, is working on a situation comedy series that will command attention from agencies on the prowl for such properties . . . After five years as a writer, comic and intimate of Bing Crosby on Kraft Music Hall, Leo "Unkie" Sherin is off the show. Bing will likely find a spot for him wherever he goes . . . The Ronald Colmans call on Jack Benny Sunday for the fourth time this season . . . Little wonder that Igor Gorin is in no sweat over radio. Concerts are netting him around $6,000 a week . . . Martin Block in town with Supper Clubbers and to cut some discs for his "Record Shop" spots.

Trying the keep up with the Crosbys on the multiplicity of deals that have poured in since the Kraft break is no soft touch. Rarely a day passes that some new proposal isn't bruited about in the trade. Two of the more interesting ones said to be under study by Bing's tax expert and lawyers and of more than passing interest to The Groaner are herewith given what we believe to be the first light of publicity. First concerns Myron Kirk of the Kudner agency, who is said to have a signed letter from Bing authorizing him to negotiate a deal with Texaco. The other has to do with the mysterious ABC network deal which was promulgated by Ed Noble, board chairman of the chain, and presented to Bing in person 10 days ago when Noble was in town. The deal goes like this: Bing would purchase 10,000 shares of ABC stock at $15 and on a declared dividend given a two-for-one split. He would then sell 10,000 shares for $150,000 and still retain his original stock. Under the terms of this deal Bing would be allowed to broadcast as he pleases—live, wax, wire or tape. Texaco deal (live) is reported to be for $25,000 weekly to start Sept. 29 in the oiler's Sunday night spot on CBS.

Hitch hikes . . . John P. Medbury back to grinding out comedy situations for Amos 'n' Andy following the departure of Octavus Roy Cohen and Frank Gill . . . National Safety Council has moved its weekly show on ABC from Sunday to Wednesday opposite Eddie Cantor yet the Council has asked its membership of 500 industrial firms to tune the Cantor program this week for the launching of his own Safety First campaign . . . U.S. Steel's "Theatre Guild of the Air" moves here May 12 and Frisco the following Sunday . . . Tom Harrington around for two weeks to line up talent and cut a record with Dennis Day. Three clients of the Ted Bates agency get first call, just now a tossup among Colgate, Standard Brands and Continental Baking. Program gets a September tee-up . . . Prize crack of the season: Arthur Lyons' "agency men haggle for six months over a contract and then put the contract on the air." It was part of this pitch in selling "Request Performance" . . . Hoagy Carmichael planes to New York Tuesday to see a publisher about a book and during his absence Ed Cashman will have Maestro Jimmy Higson double as emcee . . . "The McGee's" continue to set the pace in the CAB (Crossley) spring stakes at 25.4, with a good 3.1 lead over Bob Hope. Third place goes to Charlie McCarthy, followed by Lux, Fred Allen, Bing Crosby, Walter Winchell, "Mr. D.A." (A bad cutting job on the release sheet leaves us in the dark on the others) . . . There's talk around that Phil Harris and not Dick Powell may inherit the Fitch summer spot . . . Larry Marx and Bill Mannhoff added to the Alan Young writing battery and Dave Schwartz subtracted . . . Maj. Frank Goss back from India and soon to be separated so he can resume as CBS announcer . . . Dr. Peter Goldmark, CBS television expert, in town for tomorrow's talk on "CBS Color Television."

ABC SOLVES SKED FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

ABC network has surmounted the obstacle besetting all networks, that of rearranging schedules to meet the exigencies of Daylight Savings Time, effective throughout the east April 29 and continuing for 22 weeks. Under the plan of operation all programs on that net will be heard at the same time the year around.

Through the medium of special broadcast lines and recorded repeats, the problem of meeting the summer time change has been solved. The plan, conceived by ABC's Charles Rynd, operates thusly: eastern time originations will be live in the east and plattered for playback one hour later in other zones; Coast originations will be put one hour earlier and played back hour later; eastern stations remaining on standard time carry programs live hour earlier.

ABC hopes to hold its audience while dialers are hopping around trying to catch up with their favs on other networks.

Burl Ives Reveals Grandpaw Naughtiness

Burl Ives opened at Ciro's over the weekend and gave his listeners plenty of Americana with a dash of blue in his ballading. Singer of the old, "unsophisticated" songs reveals that grandpaw and grandmaw had their own versions of naughtiness. Ives has charm and a good voice, which he backs with a neat bit of guitar picking. Garwood Van's orchestra gives him a touch of backing and plays society tunes for dancing.

Maxie's New Show

New show opens tonight at Slapsy Maxie's starring Bert Wheeler and Jackie Gleason. Featured are Lois Andrews, DeCastro Sisters, Johnny and George and Grace Nicco. Stan Myers and his orchestra will back the show and play for dancing.

SPECIAL PLUGGER OF SONGS FOR DISC JOCKS

New facet in publicizing music for sales stimulation is being probed by Robbins-Feist-Miller combine of tune publishers with hiring over weekend of Barney McDevitt to plug firms' songs by concentrating only on disc jockeys.

R-F-M is first pub to hire actually a contact man for so specialized a job, but others are interested in moving into the field. Rocco Vocco, of Bregman, Vocco and Conn, currently here from his NY headquarters, is known to be interested and interviewing personnel for such a job.

McDevitt has a local business of promoting platters, his clients having been performers for whom he'd perform the chore of getting their discs spun. He keeps softened up a list of 27 jocks along the Coast, supplying them free biscuits before they are released to public. In working for the pubs, McDevitt will be supplied with discs purchased by the pubs, receiving batches from NY to ease onto ether here. Although in essence a songplugger, he is ineligible to join union, according to an opinion given him by Bob Miller, national prez of organization.

Pubs have always pressed to get their tunes aired, of course, but this is first instance in country of specialist being called in to coax a covey of jocks and it lends increasing importance to their position in radio.

OBITUARIES

DEMETRIO MORANDO

Demetrio Morando, 71, maternal uncle of the Foy family and gatekeeper at Warners for past seven years, died Saturday morning at Hollywood Presbyterian hospital following a gall bladder operation. He was the brother-in-law of Eddy Foy, Sr., and was last uncle of the Foy children. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at Pierce Bros., 5959 Santa Monica boulevard, with interment to follow at Holy Cross cemetery.

VINCENT YOUMANS

Vincent Youmans, 47, composer, and known as the man who wrote nothing but hits, died of tuberculosis at a sanitarium in Denver, Colo., April 5, following several weeks illness and hospitalization. He had been retired since 1933.

The composer of such hits as "Great Day," "Tea For Two," "I Know That You Know," "Without A Song," "More Than You Know," "Time On My Hands," and his own favorite "Through The Years," first came to Tin Pan Alley in 1920, following discharge from the Navy in which he served from 1917. He wrote the scores for such Broadway musicals as "Two Little Girls in Blue," "Wildflower," "Smilin' Through," "Great Day," "Hit the Deck" and "No, No, Nanette," starting with "Girls in Blue" in 1920. His motion picture activities were little, and were confined to scoring "Flying Down to Rio," Rogers-Astaire starrer for RKO.

Youmans was born in New York on Sept. 17, 1898, of English-Irish stock. He attended Trinity School, Mamaroneck, N.Y., and later attended Heathcote Hall, Rye. He went to work in Wall Street in 1916, preferring work to college. With the outbreak of war he enlisted in the Navy. While in training at Great Lakes Training Station he wrote songs for entertainment of his fellow service men, discovering then his talent for composing.

Shortly after completing his film chores, Youmans retired to his Denver home where he is said to have concentrated on more serious musical things. Friends state he had a trunkful of symphonic pieces of great merit. He is said to have given up popular music and Hollywood to devote his time to heavier forms of music.

In 1927 he married Anne Varley, a dancer in one of his productions. The marriage ended in divorce in 1933. Two years later he married Mildred Boots, a Follies girl. Twins, Cecily and Vincent, were born of this marriage.

His last work was production of "Vincent Youmans' Ballet Revue," in 1944. Among other hits he wrote were "I Want To Be Happy," "Carioca," "Hallelujah," "Orchids in the Moonlight," "Drums in My Heart" and "Happy Because I'm In Love."

GRENA BENNETT

Grena Bennett, 62, widow of late Richard Bennett, legit actor, died last Thursday night in NY. For last 41 years Mrs. Bennett served as music critic for NY Journal-American.

NICLAS KENTNER

Niclas Kentner, 54, stage musical director and concert pianist, died in Hollywood April 5 at his home. Kentner died shortly after Vincent Youmans, for whom he directed "Great Day" and "No, No, Nanette." Kentner also was musical director for Florenz Ziegfeld's "Rio Rita," and had at one time toured Europe as a concert pianist. He was under contract to Metro as a musical writer.

week every night from 6 to 9 p.m. Persons employed in the industry thus will lose no time from their jobs to insure themselves against smallpox.

The disease, believed to have been brought to the Coast by veterans from the Pacific war theatres, has caused alarm in San Francisco and Seattle in the past month, and considerable concern in local medical circles.

Vaccination is offered to all persons in the film industry free of charge. You have only to identify yourself as a studio employe or member of a picture union or guild.

Pacific Music Prepares To Invade NY Mart

Pacific Music Sales, Inc., sole wholesale distrib operating out of Coast headquarters, is prepping to invade NY. Artie Schwartz, prez, set wheels in motion last week on flyer to Gotham. Office space there has been secured but staff unchosen. Pacific Music currently spreads sheets around for about 50 small pubs lacking own distribution. In its field, outfit has but one rival, Hill and Range Songs, Inc., headquartered in NY with branch here.

Joe Weber Off To Musicians Meet

Joe Weber, honorary lifetime president of AFM, and special advisor to International Board of musicians union, left here over weekend to attend executive board sessions of AFM in New York which open tomorrow. Former active head of AFM will sit with board on studio musician negotiations, in meetings with reps of National Association of Broadcasters, which follow film dealings, and then goes to Washington, D.C., for AFL meeting.

Fortunes of the two lovers are furthered by the magic of Miss Sondergaard. The yarn ranges through burlesque, comedy, straight drama and cliff-hanger suspense, but manages to do pretty well in all departments. Dialog in the Ernest Pascal script is a bit flat in places, but the screenplay is otherwise successful.

Walter Wanger and his associate, Alexander Golitzen, have produced generously and with effective showmanship and Arthur Lubin's direction paces both comedy and drama smartly. Hal Mohr and W. Howard Greene have done a top camera job and Frank Skinner's score is creditable part of the production, music being done in the four-note Grecian scale to match the period of the story.

$240,000,000 by Rank, who revealed his many companies have an annual turnover exceeding $180,000,000. The British film tycoon further disclosed that his organization controls 650 theatres in England, with recent acquisitions in Ireland, Canada, Australia and New Zealand bringing the total up to nearly 1,000 showcases.

FIVE STUDIOS

Further breakdown of the Rank empire reveals ownership of five studios, eight producing units, three laboratories, 24 managing directors and 31,000 employes.

Rank told the conclave of the organizations need to distribute its product throughout the world in order to collect currency for the home market. Pointedly referring to Sir Alexander Korda's challenge to the Rank film interests, the British film topper stated he "welcomed local opposition." Rank emphasized that the forthcoming American loan to England made it all the more imperative to sell British films everywhere. A major Rank organization contribution to the British export drive will be world-wide screening of the "British Way of Life."

GREETINGS FROM JOHNSTON

Rank read greetings from Eric Johnston, Motion Picture Association of America prexy, to the delegates. Heads of nearly all American major film companies also sent messages to the meet. Among Americans attending are Matty Fox, Lewis Blumberg, Joseph Seidelman, Robert Benjamin, Monroe Greenthal, and William Heineman. Al Daff, Universal International exec and Norman Rydge, Australian film topper are participating at the convention, as are other reps from United World Pictures and Eagle-Lion from all over the world.

BELL & HOWELL TO SWAP TRADE SECRETS WITH BRITISH

Chicago, April 7.—Bell & Howell Co., and British Acoustic Films, Ltd., of England, a J. Arthur Rank subsidiary, have closed a deal calling for the interchange of the engineering, manufacturing and distribution facilities of the two companies. J. H. McNabb, Bell & Howell prexy, disclosed the new combo. Negotiations on the long-term agreement were instituted personally by J. Arthur Rank in June, 1945, when the British film magnate spent several days here with McNabb.

Terms of the pact call for complete interchange of research data as well as manufacture and distribution of equipment between the two outfits. Full line of Bell & Howell product, including all standard 35m and sub-standard 16m and 8m equipment, sound and silent projectors, cameras, slide projectors, and a wide range of accessories, will be made by the Rank unit in England. The British Acoustic Films plant will be operated along the lines of Bell & Howell engineering and production procedures.

E. C. Johnson, Bell & Howell veteran engineer, leaves shortly for London.

The agreement also calls for reciprocal distribution of the two firms' film product. The Rank unit, in addition, will distribute the English-made equipment throughout the British Empire and various other countries. Bell & Howell will distribute all sub-standard motion picture films owned or controlled by the Rank subsidiary in the United States, its possessions and throughout South America. The British firm, on the other hand, will distribute in their territory all films owned or controlled by Bell & Howell Film Sound Library.

PICTURE WORKERS BUY $124 MILLION IN WAR BONDS

A total of $124,588,277 has been invested in war bonds by film workers and companies within Hollywood during the past four years, it was announced today by Henry Ginsberg, organizer and chairman of the Hollywood Motion Picture War Finance Committee which has conducted the industry-wide sale of war bonds since its organization on April 9, 1942.

A survey of the figures compiled as the committee's fourth year ends shows that $103,383,940 was invested by employes in major studios, $10,205,164 by independent studios, $6,890,165 by allied industries, and $2,379,233 in offices of agents, business managers and independent publicists. The committee is continuing bond sales through payroll savings programs and is still averaging $500,000 worth of bonds a month.

PICKFORD MAY TOSS HER PROPERTIES INTO COMET

London, April 7.—A Comet Production-Pickford Production combo was indicated yesterday following trans-Atlantic telephone discussions between Mary Pickford, currently on a European tour, and Buddy Rogers in Hollywood. Understood that Miss Pickford plans to utilize the production experience gained by the Comet organization in making its projected slate of six streamlined features for United Artists release.

With the production set-up in gear, and with the six features under its belt, Miss Pickford, it is indicated, will throw her story properties into the Comet Productions set-up. Latter outfit is currently headed up by Buddy Rogers and Ralph Cohn. Understood further that the new combo will either concentrate on deluxe product or make both top features and streamliners.

Among the properties which Miss Pickford owns are "Secrets," "Sorrell And Son," "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," "The Bat," "One Touch of Venus," "There Goes Lona Henry," and "Champagne For Everybody."

'Little Iodine' First Comet Pic Rolling

Cameras turn today on "Little Iodine," first of Comet Productions' six scheduled streamliners for United Artists release. Start of film comes less than three months after company formed its production set-up. Picture is being shot at Morey & Sutherland studios, 201 N. Occidental Blvd.

studio machinists (IAM) and Set Designers, Illustrators & Decorators, Local 1421 (BPDPA) had previously voted power to executive committees to call a strike if necessary. Electricians meet tomorrow on the same question.

At meeting of Moving Picture Painters, Local 644 yesterday, union voted to assess itself $1 per member per week to cover special expenses until contract with producers is negotiated. Local also named Carl Head as new president to fill the unexpired term of Elmer Rusk, who resigned last week because of ill health. Term expires July 1.

Wire from Eric Johnston, prexy of Motion Picture Association, was read at the meeting by Herbert Sorrell. Wire, in answer to one sent last week by Sorrell to Johnston protesting "open shop" question, stated that MPA head was checking into the matter with Byron Price and assured Sorrell that in meantime, Johnston's "sole desire is to be scrupulously fair." Sorrell will take up matter with Price today.

Some outstanding pictures are remembered not only for their merits as great motion pictures but also for the individual performances by the stars and featured players in the cast. GILDA is such a picture. Rita Hayworth, Glenn Ford, George Macready, Joseph Calleia and Steven Geray will be long remembered and highly praised for their characterizations in this Columbia picture.

Film Stocks In Huge Gain

BLDG. CURB TO BE EASED TO 15G A SET

Washington, April 8. — Government is due to hand down clarification of new construction freeze order, insofar as motion picture sets are concerned, within next two or three days.

Understanding is that present situation—$15,000 per picture—will be greatly liberalized and may go to $15,000 per set, with no limit on number of sets for each film. This

Jeffreys Goes Up

Anne Jeffreys will be hiked to star status at RKO for her role opposite Pat O'Brien in "The Big Angle" which rolls in about three weeks.

COLBERT, COOPER FOR 'STATE OF THE UNION'

Claudette Colbert and Gary Cooper have been set in the co-starring roles in Paramount's "State Of The Union." Studio bought the Howard-Lindsay-Russel Crouse play early this year on the basis of a $500,000 advance against 50 per cent of the net. Starting date for shooting the Broadway hit is expected to be announced shortly, since an odd condition of the sale was a proviso that the film must be released before the 1948 presidential elections.

MEN AND GIRLS IN HEAVY RUSH FOR DAILY VARIETY'S FREE SMALLPOX VACCINATION

For three hours last night they lined up in Daily Variety's office for free-of-charge vaccination against smallpox. Tonight and every night through Friday, from 6 to 9 p.m., vaccination is offered to all members of show business—employes of the film and radio industry, the stage and music — at Variety's offices at 1708 North Vine Street.

Last night scores of men and women—actors, bit players, extras, technicians, laborers, members of all unions and guilds —appeared for vaccination. A private room has been set aside for the purpose.

Anti-smallpox vaccine has been on the scarce list for sev-

ASK 25% OF PIX FOR STAGES

With studio space at more than a premium on the few independent lots around town, producers who need stage facilities are flabergasted by the latest demands for available stage space. One studio is reported to be asking a 25 per cent interest, without any coin investment for any production made on its lot.

Though no deals are reported to have been made on this basis, several producers are said to be bending in its direction, for fear that their preliminary investment in productions and releasing deal setups might be lost.

It is understood that Andrew Stone, in order to get stage space on the Roach lot for his current picture" Bachelor's Daughters," gave the studio a ten per cent interest in the film.

COOPER GETS 500G FOR PIC

Gary Cooper is the highest paid motion picture actor per production in the world, with his current deal for "Cloak and Dagger" which United States pictures is making for Warners release. Cooper is guaranteed $500,000 for his share of the picture on the basis of 10 per cent of the world gross it will do.

The film is reported to be budgeted at $2,250,000, without studio overhead charge. Fritz Lang, who is directing it, is getting a reported $150,000 for his chores. Film which Milton Sperling and Joe Bernhard, who head United States pictures, are making, is being financed by Warners, with the producers said to be in on percentage of the profits.

WB WANTS TO END LE ROY DEAL

Harry M. Warner is not thrilled or pleased about the deal that Mervyn LeRoy has made with David Selznick to prepare at once for production "Little Women."

Warner felt that LeRoy, when finished with his recent picture for Jesse Lasky, would return to Warners and start his Arrowhead Production contract.

With LeRoy failing to do it, Warner is said to be prepared to demand of LeRoy the return of $35,000 the latter drew in salary from Warners studio when he was on the lot to ready "Fountainhead." This film was called off while LeRoy went over to prepare "The Robe" for production at RKO. Warner is also said to want LeRoy to cancel his Arrowhead Production contract with the studio.

BIG 5 ISSUES $494 MILLION UP IN YEAR

The common stock of the Big Five of the picture industry has soared in value $494,741,739 in a year based on the close of yesterday. This phenomenal gain, while perhaps exceeded in some scattered situations of other industries, shows the confidence with which the investing public regards the securities of the film companies.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

WIRE received yesterday from New York indicating sweeping approval of proposals of studio musicians committee by James C. Petrillo and AFM's international board. Telegram to member here stated: "Board won over completely all proposals." If true, this augurs protracted wrangle with producer representatives with whom AFM officials start negotiations today. Musicians' independent committee is seeking increased employment in studios, increase in basic wage from $5,200 annually, weekly pay, stricter policing of studios, election by working musicians of own International Studio Representative, now an AFM appointee (J. W. Gillette); and other conditions. Board has been mulling studio tunester proposals for past fortnight, following presentation by committee in person. Petrillo is definitely set to ask film lots to employ more musicians.

PARAMOUNT is doing away with the term "Exchange," as applied to its distribution offices. Company spokesman points ont that the term has long since become antiquated, outmoded and a plain misnomer. It is pointed out that when the film industry was in its babyhood the word accurately described the primitive methods by which exhibitors were able to operate their nickelodeons and dime shows. One of the major mysteries of the industry is how the term managed to survive the years. In abandoning the term "Exchange," Paramount is adopting "Branch Office," or when more convenient, "Branch," in its place. All four Paramount Division Managers are currently advising their branch and district managers of the switch in terms.

CHORUS girl shortage is acute in niteries and assorted theatres here. Within last fortnight bulletin board outside headquarters locally of American Guild of Variety Artists, live-talent union, has become sprinkled with notices from all manner of enterprises listing chorine needs. Lately AGVA has been getting hikes for line hoofers in most niteries when Basic Agreement renewals are signed and scale is now $40, $45 and $50. Latter figure is for top spots, such as Earl Carroll's, Florentine, etc. Both downtown burlesk houses, Burbank and Follies, keep notices out constantly. Florentine regularly runs calls weekly, while some of the smaller and more inconveniently located clubs can't put together a line at all.

"IT ain't gold like the Oscar, but I think I'd rather have it than an Oscar," Eddie "Archie" Gardner said in receiving the Variety award for his efforts to improve race relations. Gardner for years has been a staunch advocate of racial and religious tolerance. He takes the stand that race, color and creed should not be allowed to affect a man't career in show business. Proof that he practices what he preaches is presence of Eddie Green, Negro comedian, on the "Duffy's Tavern" program.

WB TO TRY JUVES IN LITTLE THEATRE

Series of stage productions are planned for Warners younger players to get additional experience. Staged in a small theatre on the lot which will seat about 100 persons, first of legiters will be three one-act plays and scenes from Broadway shows. Showcasing will be directed by studio directors and dialog directors. Initial series will be staged by Felix Jacovis with Sophie Rosenstein supervising the entire project.

ARCHAINBAUD WILL DIRECT HOPALONGS

George Archainbaud yesterday inked four-picture directorial deal with Hopalong Cassidy Productions, and will helm first of series which William Boyd will indie produce for United Artists release. Deal covers three-year period, with matter still to be settled which of remaining 17 pictures Archainbaud will direct. Take-off film, "Devil's Playground," rolls at General Service on May 16.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The strength of the Left in the Japanese elections may surprise some of the experts. They have been saying the Communists will elect no more than a half dozen of the 468 members of the Diet, and that the Social Democrats, composed of labor union members mostly, will be a poor third to the Liberals and Progressives. Of course the result cannot be much more than guessed at, because this will be the first time the Japanese voters will be able to vote without fear of reprisal, because no one knows what the 15 million women, balloting for the first time will do, no one can determine the effect of Japanese political immaturity and of the wide reaction against the government because of food shortages, the rationing system, the black market, the restriction of each family to obtaining so many yen a month, and so forth. There is some indication of the situation in that more than ten thousand persons took part in the demonstration against Shidehara, and that the representatives before the premier said they spoke for 70,000 people. The answer will come only with the elections tomorrow.

'ZIEGFELD FOLLIES' IS PREEMED WITH NEW PROLOGUE

"Ziegfeld Follies," hauled back by Metro for revision after pre-release showings, was preemed last night at the Egyptian theatre with heavy fanfare and with the full set of Hollywood film toppers attending.

Picture has a completely re-done prologue but aside from that and a final number by Kathryn Grayson is the same film tradeshown here and reviewed in Daily Variety last August. Even the idea for the prologue remains virtually unchanged, the revision being only in the execution. Bill Powell is depicted as the great Ziegfeld, pondering in heaven over his past triumphs and finally starting to outline the kind of show he'd do today. His sketching of ideas for a modern revue ends the prologue and introduces the "Follies" of 1946. Bits from the famous Ziegfeld shows are enacted in the prologue by puppets of Marilyn Miller, Fanny Brice, Eddie Cantor, and the line "Hour Glass Girls."

Crowd of approximately 1,000 jammed special bleachers set up on each side of the theatre entrance and across the street and lined the sidewalks adjoining. They cheered and applauded as Metro stars and other film notables left their cars and entered the theatre.

JACKSON PARK FILES NEW 600G TRUST SUIT

Chicago, April 8.—Another suit against major distributors was filed in Federal Court today by Thomas C. McConnell, attorney for the Jackson Park theatre, asking for treble damages in the amount of $600,000 and for a ruling by the court that the whole Chicago system of release is illegal and void. Forecast that such a suit would be filed was made in Variety April 3.

Supplementary complaint to the first suit, which won for the Jackson Park a total of $429,000, contains a summary of the original suit, and asks that the defendants, Paramount, Warners, RKO, Loew's, 20th-Fox and Balaban & Katz, be enjoined from the following:

1 — Licensing the exhibition of film under the Chicago system of release to any of the theatres owned by the defendants or any subsidiaries thereof which compete with the Jackson Park.

ASKS CURB ON BIDDING

2—Preventing the Jackson Park from bidding against theatres owned by the defendants or their subsidiaries for any film released in the Chicago district in a run of the Jackson Park's choosing.

3—Refusing to license the Jackson Park for the exhibition of pictures in a playing position one week ahead of B&K's Maryland theatre and day-date with Warner's Jeffrey theatre, upon payment of reasonable film rental not in excess of the average annual film rental paid by the Jeffrey during the five years prior to this suit.

4—Compelling the Jackson Park to charge minimum admission prices as a condition to the use of film under licensed contracts executed by the distributors.

DIVESTMENT ASKED

As an alternative to the third point, McConnell asks in the second part of the suit that a mandatory injunction be entered compelling B&K to divest itself of all ownership or leasehold interest in the Maryland as soon as possible. He also asks that Warners be compelled to give up ownership of the Jeffery, as an alternative to the third point.

Third part of the suit asks that all clearance contracts entered into between distribs which create clearance or priority of run of any of the defendants' theatres over the Jackson Park be declared illegal and void, and that the entire system of release known as the Chicago system be declared illegal and void.

Windup is a request that the court give the Jackson Park treble damages for damage suffered since the original suit was filed on July 27, 1942.

CITES 200G DAMAGES

McConnell charges the Jackson Park, since it instituted the suit has been damaged a further amount in excess of $200,000. Under the antitrust laws, a verdict in favor of the complainant will triple those damages—to $600,000.

"This damage has been caused by reason of loss of public patronage because of the Jackson Park's inability, brought on by monopoly and conspiracy," the complaint continues, "to license film for exhibition free of the illegal restrictions of distributors, the system of release, and in a run one week ahead of the Maryland and day-date with the Jeffrey."

Deal To Settle Three Ply Damage Suit

Washington, April 8. — Negotiations are reported underway to settle the first triple damage suit brought against the major distributors on the basis of the recent Supreme Court decision in the Jackson Park Theatre case of Chicago.

Suit was brought in the Washington Federal Court by the Linden theatre of Baltimore against Warners, Paramount, Universal, United Artists, 20th-Fox, RKO, Loew's, Columbia and a Baltimore theatre chain.

Easy To Wed

(Comedy-Color)

METRO RELEASE. Producer, Jack Cummings. Director, Edward Buzzell. Adapted by Dorothy Kingsley, from screenplay, "Libeled Lady," by Maurine Watkins, Howard Emmett Rogers, George Oppenheimer. Technicolor photography, Harry Stradling. Color direction, Natalie Kalmus, Henri Jaffe. Editor, Blanche Sewell. Sound, Douglas Shearer. Art direction, Cedric Gibbons, Hans Peters. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis, Jack Bonar. Costumes, Irene, Marion Herwood Keyes, Valles. Musical score and direction, Johnny Green. Orchestration, Ted Duncan. Musical numbers staged by Jack Donohue.

TRADESHOWN at Westwood Village Theatre, Westwood, Calif., March 28, 1946. Running time: 111 MINS.

Names of Van Johnson and Esther Williams will be the magic draw for this tinter, but Lucille Ball and Keenan Wynn are the real stars. They deliver for sock effect in what is an amusing but lightweight comedy. Film has been richly caparisoned, however, in effort to compensate for story weakness, and tuneful interludes are provided, both vocal and on organ played by Ethel Smith. It should attract as a box-office feature due to cast lineup.

"Easy to Wed" is the tale of a managing editor's frantic efforts to get a tycoon's daughter to withdraw her libel suit for two million bucks against his publisher and the paper. To do this, he calls upon a reporter he once fired, but who has a way with femmes, and even arranges for his fiancee "temporarily" to marry the guy. Purpose of this is for reporter to play up to heiress, get her into a situation paralleling the one which paper claimed she was in, then for the wife to come storming in.

This premise allows some nifty comedy, but heiress doesn't react in manner in which managing editor, played by Wynn, had figured. Esther Williams, in this role, fails to respond to advances of Johnson, as reporter, and Lucille Ball, as the fiancee who wed Johnson under protest but because she wanted to help out the man she is in love with, finds herself falling for her groom.

Both Johnson and Miss Williams do well enough with their respective roles, but parts are somewhat innocuous and meat of the film is tossed to Miss Ball and Wynn, both of whom let down all barriers and do bang-up jobs. Overshadowing even these two, however, for laughs, is a Springer Spaniel, whose antics are a revelation in animal expression when Johnson, a novice at duck hunting, takes him in the boat with him. Cecil Kellaway, as tycoon, turns in excellent performance, Ben Blue and Paul Harvey also standouts.

Direction by Edward Buzzell has been well handled, but would have benefitted by more judicious cutting. Boat scenes with Johnson and dog, despite mirthful actions of pup, particularly should be sheared, and same applies to champagne sequence with Miss Ball and Johnson. Jack Cummings gets nod for his easy handling of production chores, and Harry Stradling's color photography is notable. Cedric Gibbons and Hans Peters designed distinctive sets which Edwin B. Willis and Jack Bonar decorated tastefully, and Irene's costumes are beautiful.

FIRST APPLICATION MADE FOR THEATRE BUILDING PERMIT

New York, April 8.—Initial application for theatre construction permit was filed today with the New York regional office of the Civilian Production Administration. Application will test whether substantial expenditures on blueprints for a project costing in excess of $1,000,000 warrants "hardship" exception under the current OPA building limitation order.

Although the identity of the applicant was not revealed, understood that project calls for renovation of a Manhattan theatre and construction of an extension to the house. The application is being forwarded to Washington for final action by National Citizens Committee and the CPA. Ruling is expected within ten days.

Hellinger Offers Cain Profit Cut on Book

Offer of $100,000-$125,000 advance against a profit-sharing deal in the production has been made to James M. Cain by Producer Mark Hellinger for rights to his novel, "Past All Dishonor," soon to be published. Cain, under terms of the proposed deal, would receive a minimum of $250,000 and give him "considerable say" on casting and other details of production.

would open the situation wide for Hollywood and end all squeeze except in a few extreme situations.

New deal is being worked out as result of confabs Eric Johnston and other MPAA officials have had with toppers in Civilian Production Administration. The existing freeze order puts ceiling of $15,000 per "job," which was interpreted to mean per picture. Pressure has been on CPA to change this, ever since, since it was tying up several pictures.

THE GRAPEVINE: It's mutiny on the Santanna. Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall have sent word to Warners that they're aboard their yacht Santanna and won't come ashore until their suspension has been lifted . . . Eric Johnston's report contains an interesting sidelight on the censorship situation. In 1935, the total films approved was 1748 against 14 rejected, while last year 911 films were approved and none rejected. In 1944 there were no rejections and only one in 1943 . . . Anita Colby, Selznick's shepherdess for feminine stars, takes on another job as beauty editor of Photoplay . . . Eddie Moran was missed by his pals at the Beverly Hills Club and Romanoff's the other night. He was with his wife, previously estranged, at Chasen's, and it looked like a reconciliation . . . Before taking off for NY, Geraldine Fitzgerald denied reports she will seek a divorce from Edward Lindsay-Hogg . . . Ann Luther, one of the late Pearl White's best friends and widow of Ed Gallagher, of Gallagher & Shean, will play a role in "Perils of Pauline" at Paramount . . . Douglas Fairbanks Jr. is taking up the cudgels on behalf of more and better housing for ex-servicemen. He's hired a secretary to handle nothing but correspondence to congressmen and government officials on their plight . . . Mitch Leisen called Lillian Fontaine "a mother's mother" for her film portrayals and the fact she's the mother of Olivia de Havilland and Joan Fontaine, but she replied: "That would make me a grandmother. So just forget it."

CALL SHEET: MILT WEISS of the Metro flackery received the Soldier's Medal for heroic action yesterday. Similar medal is also being presented his brother Ted. Both, while in the Army, rescued a woman from a burning building in Long Island City, N.Y. . . . RODDY McDOWALL'S comedy portrayal in "Holiday in Mexico" is drawing raves at Metro. At the "Ziegfeld Follies" opening last night he was one of a foursome including Hazel Dawn, Farley Granger and Ann Blyth . . . GORDON DOUGLAS narrowly escaped injury from flying splinters during a gun-battle scene for "Dick Tracy," which he's directing at RKO . . . JOHN MANNING says he knows an actor who still loves his divorced wife. "He worships the ground he'd like to see her buried under," Manning adds . . . LARAINE DAY will give an Easter egg-hunt for her young son as well as the children of Robert Mitchum, Frankie Albertson, Bill Goodwin and Allan Jones . . . SAMUEL GOLDWYN has started to recruit his 1947 crop of Goldwyn Girls . . . WALTER SLEZAK is building an addition to his nursery, anticipating the birth of his second child . . . STANLEY RUBIN'S first production for Universal, "Little Miss Big," looked like a sleeper in its Huntington Park preview the other night . . . JACK DENNY, former big-name bandleader, is now peddling picture and nitery talent in the Fredericks Bros. agency.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: If there are any banquet scenes in Warners' "The Life of Will Rogers," and Will Jr. is anything like his old man, the studio had better throw a cordon around the groaning tables. For instance, in "Connecticut Yankee" at Fox, Rogers Sr. made a practice of giving away costly groceries on King Arthur's Roundtable every day before they could be collected by the propmen. His chief accomplice was Irving "Gibby" Gibbs, veteran gateman at 20th-Fox. As soon as the director called, "Okay, print that one," Rogers would start disposing of the choicer tidbits. Gibby's best haul was a 45-pound roast pig that Rogers forward-passed one day, with which Gibby ran for a touchdown before it had cooled off . . . Switcheroo: Peggy Stewart, after simpering through 100 western heroine roles at Republic, will slink through "Stagecoach to Denver" as the femme heavy . . . Beefers to the contrary, Music Corporation of America is still No. 1 with the musicians. Their union, AFM, gives it License No. 1 . . . Be-popularity sidelight: Slim Gaillard's trio rated $450 per week two months ago. For its Orpheum engagement in May the trio will get $1500 a week . . . Fred MacMurray will tap Macdonald Carey with a bottle in a scene for "Suddenly It's Spring." MacMurray says, "It's a switch on 'The Lost Weekend.' In this case the bottle hits the actor instead of the actor hitting the bottle" . . . Remember: Vaccination today will keep smallpox away. And you can get that vaccination, for free, at Variety 6 to 9 p.m. every night until Friday.—D.D.T.

BIG FIVE STOCKS UP $494 MILLION IN 12 MONTHS

able gain at 60⅝, the value of the common stock of 20th-Fox based on 2,119,709 shares outstanding was $128,508,369. This issue started the corresponding month a year ago at 27⅞ or a total valuation of $59,-086,888.

WARNERS TRIPLED

Warners' gain is the outstanding one of the group. A year ago April 1, the common stock was selling at 13⅞ and had a total valuation of $51,452,624. This figure is tripled today based on 3,701,090 shares in the hands of the public. Warners closed yesterday at 48¼, a gain of 3¾ points, which gave the issue a total valuation of $178,575,092.

Paramount's present valuation is a trifle less than three times its selling price of a year ago when its 3,-752,136 shares were held at 28⅞ each or a total $108,342,927. Yesterday the close was at 78½ and the value of the issue was $294,-542,976.

RKO more than tripled its April opening of 1945 when it sold at 8¼ and based on 2,873,053 shares was worth $23,702,687. Yesterday the close was 25 and the accumulated value $71,826,325.

LOEW'S VALUE 200 MILLION

Loew's, long the blue chip of the industry, did not show as great an increase as the others as it enjoyed a heavy selling price of 79 on the old stock last April. This was later split 3 for 1 which would give that issue on the basis of the split a price of 26 1/3 or on the new number of shares, 5,055,327, a common stock value of $136,423,-611. Yesterday the split stock was held at 39½ for a total for the common of $200,297,714.

The total value of the common stock of the Big Five companies yesterday was $873,750,476. A year ago the corresponding figure on the same number of shares was $379,-008,737. The increase for the 12 months was $494,741,739.

In all the instances above, the number of common shares last reported is used as the basis of the valuation both today and a year ago.

Other companies also have enjoyed heavy increases in stock value, Columbia, which has had two stock dividends of 2½% and one of 50%, was selling at 33⅜ on the new shares yesterday as against 22½ a year ago on the fewer shares outstanding. Universal was 47¾ yesterday against 22¾ a year ago. The new Republic stock closed the day at 17¼.

Closing prices yesterday of Paramount, Warners and RKO were new highs for 16 years.

You've heard it said time and again, "but it isn't commercial." But has it ever occurred to you why this stigma must be attached to a program of high dramatic quality or sheer musical delight? Clients and agency men have fallen into the habit of condemning a show before it has had a chance to prove itself. If it isn't down the groove of wide popular appeal or has a struggle to post a respectable rating in the first 13 weeks the odds against it surviving are slim and long. Even though the standards have been pretty well established on successful formats there is still room in radio for so-called prestige shows with high institutional value. A dramatic opus by Norman Corwin or the stylized music of Morton Gould certainly has a place in radio if for no other reason than to cater to that segment of the audience which takes its pleasure from such high-planed entertainment. Sponsors with an institutional massage and not immediately concerned with movement of merchandise will be performing a public service by lending their name to such prestige programs even though the onus of non-commercial rides along.

Chain breaks . . . Kay Kyser last night cut a half hour record of "College of Musical Knowledge" for the inspection of G. Washington Hill, who has to make room next season for Frank Morgan's Pall Mall pitch . . . Larry Berns out of the oxygen tent and out of danger . . . Carl Post now flacking for Schulberg-Rubine . . . "Snow White" will be the Squibb-Academy billing for April 27 . . . Jimmy Wallington calls the sponsor's shots on the Tony Martin show . . . Y & R's publicity chief, Les Gottlieb, due April 25 to set up some summer and fall campaigns . . . Bill Bacher, as radio-wise as they come, believes "Ozzie and Harriet" will some day soon approximate the popularity of "Fibber and Molly." Right in the family groove and can't miss, sez wily Willyum.

Hitch hikes . . . Nat Wolff flew to New York yesterday on a hot lead for "Show of the Year." Emerson Foote hustled back home after a quickie, and Ernie Martin is Gotham-bound today for three months of training for his new CBS program berth. Henry Flynn moved into Martin's cubicle at KNX . . . Niles Trammell to Frisco . . . Jeri Sullivan draws the regular vocal spot with Bob Crosby for Ford . . . Three CBS programs call it quits this month: "Request Performance" April 21, "First Nighter (13) and "Powder Box Theatre" (11) . . . Bob Hope is Tony Martin's guest on the second Bourjois show . . . Films dealing with medical subjects will be dramatized in the summer slot for "This Is My Best" . . . Even the CBS censor was fooled by the word "tympanny" sandwiched in between Jane and Russell in last week's Durante-Moore script. It provoked one long howl and the bow belongs to Jack Douglas . . . BROADWAY RUNAROUND

"MY WEEK"

TO THE WEDDING RECEPTION OF ZORINA AND GODDARD LIEBERSON, in the duplex penthouse of Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz, 10 Gracie Square: Lily, the mistress of this elaborate domain is having an engagement of her own in Monte Carlo, so her lord and music master, "Kosty" solos it as the perfect host to a party, whose simplicity and dignity is in such striking contrast to another nuptial event attended by this Broadway Runaround in Hollywood last summer (aw, gwan, guess!). There wasn't even a sign of a Hymie Fink in the joint—beg pardon, I mean in any of the ten rooms, five baths and six terraces—nor any press, except yours truly, who came in the category of a friend, who has known the bride since she first arrived from London eight years ago. If she were young and lovely then, she was at her loveliest today (Oh, oh, Solly). Wearing a Travis Banton creation of misty blue, whose effectiveness was all in the flowing lines (and from the profile down, that's not bad!) she didn't mar the rich simplicity with a corsage or a single jewel, except the very narrow, gold wedding band shining on her left finger. She even discarded the Brussells ecru lace mantilla veil which she had worn earlier during the ceremony at Ted Wallenstein's home in Westport, Conn. And the proud groom, standing next to her, didn't need a Columbia recording to echo the refrain in his heart, "I Married an Angel!"

Among the well-wishers who toasted the couple with mangnums of champagne and wished on the wedding cake were: Lauritz and "Kleinchen" Melchior (so delighted at the prospect of being back in their Outpost hilltop next week for a whole month's holiday before checking back to Metro), Frank Sinatra (who didn't sign a single autograph!), Boris Morros (who signed Kostelanetz for "Carnegie Hall"), Efram Kurtz, Deems Taylor, Oscar Levant (who didn't insult anyone—out loud!), Arnold Moss, (Hollywood bound for his screen debut in "Bella Donna"), Constance Hope of the competitive RCA-Victor, who found no micky finn in her cocktail, Manny Sachs, Sol Hurok (who launched Zorina on her ballet career when she was Briggitta Hardwig of Norway), Ralph CBS Colin, Al Krippa, Mary Martin and Dick Halliday (who got the address mixed up and went to Grammercy Square instead of Gracie Square, and arrived just in time to leave!), Mrs. Billie Hardwig, in a blue and white print, looking like the bride's sister instead of her mother, Rise Stevens (who flew down from Boston and grabbed a doting look at her two and a half year old at the same time), and Lester Shurr, admitting that this was the only merger on which the Shurr office didn't collect 10 per cent!

After an eight-day honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Lieberson will be "at home" at the Ritz-Tower, until they find a housekeeping apartment. They're ready to swap Zorina's Ritz lease and Goddard's West 55th St. bachelor diggings for a five-room love nest. Ho hum, I know several traders who'd rather swap Zorina!

TO MIDNIGHT SUPPER WITH CHARLES BOYER AND HENRI BERNSTEIN, Cub Room: Where my high school French came in handy when these two fellow countrymen started reminiscing about the last time they saw Paris. I translated three words perfectly—Jean Pierre Aumont! Both Charles and Henri were full of admiration for the performance of Paul Douglas in "Born Yesterday." They find it tres marvellieuse that he has never appeared on the stage before, and comes through with such a skillful performance. Charles confessed that he would love to do a play on Broadway, but so far, it's a question of "cherchez la piece." After the disappointment of his last picture (magnanimously, we mention no names!) he is delighted with "Cluny Brown"—and Herr Lubitsch, your ears should have been burning at all the charming compliments he paid you. The nicest compliment he paid me was escorting me home. The doorman was so impressed, I don't think I'll have to tip him this week!

TO HILDEGARDE'S OPENING AT THE PLAZA: Hildy's back—and the Persian Room's got its greatest attraction for the fourth return engagement within a year. Hildy—with her Anna Sosenko lighting—her Jose Iturbi-ing, if Iturbi played like her—her nostalgic and gay tunes—her corny ad libs—her Wadley and Smythe roses—her handwaving and her handkerchief, may be the caricaturists' delight, but she is still one of the greatest show-women in the supper club field today. Still in harness from her Statler engagement (she only had a four days breather), she was rarin' to go—and she did for one hour and a half, while no food or liquor was served, and not even the tinkle of a glass interrupted the enthralled attention. A tribute that few other nitery performers can command! As always, Hildy came back with new material and one number, "I'm Going to See You Tonight" by the British composer, Richard Addissell, is destined to be her biggest recording when Jack Kapp gets around to Decca-ing it.

Applauding from the ringside: Faye Emerson and Elliott Roosevelt (whose favorite tune was significantly, "Why Can't They Leave Us Alone?"), Harry "Penguin Room" Sosnick, Maria Jeritza (who got a plug for her forthcoming Carnegie Hall concert), Herb Moss (keeping "kool" while waiting for Eric or Erica to arrive at Doctor's hospital), Bert Lahr (now that his Mike Todd show has been called off, he'll head for the Coast to "gong gong" again on the screen), and Leah Ray and Sonny Werblin. When Hildy presented Bert Lahr with a rose, he cracked, "I'll press this in my first edition of "Forever Amber!"

ROBINSON NAMES THREE MEN TO KEY SPOTS

Three appointments were made yesterday by Hubbell Robinson, v.p. in charge of radio at Foote, Cone & Belding to effect clearer definition of the duties of the Hollywood staff. Under the new alignment, A. L. Capstaff is in charge of all network programs originating in Hollywood; Vic Hunter heads up talent relations and program development with Jim Fonda as associate; Burt Oliver handles all business operations, contracts and communications between Hollywood and the agency's other offices, with Bud Spencer as his aide.

Radio managers outside of Hollywood are unaffected by the realignment. Continuing in their respective posts are Karl Schullinger, New York; Dave Taylor, Los Angeles; Stuart Dawson, Chicago, and Mark Buckley, San Francisco.

Ex-GI's Incorporate To Sell Package Airshows

Papers of incorporation have been filed for Command Radio Productions, Inc., organization of ex-GI's, formerly associated with Armed Forces Radio Service. Group of 19 writers, producers, directors and musical directors have taken offices at 6000 Sunset to start work on package shows. Walter Shumann, former musical director of AFRS, has been named acting chairman.

RKO Club's 'Miracle'

"Small Miracle" will be presented by RKO Radio Dramatic Club at Ebell Wilshire Theatre, on April 11, 12 and 13. Performances will be open to public.

Added 'O.S.S.' Scenes

Dumbrille For 'Nevada'

Douglas Dumbrille has been inked for the role of the villain in "Under Nevada Skies" at Republic.

MEADOWBROOK SETS XAVIER CUGAT ORK

Xavier Cugat ork was set last night for month at Meadowbrook ballroom, commencing June 7, at $6,500 weekly plus percentage. With Cugat arrival, the Culver City hoofing-hall definitely will use name band six nights weekly, scrapping policy of big-money crews over four-day week-ends and lesser-lights on other nights. Understood that Cugat, in making deal with Meadowbrook, insisted he would come in on no other policy.

OBITUARIES

KATE DE BECKER RITES

Funeral services for Kate de Becker, 87, stage actress, will be conducted at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Pierce Bros. Hollywood chapel, followed by cremation. Mrs. de Becker died Sunday at her home in Hollywood, just two weeks after the death of her daughter, Marie de Becker, who was also an actress. Mrs. de Becker came to this country in 1901 with Sir Charles Hawtrey in "A Message From Mars" and remained to appear in many plays, including "Prunella," "Crime and Punishment," "Catskill Dutch," "Bunty Pulls The Strings," "Liliom," "The Humble" and "Daughter of Heaven." Her last stage appearance was in "Love on the Dole." She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Nesta Crane, and a son, Harold de Becker.

ALFRED REEVES RITES

Funeral services for Alfred Reeves, 77, manager for Charlie Chaplin, who died Saturday night, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. in the Church of the Recessional in Forest Lawn.

WALTER REHG

Funeral services were held yesterday for Walter Rehg, 47, veteran employe of Paramount's electrical operating department. He died Friday. Interment was at Valhalla Memorial Park in Burbank.

ANNETTE LEHR

Funeral services will be held today for Annette Lehr, 24, Decca secretary, who was killed in an automobile accident Saturday afternoon. Services will be at 2 p.m. at Glasband Mortuary with interment to follow at Beth Olam cemetery. She leaves a mother and a sister.

'OUTLAW' ON THE LOOSE IS HITTING FOR $80,000

Record-breaking pace of "The Outlaw" continues at the four Music Halls, despite adverse critical comment and Catholic nix. Picture has set a new record at each house every day since teeing off last Wednesday and will approach the $80,000 gross mark on its first week. Incredible figure is being aided by extra shows to accommodate lines and charging of evening admissions all day.

With "Outlaw" business and steady take being registered by other bills, local first runs should rack up a total gross of $365,000 on the week. "Tomorrow is Forever" is sighting a very handsome $63,000 for its first week at the Pantages and Hillstreet theatres. "Tars and Spars," double-billing at the Guild, United Artists, Vogue and Wilshire closed week last night with estimated $30,500.

Third week of "Road to Utopia" at the two Paramounts is still smooth-riding and looks like socko $46,000. "Saratoga Trunk's" fifth frame at the three Warner houses is very hefty at bang-up $45,000. "Sentimental Journey" and "She Went to the Races" is coming through with good $44,500 or near for its second week at the State, Chinese and Uptown and holds for a third frame. "Sailor Takes a Wife" closed run at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz theatres last night with close to $21,700, making way for "Ziegfeld Follies," which premiered at the Egyptian last night.

'Outlaw' Plays Return Engagement in Frisco

Howard Hughes' "The Outlaw" is scheduled to open at the United Artists theatre in San Francisco following current run of "Whistle Stop." Hughes film makes its second Bay City debut either April 23 or 30. It had its world premiere there in February, 1943, as a roadshow.

Rep Signs Oat Tuneman

Foy Willing and "The Riders of the Purple Sage" western musical group signed by Republic to a term contract. Their initial chore will be in "Last Frontier Uprising," which producer Lou Gray gets under way May 18.

Vets Mardi Gras

Joe Pasternak and Kay Kyser will stage the Hollywood Mardi Gras of Stars at the Los Angeles Coliseum, May 9. Affair will be sponsored by American Veterans Committee.

Two Maxies Lifted

Maxie Rosenbloom and Max Baer have had their option picked up at New York's Club 18.

JOHNSTON PROMISES OPEN SHOP SOLUTION

Action within the week to clear up the "open shop" question was promised yesterday by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association. Johnston is understood to have asked time to consult with producers here and with William Green, AFL head, to find out just what the situation is.

At a meeting yesterday between Byron Price, MPA vice prexy, and Herbert Sorrell, president of Conference of Studio Unions, latter asked for definite answer to the question whether Johnston has any authority over labor policy in the studios. Answer will be determined in Johnston's reply on the "open shop" question later in the week.

At policy meeting of CSU last night, organization heard a report by Sorrell and agreed to his recommendation that Johnston be given a chance to clear up the matter.

Myrow, De Lange Debut In Pic Work Together

WALLACE MAY GIVE NEW LIFE TO HIS FILM DIVISION

Washington, April 8.—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace today assured Eric Johnston that he will review the proposed "demotion" of the commerce motion picture unit.

Indications are apparent that Nathan D. Golden's picture unit will retain its identity and not be dropped into a catch-all group with a lot of other non-connected products. Another likelihood is that Golden's department, which has been undermanned for the past few years, will be expanded by Wallace to give the industry the kind of service it requires.

Johnston conferred with Wallace this morning. The meeting was arranged after "Daily Variety" disclosed that both the Commerce and State Departments were planning to demote their commercial picture sections. Negotiations are going on currently with the State Department which has promised that it will protect the status of commercial motion pictures under George Canty.

Songpluggers Coast Rep Resigns As Secretary

FOUR BOOKS FOR PIX FROM 20TH STORY SUBSIDY PLAN

Two best sellers, one biography acclaimed for its importance and a total of four books purchased for movie production have come up from the 20th-Fox fellowship plan for writers, it was announced yesterday by Bertram Bloch, eastern story editor. Company has subsidized 19 authors through the plan which calls for advance payments on unfinished novels.

The two subsidized best sellers are "Dragonwyck," by Anya Seton, and "Centennial Summer," by Albert Idell. Both have been filmed. Matthew Josephson's biography, "Victor Hugo," and Edward Harris Heth's novel, "Any Number Can Play" are being readied for filming.

The company dropped options on five of the 19 books when the manuscripts were completed. But four of these found publishers and one, Jo Eisinger's "The Walls Came Tumbling Down," was purchased by another motion picture company.

Total of 3,904 manuscripts have been submitted under the fellowship plan in the past four years.

Plan is being continued and information on the fellowships may be obtained by writers from the 20th-Fox story department, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

EASTER WEEK • April 21st — April 28th
IS CANCER COLLECTION WEEK

"Easter Week can Americans now

An inhuman enemy will kill 17,000,000 Americans now living unless we do something about it. It is absolutely vital that we avert this massive tragedy.

The enemy is cancer.

Cancer is a personal threat to every single one of us. There is one chance in eight that you yourself will be its victim—yes, one chance in six, if you are past 45. Many you know and love will develop this dread disease and, unless helped in time, die of it.

Our Vital Hope

At present three people die every 10 minutes of cancer. Did you know that one of these three can be saved? When detected early enough, and treated effectively, at least 30 to 50% of cancer cases CAN BE CURED. That is a wonderful message of hope.

To save those who now die needlessly, and to increase the number who can be saved, we must do these three vital things:

1. Spread knowledge everywhere of the danger signals of cancer and urge people to consult a doctor in time to be saved.

2. Provide far more and much better hospital facilities for prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cancer.

3. Expand widely the scientific research attack which will lead to more effective treatment and possibly even the elimination of cancer.

We must organize to do these three things as thoroughly and effectively as scientists were organized to solve the problem of the atomic bomb. The American Cancer Society has developed a program to do this.

How Money Will Be Spent

40% will be spent nationally on a great coordinated program of research under the guidance of The National Research Council, the nation's foremost scientific advisory body which developed the atomic bomb, and for educational and service programs to supplement those of the states.

60% of the money collected in each state will be retained within that state for preventive education, and to assist in providing you and your neighbors with more and better hospital facilities in order to save thousands from death by cancer, such as:

Examination centers where you can go to make sure you are free of cancer.

Modern X-ray equipment and more radium.

More hospital provision for cancer patients, many of whom cannot now be accommodated for long term treatment.

Education of the public as to cancer's danger signals and necessity of early diagnosis and treatment.

Visiting nurse service for cancer patients.

MOSS HERE TO LINE UP TOPS FOR NY LEGIT 'WORLD'

Paul Moss, who was entertainment officer for the U.S. Navy at San Francisco for four years, until his recent discharge, is here from New York to line up a director and leads for his initial Broadway production, "The Whole World Over," a comedy by Konstantine Siminov, which is the latter's first play since the beginning of the war.

Moss is now negotiating with both Elliott Nugent and Elia Kazen, for one or the other to direct the play. Talks are also on to have Michael Chekov play the male lead. Moss also is still on the lookout for the femme lead here.

The play is set to go into rehearals in New York in September. Siminov is the author of the best seller, "Days and Nights," which the Russian Government filmed.

PETRILLO LAUNCHES COUNTERATTACK ON LEA MEASURE

New York, April 8. — James C. Petrillo launched his counter-attack today against the Lea Bill, designed to curb the AFM boss and his union, by telegraphing all major agencies a warning against signing new contracts or renewing ones without AFM approval. Soloists as well as bands were included in Petrillo's ukase.

In the recording field, Petrillo advised transcription firms and disc manufacturers of new contract demands in the offing. Columbia Records was warned that an increase for individual musicians will be asked soon, and Muzak, a transcription outfit, was notified that the current contract is subject to renegotiation.

Meanwhile, Petrillo, 30 members of his executive board and 30 members of the National Association of Broadcasters agreed to form a joint advisory committee to iron out current problems.

PETRILLO ASKS $7,500,000 MORE PIC COIN

New York, April 9.—James C. Petrillo and his executive board today laid a staggering set of demands before the picture producers' reps as negotiations commenced for new studio musicians' contract proposed to extend to Labor Day, 1948. The American Federation of Musicians is expected to meet tough opposition in getting agreement to demands which would increase film production costs by an estimated $7,500,000 yearly.

METRO DEAL GIVES SINATRA $1,500,000 FOR FIVE YEARS

New York, April 9. — Frank Sinatra's new contract with Metro calls for $1,500,000 guarantee over a five-year period regardless whether or not he makes pictures. This agreement, which has been brewing eight months, is still not actually signed but the terms have been set, retroactive as of Jan. 1, 1946.

Under the deal, Sinatra is guaranteed $300,000 a year for two films annually, with salary paid singer if for some reason pictures are not produced. Further, he is permitted one film yearly for RKO, with latter studio getting first preference on Sinatra's services.

Other allowances are 16 radio guest shots annually and scores from pictures in which he appears will alternately be published by Metro's Robbins-Feist-Miller combine and singer's own publishing firm, Barton Music.

The singer will return to Coast over weekend.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

CINEMA Century Productions, which will picturize radio serial, "One Man's Family," is calling in services of Gallup and Elmer Roper surveys, as well as Kiplinger analytical research, for purpose of determining exact status quo of Barbour household members—characters in program—in their daily life, at time film will be released in March 1947. Abe Silk, who heads company, wants to know what his characters will eat, wear, use and do when feature is ready to be shown public. Object of survey is to present an up-to-the-minute picture of a typical, middle-class American family's life, and to do this goal of survey will be such things as finding out whether butter or some other item of foodstuff still is missing from family board, have returned servicemen in household been able to buy white shirts, is there a servant problem.

PRESIDENT Truman's secretary, Bill Hassett, has been pretty shrewd in replying to the numerous music publishers who for months have been deluging the White House with sheet copies of their recent releases, offering them for Mr. One's perusal and hoping with averted eyes and crossed fingers that they can eke one little slice of publicity out of some recognition forthcoming. None has come. Hassett, well aware that the pubs and songscribblers are trying to cash in on fact the president pounds piano for amusement, politely answers each gift with dignified note of thanking donor for "sending the copy of the song," but refrains from mentioning any titles. In brief, there's nothing that can be kneaded up into publicity pap from the White House thank-yous.

UNITED Artists execs, still a bit jittery from two surprise hits in one month, are now organizing to rush the British-made "Henry V" into general release as soon as possible. The UA boys were jolted at the un-anticipated box office furore that greeted "The Outlaw" but they didn't imagine for a moment that Shakespeare could get as hot with the film audiences as Billy the Kid. They stuck in the small-capacity Esquire in Boston to open before a hand-piked audience of high-brows, only to get rave notices and to find that everybody wanted to see it. Pic will be tradeshown here a week from Friday. Well, if United Artists wants to check back, it isn't the first time Shakespeare has packed a house.

WILLIAM Boyd will go for more straight story and less helter-skelter action in his forthcoming series of "Hopalong Cassidy" westerns, at same time maintaining sufficient pitch of excitement to keep cash-customers satisfied. Star, who also will produce, with Lewis Rachmil handling actual production chores, intends to get away from type of yarn in which there are so many characters that audience is in constant state of confusion, and each script will be fine-tooth combed to delete any characters who are not essential to story. As result, he is narrowing cast down to a minimum, with greater accent on story values and greater attention to scenic backgrounds.

JACK Guthrie is only known show-business figure who has reenlisted in Army to date in grade of private. He went back to Fort Lewis, Wash., yesterday to serve one-year hitch. One of top hillbilly howlers on Capitol Records' long list, Guthrie went overseas in uniform last June and late in autumn signed for a flat 12 months so he could get home from Okinawa for three-month furlough. During latter respite he cut a batch of discs for Capitol, which has enough of his warbling on shelf now to spread out for release during his added tenure in uniform.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The United Nations security council session should have another one of those more exciting programs today, after the routine re-entrance business for Gromyko yesterday. Since the United States, Iran and Britain will continue to insist the Iran issue remain on the books until May 5, the date when the Russian troops are scheduled to complete their evacuation of Iran, a verbal contest of diplomacy and persuasion is assured; the Russians will ask that the case be dropped from the agenda as no longer a "threat to peace and security." There is much to be said for each position, and there will be. The Poles' introduction of the Spanish question also will lead to debate, with the Soviet, France, Poland and Mexico for breaking relations with Franco, the United States and Britain opposed, and the decision thus resting on which way Brazil, Australia, China and Egypt are persuaded.

AFL MOVES TO HALT VETS MARCH ON STUDIOS FOR JOBS

Move to halt hundreds of applications for unavailable studio jobs has been launched by the AFL Veterans' Employment & Rehabilitation Service. Organized labor group has asked all employment counsellors to stop referring veterans to studio unions, guilds or directly to studios until further notice.

Considerable criticism has been aimed at studio unions and guilds by veterans and others who have failed to obtain studio employment. Veterans Employment & Rehabilitation Service figure that unwarranted criticism can be stopped with cooperation of employment counsellors if vets are no longer referred to an over-crowded labor field.

Meeting at the Hollywood Veterans' Center is scheduled for tonight to discuss the situation and seek a solution. One suggestion, from Roy Brewer, IATSE's Hollywood representative, calls for all union groups to cooperate in issuing a detailed, factual pamphlet covering the Hollywood studio employment situation in all phases.

Nunnally Johnson Due In From Mother's Funeral

Nunnally Johnson, producer-writer, is due back at his desk at International tomorrow after more than two months at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Jonnie Pearl Johnson, 68, who died in Columbus, Ga., last Monday. Funeral was held yesterday. Johnson's picture, "The Dark Mirror," was completed at International during his absence.

Robbins Republishes Youmans' Favorite

New York, April 9.—Jack Robbins will republish his favorite Vincent Youmans' tune, "More than You Know," as a tribute to late composer who died last week. Song is being reissued strictly as a tribute rather than a revival. Other publishers and American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers are also planning tributes.

'Mystery' Leads Set

Pamela Blake and Julie Gibson have been signed by Columbia for the femme leads in "The Blue Diamond Mystery." 15-chapter serial.

Night Club Review

Although "Laughs Only" opened with less haphazard qualities than usually marks the Slapsy Maxie nitery shows, it also had less belly laughs. Save only for Bert Wheeler's salesmanship of good old gags and the sock showmanship of Johnny and George, a sepia songster duo, "Laughs Only" is pretty much dull routine. Jackie Gleason's one smash scene, "Last Weekend," in which he did a juve version of the dipso delinquent, was good for plenty of first night laughter as was Wheeler's weepy monologue of "Frivolous Sal."

Grace and Nicco, terpair, got some laughs and a call for encores, but there the show ceases to please.

Stan Myers' orchestra did a solid job of playing for the dancing and turned in a polished performance backing the show with underscoring and song cues.

PRICE DENIES PRODUCERS WORK FOR OPEN SHOP

Conference of Studio Unions' claims that producers are advocating "open shop" in the studios was denied yesterday by Byron Price, vice prexy of Motion Picture Association of America. In a general statement made to help clarify the asserted misunderstanding that came up last week at a brief meeting between CSU representatives and the producers labor committee, Price said:

"Reports that the major motion picture studios are proposing or intend to propose an open shop labor policy are without foundation in fact.

"The major studios have no such policy and contemplate no such policy.

"They are now negotiating with a large number of labor organizations, and those negotiations are based on recognition of the established industry policy of a union shop or a closed shop for craft unions.

"We expect to continue negotiations on that basis.

"In a few instances, particularly where creative talent is involved, the studios are unable to grant a closed shop until present conditions involving jurisdictional disputes and other special situations are clarified. It is hoped that these special situations may clear themselves up shortly."

RKO PLANS IMPORT OF THEATRE MGRS.

New York, April 9.—Walkout of theatre managers will be met with importation of supervisors from Boston and Chicago to replace them, according to RKO. Chain threatens move following decision of RKO managers union to set up picket lines in front of 41 houses in question.

Union planned starting picketing Monday (8). Action was deferred until Thursday. Meanwhile, managers and assistants, though staying on job during hours, have taken to picketing during off hours. Signs they carry ask that public stay out of RKO houses. Placards are designed to embarrass chain into accepting ruling.

Major Distribs Eye NY Winter Garden

New York, April 9.—A number of major United States distributors have indicated interest in the Winter Garden following persistent reports that Rank is bowing out of his deal with the theatre when his current contract expires on October 1. Those who have contacted Shuberts, who own the former legiter, have been told the Rank organization has a verbal option for one-year renewal. Rank, who leased the house via United Artists, is paying $1000 a day rental.

Showcase 'Crowd'

"Two's a Crowd," three-act play by John Murray and Ben Freedman, writers for the Red Skelton and Bob Crosby air shows, will be given showcasing at the Pasadena Playhouse Workshop April 23-27. Play deals with divorced couple having to live under the same roof due to housing shortages.

NAME MERCEY GOVT. CONTACT IN H'WOOD

Washington, April 9.—Arch Mercey, former head of the OWI domestic motion picture bureau, will be the government's new peacetime liaison man to Hollywood. Announcement of his appointment is expected within a week or 10 days.

He will join John Snyder's office of war mobilization and reconversion as motion picture consultant. Mercey's new unit will have no funds for production and will not attempt production. Mercey will take over the post formerly held by Lowell Mellett as head of the OWI bureau.

Macfadden Appointed Charles Chaplin Mgr.

John J. Macfadden has joined Charles Chaplin studios as general manager, replacing Alfred Reeves, who died Sunday. Macfadden formerly was associated with Winfield Sheehan and Phil Ryan. John Beckman, formerly of Warners, has taken post of art director on the Chaplin lot.

Korda Buys London's Rialto Theatre

London, April 9. — Alexander Korda's latest step towards formation of a film empire is the reported purchase of the Rialto theatre in London, his initial move in the exhibition field. He has already arranged for production and distribution tie-ups.

Cinema Century Moves

Cinema Century Productions, which will produce "One Man's Family," has moved from the California studios to 6530 Sunset Boulevard (Stage 8).

UN GOES HORSE 'N' BUGGY WITH NO TELE COVERAGE

New York, April 9.—The United Nations is remaining without television coverage so far, as the IATSE-IBEW jurisdictional fight continues with both unions seeking the upper hand in future video operations. UN ruled yesterday that no more video news films shall be shot until the squabble is settled.

The latest wrinkle is a letter of protest sent Frank Begley, chief UN security officer, by Frank White, CBS veepee over labor relations. The letter is to the effect that UN is discriminating against CBS, only broadcaster employing IBEW cameramen. Begley is reported ignoring the letter on the grounds that it is unfair and that UN is powerless to take sides. UN officials are reportedly puzzled over CBS's concern to furnish 3000 to 4000 viewers with films, when web has held radio coverage of UN down to minimum.

Film Review

The Gay Cavalier

(Western with Songs)

CAST—Gilbert Roland, Martin Garralaga, Nacho Galindo, Ramsay Ames, Helen Gerald, Drew Allen, Tristram Coffin, Iris Flores, Gabriel Peralta, Pierre Andre, Iris Bocignon, John Merton.

REVIEWED at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, April 9, 1946. Running time: 64 MINS.

"The Gay Cavalier" introduces Gilbert Roland as a new Cisco Kid in this long-lived film series. It has the stuff to sustain the series, due principally to Roland's excellent interpretation of the flamboyant early-California Robin Hood and the work of Ramsay Ames as the femme lead. They make a strong team that gives a lift to the otherwise formula material depicting typical western skullduggery. Production by Scott R. Dunlap and William Nigh's direction fit the required pattern for release intentions.

The Cisco Kid is still his old, romantic self, chasing the girls and righting wrongs to the accompaniment of songs and high action. This time he is called upon to save a girl from an un-welcome marriage and rescue a large cache of silver. The baddies had seized the treasure and planted the blame on the Kid, but after he gets through with his heroics everything is put in its proper order and Cisco rides off to plot his next in the series.

Script by Charles Belden spots in some good action sequences, particularly a sword fight between Roland and Tristram Coffin, the villain. Dialog in scenes between Roland and the various femmes whom he courts is also more adult than the usual western patter. In addition to the femme lead, Ramsay Ames cleffed two of the five tunes used in the score, "One Kiss" and the title number. Monogram has lifted one number, "Ride, Amigos, Ride," from one of its earlier films, "Rose of the Rio Grande," for use as musical backing to the Cisco raids with his caballeros. Other two songs are typical Mexican numbers.

Comedy interest goes to Nacho Galindo as Cisco's fat sidekick. Martin Garralaga, Helen Gerald, Drew Allen, Iris Flores, John Merton and others do okay by their assignments.

Harry Neumann's photography is good, as are musical direction by Edward Kay and other technical contributions.

SHOW GALS CAN'T SAY NO TO COPS AND WORK 7 DAYS

Cops seldom take "no" for an answer, but they did yesterday when local office of American Guild of Variety Artists nixed, after several hours' debate, request that chorus girls work seven-day weeks during fortnight Police Benefit Show which opens at Shrine Auditorium on May 22. Chorines, according to national rule of union, are limited to six-day stanzas, regardless of extra remuneration offered.

Consequently, Frederic Kramer, who is producing the show for Los Angeles Police Dept., has converted his line of 24 girls into status of "principals," at $85 per week figure. In such a category the hoofers can work seven days. As ensemble performers they would have received $50 tops for six days.

Show will be nine acts, in addition to line and stellar film "guests." Talent set so far includes pic player Dick Lane, who will emcee, Canadian baritone Arthur Ross-Jones and Mario Silva ork.

Metro News Shown in European Nations

George Muchnic, Loew's veepee in charge of Metro News, wired yesterday that the International Newsreel for distribution outside of the U.S. and Canada had been issued in Europe in Switzerland, Sweden, Italy, Finland and Belgium. Service starts this week in Greece and Bulgaria. Muchnic also announced appointment of Howard Heller as his assistant to maintain liaison with News of the Day in New York.

Mercury Will Wax Here Next Week

Mercury Records, pop-plattery headquartered in Chicago, will do its first local waxing next week at two-day session, which will be presided over by Jimmy Harding, Mercury's musical director. Carded for recording are Buddy Rich ork, Red Nichols crew, and Milton DeLugg, Artie Auerbach and Pauline Byrnes' vocal combo.

'Claude's Wife' In

"Claude's Wife" at Universal has been canned by Director Lewis Collins. Picture is first feature turned out by Morgan Cox, executive producer in charge of Universal serial production.

Fulton For 'Pete'

Joan Fulton was set yesterday as femme lead in "Cuban Pete" at Universal. Others signed were Fred Brady and Jacqueline deWit.

• JUST FOR VARIETY •

THE GRAPEVINE: "Till the Icicles Roll By" they're calling it at Metro, such is the frigidity on the set of Arthur Freed's "Till the Clouds Roll By." Three crooners, Frank Sinatra, Johnny Johnston and Tony Martin, are embroidering the soundtrack with their most dulcet tones, but out of the mike's range they are more likely to snarl . . . Ginger Rogers, Dorothy Lamour and Ingrid Bergman have been observed conferring with Charles Einfeld at Enterprise in relays. Charles smiles and says they are all "sightseeing." Yup, sightseeing. Anyway, Miss Rogers was deep in consultation yesterday with Wolfgang Reinhardt, who recently joined Einfeld as producer . . . Martha Scott arrives June 3 to join her husband, Carleton Alsop, for the summer. "Voice of the Turtle," in which she has been starring, closes June 1 on Broadway . . . Ann Pitts, teen-aged daughter of ZaSu Pitts, visited her mother on the set of "Life with Father" yesterday at Warners. Very lucky visit—she'll be tested by the studio . . . Gene Fowler's autobiography, "A Solo in Tom Toms," is on the bookstands today. Meanwhile, he and Edward H. Griffith have put in their bid for Technicolor treatment on their production of "Rip Van Winkle"—which is NOT Fowler's autobiog . . . "Mutiny on the Santanna" may be ended very soon. Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall, sitting out their Warners suspension on their yacht, have the dinghy poised for shore. Bogart is expected to confer with Jack L. Warner this week on the matter of lifting their suspension for refusal of roles in "Stallion Road."

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Hollywood hostesses will be doing a quick turnabout in hospitality to a young man-about-town, whose legends of money and connections they took with a bushel of salt and tabbed as a phony. Blushing and stammering, they'll soon learn he's the bosom friend of Hollywood's next big-name visitor, who will be his house-guest—and eagerly sought by the hostesses . . . For shame, men, a mere slip of a girl won the publicists' gin rummy championship. Claire Warns, assistant to radio producer Bill Lawrence, took Jack Cooper, the other finalist in a field of 31, over the high hurdles . . . Bert Wheeler and Jackie Gleason HAD to be good at their Slapsy Maxie's opening Monday night. In their audience were such rival clowns as Ken Murray, Charley Foy, Ben Blue, George Burns and Gracie Allen and Billy House. Bonnie Baker and Holly Morse tossed a party there . . . Life magazine's spread on juvenile delinquency has an interesting picture. Shows a hand-made gun, fashioned from a piece of wood, a short length of pipe and a rubber band. And the constant howl is that motion pictures contribute to delinquency! . . . Dolts over colts: The crew on Warners' "Cheyenne" named a nine-week-old colt Dennis in honor of Dennis Morgan. Yesterday, after an embarrassed conference with the colt's owner, they re-named it Jane for Jane Wyman.

CALL SHEET: MONTE BLUE begins his 36th year in pictures this week, working in "The Sentence" at Warners. He started out at the Lubin studios in Pasadena in 1911 . . . FRANK RYAN tells the story about a meek little man who sat patiently in the outer office of a big vaude booker. The great man tried to brush him off but the little man finally grabbed him by the lapels and insisted they go to a nearby theatre where the booker could catch his act. The agent wearily agreed. In the theatre, the little man suddenly soared to the proscenium and gracefully flew around the auditorium. He swooped down and landed before the agent. "How's that—do you like my act?" "Harumph," growled the agent, "is that all you can do? Bird imitations," . . . MILADA MLADOVA and GEORGE ZORITCH, former Ballet Russe stars, will dance at the Warner Club party at Earl Carroll's April 25 . . . JERRY FAIRBANKS is focussing his cameras on Bob Burns for an "Unusual Occupation" short. Subject is Burns' machine shop where he turns out toys and gadgets . . . SIGNE HASSO held a class reunion yesterday on the set of "Where There's Life" with Frank Sundstrom and Karin Ekelund, with whom she attended classes at the Royal Theatre of Sweden. Sundstrom arrived for a Selznick contract, Miss Ekelund is on her way back to Sweden from Mexico.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Time magazine's not-too-choice item about femme stars who resort to falsies hasn't had the expected repercussions. When Greer Garson was accused of having inadequate underpinnings, she repudiated the canard by posing for the cameras. But the current victims of the phobia for intimate investigation haven't raised a squawk, according to their publicity departments . . . Armando's cocktail party for the N. Peter Rathvons at the Beverly Hills hotel drew a topflight guest-list, including the Mervyn Leroys, Carlton Alsop, Don Loper, Dutch Kindelberger, Rodney Burla, Frank Capra, Maj. Gen. Ralph Cousins, Robert E. Gross, Paul McNamara, Joan Fontaine and William Dozier, Hoagy Carmichael and the Jules Steins . . . Walter Lantz is going back to the soil—turning out a film on wheat for the John Deere Co., farm implement manufacturers . . . Patricia Stevens, who operates model agencies in Chicago, Milwaukee, Indianapolis and Detroit, is opening a branch here . . . Ralph Staub is planning a "Screen Snapshots" reel on "Famous Movie Mothers," which will include shots of Rita Hayworth, Loretta Young, Joan Bennett, Hedy Lamarr, Betty Grable, Alice Faye and their mothers . . . Gordon Wiles, associate producer on Loew-Lewin's "Bel Ami," is offering a $50 reward for the Oscar, which he won for art direction in 1932, stolen from his desk the other day . . . John Manning claims the NY Automats have a new machine installed—you put a pat of butter in a slot and out comes a five-dollar bill . . . Remember: vaccination today will keep smallpox away. And you can be vaccinated, for free, at Daily Variety from 6 to 9 p.m. this week.——D.D.T.

WALLACE WILL KEEP HIS FILM UNIT IN PRESENT STATUS

Washington, April 9.—Orders that the motion picture unit headed by Nathan D. Golden is not to be "demoted" in commerce department reorganization plans as originally intended are understood to have been given by Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace.

Wallace is now conferring with department officials on methods of giving the motion picture industry proper recognition in commerce. He has decided that whether the unit remains where it is, or goes into the general products division, it will maintain its autonomy and probably be enlarged in scope and personnel.

TEXACO LEADS HOT RACE FOR CROSBY SHOW NEXT YEAR

New York, April 9.—Bing Crosby is expected to consummate next year's radio plans within ten days, with Texaco currently the hottest bidder. Ed Noble is still in the running, however, with the American Broadcasting Company stock deal.

This reportedly offers Crosby 10,000 shares of ABC stock at $15 per share, with declared dividend assuring him of two-for-one split, or the chance to sell his 10,000 shares and retain his original 10,000.

This device, which would net him a fast $150,000, is said to be under scrutiny of Crosby's legal advisers as to such a deal's legality.

Noah Beery, Jr., Gets Bulk of Dad's Estate

Signed three days before his death last week, will of Noah Beery, filed in Superior Court here yesterday, makes no mention of his widow, Mrs. Marguerite Beery, from whom he had long lived apart. His son, Noah Beery, Jr., was named executor and to him was bequeathed residue of estate, after deceased's brother, William C. Beery, and secretary, Mrs. Mary C. Blodgett, each were given $5,000.

working the Agfa film factory at Wolfen at high speed, turning out the stock. Wolfen is in Soviet zone of occupation.

The report, published by the U.S. Department of Commerce, says that the Wolfen plant turned out an average of 650,000 feet of negative, and 3,300,000 feet of positive monthly during the latter months of the war, whereas the Russians are now getting production to the tune of 15,000,000 feet monthly.

Indication is that the Russians must be using Agfacolor on a large scale in their own commercial productions. Recent reports issued by the Soviet Embassy here have been to the effect that the Russians have a lot of color pix in production. But there has been no hint of what process was used.

WHAT REPORT SHOWS

The technical report by Lt. Col. Richard H. Ranger, Army Signal Corps, Nathan D. Golden, chief of the Commerce Department Motion Picture Unit; Charles H. Carleton, of Hollywood Color Film Corp.; H. Werner Sachs, Remington Rand; and Harold C. Harsh, Ansco, brings out the following:

1. The Germans used a single full color negative similar to Kodachrome and found they could make as many as 500 prints from a single negative although the average release required only 100 to 120.

2. Use of the Agfa process for 35m commercial films of feature length was undertaken during the war under orders of the German Propaganda Ministry because outside sources of supply of stock were cut off. Between 1940 and 1945 the Nazis turned out 13 features and about 50 shorts by the Agfa negative-positive method. It was also found suitable for newsreels and was used in one instance to make a reel of combat pictures on the Russian front.

EASILY HANDLED

3. Chief advantage of the method appears to be that studio and laboratory equipment normally used for black and white is easily converted to handle the color. This, incidentally, makes it particularly suitable for newsreel work.

4. Average feature production in color ran 8000-9000 feet and cost something over $800,000 for production. Average of 240,000 feet of negative per feature picture used.

5. Manufacturing cost of the negative stock per foot was 3½ cents and it was sold for 11 cents, with another 7 cents for processing. Print stock cost 3½ cents per foot; it was sold for 5 cents; with the processing charge two and one-tenth cents per foot.

The report prints in full the latest German formulas for the dyes laid on the celluloid and for sound track. In addition, full details are given on exposure techniques and processing procedure.

Also included are a list of the latest German technical works on the production of color film which the Department of Commerce hopes to make available in this country.

Now that C. E. Hooper has come and gone, we presume there won't be too much skull static over the skid marks left by Screen Guild Players in the April 15 release. Clockers caught the M. P. Relief show at an even 19, which is 4.3 on the underside of the last figure. Just ahead of SGP, the doughty Luxers were checked on a .3 rise for a posting of 22. Reduced to listeners, it means that roughly 4,500,000 dialers pulled away from Columbia way stations after Bell Keighley closed the Radio Theatre for the night. We're sure that "Hoop" or his Hollywood manager, Ruth Arnold, can give a comforting explanation of why the tide rose and fell as it did.

The Monday list otherwise bobbed up and down with unexciting fluctuations. "Cavalcade" took 9.9, off .5; Hedda Hopper 4.6, up .1; Lum and Abner 3.4, off .7; Joan Davis and "Sherlock Holmes" were unavailable.

CBS HAS COLOR TELEVISION SET AND READY FOR START

Color television is on the beam and ready to go. Its full development has been proven by field tests and CBS is prepared to give it full play. This was the answer to disputed claims expressed last night by Dr. Peter Goldmark, director of research and development for the network, at a joint meeting of Institute of Radio Engineers and Motion Picture Engineers at KNX.

Transmitter undergoing extensive tests in the east will be shipped here in the fall and set up on the net's video site on Mt. Wilson. If the chain's experimental license is approved by Federal Communications Commission, southern California will have tinted video by end of the year, Goldmark said. Commercial color tele by fall in the east is contingent on the FCC's approval of Columbia's petition.

While admitting that color television may retard the progress of the new art by several months, Goldmark declared that a survey revealed set users would be content to wait a year or more in order to buy color sets. And that they'd be willing to pay up to 40 per cent more than for black-and-white although the differential is expected to be around 15 per cent.

Color is easier to watch than black-and-white, declared Goldmark, and the immediate change-over to pastel images would also have its economic advantages. Black-and-white sets would become obsolete once color is universally accepted, he added, and that would impose a financial burden on the buying public.

Goldmark sketched CBS progress in color tele for the engineers and gave an account of the last two months of telecasts in New York. He used slides and pictures to illustrate the step by step development of visual transmission in natural colors.

Runyons, AFRS Prod, Due For Discharge

Norman Runyons, producer of "Male Call" and "Concert Hall" for Armed Forces Radio Service, due for discharge from Navy in three weeks. He will immediately assume duties as producer with George Hoskin Associates Agency. He will be associated with production of new show, "Chaplains Courageous," being prepped by agency for an interested sponsor as network program. United States Christian Commission, association of ministers and chaplains, is fathering non-religious, dramatic program idea.

King Cole Going To Orpheum After Troc

King Cole Trio closes its record run at Trocadero on May 6 and moves downtown for week's stand at Orpheum theatre, opening May 7. Successful nitery deal, where they took 80 per cent of net as their bit, will be followed by guarantee and percentage at Orpheum. Closing theatre date on May 13, Trio planes to New York to go on Kraft Music Hall program for summer, starting May 16.

George Burns and Gracie Allen yesterday were added to the list of entertainers who will appear on the Jackson Day celebration program April 18 at the Shrine Auditorium. Henry Wallace will be the principal speaker.

DEARTH OF MATERIAL SLOWS CAPITOL DISC PLANS

Capitol probably will have to postpone its entry into the transcription business beyond July 1, as originally planned. Plenty of platters are available, and Cap expects RCA to be able to keep up with promise to have sufficient supply to cover demands on 1,500 selections announced as initial catalog. However, lack of other materials is the stopgap. Until Cap can ship orders complete premiere will likely be delayed.

Accompanying platter service will be customary steel cabinets to hold transcriptions, index files for catalog, show formats and printed matter. Both cabinets and files are delayed, so releases will probably be held up pending receipt by Cap of necessary accessories.

Rival Flacks Will Meet NLRB Topper

Members of both studio publicists groups will meet with Stewart Meecham, director of National Labor Relations Board's 21st regional office, on Friday to discuss jurisdictional dispute. Meeting is at the request of Meecham, who is seeking a way to iron out difficulties that have flacks split into two camps.

different clauses are topped by demand for 100 per cent boost in minimum wage scales to $200 weekly and employment by each major studio of not less than 90 men as against 35 to 50 men under contract which expired April 1. Also asked in a ten-hour work week. Demands believed to be considerably higher than proposals visiting studioite musicians presented to Board last month, and Board's own attempt at shooting extremely high in preparation for later retreat.

HERE ARE DEMANDS

Contractual demands include:

(1) All contracts of featured artists and orchestrators employed by producers must be submitted to AFM for approval.

(2) Recording musicians employed on minimum guarantee may be used only on production wholly owned by producer: all contractors employed by producer must first receive approval of the International Studio Rep as well as Los Angeles' Local 47.

(3) A producer must agree that all soundtrack already recorded or to be recorded will not be used for any other purpose whatsoever than to accompany film for which it originally was made.

REGISTER SOUNDTRACKS

(4) A producer must agree to register the identification of a picture and its soundtrack with AFM Studio Rep, and soundtrack or film containing pictures of union musicians performing on instruments may not be used for television; also that no part of soundtrack will be re-recorded or dubbed.

(5) If soundtrack is transferred to 16m, producer must agree to pay musicians making original track additional amount in accordance with prevailing scale covering 35m films.

(6) Musicians on call for recording or other studio work must be given 24-hour notice.

$5 AN HOUR FOR WAITING

(7) Sideline musicians are to receive $5 per hour, based on six-hour work day, with time-and-half after 6 p.m. and double-time after midnight, while not more than two minutes of recorded music may be included in any one hour.

(8) When a musician is filmed separately, he receives leader's scale, and for any spoken line an additional $25. Any musician furnishing more than one instrument or one set of clothing receives 30 per cent extra salary. In doubling on any instrument, musician receives increase of 50 per cent.

$20 AN HOUR

(9) On single sessions of three hours or less, proposed scale is: $60 a man, with overtime $20 an hour. Orchestrators on engagements of four or more weeks, who now receive $150, will get $300 travel. Payment on location jobs, now $2.25 per hour, is to be upped to $5, with double-time on Sundays, holidays and after 8 p.m. weekdays.

The producer group attending today's sit-in with AFM included Barney Balaban, Nicholas M. Schenck, Joe Vogel, W. C. Michel, Fred Meyer, Jack Cohn, Abe Schneider, Ned Depinet, J. J. O'Connor, Sam Schneider, Joseph E. McMahon and Milton Schwarzwald.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 9.—New Department of Commerce report on "The Beauty Parlor Business" reminds that lucrative biz what it owes to Hollywood. Tracing the growth of cosmetology from the early 20's when beauty care was "considered an expensive luxury," to the financial heights it has scaled since then, Commerce reports:

"Possibly the greatest influence has been the motion picture, setting fashions in hair arrangement and makeup." Looks as if "Trade follows the films" at home as well as abroad.

Justice Department is stiffening its attitude on the Scophony anti-trust matter, the invariable reaction whenever the Anti-Trust Division feels that a matter is being dragged out unduly with the defendants unwilling to sit down and thrash out a quick and reasonable consent decree.

Joseph Borkin, handling the case, indicates that Anti-Trust will ask for a trial date if no genuine development is forthcoming April 26 when the answer of the Scophony people is due. Defendants have gotten two delays so far for filing and Justice Department is prepared to oppose any request for additional time.

And in case you have been reading printed reports that the Justice Department is on tiptoe, all ready to hit with a suit against the Kalmuses in the Technicolor matter, don't get excited.

Recent Supreme Court decision in the Jackson Park Theatre case of Chicago included an angle which opened up full right for nabe houses to bid for first run screenings against mid-town showcases, if they could afford the tariff.

The industry generally has regarded this as purely academic, figuring that neighborhood theatres could not charge the freight.

Little known outside of Washington, however, is the fact that this town has a unique situation—a showcase and a neighborhood theatre playing day and date on new attractions, with both making money.

Theatres are the big, midtown Earle and the neighborhood Ambassador, both owned and operated by Warner Bros. Ambassador and Earle are currently in the third week of "Saratoga Trunk," indicating the length of time which a neighborhood house can hold a good attraction. This team play has been going on for more than 20 years.

While it will be pointed out that a major owns both theatres, there is no reason why it wouldn't work if John Jones, instead of the Warners, owned the Ambassador. And it should be mentioned that the nabe has lower ticket prices than the Earle.

Building freeze considered a blessing in disguise to D.C. exhibitors. Out of towners have been flocking here lately looking for theatre sites. Eventually the saturation point would be passed and all would suffer . . . The freeze, incidentally, caused the shelving of four houses about to be started, but three others are under the line and building.

OBITUARIES

MARY ARNOLD LEWISOHN

Mary Arnold Lewisohn, former wife of Ludwig Lewisohn, died in New York Monday. She was a playwright, poet and drama critic, writing under the name of Bosworth Crocker.

ELEANOR MAE PENNER

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday for Eleanor Mae Penner, 37, widow of Joe Penner, radio and screen comedian who died several years ago. Mrs. Penner was stricken suddenly Monday and died. Services will be held at Gates and Kingsley Mortuary with interment to follow at Forest Lawn.

JOE MACK

Joe Mack, 68, vaudeville comedian and screenplayer, died Monday. He had toured vaudeville for years, first in team of Keagan and Mack then later with Eva Fay. He came to Hollywood about 20 years ago and went into pictures, playing bit parts. He is survived by his widow. Funeral services will be held at Forest Lawn.

IN APPRECIATION

For the great interest shown by my many Hollywood Friends (especially those in the show field) in my orchestra—known in the East and Mid-West as the "Sweetest Band In The Land," I'd like to say thanks, and advise I'm adding violins and will be playing "music dedicated to you" fellow Hollywoodites soon!

KFI ALLOTS $40,000 FOR NEW AD AND PROMOTION PLANS

New policy on promotion and advertising is being adopted by station KFI. NBC outlet station has, for first time, outlined its plans for entire year in advance and set a budget of $40,000 to cover costs of plug parade.

All media will be used under new arrangement, but special emphasis is being laid on outdoor poster plugging. In line with billboarding, KFI is working a deal with NBC for acquisition of space on NBC property for a giant board. Network owns all property extending north to Selma Avenue from its building site at Sunset and Vine. Special revolving type of billboard is planned to permit plugging of series of programs, rather than one at a time.

Gene Krupa Closes At Meadowbrook Saturday

Gene Krupa closes at Meadowbrook ballroom Saturday, management having released ork yesterday from contract to end stand on Sunday. This, at Krupa's request, permits band to fly east for commitments there. King Guion ork, which has been playing off-nights at the ballroom, will sub for the drummer-boy's aggregation at windup session. Meadowbrook, commencing next week, will be open on Thursdays-through-Sundays only.

LOU LEVY BUYS SITE FOR LEEDS-AMRUSS NEW BUILDING

Lou Levy, prexy of Leeds Music, Amruss and 8-to-the-Bar, Inc., latter holding company of Andrews Sisters interests, has purchased new Highland Avenue site to house Leeds-Amruss entire operation. Site, containing 5,000 square feet, is directly across avenue from Hollywood High school. Happy Goday, recently named Leeds veepee and now in New York, treks west next week to assist Levy.

In addition to mechanical operation of music companies, Amruss will install a complete rental library, where scores of classics now controlled by international agreement, may be seen by musicians, conductors, etc. Shipping and other facets will be handled from new Coast building, which is patterned after New York setup. Considerable saving in freight, etc., is anticipated via Coast building handling shipments throughout west and in foreign countries directly from here. Offices for Peter Maurice Co., Ltd., London partner of Leeds, will also be maintained at new location.

Andrews Sisters interests will continue to be handled from Sunset Strip office, Levy's headquarters. There all radio, film, legit and other matters will clear. Vine street office, now operated exclusively for Leeds, will continue to be operated as focal point for contacting radio industry.

Mrs. Strotz Inherits Income of 750G

Mrs. Helen Strotz, wife of Sid Strotz, NBC veepee, has been left the income from approximately $750,000 share in the estate left by her late father, Thomas M. Howell, of Chicago, who died last May, according to an inheritance tax return filed yesterday in Chicago.

Golden Elects Officers

Joseph Blumenfeld, San Francisco theatre circuit chief, has been elected president of Golden Gate Pictures, Inc. Robert L. Lippert, another exhibitor, has been named veepee and William B. David will be secretary and treasurer.

'Outlaw' Loot

First week of "The Outlaw" in the four Music Hall theatres finished with a record-smashing $76,200. Film went into its second week yesterday with indications day would nearly equal opening day of the first frame. "Outlaw's" first week was $28,100 greater than the Music Halls' previous opening-week record holder, "Whistle Stop."

WB PUTS $5,200,000 IN BRITISH CIRCUIT

London, April 10.—Warner Bros. has acquired a further interest in the Associated British circuit with recent purchases of an additional 1,000,000 shares of common stock. It was disclosed today that the purchase price was around $5,200,000, of which approximately seven-tenths was paid over late last year, the balance to be paid in eight equal half-yearly installments.

BLACK MARKET PEDDLING 'GOING MY WAY' IN 16M

New York, April 10.—Black market in distribution of 16m films is approaching the nylon-butter bacon stage. Major distributors and Government agencies are cooperating to end the racket and tag the racketeers, but another instance of black market operations cropped up only last Sunday—in a New Jersey church.

Paramount learned today that "Going My Way," on narrow-gauge film, had been shown in a Brunswick, N. J., church and investigated immediately.

It could not be determined how the church obtained the print. Paramount officials pointed out that the film is currently still showing in subsequent runs, and that recently the company pulled out of the 16m commercial business and decided not to permit its product to be shown in theatre-less towns.

Paramount execs believe the print may have been smuggled into the U.S. from Europe, where 16m prints of the picture had been shown.

FILMS RUSHED FOR EUROPE MARKET

Early break-through of American films into France and Germany is expected by studio foreign departments, it was disclosed yesterday. Execes, understood to have been tipped that barriers have been licked, are all rushing preparations to get full share of the foreign market juice that was such a big factor in pre-war film profits.

In this case, the juice will be

Benny the Gouge sez—Something new in Hollywood, where humor and insult are synonymous, is the forthcoming Enterprise picture, "Lord Chesterfield's Letters to His Son." It will deal with good manners — not cigarettes.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

COAST group of Music Publishers' Contact Employes (songpluggers' union) has decided they need a full-time, full-salaried man as director-secretary here, and have made known their wishes to national board of union, in NY. Al Comparte this week quit as Coast chief because work for union took too much time away from his duties as local rep of Republic Music. Comparte, who had held spot since union was formed, did not receive remuneration. At an informal meeting of local songpluggers yesterday it was decided that man wanted here was retired music-businessman, salaried at $75 weekly, who could devote full energies to job and make impartial decisions. It is probable that national board, which will select Comparte's successor, will submit a series of nominees from ranks of regular members. Plans here are to nix all names until NY headquarters agrees with local views and appoints the type of regional chief majority here want.

AT least there's a possible new plot twist for Westerns. Thar's feudin' between the singin' cowboys and the ridin' cowboys and while it hasn't broken out into gunplay yet, don't be surprised if the fizz of the soda fountains and the clatter of dropping lipsticks on Gower Gulch is suddenly punctuated by staccato explosions. Harry Sherman, producer of many a standard Western, came out in a newspaper interview and opined that the Western films were going to go to the dogs unless they got rid of "these pantie-waist singing cowboys." Roy Rogers, of Republic, promptly marshalled a bunch of adjectives to the defense of the riding vocalists of the cinema range. Some producer could do worse than hustle the feud between the "strong, silent men" and the saddle-slouching songsters into film. Suggested title—"Guitars on Gower Gulch."

BAROMETER of trade interest in a picture is usually based on number of passes sought by exhibitors and others in film circles. On that basis "The Outlaw" has aroused plenty of trade curiosity as well as public, according to Al Galston, partner in operation of the Hawaii theatre, which is in the Music Hall string. Galston reports that he is being flooded with requests for free ducats from exhibs and film men to see the picture, who are showing more interest in "The Outlaw" than any film to play the house since "Citizen Kane." Hughes exploiteers, seeking to keep public interest high and record grosses rolling in, are spotting 11 billboards in strategic locations. Boards vary from usual ones by being oil paintings of Jane Russell, done by regular artist as contrasted to the usual sign painter.

SINCE picking a list of the "ten dressed men in the country" for Associated Press recently Adolphe Menjou says he is being besieged by requests from correspondents and others to make a selection of the "ten worst dressed men." He flatly refuses, saying: "I could pick 200 of them—all in Hollywood and most of them prominent. But they're friends of mine and I wouldn't hurt their feelings by naming them." Menjou, who has graced the group of the "ten best dressed" in the past, was left out of a recent list put out by eastern clothing interests. In his current role in Andrew Stone's "The Bachelor's Daughters" he gets 28 changes of costume and is making a bid to get back in the top-dresser brackets.

MUSICAL scoring of Paramount's "O.S.S." established a new speed record for that job on a major motion picture. Scoring was finished two days after filming of the final scene. Pic was sneak previewed Tuesday night 48 hours after the final scene was edited. Louis Lipstone, head of the music department, put two composers, Daniele Amfitheatrof and Heinz Roemheld, on the chore. They turned out the score for the first reels while the remaining reels were still in production. Usually a film is not scored until it has been edited and screened for the composers. Scoring was done by the Paramount 80-piece orchestra with Irvin Talbot conducting and with special choral effects added at the closing fade out.

MRS. Minnie Turnell, of Vancouver, B.C., is in Hollywood this week, guest of Metro on a tour of the studios and at the preem of "Ziegfeld Follies" last night, because of winning a contest in which she ran second. The contest was conducted by the Vancouver Sun as promotion for the Metro British-made pic, "Vacation from Marriage." Prize was to go to the author of the best letter on "Why I believe in a vacation from marriage." Judges declared a Mrs. Bell winner of the contest, but Mrs. Bell couldn't be located. After a determined search failed to disclose Mrs. Bell's whereabouts Mrs. Turnell, runnerup in the contest, was given 12 hours notice to get ready for her free trip to Hollywood.

ALVINO Rey band is currently using ten different vocalists, a national high for name bands. In addition to regular vocal group of five (rather than trio commonly used by orks) and femme chirp Jo Ann Ryan, four different instrumentalists are now taking turns chanting into mike. Doubling off trumpet is Chuck Peterson as prime male soloist, while Rocky Coluccio deserts his piano for the novelties. Also lately spouting lyrics are trombonists Bob McReynolds and Dean Kinkaid. Almost every ditty now played by Rey has a vocal sifted in.

AFTER two years of doing nothing gal singer formerly under contract at RKO got a break—and couldn't take it. Accepted on her appearance and known to have a voice, she was to go with a name band as vocalist, replacing another canary with whom band is dissatisfied. Everything went along fine until band leader broke out his arrangements to learn his new find had a voice, but one of low register, that wasn't in tune with band's costly library.

When circus comes to town in sunny Spring
Joe Public grabs his offspring by the hand
And leads him where the tents are towering
And scents of newmown sawdust fill the land.
Old Joe is fetching Junior to the lot
To air the youngster's modern education
And lurks all day around the circus lot
And feels a surge of juvenile elation.
It brings him back to morns of long ago
When big red wagons rumbled into town
Long years before the birth of radio,
Before the pictures wrestled vaudeville down.
The radio and films are doing well
And television will soon have its fling
But Old Joe Public still delights to smell
The old aroma of the circus ring.

Harness races are coming to town but you can lay 8 to 5 that the old whip-socket boys will never go Hollywood. NEW HITCHCOCK CO. PLANS FOUR FILMS THROUGH 1947

London, April 10.—Details of the newly organized Sidney Bernstein-Alfred Hitchcock indie producing combo were disclosed today by Sidney Bernstein, British film topper and financier. Outfit will be known as Trans-Atlantic Picture Corporation.

The new company will produce a minimum of four pictures between now and the end of 1947. The first, as yet untagged, will be made in Hollywood. Second, by the British authoress, Helen Simpson, "Under Capricorn," will be made by Hitchcock with exteriors in Ireland, England and Hollywood. The other films on slate are a story based on Jack Sheppard's "Notorious Highwayman" and a modern treatment of "Hamlet," also under Hitchcock's direction.

Alfred Hitchcock yesterday told Daily Variety that his new indie outfit is currently negotiating with Cary Grant to star in the initial Trans-Atlantic Picture Corp. production. Deal calls for Grant to cut in on net on participating basis. Outfit is studying various releasing set-ups and will soon make a decision on its distribution tie-up. Latter phase of the company will be handled by Sidney Bernstein, while Hitchcock will be primarily concerned with heading up the production end of the combo. Outfit expects to get its first film before the cameras in November. First news of the combo was printed exclusively in Daily Variety during Bernstein's Hollywood visit early this year.

Enterprise Starting Stock Company

Enterprise Films yesterday made the first move in its announced plan to build up its own stock company by taking over Charles Drake from David Loew. Drake's first picture role for Enterprise will be in "The Other Love" with Barbara Stanwyck. He played the romantic lead in Loew's "Night in Casablanca."

Sinatra Vaude Dates

Frank Sinatra yesterday was penciled in for two more vaude weeks, stanza opening May 2 at the Downtown, Detroit, and the week of May 10 at the Chicago, Chicago. The Swoonster, now in NY, is due back on Coast before coming weekend. He will cuffo guest appearances in Phoenix, Ariz., on April 19-20, along with Teen Agers ork, for benefit of the "Junior Police" of the desert town, before heading east again.

TITLE ARTISTS DEAL PAYS $2.55 HOUR

Deal was made yesterday between National Screen Service and Painters Local 644 giving title artists at NSS's Hollywood studio hourly scale of $2.55, retroactive to Feb. 1, 1944. George Dembow, NSS vice president, flew in Tuesday from New York to handle the settlement with Herbert Sorrell and goes east today.

The seven title artists employed at the studio walked out on their jobs yesterday noon, pending settlement of new deal, but return to work this morning. New pay scale gives title men average weekly rate of $102, as compared to $80 which they had been drawing.

Film Reviews

The Notorious Lone Wolf

(Comedy-Mystery)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Ted Richmond. Director, D. Ross Lederman. Screenplay, Martin Berkeley and Edward Dein. Adaptation, Garrett Graham. Story, William J. Bowers. Photography, Burnett Guffey. Musical director, Mischa Bakaleinikoff. Art, Perry Smith. Sets, Frank Kramer. Film editor, Richard Fantl. Sound, Jack Goodrich. Assistant director, James Nicholson.

CAST—Gerald Mohr, Janis Carter, Eric Blore, John Abbott, William Davidson, Don Beddoe, Adelle Roberts, Robert Scott, Peter Whitney, Olaf Hytten, Ian Wolfe, Edith Evanson, Maurie Cass, Eddie Acuff, Virginia Hunter.

REVIEWED at Vogue theatre, Hollywood, Calif., April 10, 1946. Running time: 64 MINS.

This moderately entertaining entry is designed for the duals and intro's Gerald Mohr as "The Lone Wolf," character originated by Louis Josephy Vance between whodunit book covers. Wisely, the super-sleuthing and heavily veiled mysteriousness normally encountered in vehicles of this sort and class are played down and comedy is up-pointed.

Title character is mentioned as one-time jewel-thief of note, but outset catches him emerging from Army after four years with intentions strictly honorable both as to gal and a priceless sapphire with which he becomes involved.

Mohr impresses as good casting for this type of film; he keeps character glib and good-humored and apparently would rather unleash a laugh than unravel a murder. He gets apt assistance from Eric Blore, playing his familiar man-servant role. Script splits some sharp comedy lines between pair and provides some nice situation laughs which relieve any tedium the routine murder-hunt would have caused.

Ted Richmond's production provided director D. Ross Lederman with satisfactory appurtenances for this sort of piece and latter kept pace fast, sparked by surprise situations and deftly enough handled to make for solid general amusement.

As "Wolf's" vis-a-vis, Janis Carter has little to do but on her appearance she dresses things up. John Abbott and Olaf Hytten add color and laughs with their broad playing of pair of gaudily robed potentates from India who lost bauble. Don Beddoe and Ian Wolfe stir in some sturdy, straight villainy, and William Davidson appears properly exasperated as the police inspector continually hoodwinked by our hero.

Burnett Guffey's camera helped maintain the pace and interest, and Mischa Bakaleinikoff's music gave point and pique to many of the sequences. Perry Smith's set designs were bright and tastefully decorated by Frank Kramer.

A Close Call For Boston Blackie

(Comedy-Mystery)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, John Stone. Director, Lew Landers. Screenplay, Ben Markson. Story, Paul Yawitz. Additional dialog, Malcolm Stuart Boylan. Photography, Burnett Guffey. Musical director, Mischa Bakaleinikoff. Art, Carl Anderson and Jerome Pycha, Jr. Sets, Albert Rickerd. Sound, Philip Faulkner. Film editor, Jerome Thoms. Assistant director, Chris Beute.

CAST—Chester Morris, Lynn Merrick, Richard Lane, Frank Sully, George E. Stone, Claire Carleton, Erik Rolf, Charles Lane, Robert Scott, Emmett Bogan, Russell Hicks.

REVIEWED at Vogue theatre, Hollywood, Calif., April 10, 1946. Running time: 60 MINS.

This latest in Chester Morris' hardy "Boston Blackie" series suffers from too much attempt to score with essentially old comedy situations which more frequently than not miss. There is little plotting—too little for a comedy which was supposed to have mystery overtones and which had scarcity of genuine laugh lines.

Only real novel touch to script was tipped too early in footage—that gal intro'd as possible romantic really is out to double-x the lead. But he learns it almost as soon as the audience, so that possibility of interesting tangle got the bye.

Morris romps through part with his usual brashness and confidence. Richard Lane again plays the flatfoot he constantly dupes, and Lynn Merrick is attractive as the sullen villainess. To George E. Stone go top honors for making a whale of a try with rather wretched material, in the main, as Morris' stooge. Intrusted with mawkish lines and some pretty pallid situations, he almost scores in spite of the handicaps. Claire Carleton is well cast as a dumb waitress; she's had a wide range of roles lately including parts in westerns, but this part may become her metier after she's lamped in this role. Frank Sully's work as stupid cop was well delivered, but appeared awkward because his material was so moss-backed.

Yarn recounts adventures of Morris in wriggling out of frameup which would hang raps for a kidnapping and two murders on him. Director Lew Landers might have kept piece speedier paced and more evenly keeled in its presentation, but, again, the script didn't offer precisely sleek sailing. Production is entirely adequate for the dualer this is, and Burnett Guffey's photography is good.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The importance of the Middle East for future world oil supply is pointed out by Wallace Pratt, economic geologist, formerly with Standard Oil of New Jersey. He says the oil reserves there are probably 180 billion barrels, as compared with 100 billion in the United States, and 110 billion in the Soviet. The British have been foremost n this field, partly because of industry and transportation, but mostly within recent years because of needing this fuel of empire for her navy. The Soviet interest also may not only be to aid the new Five Year program, but because Russia is planning a big navy and merchant marine. Connected are her demands for free use and control of the Dardanelles, her request for a trusteeship in Tripolitania in the Mediterranean, and Eritrea near Suez, and Tito Yugoslavia's demand of Trieste at the head of the Adriatic. Most of these matters will come up, not before the United Nations in New York, but before the foreign ministers in Paris.

BUILDING CURB FIXED DEFINITELY AT $15,000 A SET

Set cost restrictions by the Civilian Production Administration were clarified yesterday by the definite ruling that the $15,000 exemption contained in the national building restriction edict applies only to the cost of a single set and not to the total set costs for a production.

The ruling, received by Byron Price, Motion Picture Association veepee, means that sets up to $15,000 can be built without special CPA approval.

All labor costs are included in the $15,000 figure but the cost of used materials employed in building a set need not be considered. Labor cost, according to a recent studio survey, is about 80 per cent of total set expense.

Memphis Press Doubts Censor Showdown

Memphis, April 10.—The Memphis film trade and press are dubious over Variety story of last week that Eric Johnston is readying a showdown fight against censor boards within the next 60 to 90 days. Press thinks United Artists' "Brewster's Millions" and Howard Hughes' "Outlaw," both on ice here now, make ideal test cases. Memphis believes the local board's constitutionality may be beautifully challenged on both pix bans.

Net Prexy Back From Tour of Northwest

Wesley I. Dumm, prexy of Universal Broadcasting, back from fortnight in Seattle inspecting new net property, station KXA, purchase of which was recently approved by FCC. Station now joins KXLA, Pasadena, and KSFO, San Francisco in U. chain. Florence Wallace, manager, retains her position under new ownership, according to Dumm.

'Iodine' for Radio

"Little Iodine," Jimmy Hatlo's comic strip, is being readied for radio, in addition to films. Joseph J. Anthony Co., local agency, holds radio rights to cartoon. Charles Pfeiffer has already been set as one of writing staff which will handle script.

Farrell on Council

Palm Springs, April 10.—Charlie Farrell, former film actor, was elected to the City Council today for a four-year term. He now operates a resort hotel here.

INT STARTS MOVE TO UNIVERSAL

Actual moving of International to the Universal lot started yesterday when Irving Pichel, directing "Bella Donna" for the company, established headquarters there. He starts making first wardrobe tests for the picture today with George Brent, Charles Korvin, Lenore Ulrich and Robert Capa being tested.

Executive offices and publicity department are expected to be out of their present quarters at the Goldwyn studio and over at Universal within the next three weeks. It is understood that they will be quartered in present writers' building at the valley lot.

RANK TELLS OF WIDE WORLD MARKET FOR BRITISH PIX

London, April 10 (By Mail).—Development of a giant export plan for the distribution of British films in the world market was outlined to the delegates here for the J. Arthur Rank convention which just closed.

"Already some thirty major films, produced and completed in Britain during the war, have been earning considerable revenue abroad," Rank declared in a pre-convention statement. "These films have constituted a readily exportable commodity, with no production time-lag to hinder them, as has often faced Britain's heavy industries.

"In India, as well as the Middle-East, there is a constantly growing demand for British films and a growing popularity of British stars.

"Throughout Europe, all of the latest productions being produced at Denham, Shepherd's Bush, Ealing, Riverside, and now Pinewood Studios are being regularly shown in subtitled versions. English films are already being shown in Japanese kinemas and there is now a regular releasing schedule in many cities in China.

"Critical and public success of present British films being released in the United States have indicated that they are making their first consistently coordinated impression on the American public with favor.

"British films provide a strong export commodity in the present program of re-establishment of overseas trade. My associates are resolved to produce the finest screen entertainment that creative talent can bring forth. And we intend to offer it to audiences everywhere, in fair competition with any other screen entertainment. We are progressing favorably along that path at present."

Illness Postpones Trial of Pickets

Trial of eight union pickets in Burbank Police Court has been postponed for three days until Monday due to illness of William Esterman, defense counsel for pickets charged with rioting during the October picketing of Warner studio. Meanwhile, petition asking dismissal of charges against 328 pickets, now pending in the police court, has been presented to the Burbank City Council.

Richman Coming West

Harry Richman has been inked into the Florentine Gardens for an eight-week stand, starting June 19. It will be first Coast appearance in over a year for the singer.

GILMORE FIELD

RESERVATIONS—WE. 5151

JUST FOR VARIETY

THE GRAPEVINE: Joe E. Lewis, opening at Ciro's April 19, will receive the largest wad of lettuce ever paid by the nitery for a single act. The deal was closed by Herman Hover and the William Morris office, who won't say how much but admit it's close to five grand a week . . . Leo McCarey and Irving Asher left for Palm Springs last night to dress up "Adam and Eve"—the script, that is . . . Ida Lupino and Tony Martin, a new twosome, had themselves a time at the Palladium, jitterbugging and unrecognized by the other lunatics . . . Raoul Walsh has pushed his "Cheyenne" company five days ahead of schedule . . . That top comedy team is about to call it a day because each discovered the other taking out the same girl, who is under contract to their studio . . . Al Sack says the average person is supposed to have a 5000-word vocabulary, but when he cracks his shin against a chair, he just ad libs . . . Two-gether: Joan Lorring and Russell Arms, Russ Hunter and Audrey Totter, Cleatus Caldwell and Harry Karl, Frank Latimore and Susan Blanchard—at Mocambo . . . Arthur Lyons is reported to be entering producing ranks on the same sort of package deal initiated by Charles Feldman . . . Don't worry about Bob Hutton's lonely heart, re: Lana Turner. June Haver seems to be the lovely reason . . . Joan Crawford and John Garfield tossed a party for cast and crew on "Humoresque" yesterday . . . Ahem! Sound the trumpets, unfurl the banners, break out the wine and roses. As exclusively reported by D.D.T., Richard Hart, recruited by Metro from "Dark of the Moon" on Broadway, takes over the Robert Montgomery role opposite Greer Garson in "A Woman of My Own."

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Capt. Jeffrey Lynn, Warners' last star-in-uni-form, will be discharged from the Signal Corps next month and return to the studio in June . . . Buff Cobb, Paula Drew and Dorothy Kirby threw a birthday party, including buffet dinner and champagne, for William Eythe. Among the guests were John Dall, David Street, Liz and Jay Berkeley, Ruth and Charles Dippery, Marie Windsor, Billy Josephe, Charles Russell, Jane Withers, Bill Burton . . . Eugene List, who played for the Big Three at Potsdam, left the cast of "The Bachelor's Daughters"—temporarily—to appear at a Washington concert and on a NY airshow over the weekend. He returns Tuesday . . . Kay Connors, 20th starlet, is on her feet after a two-week bout with the flu . . . Pssssst! Got any bubble-gum? Hal Roach needs a supply for artistic purposes. In his production of "Curley" the whole cast will take life and lip in hand to blow gum bubbles . . . Oat omen: Serviceman just back from Okinawa says you can't give away westerns on the island. GI order of preference in films is musicals, mysteries, comedies. One of the most popular films, he recalled, was "The Awful Truth," the Irene Dunne-Cary Grant starrer of ten years ago, which started the demented comedy cycle . . . Exiled to Modesto is Van Heflin, who will guest star at a test showing of Hal Wallis' "The Strange Love of Martha Ivers," for which he was borrowed from Metro as his first post-Army film.

CALL SHEET: ANN SHERIDAN heads for Palm Springs this weekend with Steve Hannegan . . . BRIAN AHERNE has been made an honorary Irishman by Earl Carroll's, apparently. On the nitery's wall, along with the other autograph blowups, is the signature "Brian O'Herne" . . . IRENE DUNNE, working in "Life with Father," entertained Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, NY and Washington social worker, and Mrs. Albert D. Lasher of New York at Warners' Green Room yesterday at lunch . . . ETHEL MEGLIN says Charlie McCarthy was carved out of naughty pine . . . JIMMY STEWART rehearsed yesterday for his participation in the Easter Sunrise service at Forest Lawn. So did the pigeons who fly over the Tower of Legends during the service. Stewart watched hundreds of them fly home to their mates but noticed one stubborn bird who sulked on top of the tower. "Why won't he go home?" he asked. A pigeon fancier explained, "He's a bachelor. We may have to CARRY him home. Stewart, the eternal bachelor himself, grinned . . . MACDONALD CAREY'S stock is booming even before completion of his first post-Marine Corps picture, "Suddenly It's Spring." Three studios are asking Paramount for loanouts . . . RICHARD DENNING and RUSSELL HAYDEN, in the Navy three years each, are playing Army officers in Pine-Thomas' "Seven Were Saved" . . . BARBARA POWERS, Mocambo cigaret girl, will be Erskine Johnson's guest next Tuesday over KHJ.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Saleswomanship can land you almost anywhere, including Hollywood. The other night, in NY's Roosevelt Grill, Joe Pasternak and his wife were approached by a nightclub photog. Pasternak waved away the flash bulbs, but signed the photog, May Stuart, to a term contract at Metro. She reports to the studio May 1 . . . Traffic note: Trucking in and out of the Enterprise lot halted yesterday while Evelyn (the studio cat) moved her five kittens from the gateman's house to Doc Damewood's first aid station . . . KFWB has warned its soundman to keep his ear cupped during the nightly pickups from Billy Berg's, ready to cut the cutups off the air when they start playing around with the lyrics . . . To all hairnet manufacturers: 20th-Fox yesterday engaged two girls to play trulls who engage in hair-pulling contests with the heroine in "Forever Amber" played by Peggy Cummins. Margo Woode and Mari Aldon were given the roles . . . It and when Metro re-makes "Red Dust," Audrey Totter, who had the boys giving the wolf salute in "A Sailor Takes a Wife," will play the role originated by the late Jean Harlow . . . Magazine reviewers who caught 20th's "Cluny Brown" are raving over Jennifer Jones' work and the direction by Ernst Lubitsch . . . Dennis O'Keefe inflicted one of his special rum drinks on Bill Lundigan the other night. "Anyone who drinks this stuff should get a stunt check," Lundigan gasped . . . PAR PREEMS NEW TELE TOWER WITH SPORTS SHOW

Paramount premieres its new 6,000-foot high television tower on Mt. Wilson tomorrow with telecasts of Sportsmen's Show, at Gilmore Stadium. Operating under old call letters, W6XYZ, station will feature daily two to four hours of show on regular schedule until event closes. Announcement was made yesterday at press luncheon in studio commissary.

On July 1 Par video outlet will go on full week schedule. That's date FCC has designated as start of commercial telecasting, and Par will comply with regularly scheduled minimum of 28 hours weekly.

Use of extra cameras will enable telecasters to take in full scope of ski jump and other large scale events at show. Same system will be employed in covering outdoor sports events, which will comprise large portion of Par's initial tele activities. Showcase receivers are being set up in uptown and downtown Paramount theatre lobbies as eye-catchers for seat-waiters. Additional sets are also being spotted around in Army and Navy hospitals by Par with eye to stimulating interest in video.

In interim, between closing of Sportsmen's Show and July 1, station will be on three days weekly with two hours or more. Among features planned are fights and wrestling matches set up in Par's own studios with invited fans in attendance.

Freddy Martin Preps Entry Into Disc Biz

Freddy Martin, batoneer current with ork at Ambassador hotel, is prepping an entry into pop-platter field. His product will chiefly consist of premium-priced albums waxed by name musical talent. Leader himself is under contract to RCA-Victor. Martin, who for some time has operated a music pub company under his name, will market his discs under label of Ambassador, after spot in which his band has played for five years.

3 House Sacto Preem

Third Sacramento theatre was added yesterday to previously-announced two-house world preem of Republic's "In Old Sacramento," on April 24. In addition to Capitol and Hippodrome theatres, Bill Elliott-Constance Moore co-starrer also will open simultaneously in Alhambra theatre.

ANNOUNCERS STRIKE VOTED BY AFRA ON 12 INDIES

Strike vote has been taken by AFRA and unless agreement is reached with Southern California Broadcasters within next 30 days announcers will walk from 12 indie stations here. Dean Johnson, attorney repping SCB, and Claude McCue, union's exec secretary, have met several times within past few days without result. So far opposing sides remain too far apart to reach bargaining point on demands and counter proposals for gabber wage increases.

What looks to be the final meeting before impasse will be held today between McCue and Johnson at latter's office. Broadcasters decided their last counter offer yesterday.

Approximately 75 announcers will be involved in the imminent walkout. Understood vote was very close, those favoring strike carrying it by margin of three votes. This would indicate that announcers are about evenly split on whether or not they are getting fair shake from broadcasters. Union has retreated from original stand, such as elimination of junior classifications, grouping of stations in three income classifications and other minor points. But major issue of wage increases remains stalemated.

Radio Directors Guild Sees 3-Ply Deal

Following elections scheduled for next Monday at New York headquarters of Radio Directors Guild, local RDG expects to receive confirmation of affiliation of two chapters with the Chicago Radio and Television Directors Guild. Three groups are in agreement. Only obstacle obtaining permission of AFL with which New York group holds a Federal charter.

Intention is to set up a council comprised of members of each unit to work out national problems. Decision on whether or not units would act in full accord in event of local troubles would rest with council. New York group has network agreements, while local chapter has not. However, latter is planning proposals now which are to be presented to nets here. Council meeting here on April 15 will probably be presented with findings of unit committees now working on network proposals.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

When an old line rating outfit like Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting (Crossley) admits after all these years that its method of sampling preferences in radio fare has been faulty and incomplete, two lines of reasoning persist. Did CAB make this bald admission to visit its own inadequacies on other going concerns like Hooper and Nielsen or has the system passed its usefulness as a true yardstick of dialing habits? The Hooper sample, while not all-inclusive, is as close to complete coverage as has been devised. Nielsen's index may be less fallible but the coverage is too skimpy to be accepted in other than concentrated markets.

The Hooper system has been defended in this corner because, we believe, it makes an honest attempt to evaluate audience partiality. Also, we still believe that "Doc" Gallup had a good idea in sampling homes without telephones. There surely must be more radio homes than telephones but this segment of the population is completely by-passed in the present system of rating. The Gallup Plan may yet be revived and if nothing else it could serve as a supplemental service. Any system that doesn't cover all wage-earning classes cannot hope to present a true cross-section of listener performance.

Apropos of this state of confusion among the raters, Jack Sayers, who runs the western end of Gallup's Audience Research setup, comes up with some interesting figures on telephone and radio homes. Of the 40,000,000 families in the U.S. there are 100,000,000 radio listeners (figured two and a half persons to the set) and more homes are without telephones than with, except only in Los Angeles and Minneapolis. Rural areas, which have more phones per capita than urban, are rarely if ever checked by the radio raters. In the matter of car radios it is presumed that sets in use are greater numerically than in homes during the summer months. Yet these are never checked. It's our guess that more samples could be taken at busy intersections than over the phone in a given period. Just a few thoughts for the CAB'ers to ponder in the revamp of their system.

Chain breaks . . . Jimmy Saphier hopped a fast plane yesterday for reported talks in New York with Mann Holiner on the Bill Goodwin show as summer standby for Frank Sinatra . . . There'll be a shakeup in Bob Hope's writing staff next season and the format may ease gently into situation comedy. Vera Vague will be back and Frances Langford takes her chanteusing elsewhere . . . Shirley Ross is on Frank Sinatra's guest list next week . . . Dennis Day record will be cut next week with the pattern more situation comedy than music . . . Agnes Moorehead show for Tums is undergoing considerable revamping . . . Ken Dolan may bring Helen Broderick back to radio as lead in "The Folks on Fourth St.," soon to spin on the agency turntables . . . Ward Byron in town as producer of "Supper Club," which will be around for 10 or 12 weeks while Perry Como is making a flicker . . . Henry Legler will make a choice before the week is out of two or three candidates for the Danny Kaye summer spot . . . Jack Benny's May 19 broadcast will come from the Vanderbilt theatre in New York . . . Stan Davis and Elon Packard joined Ed Gardner's writing staff.

It worked for pictures so Arthur Kurlan is going to try to make it strike for radio—that of going outside the ranks of established performers for a girl to play the part of "Sister Eileen" in the series based on the stage hit and to be recorded for fall sale. Aside from Lucille Ball, to be starred, most of the others in the supporting cast will be newcomers to big time radio. It is Kurlan's theory that new voices will give the comedy piece a freshness that cannot be achieved through the casting of performers heard on other shows. Kurlan, who directs and edits his own packaged show, will use only the characters in the play without drawing on the play's premise. If all this seems like doing it the hard way that's the way Kurlan prefers it. He at least feels he'll come up with something different in situation comedy.

Bob Hope shot back to the top of the Hooper standings, passing "The McGee's" with 2.2 to spare. His 2.5 rise accounted for 29.6 while the Jordans skidded 1.5 to 27.4. Others in the Tuesday list shared in the unseasonable increases, with only a scattering of minuses. Amos 'n' Andy picked up .5 for 17.4; "Date with Judy" took 13.3 on 1.3 lift; Red Skelton added 1.9 for 22.7; "This Is My Best" 7, off 1.2.

Hitch hikes . . . Rudy Vallee has been given his notice by Procter & Gamble and winds up two seasons for Drene at end of June. Sponsor felt that his average combined rating of under 11 didn't compensate for the $14,000 weekly outlay. Also affecting the decision was Vallee's insistence on controlling all elements of the program to the exclusion of any suggested changes by the sponsor . . . Fritz Blocki, who sold Columbia pictures a series of comedies based on his radio program, is taking up permanent residence here . . . Bob Crosby gets a fast ride on his May 1 airing, with Bob Hope pacing the gags . . . Cornwell Jackson and Lorena Danker fly east April 21 for a week at the Thompson home office . . . Joel Malone's script and Mahlon Merrick's special music for last night's Skippy Theatre airing of "Transcontinental" starring Vera Hruba Ralston was so well liked by Republic's Herbert Yates that he has bought all the material and will use it as the basis of a picture . . . KHJ-FM resumes Monday on a six-hour daily schedule after being off the air for a month due to changeover in bands . . . Fred Waring's orchestra and glee club have been set for the 15-week fill while "The McGee'e" are on sabbatical . . . NBC has packaged Sons of the Pioneers, Rupert Hughes and Ivan Ditmar's orchestra.

HOT JAZZ GOING TO COLLEGE FOR NIGHT OF JIVE

Espousing the theory that "hot jazz" is fine providing it's dished out in proper environment, UCLA will hold a jive concert on campus tomorrow, under auspices of school's Interracial Club and with blessings of Dean of Undergraduates Stanley Miller and the Student Council. An added angle in the university's stunt is that affair is designed to promote tolerance in that it will socially bring together various races.

Talent set for session includes King Cole Trio, Benny Carter and three soloists from his band current at Trianon, Lester Young, Kay Starr, Lucky Thompson, Red Callender Trio, Ray Bauduc, Delta Rhythm Boys, Eddie Beale quartet, Charley Parker and others. Herb Jeffries, of Exclusive Records and a quondam Duke Ellington vocalist, will emcee. Performers were rounded up by Frances Kelly, operator of Fran-Tone Records.

Concert will be pitched in Royce Hall auditorium, on campus, with admission $1 and profits to go to UCLA Scholarship Fund. Since university decided it could earmark only $500 for talent, Cole Trio, Carter and Delta Rhythmers notified they will work affair strictly for zero as a benefit. All other musickers will get $20 a head.

20TH LOSES $20,000 SUIT ON ORAL 'FLAT TOPS' DEAL

Judgment against 20th-Fox for $20,000 on an oral contract, said to be precedental in such litigation, was handed down yesterday in Superior Court by Juge Joseph Vickers in favor of Stanley Johnston, writer, and E. P. Dutton, publisher of his book, "Queen of the Flat Tops." Studios had heretofore held, and successfully, that no contract is binding until the written covenant is signed and executed. Harry Sokolov was attorney for Johnston and Dutton.

Soon after "Queen of the Flat Tops" became a best seller, 20th-Fox started negotiations with Johnston and Dutton for purchase of the title for its picture, released as "A Wing and a Prayer," and made an offer of $20,000, which was accepted. When the contract was drawn up by the studio a clause was inserted to the effect that 20th-Fox could not be sued in the event some material from the book was inadvertently used. This was protested on the ground that only the title was being bought and the deal was called off. Sokolov contended that the oral offer stood and instituted suit for his clients. Judgment for $20,000 after five days trial also carried with it 7 per cent interest.

In legal circles it is said to be the first time that an oral agreement with a picture studio was upheld in court as legal and binding.

CIO HEAD ASKS MORE FREEDOM FOR JAPS

Washington, April 10.—State Department should take initiative in removing Japan's "intellectual isolation" and allow free flow of news, films and information into that country, Kermit Eby, CIO director of education and research, told meeting of Government film workers today.

Eby, just returned from Japan as member of group of educators called there by Gen. MacArthur to help draft plans for re-education of Japs in democracy, stated Nips want samples of every kind of educational film in the world. Only hitch is present regulation that request must be made in writing before any such film can be sent there. Present program calls for production of 10 Jap-made educational films next year.

Brooks Signed To Do Hopalong Juve Leads

Rand Brooks, recently out of the Army, was signed yesterday to a three-year contract as juvenile lead by Hopalong Cassidy Productions. First picture of the new Hopalong series, starring William Boyd, an untitled original by Doris Schroeder, will be put into production by Producer Lewis Rachmil May 15, with George Archainbaud directing.

Columbia Signs Lane

Amanda Lane was signed yesterday for comedy singing role in Columbia's "Sing While You Dance."

Busch Doing 'Cowards'

"The Cowards Never Started" will be producer Niven Busch's second indie production under the Hemisphere Films, Inc., banner.

Brown Stays At Par

George Brown, for six years advertising and publicity director at Paramount, was signed to a new contract yesterday.

New York, April 10.—"So Goes My Love," Skirball-Manning production for Universal, will be world-preemed tomorrow night aboard a Pan-American Airways Constellation en route to London, while plane is over Atlantic between Newfoundland and Eire. Particular plane in which showing will be held for 34 passengers is first of Pan-American's fleet to be equipped for motion picture projection, all ships later to have such facilities.

San Diego Theatres Reconvert To Men

San Diego, Calif., April 10.—San Diego's only woman theatre manager, Moreta Cyphert, has given up the desk to Laverne East, and the town is once more in the hands of men. Miss Syphert says she's retiring, and will probably get married in September.

SYDNEY WILLIAMS WILL MAKE 12 FILMS IN CHILE

Sydney M. Williams, indie producer who last did "The Big Show-Off" for Republic release, leaves end of next week for New York enroute to Santiago, Chile, where he will make 12 bi-lingual films in Spanish and English.

Producer already has arranged for financing, and one of purposes of Gotham stopover is to talk release. He will also confab with Chilean consul-general regarding feasibility of taking Hollywood players for English versions, as well as tax situation.

First two films will be "Iinfidelity" and "Money to Burn," both with Latin backgrounds and authored by Don Martin. Budgets will be comparable to B-picture production here.

Rep Assigns Duprez

June Duprez is set to play one of top roles in Republic's "That Brennan Girl," James Dunn-Mona Freeman co-starrer.

OUT OF HORN'S MOUTH

Cousin from Fiji

A baldfaced comedy by NORMAN LINDSAY
Author of THE CAUTIOUS AMORIST

This is an impertinent, delicious and wayward tale of two attractive ladies (mother and daughter) who arrive in Australia from a sugar plantation in Fiji, outwit assorted horrid relatives, and find romance in spite of scandal, skullduggery and shrewish envy. The publishers declare unequivocally that they laughed themselves sick over it.

Read all about those madcap relatives from Fiji and GRANDMA, who locked herself up in the privy during fits of temper—and had to be rescued by the carpenter.

UNCLE GEORGE, who found it hard to be faithful to all his mistresses.

AUNT SARAH, whose crown of thorns was slightly askew.

COUSIN FLORENCE, whose only fault was an evil mind.

GILBERT BUNTHORPE, who wasn't even a relative and overdid his masculinity.

SPLIT SEEN IN RANKS OF AFRA IF LEA BILL PASSES

A split in the ranks of American Federation of Radio Artists similar to severance of Screen Actors Guild and Screen Extras Guild is looked upon as a distinct possibility if Lea Bill goes through. President Truman's signature or re-passage by Senate on veto may encourage open rift by rebellious idle faction now crowded out by job-monopolizing minority. This opinion is held by some members who see new avenues of employment opened via restrictions measure imposes on union whereby seething idle faction might establish its own, more attractive wage minimums.

Idlers are now very much in majority and, while union has made several attempts to placate them through measures so far unproductive, they continue to gripe about situation. They remain largely idle, while so-called "charmed circle" retains hold on available jobs, despite beefs to union, "cooperative" meetings with producers, and other maneuvers.

It's known fact that busy minority comprises cream of radio performers who, for reasons of quality or politics, are never idle. Other group is comprised of returning vets, those who have little if any chance at showing, and newcomers — who haven't a chance, so long as situation persists. Condition is as true of East as it is here. It has been a major concern of union as a whole, and now looms as a threat to entire AFRA structure.

Par's 'Susie' Draws Praise From Medics

Paramount reports praise and no squawks from members of medical profession for "Miss Susie Slagle's," story of which deals with medical student life. Numerous letters from doctors gave the picture a hand for its authenticity. Technical adviser on the film was Dr. Benjamin Sacks, New York medico, who is serving in same capacity on "Welcome Stranger."

2000th Vet Film

Sawtelle Veterans Administration Center will hold a celebration honoring the 2000th film to be screened at the post tomorrow. First film shown was the George Arliss starrer "The Millionaire" back in 1928. Since that time Sawtelle has acquired a 1500-seat theatre. Picture to be shown at celebration tomorrow will be Warners' "Devotion."

STATE AND CITY MUSIC SUBSIDY IS PROPOSED

State and municipal subsidy of music will be proposed by Union Activities Committee of Local 47, AFM, at next general membership meeting on April 22. Committee will make proposal to membership that resolution be adopted requesting appointment of a group to study possibilities, preparatory steps and presentation of plan to municipality of Los Angeles, and presentation of a fine arts Bill to State Legislature.

Committee is circularizing membership to assure presence of a quorum (150). If carried, it will go to the executive board for action. Latter group would appoint necessary committee.

L.A. County already appropriates $50,000 annually for support of certain music projects, including the County band. Some unionites see present arrangement being jeopardized by attempt to add to the load. Some within the union have tried discouraging what are regarded as "impractical" schemes. However, proposals cannot be pigeonholed without infraction of union rules that permit voicing at membership meets and vote if quorum is present.

Survey Music Lands Leeds Music Deal

Survey Music, Inc., group planning nationwide polling of pre-publication reaction to songs via special recordings released to select group of 600 disc jockeys, landed its first account yesterday with signing of Leeds Music. Survey will immediately start cutting platter on new Leeds tune, "That's My Home," by Sid Robbins. Johnny Gluskin, eastern rep of Survey, due to arrive from New York today. He is reportedly carrying confirmations from Robbins, Shapiro-Bernstein and Santly-Joy, trio of pubs, for similar deals with Survey.

Mitchum Busy

Robert Mitchum finishes his role in RKO's "What Nancy Wanted" today and moves over to Metro tomorrow for completion of his chores in "You Were There."

REP WORKS 10 PIX IN APRIL, BIGGEST SKED IN MORE THAN A YEAR

Start of seven pictures during month of April will give Republic its heaviest shooting schedule in more than a year. In addition to new films taking off, trio currently are at work, holdovers from March.

"Stagecoach to Denver" second "Red Ryder," got under way yesterday with Allan Lane starring and A. G. Springsteen directing. "The Plainsman and the Lady" starts tomorrow. This is Bill Elliott-Vera Hruba Ralston co-starrer, with Joe Kane producer-directing.

"GI War Brides" rolls April 17, under direction of George Blair, and "Santa Fe Sunset," third of company's Magnacolor westerns, goes before cameras April 19, Lesley Selander directing under producership of Lou Gray.

John Wayne's first producer-star film, "The Angel and the Outlaw," goes April 21, James Edward Grant directing, and Roy Rogers' "Shine On Texas Moon" on April 26. Frank McDonald directs this, and Eddy White produces. Alfred Santell's production, "That Brannon Girl," rolls April 29, James Dunn and Mona Freeman enacting two leads.

Three now in work include "Earl Carroll's Sketchbook" "The Crimson Ghost" and "Under Nevada Skies."

Advance Bookings Listed for Orpheum

Advance booking dates lined up for the Orpheum to May 7 include Jack Wynn's Atomic Illusions, magic revue, coming in April 16. Earl "Fatha" Hines and his orchestra, plus Harry "The Hipster" Gibson on a return date, come in April 23 for one week. Ralph Edwards' "Truth or Consequences" radio program takes over April 30, with the King Cole Trio following May 7.

Mooney Inspects 'Pen'

Martin Mooney returned yesterday from five days at San Quentin, where he did research for picture he will produce for RKO under tag of "Prison Story." Picture deals with veteran prisoners attempting to reform young inmates.

Ritz New Owl Sked

Regular Saturday midnight shows have been scheduled for the Fox Ritz theatre, starting April 13. House previously has had Saturday night owl shows, starting around 11 p.m. sweeter. The Continent is hungry for American pictures and the demand can be met immediately with re-issues of films that have long since run their course in this country but have never yet been seen in Europe because of the war.

Italy was opened to American films just last week. Controversy between Norway exhibs and American film companies over rentals, which had held up showing of American pictures for months, has been settled and imports are due to start May 1.

Re-issues are reported being readied by 20th-Fox and Metro. Cecil Cone, head of United Artists foreign department here, is now huddling in New York with company heads on getting together product for the European market.

Significant is the fact that the toppers of various film companies have been huddling in London. Also, announcement by Mary Pickford, made in London, that she is going into Germany in the interests of Comet Productions. With the Rank interests just winding session and getting the new United World set-up into action the toughest competition for foreign business that the industry has seen is in prospect.

The current foreign department activity was foreshadowed by Eric Johnston's statement last month that he was concentrating on raising foreign revenue to 50 per cent from its present 35 per cent.

MacArthur Hands Out 5-Star Oscar

Tokyo, April 11.—Japanese film industry was awarded a five-star Oscar today. In a report to the War Department, Gen. Douglas MacArthur rated the Jap-made "Meiji Brothers" as "the finest motion picture produced since the beginning of the occupation." Second best, according to MacArthur's one-man Academy Awards, was "Five Guys from Tokyo," which features Japan's five leading comedians.

Gallic Sinatra Set For Swank U.S. Preem

New York, April 11. — Charles Trenet, the Gallic Sinatra recently imported from Paris by William Morris office, makes U.S. bow at Embassy Club April 25. French crooner is getting swank sendoff at $20 per preem. On guarantee and percentage deal he will net more than $2,000 weekly.

MPAA Sets Prod's Trial For Violating Ad Ban

Howard Hughes faces expulsion trial before the Motion Picture Association of America board of directors in New York April 23 unless halting use of disapproved and unsubmitted advertising for "The Outlaw." Notice to this effect was sent to producer via letter from Carl E. Milliken, secretary of MPAA, this week. In connection with the notice to Hughes, charged with "violating the staudards of good taste of the Association's advertising Code," Eric Johnston, MPAA prexy, said:

"Mr. Hughes submitted advertising which could not be approved under the provisions of our code to which, as a member of the Association, he voluntarily subscribed.

Albert Dekker signed with Mark Hellinger for a lead role in "The Killers" which will be released by Universal.

DINAH SHORE LOSES VOICE DURING NBC EASTERN HOOKUP

Dinah Shore lost her voice through an attack of laryngitis last night during eastern show broadcast of her "Open House" program on NBC. Singer had aired three songs and was in midst of dialog when her voice cracked. Bing Crosby, waiting to do his own show, volunteered to sing Miss Shore's last number, "Summertime," but was stymied because arrangement was not in his key.

Vic Arnold, violinist, saved the situation with a violin rendition of the song aided by the Ken Lane Choral Group. Warbler's condition was attributed to overwork. In recent weeks, besides making records, she had been working in Metro's "Till The Clouds Roll By" and Walt Disney's "Bongo."

'Years' Sets MG Record

New York, April 11.—"The Green Years" wound up the first week at the Music Hall with $131,837 and a total of 142,935 admissions. Gross establishes new high Metro record at the Hall.

WILLIAM Boyd, of the "Hopalong Cassidy" series, has entered the Gower Gulch "song versus saddle" feud. He points out that in previous announcements he has panned the singing cowboy, quoting an interview to the effect that "I can't sing a note and I don't strum on a guitar. And I dare you to show me a real cowhand who can. These other gandy dancers on the screen nowadays aren't making cowboy movies. They're turning out Western musicals." Boyd has also declared that "I'm not in the picture business—I make Westerns." He added a few jolts against the wearing of what he calls "red, white and blue costumes," and added some of the fancy getups of Western players would have stampeded the cattle if worn by real cowhands. And a nasty crack about "saddle-sore Sinatras." On latest reports both brands of cowpokes were doing all right at the box office, but the feud is getting bitter. It's "Here comes a singing cowboy, gang. Don't shoot till you see the white of his tonsils."

Under present system Gillette holds sole authority over film studio musicians. He is responsible to none, including Local 47 here, except the International.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The Polish charge that German scientists in Spain are working on an atomic bomb, radar and other new means of warfare, if this can be documented, may change our attitude on the situation within that country. At any rate, we have decided to back the Polish charge insofar as it may admit of new evidence. If this sensational charge, the holding of German assets within the country, and the harboring there of sought Nazis, can be substantiated, then we can present United Nations demands upon Franco for action. Until this evidence is presented and proved, we hold to the position that breaking relations will not be effective. Our position, however, is not so strong in the council at this moment, as that of the opposition. Five of the council members, the Soviet, Poland, Mexico, Australia and Brazil, already do not maintain relations, and France wants to break, so that we are with the minority of the eleven. The council sessions should, however, serve one purpose: help determine whether Franco is aiding the Nazis at this time.

CAST—Tom Conway, Rita Corday, Vince Barnett, Jane Greer, Elisha Cook, Jr., Emory Parnell, Al Bridge, Esther Howard, Jean Brooks, Paul Brooks, Jason Robards, Morgan Wallace, Lucien Prival.

TRADESHOWN at RKO studios, Hollywood, Calif., April 9, 1946. Running time: 63 MINS.

One of the better items to entertainingly bob up in the "Falcon" series, and film will roundly please on the lower rung of the double bills, for which it was made.

Yarn has enough plot-substance to keep it a meaty mystery, but its best feature is the rapid pace of the telling, done with much more gusto and glib humor than usually encountered. There are several highly novel story twists, and the background is more colorful than drab, with action sprinting from race track through nitery, posh hotel, swimming club, radio station and winding up in quiet bedroom.

Tom Conway seems to enjoy himself thoroughly in title role, old hat trouping now to him. In several of the sequences he might have been trifle less superior and cocksure, but in the round characterization was right, and winning. Opposite, Rita Corday, had little to do but tremulously express her fears, but when she was permitted to pause and coo with Conway romantically, she altogether stood up to part's demands.

Thespically, Elisha Cook, Jr., strolled off with honors in hip pocket. Cast as neurotic radio disc jockey, part was porker-fat when given him, but he added just the proper nuances to really enrich and make credible the part.

This time the "Falcon" decides to aid damsel who appears to be in some dank, mysterious danger and promptly finds himself knee-deep in pilfered pearls, knifed cadavers and assorted threats. Windup isn't too surprising, but that doesn't matter due to pleasing telling of the story and the attractive performances.

Vince Barnett is back with another of his stock portraits of alternately brassy and stupid stooge of the amateur sleuth. Jane Greer very good as a nitery chirp, and Al Bridge properly bumptious as the police inspector, habitually duped by Conway. Emory Parnell has some moments as a ploddily ineffective private-eye.

Production was fine for a low-budgeter serial item, and Ray McCarey's direction kept the bloom on the thing constantly and the pace rightly speedy. Paul Yawitz's screenplay had rather a few lines far brighter and situations far neater than normally found in a dualler.

C. Bakaleinikoff's score heightened effectiveness of the more dramatic moments, and Frank Redman's camera work was excellent.

Scott's 'Fear'

Kay Scott yesterday was given the femme lead in "Fear in the Night" at Pine-Thomas. DeForest Kelly will have the male star spot, both youngsters being given their initial starring roles.

Alias Billy The Kid

(Western)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Producer, Bennett Cohen. Director, Thomas Carr. Screenplay, Earle Snell and Betty Burbridge. Story, Norman Sheldon. Photography, Bud Thackery. Musical director, Raoul Kraushaar. Film editor, Charles Craft. Sound, Fred Stahl. Art, Fred A. Ritter. Sets, John McCarthy, Jr. and Charles Thompson. Special effects, Howard Lydecker and Theodore Lydecker. Makeup, Bob Mark.

CAST — Sunset Carson, Peggy Stewart, Tom London, Roy Barcroft, Russ Whiteman, Tom Chatterton, Tex Terry, Pierce Lyden, James R. Linn, Stanley Price, Edward Cassidy.

How nearly can a femme come to stealing a western film? Well, probably as nearly as is possible is what Peggy Stewart achieves in this Sunset Carson starrer. And being the perfect gent that all true sagebrush stars are, Carson does nothing to thwart the lady's score.

In the main, "Alias Billy the Kid" (title is complete misnomer, "Kid" character not even figuring in a mention) is strong, attractive western fare. Carson turns in his best performance in some time. His riding and Colt-capers are getting slicker and the physically biggest of all Hoss Heroes is getting gradually less awkward in fisticuff sequences and at speaking lines.

But it is Miss Stewart who holds the interest and eyes in what is undoubtedly one of largest parts ever given a gal in an oats opera. She does as much camera-facing as the star and is the pivot around which yarn was evolved. A vet western performer, she emerged in this one with display of acting talent which definitely earmarks her as capable of far better vehicles. Always in past one of more active gals who can really handle a hoss, she weighs in here with strong, smooth dramatics.

As blithely as though no one had done it before, Carson starts out to "establish the Law west of the Pecos." There, Miss Stewart is leading a gang of hardy hossmen who get in the hair of Roy Barcroft, Stanley Price and Tom Chatterton, masquerading as honest cattle dealers. The femme has been branded by the base canard that she's leading outlaws and rustlers, but Carson is one one reel behind the audience in learning she's but a good, clean lass trying to avenge her murdered daddy. Once Carson, who keeps secret his Ranger identity, gets the layout, he rips through a welter of shooting, riding and fist-flinging and established the Law—'til next time, anyway.

Tom London, most familiarly a sheriff in these things, acquits self well as comedy stooge. Russ Whiteman and Tex Terry are standouts among the lesser performers.

Producer Bennett gave film thoroughly good habilaments and particularly fine countryside, which scenically scores for itself. Thomas Carr, at directorial helm, took full advantage of opportunities, kept pace perky, salted in full ration of he-mannish action, and made much of the spoken-dramatics, especially during Miss Stewart's strong scenes. Bud Thackery's camera work was fine throughout, and especially so in his handling of chases.

Moon Over Montana

(Western)

MONOGRAM RELEASE. Producer-director, Oliver Drake. Screenplay, Louise Rousseau. Story, Oliver Drake. Photography, Harry Neumann. Film editor, Ace Herman. Sets, Vin Taylor. Musical director, Frank Sanucci. Dialog director, Ande Lamb. Assistant director, Eddie Davis. Production manager, Glenn Cook.

CAST — Jimmy Wakely, Lee "Lasses" White, Jennifer Holt, Jack Ingram, Louise Arthur, Stanley Blystone, Brad Slavin, Terry Frost, Eddie Majors, Arthur Smith, Woody Woodel and His Rangers.

Here's proof anew of soundness of adage which holds that plots of oats operas must be presented through action and not talk. Too much good time is wasted in "Moon Over Montana" having the small cast troop from room to room, chatter-boxing story to conclusion rather than resorting to pounding hoofs and barking six-guns.

Jimmy Wakely did not look too happy springing into the saddle so seldom and restrained from doing much shooting. As an oatuner, he isn't given much chance to chant, either, confined by the script to but several short songs, backed not very conspicuously by Woody Woodel's quartet of fiddle-scrapers and guitar-strummers. Lee "Lasses" White was afforded little in the way of comedy material, but he rates a nod for his effort at mugging.

Yarn is draped around efforts of small, independent cattlemen to keep conniving group of hypocritical crooks from seizing control of spurline railroad and freeze them out of chance to ship their steers. Femme, Jennifer Holt, holds railroad and planned at outset to sell to villains. Wakely and his righteous fellows finally convince her of true circumstances, but unfortunately it's largely through oral persuasion and not demonstration of action.

Stanley Blystone and Brad Slavin turn in standard performances as the slick, store-suited heavies, and Terry Frost and Eddie Majors are properly sullen and crude as rough accomplices. Louise Arthur, as second femme, would have been a miracle woman had she squeezed any laughs out of wretched "comedy" material given her.

Oliver Drake's production was fair, but his direction kept pace pawky and of course there is matter of lack of robust action. When reviewed titters were twice drawn from slice of audience by dramatics which were permitted to get rather ham-handed. Harry Neumann deserves mention for wholly creditable camera handling.

Mercey Appointment Formally Announced

Washington, April 11.—Appointment of Arch A. Mercey to be motion picture consultant to OWMR, reported Wednesday morning in "Daily Variety," has been formally announced here. Strange Conquest

(Melodrama)

UNIVERSAL RELEASE. Producer, Marshall Grant. Director, John Rawlins. Screenplay, Roy Chanslor. Original story, Lester Cole, Carl Dreher. Photography, Charles Van Enger. Editor, Philip Cahn. Musical director, Paul Sawtell. Art direction, Jack Otterson, Martin Obzina. Set decorations, Russell A. Gausman, Edward R. Robinson. Sound, Bernard B. Brown, Robert Pritchard. Gowns, Vera West. Special photography, D. S. Horsley.

CAST — Stars Jane Wyatt. Supporting players, Lowell Gilmore, Julie Bishop, Peter Cookson, Milburn Stone, Samuel S. Hinds, Abner Biberman.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 11, 1946. Running time: 63 MINS.

"Strange Conquest" is run-of-the-mill stuff which rates okay for supporter fare but lacks the ingredients for more than average response. Starring Jane Wyatt, actress, apart from fleeting appearance in opening sequence, doesn't show up in story until film is more than half finished. Plot leans to the clinical, in Sumatran jungle, but enough exotic atmosphere is present to evoke audience interest and cast without exception offers convincing performances.

Narrative concerns activities of Lowell Gilmore, a celebrated scientist, to find antidote to a certain form of deadly fever in Sumatra. He asks for an experienced bacteriologist, and is sent an earnest young doctor who lacks all field experience necessary. They quarrel, young doctor sets up his own research lab, unknowingly discovers serum, which is revealed too late to save him, when he submits himself as human guinea pig to try out Gilmore's serum. Gilmore, in attempt to make amends, tries to take young doctor's identity, so he can get credit. Story thereafter brings Jane Wyatt, a bacteriologist, to scene, later arrival of Julie Bishop, widow of doctor who sacrificed himself.

Plot bogs down occasionally, but in the main John Rawlins maintains fairly good tempo with his direction. Marshall Grant endowed film with praiseworthy production values, and Charles Van Enger's photography is first class, with other technical departments matching up. Roy Chanslor wrote screenplay from original by Lester Cole and Carl Dreher.

Miss Wyatt, though starred, has comparatively little to do. She delivers nicely, though, and so does Gilmore, who is suavely ingratiating. Peter Cookson as young doctor rates good hand, Milburn Stone is satisfactory as lab technician and Miss Bishop makes most of rather thankless role. Samuel S. Hinds and Abner Biberman complete cast.

ATLANTIC MONTHLY AND METRO JOIN IN WRITING CONTEST

In a joint hunt for new writing talent Metro and the Atlantic Monthly yesterday announced that during the next two years prizes will be awarded to authors of Atlantic "firsts."

The stories must be from 2000 to 20,000 words and must be accepted by the Atlantic as "firsts." Prizes of $1500 and $750 will be awarded for yarns appearing between January and June and between July and December of 1946 and 1947.

Metro will have the option of buying the film rights of any of the stories for $5000. Short plays and scenarios are not eligible to the competition.

Selection will be made by the editors of the Atlantic Monthly and their judgment will be final. The words "Atlantic First" must appear on the first page of each manuscript submitted.

Object of the awards is to encourage and promote new talent among ex-servicemen, college students and others starting in the freelance writing field.

Hillman-Shane-Breyer Drops Its Last Third

Hillman-Shane-Breyer Advertising Agency reverts to its old firm name of Hillman-Shane starting May 1 when Breyer joins the Brisacher Agency as an account executive. Operation will continue as before under guidance of David Hillman, and H-S retains full client list except for one account going with Breyer. Agency moves to new headquarters in the Bendix Building June 1.

'End' Begins Soon

Shooting on Metro's "The Beginning or the End" is expected to start in about two weeks with Robert Walker and Beverly Tyler teamed as the romantic leads.

Nelson in 'House'

Ruth Nelson was signed yesterday for a featured character role in Sol Lesser's "The Red House."

SENATE COMMITTEE VOTES OK ON HYDE

Washington, April 11.—The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today reported out to the Senate recommendation of Rosel Hyde, present FCC general counsel to fill the Republican vacancy on the Commission. Hyde, an Idaho Republican with 17 years at FCC probably will be confirmed by the upper chamber tomorrow.

THE GRAPEVINE: Clark Gable is trying to negotiate a new contract with Metro although his present pact has a considerable time to run. His agents admitted they were trying to arrange a deal to take the place of the one now in effect, but would not tell what is being asked. D.D.T. has been informed, however, that Gable is asking the privilege of making one outside picture a year. In this respect it would seem the cards are stacked against him as Metro is as jealous of its stars as Tiffany of its diamond bric-a-brac and is not in the habit of loaning out its topliners . . . Tony Quinn had an expensive experience with the sea yesterday. Was basking on the sands when a big wave rolled in and swept out with his trousers, loaded with $250 in cash . . . Jim Warren, as an introduction to starring in RKO's new western series, giddyapped through six roles in two weeks on the lot . . . Tough casting problem is confronting Robert S. Golden, preparing his production "Eddie and the Archangel Mike." Has to find five actors to play a quintet of brothers . . . Next week the bookies weep—Ben Blue takes off for Chicago to open at the Chez Paree April 17 . . . Metro cops Life mag's Movie of the Week section twice in a row. "Vacation from Marriage," British-made but Metro-released, got the spread this week. "Green Years" occupies the space next week . . . Walter Lantz's "William Tell," now in production, is his 350th cartoon in 18 years at Universal.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Paste this in your thesaurus of last-laughs. One of the town's sharpies, who squired starlets around for their publicity value and pocketed many a dubious dollar, finally got took himself. He entrusted some jewelry to another sticky-fingered lad for appraisal. Gone! . . . On the "Life with Father" set at Warners, Russel Crouse, who writes platinum-plated dialogue for the New York stage, lowered himself to the literary gutter yesterday and gave birth to a pun. Said he once played the one-line role of a doctor in "Life with Father" just to see "if there was a doctor in the Crouse" . . . Merle Oberon has 26 costume changes in International's "Bella Donna" most of them of the my-my type . . . The Jean Hersholts have been married 32 years as of yesterday . . . Eddie Albert and Margo set sail today aboard his ketch Cynthia . . . ZaSu Pitts' son, Don, returned yesterday after three years in the AAF counter-intelligence in Europe . . . Startled and stumped the other night was Gary Cooper, who plays a professor of physics in "Cloak and Dagger," when his 8-year-old daughter Maria asked: "Daddy, what is an atom?" And Daddy didn't have any script around to help him out! . . . Irene Dunne, with considerable shuddering, had to play a scene with a snake in "Anna and the King of Siam." The snake dropped from the ceiling close to where she stood, which was supposed to be a happy omen, with the natives in the background registering joy. On the film, however, it was discovered that the "natives" registered nothing but horror. So the scene had to be cut, and Miss Dunne's ordeal was in vain.

CALL SHEET: VINCENT PRICE continued his lectures on "Contemporary Art" before the Council of Allied Artists last night . . . RITA HAYWORTH was handed an eviction notice but recovered quickly. She bought a new home and will move in later this month . . . DICK HAYMES checked in just long enough for his airshow and then returned to Palm Springs. What's the desert got that Hollywood hasn't the last two days? . . . BENNIE KRUEGER observes that a man of twenty thinks he can save the world, and at thirty wishes he could just save part of his salary . . . OSA MASSEN received a special award for citizenship when she appeared before the Hollywood High school citizenship class . . . JEAN GILLIE, with two other producers in her family, was set for a role in the Ben Bogeaus-Casey Robinson production, "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber." Her husband is Jack Bernhard, her father-in-law, Joseph Bernhard . . . WILLIAM FAIRBANKS CRUMP, 16-month-old son of Owen Crump and the former Lucille Fairbanks, was christened the other day, with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., as godfather and Crump's sister, Mrs. R. M. Henderson, as godmother.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Jackie Gleason's hilarious takeoff "The Last Weekend" at Slapsy Maxie's owed part of its smoothness to the parodied music from Miklos Rosza's score for "Lost Weekend." Rosza came over to the nitery before the opening, and rehearsed the 12-piece orchestra and showed them how to do a good job on ribbing his own music . . . One of Uncle Sam's favorite nephews must be Oscar Hammerstein II, who has five hits running on Broadway and a sixth, "Annie Get Your Gun," opening in a couple of weeks . . . Irving Carlin tossed a party in the Gold Room at the Ambassador to let his friends celebrate his leaving show business after 25 years in theatre operation. Carlin recently sold his Alvarado theatre to Rosenblum and Hamilton for a reported $95,000 and will devote his time to handling his bowling alley interests. Not a very quiet place to retire, among the crashing of pinballs . . . When Al Jarvis went to the hospital the other day, he pulled a switch and sent girls in his office flowers . . . Lyman Smith, KFI recording head, walked into a line's den—that's a pun, son—and joined it, thinking it was nylons or butter. He was somewhat surprised to find it was a lineup for smallpox vaccination, but stayed to see it through . . . Which brings us to a final reminder: Vaccination today will keep smallpox away. And tonight, from 6 to 9 p.m., is your last chance for free vaccination at Daily Variety's offices.——D.D.T.

FITZPATRICK SIGNS TO MAKE METRO MUSIC SHORTS

James A. FitzPatrick, who has produced "FitzPatrick Travel-talks" for Metro for past 13 years, has closed deal with studio to make series of from six to 12 one-reel musical shorts, to be known as "Famous Music Masters." Negotiations now are on for films, which will be musical overtures of world's most renowned composers, to be in Technicolor, and will carry highest budget of any Metro shorts.

Producer leaves for New York today, in effort to line up several Metropolitan Opera stars for series, first of which will roll at studio within three weeks. First three will be based on lives of Franz Schubert, Ludwig Beethoven and Franz Liszt, with Hans Strauss, Frederick Chopin and George Handel to complete initial six.

Series is modernized version of shorts FitzPatrick produced as an indie producer about 15 years ago, and which he personally booked in all key situations throughout country.

Four Flacks Added To Goldwyn Dept.

Completing the reorganization of his department, William Hebert yesterday added four new publicists in the Samuel Goldwyn flackery. Signing on were George Marakas, former Daily Variety mugg; Bill Latham, Dorothy Campbell and Mark Freeman. Marakas has been assigned as unit man on "The Best Years of Our Lives," currently before the cameras.

Divvy on Col Pfd.

New York, April 11.—Columbia Pictures has declared quarterly dividend of $1.06 on the $4.25 preferred stock, payable May 15 to stock of record May 1.

We don't explain 'em, we just print 'em. If those pluses on some of the Hooperated Wed.-Thurs. shows have you confused just charge it off to the vagaries of the system. Yes, we know, ratings should be on the downgrade generally when balm is in the air and gas is plentiful but it so happens that Hooper's checkers have found such reasoning fallacious in certain time slots. Make of it what you will but here they are:

Bob Crosby 7.2, up .1; "Dr. Christian" 16.9, up 4.1; Eddie Cantor 17.2, no change; Frank Sinatra 10.9, off 1; "Holiday for Music" 6.1 (first rating); Jack Carson 9.8, off .2; Kay Kyser (first half) 18.1, up 1.9, (second half) 14, up 2.9; Lum and Abner 5.4, up .8; Supper Club 9.9, off 3.4; Abbott and Costello 17.7, up 2.7; Bing Crosby 23.2, up 1.5; Dinah Shore 14.5, off .5; Burns and Allen 12.4, off 2.1; Jack Haley 19.5, up 1.5; Dick Powell 3.8, up .4; Rudy Vallee 12.4, off 1.1; "Suspense" 14.7, up .1.

Top favorites with Coast dialers are "The McGee's" riding high at 30.7, followed by Jack Benny one point away and Bob Hope. The others tag along in this sequence: Red Skelton, Fred Allen, Walter Winchell, Screen Guild Players, Charlie McCarthy, "The Whistler," "Gildersleeve," "Can You Top This," "Blondie," Fanny Brice, Bob Burns, "Mr. D.A."

Chain breaks . . . The Ford clan is said to be none too happy with the Bob Crosby show and may do something about it . . . Take your choice of these two reports from the east—Hildegarde has been dropped by Raleigh or Hildy has been renewed for 26 weeks. Her rating hasn't been too satisfying especially since Red Skelton moved into her Tuesday spot and almost doubled her audience pull . . . The script on last night's Dinah Shore program was the handiwork of Harry Von Zell, with an assist from the writers . . . Harry Sosnick batons the summer musical stand-in for "People Are Funny," which takes a seven-week loafing spell . . . Joe Cotten could have the Chase & Sanborn summer spot at the head of a dramatic series if he didn't choose to pass the summer in England . . . A back-east relative of Joe Rines can't understand why Hollywood takes fright at such a minor thing as smallpox. Nothing short of colossal or stupendous-pox should feaze us, she believes .

Hitch hikes . . . American Home Products, through Ruthrauff & Ryan, will put a five-time weekly half hour audience participation series on CBS along the Coast . . . "Murder Is My Hobby" loses its sponsor (Knox) April 28 but Mutual may carry it as a house job . . . Deal is simmering for a mystery show to take the Amos 'n' Andy summer time . . . Sam Fuller due in next week to audition a show for Sherman & Marquette . . . Helen Bushee now taking dictation from Nate Tufts at R & R . . . Armed Forces Radio Service interviewing radio men for its Tokyo station. Three of the jobs pay around $5,000 a year . . . Warren Justice, late of Don Lee, now sales manager for Jack Rourke Productions.

By RADIE HARRIS

The other night at "Show Boat" when Carol Bruce as "Julie" has to say to Jan Clayton as "Magnolia," "Good-bye, 'Nolie,' write to me and let me know how everything is going," she got so choked up, she could hardly speak. Suddenly, they weren't "Julie's" lines at all, but her own, as she said them to the dear friend who was leaving her that night. For to Carol and everyone else in the company, who had grown to love her during a 13 weeks' association, this was Jan's farewell performance. After tonight, there'd be no more "Make Believe I Love You," for on the morrow, she would meet Bobby Lerner in the presence of Judge Eder and say, "for to tell the truth, I do!"

In a simple, grey chiffon afternoon gown, with a tiara of yellow jonquils framing her luminous eyes, and carrying a matching muff of jonquils, in lieu of a bridal bouquet, Jan looked like a picture by Fragonard (through the courtesy of MGM!). After a brief honeymoon, she is Hollywood-bound on the 27th, but she'll detour en route for a stop-over in New Mexico to collect her six-year-old, Sandra, and take her back to her new home in Beverly Hills, where she'll break the news to her that, come June, she'll meet her new Daddy.

AD AND SUBTRACT: Lynn Farnol conceived the amusing idea of using as an ad slogan for "Kid from Brooklyn": "DANNY'S BACK — AND AGNES (the horse) HAS GOT HIM!" But since the same advertising agency ran the ads on "Adventure," the gentlemen were NOT amused!

ITEMS DROPPED FROM THE BROADWAYSIDE: Miriam Hopkins' three changes of Valentina wardrobe in "Laura" will set back Hunt Stromberg, Jr., $1750 . . . The very sotto voce reason for Leona Maricle's Algonquin visit was to confab with John C. Wilson about appearing in Noel Coward's "Present Laughter," the London importation that is returning Clifton Webb from his Hollywood exile . . . Libby Holman, who denies the rumor that she is suing Robert Wilder for "Written on the Wind," has quietly adopted a brother for her Reynolds heir, "Topper" . . . Millard Mitchell thumbed down the Playwright's offer to take over the Wendell Corey role in the road tour of "Dream Girl" to play opposite Luba Malina in "The Temporary Mrs. Smith" . . . Memo to Eddie Robinson: At the Gaugin exhibit, currently being held at the Wildenstein Galleries, two of the rarest paintings are on loan from Oscar Homolka . . . Mrs. Dwight Deere Wiman, off to Las Vegas to mark "finis" to her 30-year marriage to her producer husband. During her six weeks' absence, her daughter, Mrs. Bill Carter, and their young son will holiday here at her East 54th St. apt. . . . Although he gets no individual credit, the author of that ingenius, "Willie, the Whale" episode in Disney's "Make Mine Music" is Erwin Graham, whose wife, Lillian, is Danny Kaye's "Girl Friday."

VIVA LA MYRTIL! Leave it to Odette Myrtil never to have heard of two words, "im possible!" Not only did she unearth a sublet in N.Y. in the most convenient neighborhood, but she also found a summer cottage in Weston, with all the swimming and bathing plivileges of the Cobs Mill Inn AND she has leased her Laurel Canyon home, starting May 1, to Ethel Barrymore.

EVERYONE WANTS TO GET IN THE ACT: At a projection room screen-ing of "A Night in Casablanca," UA invited all the comics in town and had a laugh meter to clock the howls, while a very busy flashlighter (a spy from David Loew's, no doubt!) got a close-up of everyone's tonsils. Henny Youngman, Peter Donald, Billy Gilbert, Bennett Cerf, Milton Berle, et al, laughed uproariously even before the picture started (the warm-up!) and at a given signal, stopped in unison—all but one ad-libber, who continued to solo it. Whereupon, Peter Donald cracked, "Ah, a free lance!"

IDLE THOUGHT: Funny, how when any screen celeb is in the audience of a Broadway play, everyone in the cast is in a dither of excitement. Yet, when a big producer—the Aladdin, whose magic lamp can really transform their lives, is out front, no one is even aware of it. I couldn't help but think about it the other evening, when, returning for a second view of "The Red Mill," I spotted Nate Blumberg in the first row. In spite of the fact, however, that no one knew his identity, the performances were as fresh and spontaneous as the preem, 200 nights ago.

Sonja Henie heading here June 15th for the Joe Louis-Billy Conn bout . . . Cynthia Rogers and Paul McNamara, who have been separated by 3000 miles this past year, will widen the distance permanently, when Cynthia planes out for Las Vegas any day now . . . Cedric Hardwicke, Louis Calhern, Walter Huston, Raymond Massey, Martha Scott, Buff Cobb, John Hertz, Jr., John Beal, Helen Craig, Richard Aldrich, Dennis King, Fanny Holtzman, Beatrice Straight, Dorothy Hammerstein, Norah Howard, Claude Alph and Susan Douglas came to Gertrude Lawrence's backstage carnival, which netted the Red Cross over $1000—and Gertie, two days in bed to recuperate from her tireless effort in insuring its success . . . Lawrence Tibbett, who Clippers abroad next month to tour all of Italy, and perhaps Frankfort and Paris (a combined concert, opera and USO itinerary) will revive "Emperor Jones" in Chicago this fall . . . Add performances on your "must see" list: Katharine Cornell as "Candida."

BRITISH SCOPHONY NOT READY FOR CONSENT DEAL

New York, April 11.—Scophony, Ltd., of England, by oral agreement with the Justice Department, withdrew motion advanced yesterday for prior right to examine W. G. Elcock, Scophony director on the grounds the U.S. Government has no jurisdiction over the English company.

Government motion for examination of Elcock has been postponed until next Tuesday, after which Scophony can move for a dismissal.

It is believed that Scophony's action in withdrawing its motion disproves rumors that the television anti-trust suit is to be settled via a consent decree, since the defendants evidently are unwilling to negotiate with the government. If Scophony wins the motion for dismissal, the case against Scophony of America will be unaffected. Latter will still be a defendant with Paramount and General Precision.

equipment will be flown to and from the various locations. Company travel may also include a jaunt to New Orleans, locations in that area now being considered.

Details of transport are being worked out with Johnny Myers, executive assistant to Howard Hughes, whereby a chartered TWA Constellation will be used for the trips. Cast and crew for the picture will total 35.

Production heads at 20th-Fox figure as much as 15 days shooting time will be saved by employing air transport in making the "O.S.S." story.

Director Henry Hathaway, Otto Lang, second unit director, and John Monks, Jr., writer, leave today by TWA Constellation to scout locations. Filming, which will be entirely away from studio, starts May 6.

San Francisco Acclaims "From This Day Forward"

"Romantic and other readjustments by the discharged war veterans have been problems variously posed on the screen, but FROM THIS DAY FORWARD is the daring pioneer film to bring up the subject of ex-soldier unemployment."

Fred Johnson, San Francisco Call-Bulletin

"FROM THIS DAY FORWARD at GOLDEN GATE combines emotion and realism. Sharp cast tells story vividly... It is a sort of 'Seventh Heaven' with some sharp realistic angles... Delightful Joan Fontaine now certainly to be numbered among the very topmost of emotional actresses, gives a rich, subdued and sympathetic performance."

Claude La Belle, San Francisco News

"... a film that is humorous, heartwarming and produced for adult intelligence... MISS FONTAINE draws a significantly etched part in this. Her performance is true and effective... STEVENS, a comparatively new screen personality, acquits himself with distinction as the discharged Army man seeking employment. His portrayal should put him 'way up there' on the list of current leading men... It's the familiarity of events and characters developed by smooth direction that make you believe in the picture..."

HUGHES FACES EXPULSION BY MPAA OVER 'OUTLAW'

approved, Mr. Hughes has nevertheless insisted on using rejected material. He has also used objectionable advertising which was never submitted to the Association. In so doing, he has challenged the Association's system of self-regulation."

Johnston declared further that "through codes on production, advertising and titles, the industry has its own machinery to assure acceptable moral standards in motion picture entertainment. As head of the Motion Picture Association, I intend to do everything possible to see that these standards are maintained, not lowered."

Howard Hughes last night issued the following statement:

"I think it is about time people quit trying to tell the American public what it can see, read, or listen to. The public apparently wants the motion picture, 'The Outlaw,' because in its first week in Los Angeles, one hundred thousand people saw it. The greatest number of people that ever entered those theatres in one week before was 52,000.

CHARGES SENT HUGHES

Following letter, signed by Milliken, was sent by air mail on April 9 to Hughes, care of Hughes Productions at 7020 Romaine street, Hollywood:

April 9, 1946

"Your conduct in connection with the advertising and exploitation of 'The Outlaw,' in the opinion of the Board of Directors of this Association, constitutes grounds for proceedings pursuant to article 16 of its by-laws for your suspension or expulsion from membership.

"You are charged with having openly and repeatedly violated article 14 of the by-laws, 'in relation to the observation and maintenance of standards of fair representation and good taste in the advertising of motion pictures,' contrary to the obligation voluntarily assumed by you, and thereby committed acts prejudicial to the best interests of the Association.

CLAIM 'GOOD TASTE' VIOLATION

"Advertising for 'The Outlaw' specified below and other advertising have been used by you contrary to the standards for fair representation and good taste in advertising adopted by this Association. Such advertising was not submitted to the Advertising Code Administration prior to its use, or if submitted was disapproved by the Advertising Code Administration, or, in the case of your appeal to the President of the Association, such advertising was, in his opinion objectionable, to wit:

"1. Advertisements appearing in the March 13 and March 15 issues of the Salt Lake City Desert News.

"2. Advertisements appearing in the March 21 and March 24 issues of the Chicago Sun.

L.A. ADS LISTED

"3. Advertisements appearing in the March 26, March 29, April 1 and April 3 issues of the Los Angeles Examiner, Los Angeles Daily News, Los Angeles Herald-Express and the Hollywood Citizen-News.

"4. The painting on billboards at present being displayed in Los Angeles.

"5. Advertisements furnished to Loew's theatre in Richmond, Virginia, for use in that city.

"6. The photographs of the 24-sheet poster used on the billboards in San Francisco in 1943 and removed after police court proceedings, which photographs appear in the February, 1946, issue of Pic magazine and the May, 1946, issue of She magazine in connection with publicity stories which contain misleading statements to the effect that 'The Outlaw' was finally approved under the Association's Production Code with no deletions therefrom.

TRIAL APRIL 23

"Accordingly, notice is hereby given you that in respect to your acts and conduct above stated, there will be a hearing before the Board of Directors at the principal office of the Association, 28 West 44th St., New York City, on April 23, 1946, at 2:30 p.m., or at an adjourned date therefrom, as may be ordered by the Board, unless before that date you have discontinued use of all disapproved and unsubmitted advertising and have notified the Board to this effect. You are entitled to appear, to be represented by counsel and to offer evidence at such hearings. The proceedings will be taken down in shorthand and transcribed at the expense of the Association.

"By direction of the Executive Committee."

Coleson Ends Tour Due To Death in Family

Bob Coleson, western rep of NAB, was forced to cancel his station relations tour of Coast and returned here yesterday to attend burial of his mother-in-law, Mrs. S. E. Davis, 76, who died in Santa Barbara April 9, of a heart attack. Interment was in Long Beach today.

CAPRA KICKS OFF HIS SKED MONDAY WITH 'LIFE'

"It's a Wonderful Life," Frank Capra's initial production for Liberty Films, rolls Monday. Capra also will direct the James Stewart-Donna Reed co-starrer. Film has been given a top budget and a 90-day shooting schedule, with 40 days of location shooting slated.

Group of 17 featured players include Lionel Barrymore, Thomas Mitchell, Henry Travers and H. B. Warner. RKO will release the picture late this year.

Two other Capra productions, currently in the hopper, are "No Other Man" and "The Friendly Persuasion."

LAST FREE VACCINATION DAY

room set aside for the purpose in Variety's office.

The vaccine has been difficult to obtain for several weeks, but a sufficient supply was assured by the Western Surgical Supply Co.

Recognizing the possibility of the spread of smallpox to Los Angeles—an outbreak of the disease having caused alarm in Seattle and San Francisco—the studios yesterday began the same measures as offered this week by Variety. Enterprise lined up its employes for vaccination yesterday; Selznick will follow suit today; Paramount, Monday, and other studios are expected to offer the same treatment next week.

To obtain free vaccination tonight you have only to present yourself at Daily Variety's offices from 6 to 9 p.m. and identify yourself as an employe of any branch of the amusement industries. Persons under 21 must have written consent from their parents or guardians.

FCC GETTING TOUGH WITH COMMERCIAL TELE APPLICANTS

Washington, April 11. — A new "get tough" policy on filing applications for commercial video stations was announced at FCC today. The commission warned bidders that hereafter it would accept only 100 per cent complete applications, adding that conditional grants for television operation were not to be issued where applications are incomplete — as in the case of FM.

Video applicants, however, will not have to answer in full all questions on equipment at this time. But they must bring up to date info on financial and other matters bearing on their qualifications as licensees.

A large percentage of the video bids in its files, FCC pointed out, are incomplete. The commission ruled that the bids must be brought up to date within the next 60 days in order to be considered. Applications found incomplete at the time of their processing must be brought up to date within 30 days. Those not completed by that time will be dismissed.

Where hearings are necessary, applicants are urged to supply FCC with up-to-date info on antennas, transmitter sites and coverage at least 10 days before the hearing.

Tom Gorman Moves To WB Branch Here

Tom Gorman, former field exploiteer for Warners in the Charlotte exchange area, has checked in at the Los Angeles branch to take on new duties as field public relations man in L.A. and San Francisco territories. Sam Clark, who did hold post, is now advertising and publicity tieup manager in studio publicity department.

Joslyn 'Rio' Top

Allyn Joslyn will move over from 20th-Fox to Columbia for lead chores in "Rio."

CINECOLOR ISSUES NEW STOCK TO RETIRE DEBTS

Cinecolor yesterday announced the completion of new financing for the purpose of retiring company indebtedness. One hundred and forty thousand shares of new common stock, giving the company 740,000 shares outstanding have been sold. The company realized $560,000 on the sale of the certificates.

New capital was procured through H. Hentz & Co., member of New York Stock Exchange, through sale of common stock to private interests.

In addition to new financing, corporation is to have additions to its management. New Board of Directors will consist of W. T. Crespinel, one of founders of company, Alan M. Gundelfinger, its technical advisor —both continuing on from old board. Coming in are William Loss, representing eastern interests, who will become general manager; A. Pam Blumenthal, eastern money man and member of New York Stock Exchange; and Graham L. Sterling, Jr., of local firm of O'Melveny & Myers, who will act as counsel of company.

Loss announced that proceeds of financing will be used to retire all indebtedness, augment working capital and research activities and pay for initial step in a major expansion program which will triple present capacity within six-month period. For first time, he said, major studios can be promised top quality prints, as many as 300 to 400.

Company does not plan any immediate building program, due to fact that when it built plant some years ago it planned for double its capacity at that time. New equipment has been ordered, however, which was to have been delivered in January, now probably won't arrive until later in year. At this time, company can actually realize on business it must now turn down, due to lack of processing facilities.

One Old Cat

Script of a new novel by H. Allen Smith, dealing with the adventures of a yellow tomcat who inherited a fortune and a big league baseball team, was delivered to Doubledays yesterday for publication June 6. Piece is titled "Rhubarb" and deal for Broadway musical show and picture rights is in work..

Pool Builders Will Make Tank Shorts

The Olympic Pool Company will produce a series of six regular 35m educational shorts on swimming during the next four months. Pictures will be slanted for theatre audiences and will carry no plugs for Olympic. The pool company is currently negotiating with several outstanding aquatic stars, including Johnny Weissmuller, to appear in the shorts.

INT STARTING FIRST PICTURE ON U LOT MONDAY

Marking the start of its production activity on the Universal lot, International's "Bella Donna" goes before the cameras there Monday. Film, budgeted in excess of $1,600,000, will be the second production under the International - Universal - United World Picture releasing set-up. The initial release, "The Dark Mirror," recently wound on the Goldwyn lot.

Edward Small, who packaged the story property to International with a completed script by Robert Thoeren will produce with William Goetz in overall charge. Heading the starring cast are Merle Oberon, George Brent, Charles Korvin and Paul Lukas. Irving Pichel will direct the film. Lucien Ballard handles the lensing chore with Frank Shaw as first assistant, James Pratt production manager, and George Golitzen, assistant, and Bernard Herzbrun, art director.

8 MAJORS TO FIGHT PETRILLO DEMANDS FOR MUSICIANS

crippling factor in production of motion pictures. Based on past performance wage increases in field of musicians and staff, under analysis, would approximate a 1,200 per cent rise." One company exec, unnamed, was quoted in statement as saying "surely collective bargaining can be reduced to an absurdity if either management or union attempts to enter negotiations on basis of amazing introductory proposals. Time is wasted, chances for agreement are reduced, and public itself becomes ultimate loser."

90 OR 50 MUSICIANS

When representatives of the eight majors meet in Pat Casey's office tomorrow, principal point of clash will be Petrillo's demand that 90 musicians be the minimum employed in the studios. Even if Petrillo backed down to a minimum of 50 musicians, it's believed the studios would regard it as unreasonable.

Under the old deal, five studios—Paramount, RKO, Columbia, Universal, Republic — paid for more time than was utilized, though Paramount's minimum previously was only 30 men, other four plants, 25.

Average musician under the old contract made $7,000 to $7,500 annually at these studios, it is claimed.

The New York Times joined the anti-Petrillo forces with an editorial stating that his demands "show he is determined to hold the championship for high-handedness among the union leaders."

Attending the meeting were Nicholas Schenck, Balaban, Nate Blumberg, Ned Depinet, W. C. Michel, Abe Schneider, Jack Cohn, and James McMahon, Republic secretary.

STANDARD RADIO SWITCHING TO BIG BANDS

By industry request, Standard Radio is effecting switch to bigger bands and fuller music on its transcriptions. Trend was seen coming in pop dance field, it's stated, and Standard was further convinced with letters received from broadcasters asking for heftier cleffing on its battery biscuits.

Already signed and working are Al Sack, with 34 musicians, and Paul Baron, with 36 pieces. Deals are also on with Dave Forrester, who will work with 36 instruments, and Spike Jones, using his new 32-piece aggregation. Latter pair are expected to sign with Standard this week.

Marks considerable departure for transcription firm in view of the greatly increased cost in personnel. At present scale nut leaps with addition of what amounts to another small orchestra. But with stations expressing desire for "popular concert" stuff, Standard is wasting no time in getting in on the deal, and veering from name band plattering in vogue but believed waning.

Vallee Tosses Show

With Rudy Vallee as chairman of the entertainment committee, the Palm Springs Tennis Club holds its first show of the season tomorrow night, the occasion being the Snow White Ball. Ted Fio Rito and his band will furnish the music.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

MONTY Shaff successfully beat out nine major and indie outfits in acquiring the "Man-Eaters of Kumaon" yarn. Story, chronicling the adventures of Major Jim Corbett of the Indian Army was first published in Bombay in 1944. Col. Drew Eberson, a former assistant director in Hollywood and a friend of Shaff, told him about the amazing story, with the result that when nearly two years later the Book-of-the-Month Club brought it out as the April selection and the studios became hot after it, Shaff already had closed a deal for its screen rights. Now the studios concerned are talking with him about a releasing deal. The MCA office is handling all negotiations for Shaff. Latter, who will produce the picture personally, will take a large company to the heart of India in November, where most of the picture will be made.

HOLLYWOOD Chamber of Commerce reports a complete switch on type of mail organization used to get from amateur songwriters all over country. In past, most notes were beefs that writers had been gypped by phoney publishers located here. Amateurs had sent coin, solocited usually via mail ads or in butcher-paper mags, to have compositions published and either never heard from pubs or found that firms did not live up to promises. Last month 197 letters on subject were received by the Chamber of Commerce and practically all were inquiries as to validity of firms and their advertised claims. Seems that finally the hopeful amateurs are wising up.

CAPITOL Transcriptions and Standard Radio will inaugurate regular "press" services to accounts, supplying news and tidbits concerning talent on their respective platters. Both outfits started on idea without knowledge of other's activities. Cap included it in sales brochure literature going out as come-on to biscuit buyers, while Standard devised it as an extra service, and starts releasing info in news form this week. News letter, it's hoped, will help stations using transcriptions to dress up programs with latest doings of personalities for listeners.

THE Krick Weather Service, technique used as timetable for the movement of American and allied armies during the war, is being made available to major studios by the Association of Motion Picture Producers. The Association has contracted for a 24-hour, seven-day weekly service for its studio members. Development followed recommendation from studio production managers, following discussions of weather problems involved in location shooting. The weather service is headed by Professor Irving P. Krick of Cal-Tech.

THERE will be no halting of the action while 12 original song numbers are sung in Metro's "Ah, Wilderness," which Arthur Freed will produce as a musical. Songs, which Harry Warren and Ralph Blaine turned out specially for picturization of O'Neill play, were written so that they would carry on the dialog and progress action. Blaine, who did the lyrics, reports that in some instances he scarcely had to change a single word in the O'Neill dialog, in adapting it to the songs. Numbers run over an hour.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The British will not be vulnerable in at least one place as the United Nations meets again Monday—Indonesia. They've turned the job over to the Dutch. And it should not be too long before the Dutch are able to come to an agreement with Premier Sjhahrir for an Indonesian commonwealth. The Dutch have as much respect for Sjhahrir as they had dislike for the man who preceded him, the Japanese puppet, Soerkarno. Now that the Dutch are able to take over in Indonesia, they expect to have less trouble with the Indonesian extremists. Although they do not say so, since they have to be grateful, the Dutch believe the British made a mistake when the occupation began, by the temporary recognition of Soekarno. That, they think, gave the extremists a power they would not otherwist have had. . . . The importance of the Japanese election of the legislature is apparent when it is recalled that the new Constitution makes it the supreme body. Japan will not have a checks and balances in a legislative, executive and judicial, as in the United States. Instead the legislature names the premier, and the judiciary. It also will negotiate the peace treaty. The conservatives are strongest, as predicted, but the Social Democrats—Japan's labor party—as I presumed—obtained more seats than generally forecast.

TRADESHOWN at studio, April 12, 1946. Running time: 92 MINS.

"Do You Love Me" rings both the musical and entertainment bell, a tinter beautifully photographed and lavishly produced which spells showmanship first to last and should evoke heavy response at box-office. Starring Maureen O'Hara, Dick Haymes and Harry James, who are supported by a top cast, story is as light and gay as the melodies are lilting. Haymes sings four new numbers and James leads his Music Makers and plays his hot horn for several more. Picture is an achievement for all concerned with its making.

Plot follows Miss O'Hara, dean of school for music her forefathers founded, a prim young miss, as she goes to New York to arrange with Reginald Gardiner, noted conductor and old friend, to take over school's Spring music festival. Aboard the train enroute, James invites her into his private car when she can't get a seat, and plays his new number for her. Instead of making her wilt, tune leaves her cold and James accuses her of being frigid tomato.

Miss O'Hara is delightful in her role, and has never appeared so lovely on the screen, color heightening her beauty. Edward Cronjager, handling cameras, scores heavily in this department and contributes a major share to high interest picture rates. Haymes, in his singing of four songs, is in perfect voice, his warbling of title song, "Do You Love Me," cleffed by Harry Ruby, particularly outstanding. James, too, does outstanding work with his musical chores, displaying an aptitude for light acting as well. Gardiner carries an amusing role with his customary suavity, Richard Gaines and Stanley Prager are tops, in respective roles of Miss O'Hara's fiance and James' stooge, and B. S. Pully has brief moment as tough taxi driver.

To George Jessel goes credit for his showmanship efforts in producing this musical, which blends so skilfully classical and jitterbug music with comedy and outstanding performances. Gregory Ratoff's direction is fast-paced and subtle, and he drains scenes of both their comedic and dramatic possibilities. "Moonlight Propaganda" musical number is particularly clever and effective.

In technical department, art direction by Lyle Wheeler and Joseph C. Wright and set decorations by Thomas Little and Jack Stubbs have been artistically executed. Edward Stevenson's costumes for Miss O'Hara are standouts, and Emil Newman and Charles Henderson rate hand for their musical direction. Screenplay by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan is exceptionally fine craftsmanship job, with other credits matching up correspondingly.

PREVIEWED at Monogram Studios, April 12, 1946. Running time: 70 MINS.

"Joe Palooka, Champ," is smartly produced prize fight comedy, replete with laughs and entertainment values. It will find a ready-made audience among sports fans as well as followers of the Joe Palooka comic strip. Name of Leon Errol, heading the aptly typed cast, is good for the marquees and, with the advance publicity on the Louis-Conn fight now hot, picture will get added exploitation from appearance of Joe Louis in brief sequences. Appeal to ring followers is definite, with Lou Nova as one of the principals and Henry Armstrong, Ceferino Garcia, Manuel Ortiz, Jimmy McLarnin and Jack Roper in the line-up.

Errol, in the role of Knobby Walsh, prize fight manager, is chiefly responsible for the comedy, which is on the quiet, chuckling side. He omits his characteristic collapsing-knee gag and gets across for plenty of laughs with straight comedy technique.

Picture introduces Joe Kirkwood in the title role. He meets the exacting demands of the fight sequences in top style and is adequate in the other acting chores.

Elyse Knox is convincingly attractive in the femme lead. Eduardo Ciannelli and Joe Sawyer are effective in heavy roles and rest of the supporting cast come through with first rate performances.

The story will seem a bit trite to readers of fight fiction, but the situations get fresh treatment, the dialog is crisp and Reginald Le Borg's direction keeps the interest from lagging at any point. Show is tightly scripted by Cyril Endfield and Albert de Pina.

Picture is first production by Hal E. Chester, former "Dead End Kid," and he gets off to a good start, displaying excellent showmanship.

Camera work of Benjamin Kline is creditable and other technical elements are standard.

A Night In Casablanca

(Comedy)

UNITED ARTISTS RELEASE. Producer, David L. Loew. Executive production manager, Joe C. Gilpin. Director, Archie L. Mayo. Original screenplay, Joseph Fields and Roland Kibbeee. Photography, James Van Trees. Production designer, Duncan Cramer. Set decorator, Edward Boyle. Musical score by Werner Janssen. Sound, Frank Webster. Makeup, Otis Malcolm. Hair stylist, Scotty Rackin. Film editor, Greg C. Tallus. Film cutter, Grace Baughman.

CAST—Groucho Marx, Harpo Marx, Chico Marx, Charles Drake, Lois Collier, Sig Ruman, Lisette Verea, Lewis Russell, Dan Seymour, Frederick Giermann, Harro Mellor, David Hoffman, Hall Harvey.

PREVIEWED at Enterprise Studios, Hollywood, Cal., April 12, 1946. Running time: 85 minutes.

"A Night in Casablanca" burlesques the melodrama of sinister Nazi intrigue in the North African port to furnish a background for the traditional mad antics of the three Marx Brothers. It isn't the funniest comedy in the world nor the most hilarious thing Groucho, Harpo and Chico have ever done, but it comes through with a fair share of belly laughs and enough giggles and story tension to round out the entertainment. Show leaves the Marx fans nothing to complain about and should do all right at the box office.

Groucho's role as the manager of the swank Hotel Casablanca, who takes over after three preceding managers have been suddenly and mysteriously murdered, gives him plenty of chance for characteristic portrayal of a wise-cracking screwball. Chico and Harpo are also amply provided for in the script — latter getting laughs with his dumb act. Chico puts on a good show in his share of the three-handed zany gag-fest. Picture includes harp selection by Harpo and piano number by Chico that are among the highlights.

Backgrounded romantic leads of the piece are handled creditably by Charles Drake and Lois Collier. Lisette Verea is spectacularly alluring as the femme member of the mystery group engaged in murdering hotel managers.

Head of this cabal, which eventually turns out to be a bunch of nasty Nazis hunting for treasure hidden in the hotel, is Sig Ruman, who scores notably as comic menace. Treasure is Nazi loot from France and also hunting it is Drake, French flier who had originally been forced to plane it out of France. He seeks to locate it to prove that he wasn't a collaborationist.

It is Harpo, the hotel roustabout, however, who finally locates it in the course of mishandling and wrecking elevator in which Groucho is riding to a sixth-floor rendezvous with the luscious Miss Verea. The story gets even crazier from there on, with the Marx brothers waxing goofy in planes and trucks as well as hotel rooms.

Director Archie Mayo has been successful with the tough job of smoothing the Marx Brothers into the confines of a script. Action is generally well paced and comedy timed and pointed effectively.

Picture has been nicely mounted, given good production values by Producer David Loew. Production designer Duncan Cramer is entitled to take a bow and photography of James Van Trees, though keyed a bit too low for comedy in spots, is generally effective. Other credits are standard.

BEATTY CIRCUS, A SMARTLY PACED SHOW, OPENS

Clyde Beatty's Circus, off trucks and on the railroad for the first time, opened a seventeen day stand at Washington and Hill streets over the week end. Show, jointly owned by Beatty and Art Concello is a combination of the Russell Brothers circus operated for the past two seasons by Concello and Beatty's former mud trick.

Smartly paced by Jack Joyce, equestrian director and responsible for all the horse numbers in the show, it travels at a fast rate. Beatty is on early, to get rid of the steel arena, and as usual makes his lion and tiger act of eighteen cats, look thrilling and exciting. Same under any other trainer would be slow but Beatty is tops in his line.

Phil Escaliente and his sisters and brothers, standbys of the old Al G. Barnes Circus, are in for several numbers on the wire, single trap and acro routines. As usual they are selling performers. Joyce, on a Morgan stallion, sells the horse to the hilt. Beatty's wife, Harriette, precedes her spouse working an elephant and a tiger. Nice novelty.

Show in general compares favorably with other railroad shows outside of the Big One and bids fain to grab off some of the easy money going to tented outfits hereabouts. Current dates are tied up with a drug store chain on a cut rate ticket deal which insures the show against loss.

Unbilled, but an act that should go somewhere is the De Waynes, four men and a girl teeterboard outfit. Act is new and displays big show calibre. It should go places both under canvas and in theatres. Boys were in the Coast Guard and according to the pad room worked up their routine while in uniform.

Swedish Thesp Leaves NY for WB 'Ships'

New York, April 14. — Viveca Lindfors, Swedish screen and legit star recently signed by Warner Bros., left today for Hollywood. The Scandinavian actress is slated to make her American screen debut in Gosta Larsson's "Ships in the River," which studio recently purchased as a starring vehicle for her.

MONTGOMERY WILL DIRECT AND STAR

Robert Montgomery will direct "Lady In The Lake" for Metro, as well as star in picturization of Raymond Chandler story. Picture nwo is set to roll on May 15. This will be Montgomery's first direction chore.

Actor bowed out of studio's "A Woman of My Own" 12 days ago, after reported differences of opinion with Director George Cukor over how his co-star role with Greer Garson should be played.

"Lady" had been set for either early or late summer rolling, but with Montgomery free for picture studio decided to start prepping it immediately for takeoff.

STUDIOS FOLLOWING DAILY VARIETY IN VACCINATIONS

Five hundred and fifteen employes of the various branches of show business, films, radio, stage and music, received vaccination against smallpox during the past week, free of charge, in Daily Variety's offices. The practice is being taken up this week by Hollywood's film studios, beginning today at Paramount.

The Los Angeles Health Department has urged widespread vaccination as the only positive measure against an increase in smallpox cases on the West Coast. An alarming increase in smallpox cases has been reported in Seattle and San Francisco. Authorities in the latter city are preventing travelers from Los Angeles from entering unless they have already been vaccinated.

Three New Seattle Theatres Stymied

Seattle, April 14.—Theatre building plans of Sterling Theatres (John Danz) three new nabes have been stymied, as construction had not begun on any of the trio. The locations were in the fashionable Magnolia Bluff district, Rainier valley, and on Aurora avenue, just north of the city limits. All were to be 1,000 seaters.

Ideal to Print Here

New York, April 14.—Ideal Publications will be printed on the Pacific Coast it was revealed yesterday by publisher William M. Cotton following his survey of available facilities. Printing on the Coast will enable mag to meet closer deadlines and afford editors better opportunities for story breaks in addition to closer contact with advertisers.

No Rest for Roy

"Under Nevada Skies," Roy Rogers starrer, winds at Republic Wednesday. Director Frank McDonald immediately starts preparations on actor's next starrer, "Shine On Texas Moon," which rolls April 26. Edward J. White is producing both films.

Theatre Ads Rationed

Seattle, April 14. — The Seattle Times is again rationing theatre space, due to shortage of newsprint. New quota for ads represent a considerable cut, especially in ads after initial opening, being cut to one inch with few exceptions.

Godfrey 'Hayride'

Renee Godfrey signed over the weekend by producer-director Josef Berne for a featured role in PRC's "Missouri Hayride." Actress is the wife of Warner Bros.' director Peter Godfrey.

LIGHTON ANKLES 'SWEET HOMICIDE'

Before completion of his current production, "Home Sweet Homicide," Louis Lighton left 20th-Fox for a six-month stay on his Arizona ranch. Darryl Zanuck and director Lloyd Bacon will wind up Lighton's production chores, the studio announced.

During his ranch stay, Lighton will work on the script of "The Black Rose," slated for Fall production at 20th. Lighton recently wound up "Anna and the King of Siam."

THE GRAPEVINE: Hollywood hostesses are working themselves into a tizzy over the forthcoming visit of Lord Lascelles, nephew of the King of England. Now touring Canada, he's expected here for a four-day visit at the end of this month. Tours of the studios and a reception and dinner to be given May 1 by Darryl Zanuck are on his program thus far. Lord Lascelles was captured by the Nazis during the war and held as hostage in the hope he would be of use in negotiating peace terms with the British . . . Louise Albritton and Charles Collingwood, CBS war correspondent, announced their engagement over the weekend . . . One radio comedian would be a tragedian if he realized that the reason he can't score with the vocalist on his program is that she's carrying the torch for one of the musicians in the band . . . Mickey Rooney can't wait to get back into picture-making. Impatient for cameras to roll on "Uncle Andy Hardy," he's been helping with tests for other members of the cast being directed by Willis Goldbeck . . . Looks like some of the myriad record-pressing plants will be going into the pants-pressing business. Record-pressers mushroomed along with the growth of record outfits (now almost 130 in Hollywood), and now there are more waxers than needed. Instead of reaping a harvest, they're reaching for a living. Current tipoff on the situation is the start of a price-cutting competition, which presumably will freeze out a lot of the smaller companies.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Errol Flynn is giving his schooner, the Zaca, a five-day test run prior to beginning his projected adventure film off the coast of Mexico. Meanwhile, he's not exactly out of touch. He's installed a two-way telephone system aboard the schooner, so he can call his friends whenever the mood comes over him. The two-way system has one big advantage: he can talk away without interruption before switching over to his victim . . . Joanne Dru, Dick Haymes' wife, who will play the Irish rose in "Abie's Irish Rose," is no victm of type-casting. She's a mixture of French, Finnish, German and Welsh . . . Grand Circuit harness racing makes its western debut tomorrow afternoon at Santa Anita under auspices of the Western Harness Racing Association . . . Cafe life: Ronald Reagans and Gregory Pecks at Romanoff's. Stewart Martin and Angela Greene at The Club. Merle Oberon and Lucien Ballard at the Seacomber. Jackie Moran and Mary McCarty, N.T.G. and a party, at Talk o' the Town . . . Eddie Nealis may be moving back to Caliente, according to stories around town. . . U.S. State Department is reported making a strong effort on his behalf either to bring about return of his racetrack or compensation for confiscation of his property . . . Studios are eyeing Steve Healy's original "Faith of Our Fathers," which revolves around the chapel at San Diego Naval hospital. Chapel has a revolving altar for use by the Jewish, Protestant and Catholic chaplains.

CALL SHEET: MORT BLUMENSTOCK blew in from NY in a bit of soft tan summer suiting, just like a man who has never been disillusioned by a California spring . . . RALPH STAUB'S "Famous Movie Mothers" will be filmed with stars and their daughters, instead of stars and their mothers as D.D.T. reported in a half-witted moment . . . MACK SENNETT'S ranch will be the scene of the 38th convention of the Hoboes of America, most of the town's hotels having adopted a snooty attitude toward the knights of the road . . . ALEXIS SMITH and CRAIG STEVENS are passing each other the arnica. Alexis is riding horseback for "Stallion Road" at Warners, and Craig has been boxing with Dane Clark in scenes for "A Very Rich Man" on the same lot . . . DAVID O. SELZNICK'S statisticians have worked it out that "Duel in the Sun"—$6,500,000 for its 2 hours and 35 minutes of running time—cost $38,645 per minute on the screen . . . HOWARD HUGHES is reported to have bought four blimps to help advertise "The Outlaw." With no symbolism intended, we presume! . . . FRANK WESTMORE, discharged from the Navy a month ago, has joined his brother Wally in the Paramount makeup dept. . . . DOROTHY SARNOFF, opera and musical comedy singer who played the lead in "Rosalinda" on Broadway, arrived yesterday to begin rehearsals for "Vagabond King," coming to the Biltmore . . . So far none of the gates have opened wide for him . . .RKO went exotic and tossed a Chinese dinner, without a shred of anything so common as chop suey, for the press after showing "Badman's Territory" . . . Paul Short has acquired all screen, radio and legit rights to Frances Parkinson Keyes' novels. So he isn't too unhappy about the fact her latest, "The River Road," has sold 315,000 copies . . . Street Scene: Barney Dean doing his impersonation of Charles Boyer for his pal, Bing Crosby, and a sidewalk audience on Sunset Strip . . . Burl Ives and Ciro's quietly parted company by mutual consent several nights after he opened. They agreed his bucolic lilts didn't score on the Strip . . . Carleton Morse's synopsis of "One Man's Family" for the screen version runs 300,000 words. At that rate, the screenplay will run a mere 3,000,000 words—D.D.T.

CAPT. FORD GIVEN OSCARS FILMS WON FOR NAVY

Commander Walter Emerson, USNR, Ret., yesterday afternoon at the Field Photo Memorial Farm, presented Captain John Ford, USNR, two of the Oscars awarded the Navy in 1942 for the films "Battle of Midway" and "December 7." The Oscars will be housed in the two-story clubhouse on the Farm. Property at Reseda was purchased by $250,000 donated by Captain Ford as a memorial for the eight men killed while serving with the Field Photo Unit under the Office of Strategic Services. Coin was received by Ford for his services in making "They Were Expendable" for Metro.

Memorial farm comprises eight acres of property and in addition to the clubhouse there will be a swimming pool, stables and tennis courts. All former members of the Field Photo Unit of the Office of Strategic Services will have access to the Farm which acquisition was for the continuing of the fellowships made during their time in the service. Memorial Farm will be ready for its opening in six weeks.

Romm Leaves Agency To Do Indie Film

Harry Romm resigns his veepee post at General Artists Corp. on May 1 and promptly will leave NY for Coast to prepare production of "Life of Glenn Miller," which he himself will do for United Artists release. Actual filming is carded to commence in August. It is certain Dick Powell will essay role of late band-leader. Powell has agreed with proviso he approves of script.

PETRILLO SURPRISES PRODS BY HIS MEEKNESS

New York, April 14. — Though still smarting over week-end demands made by James C. Petrillo over five-hour period yesterday, the film producer group currently negotiating new studio musician contract with American Federation of Musicians' prexy emerged from the latest session in rather optimistic frame of mind.

Group seemed to think Petrillo has commenced displaying a much more conciliatory attitude, and one of the producer reps labeled him "the unpredictable." The producers' committee actually went on record terming the AFM demands "an insult" and the work of insane people.

CAUTIONS AGAINST STRIKE

When a member of the musicians' exec committee took violent objection, he was surprised when Petrillo quietly cautioned that nothing could be gained through a strike and suggested that both sides attempt to negotiate a deal without measures being taken to tie up the studios.

After being told flatly by producers that the proposed contractual demands were absurd, Petrillo sought to justify granting of more money to musicians with the statement that musikers had not sought to intrench selves in studios as have some other unions. Petrillo pointed out that under the two-year pact which expired on March 31, musicians were guaranteed minimum amount of work for the first time.

At Friday's session, aside from preliminaries there were no negotiating discussions of any AFM proposals relating to wage increases. These items will come up for discussion on Monday.

PRODUCERS IN PROTEST

Already have the producers protested that one recording for a film, whether used for 16m or 35m should not entail extra cost, and Petrillo has agreed to consider the point. Among other items discussed was the clause under which AFM wants producers to notify union on hiring of any bands or musicians, so it may be determined whether performers are in good standing. This has been approved.

At 4:30 p.m. Friday, Petrillo halted confab for one minute of silent prayer for the late President Roosevelt, it being the first anniversary of his death.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

This little town of ours called Hollywood will be busting at the seams when the curtain is raised on the new season in September. Nothing can stop the influx from the east and Chicago radio will be as much a part of us as the home-grown article. We've talked with any number of easterners who came to visit and remained to stay. With the great concentration of talent here and the list gradually swelling they can see no reason for originations away from these lush pastures. True, the picture break has a lot to do with the migration but other incentives, such as climate and the free-and-easy style of living in these balmy parallels, cannot be dismissed too lightly. Come television and other new art forms, it's all water on the paddles of Hollywood.

The movement westward would have been highly accelerated last season were there studio space to accommodate those who had inclinations to join the Hollywood hegira. NBC will have two audience studios ready by autumn and if the building ban on commercial structures is lifted, CBS will supplement its broadcasting facilities with a pair of its own. ABC and Don Lee-Mutual are still another season away so by 1947 the town will be loaded and the present 80 cross-country orginations should soar to the century mark. That will anchor big time radio in Hollywood and with a few scattered exceptions every show of note will take the reverse route of the sun in pouring its entertainment into millions of home sets.

In these times even a fractional rise in the Hooperatings is something to cheer about. Our attention was called to the "Maisie" increase in the Friday list so we consulted the advance release sheet when it arrived. Sure enough "Maisie" moved up, if only by seven-tenths of a point, but it was best showing of that group. It was a field day for the glooms and here's how they'll show up in your pocket piece: Alan Young 5.1, off .1; Danny Kaye 10.6, up .1; Ed Gardner 12.1, off 1.3; Durante-Moore 8.6, off 1.2; "People Are Funny" 13.9, off 1.9; "Supper Club" 10.5, off .5.

Chain breaks . . . There's feverish studio interest in Fred Wakeman's tome on the agency biz, "The Hucksters," which hits the book stalls early next month. Danny Winkler has set a price of $200,000 for a seven-year lease on the picture rights and if it's made there'll be some pink phizzies in the trade, especially in a certain agency and high on the client list . . . "Sad Sack" looks in as summer standin for Frank Sinatra . . . Lynn Murray is moving here bag and baggage as who isn't? . . . Attorney Jesse Levinson was overruled in his attempt to have Judge J.F.T. O'Connor disqualified in hearing the Craig Reynolds pirating case because of his stock ownership in the old KMTR corporation . . . Sander Heyman being moved to New York by Schenley for one of the top sales promotion and advertising berths in the company . . . Sid Strotz made a quick decision and a popular one in allowing a platter on the western segment of the NBC network for the first time when Dinah Shore's voice box closed up on her last week . . . Milton Merlin became papa of a seven-pound girl Friday. Mother is the former Barbara Smitten, late of Ruthrauff & Ryan . . . Clarence Menser and Hubbell Robinson trained back to New York over the weekend. Latter returns in six weeks to set up summer shows for Postum and Hallmark . . . Lester Jay out of the service and resuming his acting career . . . Howard Worden, ex-Young & Rubicam, opening an ad agency here for C. L. Miller.

Best buy for long life in radio seems to be comedy—the clean, homey type. This observation is inspired by the longevity of a couple of programs that come to mind but there must be many, many more. An unbroken span that started 15 years ago is just as firm and solid today as it was when Lum and Abner became big time rurals. For most of that time they've been sponsored and that's high praise indeed for any radio team. Three years short of that mark is another great team, "Fibber McGee and Molly," which has maintained a higher all-time rating average than any show on the air. The credo of these successes has been family comedy of high order and clean as a hound's tooth. Never the taint of suggestiveness and every script slanted for the whole family, from junior up to the oldsters. "Keep it clean and live longer" should be an apropos slogan for zanies who go to any length for a laugh.

Hitch hikes . . . Don Ameche has been set for the Drene spot being vacated by Rudy Vallee. It'll be a situation comedy show and takes off Aug. 27. Gil Ralston, head of night time radio for Procter & Gamble, is here to work out the details and cast rest of the show with Jim Wright . . . Strange are the ways of clients. When "Pays to Be Ignorant" was given the shag by Philip Morris and Biow there was a raising of eyebrows. Now that its successor, "Holiday & Co.," has failed miserably, rating-wise at least, there is talk "Ignorant" may be asked to come back . . . Robert Shanley, one of the singing stars of "This Is the Army," relieves Nelson Eddy for the summer on The Electric Hour . . . Lorraine Miller, who debuted as a nitery singer a few weeks ago, takes her radio bow on NTG's "You're in the Act" today . . . Tony Martin will sub for Dinah Shore Thursday if her pipes are still on the fritz. Otherwise he'll guest with her . . . Century Artists and Berg-Allenberg are working out a tieup for exchange representation of clients east and west . . . Tommy Riggs will go along with Ginny Simms for five weeks, then take the Borden show solo through the summer. If it works out he'll have a regular spot with the singer in the autumn . . . Following Hooperatings are now available: Bob Burns 12.9, off 1.2; Ginny Simms 6.3, off 2.6; "His Honor the Barber" 9.9, up .2; Joan Davis 14.5, up 2.4; Sherlock Holmes 11.7, up 1.5.

SEATTLE NET SPOTS CLOSE CONTRACT WITH AFRA

Seattle, April 14.—Climaxing nine months of negotiations, a contract between the Seattle chapter of the American Federation of Radio Artists and the operators of four major Seattle network stations has been signed, according to Jerry Simpson, attorney for the union.

It is the first time local announcers, singers and actors have been organized in the national radio union. The local has about 150 members.

Contract gives workers a big boost, with all raises retroactive to January 1, 1946. Minimum wages for announcers were set as follows: $65.00 per week at KOL (Mutual), KJR (ABC) and KOMO (NBC); $67.50 at KIRO (CBS). Fees for programs are $5.50 minimum plus $2.20 rehearsal time. Specified announcers get fee when off shift.

Loren Stone, manager of KIRO, says: "Seattle salaries are now on a par with those of the entire country and the relations between management and the union are on an amicable base seldom reached in other industries."

Bill Corcoran, acting president of the local AFRA chapter, paid tribute to the managements of the local stations; saying that AFRA had won all points and while it means more money for artists and announcers it also spells better programs and better production for the Seattle radio industry.

Plans are already under way to begin the organization of the non-network stations at an early date.

Dolores Moran Gets Bogeaus Termer

Dolores Moran has been signed to a term contract by Benedict Bogeaus who will co-star her with Burgess Meredith in his forthcoming production, "Jonathan Loves Them All." Miss Moran recently severed her contract with Warner Bros. where she has been appearing in featured roles for the past five years.

Frances Parkinson Keyes takes you there

PEOPLE are really much the same the world over. Manners differ, accents vary, language changes, but the basic needs and desires of men and women everywhere remain alike. It is places that make people different.

Place is more than location. It is condition and custom, the physical and the mental, things heard, seen, smelled and dimly suspected. Only by evoking the magic of place, can a writer, and especially a writer of fiction, take us out of ourselves.

Rarely does a novelist re-create the atmosphere of a region (the things that can be observed and those which can only be sensed) so vividly and so faithfully that we come to feel that we ourselves have been there. Such writing requires more than imagination and a way with words. The author must possess an intimate knowledge of the place and an acute sensitivity to the elusive overtones and undertones peculiar to life there.

Such a writer is Frances Parkinson Keyes. Most of the readers of ALL THAT GLITTERS, CRESCENT CARNIVAL, ALSO THE HILLS, and her other best-selling novels have never seen the localities she writes about. Yet, through her books, the rich excitement of life in the nation's capital, the romantic traditions of New Orleans, and the New England heritage of dignity and quiet worth, have all become part of her readers' own experience.

When Frances Parkinson Keyes plans to write a book about any particular corner of the world, she begins by living there. CRESCENT CARNIVAL was the result of a year of work and study in New Orleans. ALSO THE HILLS was based on her many years of residence in New Hampshire and the knowledge of political and social Washington that Mrs. Keyes enjoyed as the wife of a United States Senator. Her stories of Americans in Singapore, Bolivia, Germany, Spain, and China, as well as at home, are the fruit of her own world-wide travel. To write THE SUBLIME SHEPHERDESS, her famous biography of Bernadette of Lourdes, she went to France. The Germans invaded and occupied, but Frances Parkinson Keyes remained, refusing to leave until her work was done.

Her ability to create the magic of place makes her novels unique in American literature. The characters in a Keyes book are products of their native soil. Her Creoles and Yankees, her merchants, farmers, aristocrats, and politicians all develop naturally from the history and traditions of the scenes she has studied with so much unstinting affection.

No matter what the locale of the story, Mrs. Keyes' readers always feel at home there, because she herself does. This Virginia-born daughter of a New England family delights in the differences of racial stock, temperament, culture and religion that make America a brightly colored mosaic of peoples and ways. She sees the essential beauty of the endless contrasts inherent in American life, and transmits this appreciation to her readers.

It is her rare understanding of the nature of our country that makes her so able an interpreter of our way of life, not only to Americans, but to readers in all parts of the world. Her works have long been popular in Great Britain. They have already been translated into Spanish, French, Portuguese, German, Swedish, Danish, Finnish, and Norwegian. Their basic human appeal is universal.

But her consummate skill at recreating the charm of distant places cannot completely explain her large and faithful public. Geography is not enough. In the last analysis, what every reader wants is a good story. And above all else, Frances Parkinson Keyes is one of America's great story tellers. Readers have found in her books more than a full measure of suspense, excitement, romance and adventure.

Her latest book, THE RIVER ROAD, has been on the best seller lists ever since it was published last November. 215,000 copies are in print exclusive of book clubs. We sincerely believe it is the finest story she has ever written. It is a novel of Louisiana plantations and dynasties, written on the scene after months of intense investigation of family archives and local history. In THE RIVER ROAD, more than ever before, Frances Parkinson Keyes recreates the atmosphere of a place she loves and understands. Once again, with her rare perception of what her readers seek in a book, she takes you there.

THE DREAMER

Or, the Life of Ray Milland

"Ray was born in Neath, Wales, and his terrifying shyness began because he was not like other people physically. Ray, compared to most Welsh boys, was a giant. He constantly stood out. To a sensitive boy, nothing could have been worse. Then there were his sisters. Ray is intensely proud of them. But they were so infernally beautiful! He had the feeling when people came to the house and met him that they were saying mentally, 'Oh, so this is the brother. Too bad.' Ray didn't waltz through life on golden clouds. Maybe that's why he is, first of all, a romantic . . ."

DETERMINED DEBUTANTE

The Life Story of Gene Tierney

Life begins for Gene "in one of the nicer residential sections of Brooklyn (and there are some that have lots of trees!) Shortly afterwards the family moved to Fairfield, Connecticut . . . Gene's childhood was delightful. There was a brother a few years older than she, with whom she argued and played and made plans. There was a younger sister who was her adoring slave. There was a sympathetic father. And there was a beautiful mother who smelled sweetly of perfume . . ."

"There is nothing unusual in Greg's story. It is the human document of a lot of American kids . . . He was born in La Jolla, California, a small town right smack on the Pacific Ocean. His father was a druggist there and the captain of the local basketball team . . . Every day, winter and summer, Greg and his gang went to the beach, only a few blocks from his door. They went swimming. They built boats. They sailed. They fished. That was simplicity. Greg learned it there . . . At 17, he was 6 feet 1 and weighed 130 pounds. 'I always felt as if my sleeves were too short,' he remembers ruefully. 'I'll never forget my first dance' . . ."

BENEKE-MILLER ORK WILL GRAB $7500 TO OPEN AVODON

Contract is due to be signed this morning for the Tex Beneke-Glenn Miller band to play new Avodon ballroom for six weeks starting Sept. 11 at $7,500 a week. Don Haynes, personal manager of ork, will inspect the new dancery, which opens May 8, and if layout meets with his approval he will sign for ork with Barney McDevitt, who will manage the Avodon. McDevitt will put $15,000 in escrow.

Avodon grabbed Beneke-Miller combo after strenuous bidding session over weekend with Maury Cohen, operator of Palladium, who went to $7,000, a figure the Palladium has never paid a band. Although pact has not been signed by Haynes, Avodon management made effort to seal bargain by having Jack Rogers, prez of ballroom corporation, wire confirmation of date and figure and Haynes accepted the wire.

"He's a Headliner, Plus!"

ALLAN JONES

Scores 'Sensational Hit' in Night Club Engagements

"STRICTLY PERFECT" at Chez Paree

★ "Allan Jones truly deserved all the 'oh's' and 'ah's' that went up when he made his appearance. He's a headliner plus!"
—CHARLIE DAWN, Chicago Herald-American.

★ "At the Chez Paree, Allan Jones is lifting the entertainment to a new high plane by the richness of his voice, the excellence of his programming and the polish of his presence. His singing of 'The Lord's Prayer' is the best I have ever heard."
—DALE HARRISON, Chicago Sun.

—Chicago Daily News.

★ "Big, strong and good-looking Jones sang all the latest popular tunes and some of the old classics, including a breath-taking 'Lord's Prayer' that had his audience enchanted"
—Chicago Sunday Times.

★ "A rare sense of showmanship combined with a real singing voice and a sincerity of delivery made the debut of Allan Jones refreshing and successful. Jones has a real talent to offer. Every note rings true and his robust tenor voice gives new life and new depth to songs which range from 'The Donkey Serenade' and 'The Lord's Prayer' to a Gershwin medley."
—BOB LOCKE, Chicago Sun.

★ "Allan Jones is a wonderful singer and a great personality."
—NATE GROSS, Chicago Herald-American.

★ "Allan Jones stepped into the lead spot at the Chez Paree and his quiet manner, his unpretentious sincerity, and his magnificent voice made him an instant hit. The Jones repertory is generous and the lad seems to have no limits to the type of number he can handle well."
—WILL DAVIDSON, Chicago Tribune.

"MAGNIFICENT" at Florentine Gardens

"Allan Jones has a voice that rings the rafters and he uses it magnificently. After he does 'The Lord's Prayer', he has difficulty begging off all the encores demanded. He only gets away by promising to do another show.
—JACK GRANT, Hollywood Reporter.

★ "Allan Jones scores a sensational hit at the current presentation at the Florentine Gardens. Jones is an excellent singer. He has apparently unlimited vocal resources and adapts himself fully to his present environment."
—EDWIN SCHALLERT, Los Angeles Times.

★ "Musically speaking, so completely does Jones probe into the soul of his compositions and so effectively does he weave a web about his audience that he captivates every listener. Jones wins his audience—there is the hall mark of a great singer."
—LOWELL REDELINGS, Hollywood Citizen-News.

★ "The owner of a pleasant personality, Jones is definitely something more than a headliner on a personal appearance jaunt. The Jones voice is in fine fettle these days, rich with a captivating quality and a style of drama."
—DAVID HANNA, Daily News.

★ "Allan Jones sang 'The Lord's Prayer' to an overwhelming ovation and in no production, outside of grand opera, have I seen a singer affect an audience more than he did with this beautiful and moving sacred song."

DONLEVY DEAL FOR REP PRODUCTION IS CANCELLED

Negotiations between Republic and Brian Donlevy on a producing deal have been cancelled. Actor had announced his intention of producing the Marie Conway Oemler yarn, "Slippy McGee" under the tag of "The Minister And The Safecracker."

Allen Wilson, Republic veepee, announced over the weekend that studio had garnered all the protective world rights to the published story, which it purchased recently. Lou Brock has been set to produce the picture. Film rolls June 1 with Albert Kelly handling the directorial chore. Robert Lee Johnson today begins scripting "Slippy McGee" and Donald Barry has been set in one of the featured roles.

Marie McDonald Wins Cancellation of Pact

Marie McDonald, actress, won cancellation of her contract with producer Hunt Stromberg when Superior Court Judge Ingall W. Bull ruled Stromberg had violated the pact with actress. Decision was based on producer assigning Miss McDonald to a minor film company.

Henreid to Make 'Gynt'

"Peer Gynt" will be Paul Henreid's initial indie producing effort. Actor, whose contract with Warner Bros. allows him to produce as well as play one outside picture a year, has purchased a screen treatment from Franz Moerth of the Isben classic, currentiy in the public domain.

PRC Starts 'Ghost'

PRC's "Ghost of Hidden Valley," fifth in current year's Buster Crabbe starring series, rolls today with Sam Newfield directing for producer Sigmund Neufeld.

FBI SMASHES 16M $ MILLION BLACK MARKET RING

shops, Joseph Bitto, Mortimer Van Brink, Melvin Baker and Arthur Schwartz. They will be arraigned shortly by a Federal Grand Jury, charged with illegal distribution of films and violation of copyright laws.

Goldstein is specifically charged with channeling films, supplied by major companies for Army and Navy overseas distribution during the war, to dealers who sold the films, illegally, to churches, schools and other private groups.

The FBI seized over 60 major features in their containers bearing army and navy identification marks. The black market ring rented the films at rates ranging from $5 to $15 and sold them outright at $100 to $125. The racketeers sometimes changed titles and cautioned buyers to be careful in exhibiting the films.

The films were mostly major studio product unreleased as yet for 16m distribution. It was not confirmed whether some of the prints had been stolen by GI's overseas and returned to this country in knapsacks.

OBITUARIES

DEWITT MILLHAUSER

New York, April 14. — Dewitt Millhauser, 61, chairman of the finance committee of the Radio Corp. of America, and director of the National Broa'casting Co., and RCA Communications, Inc., died today in Doctor's Hospital. From 1920 to 1937 he was a partner in the international banking firm of Speyer & Co.

ARTHUR SOLOMON

Arthur Solomon, Hollywood press agent, died last Thursday in New York after a long illness. Before coming to Hollywood he was a practicing attorney in the east. He leaves the widow, Sara Berner, radio actress, three brothers and three sisters.

But, Not Leo

Betty Hutton had to kick Jackie, the 400-pound movie lion, in the pants a half dozen times to get a scene for Paramount's "Perils of Pauline." After it was over she sent over to the studio commissary for a half gallon of ice cream for the king of beasts to make up for the booting. Ice cream is the favorite dish of the 18-year-old Jackie.

ONCE IN A WHILE the people who live in a community get the privilege of electing a legislator who is far more than just the ordinary officeholder - who will bring service and distinction to the nation, and whose name and hard work will be a reassurance to progressive people all over the world.

Such is the case now in California, when after 29 years, we must get ready to assign a new United States Senator to duty in Washington. We believe California has a great man for the job in the dynamic, nationally-appealing figure of WILL ROGERS, Jr., who served with distinction on the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, and who fought two years of combat with the tank destroyers overseas in the European Theater.

Will Rogers JR FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

We plainly recognize that WILL ROGERS, Jr., as a Senator from California will be a great national asset. He will join the ranks of outstanding leaders of liberal forces throughout the nation.

For the home needs of California, we could ask no stronger voice.

We members of a Committee to elect WILL ROGERS, Jr., to the United States Senate, ask you to add your weight to his forceful candidacy.

CSU DELAYS ITS STRIKE DEADLINE FOR TWO DAYS

is 6 p.m. (PST) Wednesday. Harvey Brown, head of IAM, was not present at Washington huddle.

Meanwhile, Cinema Lodge 1185 of IAM has filed unfair labor practice charges against eight major film companies with the National Labor Relations Board offices here. Named as conspiring against the union were Loew's, Paramount, RKO, 20th-Fox, Warners, Universal, Columbia and Republic.

DISCRIMINATION CHARGED

Charges were made that conspiracy assertedly dates from March 10, when companies hired no new machinists during an industry "freeze" period. On March 25, studios resumed hiring machinists but engaged none from the IAM local lodge.

Complaint gives specific example of alleged discrimination at Paramount, where it is charged studio dropped Glenn Waters after latter had given week's notice at Bendix Aviation Corp., to take the film job. Charges assert that same week Waters was cancelled out by studio on grounds that Barney Balaban had issued instructions to hire no more machinists, Paramount engaged two who were not IAM members.

U.S. CONCILIATOR ACTS

Talking with various labor leaders over the weekend was John C. Tutt, U.S. Labor Conciliation Commissioner, who was ordered on the scene to gather data for a report on the situation. Sixth SCU local to empower its executive board to take strike action if necessary was the Screen Story Analysts Guild, chartered by the Painters, Decorators & Paperhangers. SSAG voted 62 to 4 on the strike question.

20th Repacts Eythe

William Eythe has been given a new term contract by 20th-Fox, studio ripping up his old pact which still had several years to go. First assignment under new deal will be star role in Otto Preminger production, "Methinks, the Lady."

Two More for Fonda

Henry Fonda, already inked for male lead in "My Darling Clementine" on one-picture deal, has been set for two more by 20th-Fox, over additional two-year period.

Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, April 14.—Just what will happen to our cinema production is beginning to worry the not too optimistic cinematographers. Lots of speculation in motion picture circles concerning stiff competition from the U.S., England and France. No fear at all of Spanish speaking countries. Argentina, only possible competitor, is losing her stars and directors to us. Mexican companies pay higher salaries.

There are now more than fifty million pesos invested in studios and equipment. Seventy six pictures were made in 1945. From seventy to eighty will be this year's quota. With new studios, production possibilities will be much greater in 1947. Will Spanish speaking market absorb product released or, as some producers believe, should we make only an average of sixty films per year? But then, studios with amount of capital already invested, will surely not remain idle.

More than thirty films are awaiting release. They are quite bad. We still continue making very bad pictures. Also a few good ones.

Another much debated question is, should films made in Mexico be of a marked Mexican atmosphere, eternally capitalizing local color, customs, songs, etc., or should our pictures be of an international it-could-happen-anywhere type? Those in favor of a typically Mexican production claim that in any other field we can not compete with Hollywood product, while those of opposite opinion feel that, no matter how delightful our local color, audiences will eventually tire of it.

Producers complain about soaring costs, insisting these are now dangerously high. Average production cost of a picture today is approximately 600,000 pesos, of which about 200,000 go to actors and technicians and 40,000 to director and writers.

Rose Hobart, back in Hollywood, stated that Continental Films' "Accusation," for which she, Virginia Bruce, Richard Arlen and Byron Keither were brought here "never got going, first, due to backing and production difficulties, and then, just as they were ready to start work, the strike hit and all film work throughout the country was halted as a result."

The first part of Miss Hobart's statement is correct. The second is not. Hollywood actors brought down for "Accusation" remained here SEVERAL WEEKS. Strike lasted ONLY TEN DAYS. "Accusation" was not made simply because William Rowland who was to direct it, could not get necessary backing. Mexican capitalists approached by him were not interested. In fact, the S.T.P.C. union was ready to pay Hollywood artists fare back home if Continental Films, as it seemed, could not do so.

According to columnist Lumiere, ballet from this city's "El Patio" was not allowed entry into the U.S., and Luis Arcaraz's orchestra was not permitted to play in neighboring country. "All right," says Lumiere, "now let's see if we allow Pin Up Girls and such to work here."

The City of Mexico has invited Lana Turner, Judy Garland and Rita Hayworth to Spring Fiesta in May . . . Roberto Gavaldon directs Dolores del Rio in his second picture . . . Maria Felix, with a number of pounds less, positively wasp-waisted, is stunning in film now being directed by Julio Bracho . . . I hope some one changes the title "Everybody's Woman" . . . Julio Villareal, one of our veteran legitimate and cinema actors will have role in "Honeymoon in Mexico" . . . Cameraman Ted Phillips, on his way to Rio, told local reporters that Hollywood plans to make more pix with Spanish American atmosphere . . . Those will not be competition.

Gene Krupa and Band Set for RKO 'Beat'

Gene Krupa's ork, which flew east for stand at 400 Club, NY, following closing here Saturday at Meadowbrook ballroom, has been set for chore in RKO's "Beat the Band." Krupa will return to Coast in mid-June, when film is carded to roll. Frances Langford and Ralph Edwards have been set for featured roles in musical, which Michel Kraike will produce, with Sid Rogell the executive producer.

'Rica' Rolls Today

"Carnival in Costa Rica," Technicolor musical, gets starting gun today at 20th-Fox. Dick Haymes, Cesar Romero and Vera-Ellen top cast, with Gregory Ratoff directing and William Bacher handling producer stint. Costa Rican backgrounds were obtained for film last fall, when late Otto Brower took camera crew to Central America for six weeks of filming.

Kritner Arrives

Carl Kritner, general sales manager of Warner Bros.-owned Music Publishers Holding Corp., arrived on Coast until May 10 looking into local operations, then hie back to his home office.

picture, Wanger appealed her decision to the Atlanta censorship board, which became deadlocked 4 to 4 on the issue. In his ruling, Judge Almond held that the censor has no right to order a film withheld from showing, that under the city ordinances only the censorship board has that right.

Judge Almond stated that he was postponing the effective date of the injunction until April 23 to give the censorship board another chance at deciding whether or not to ban the film.

The Atlanta jurist added he reserved the right, after April 23, to hand down another injunction — against the board itself—on Wanger's argument that if the board banned the picture "such action is arbitrary and capricious."

for Englishmen working in this country for like period. Industry protest against treaty is because its present form specifically exempts actors from its benefits.

Treaty had at one time been approved by the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee but was withdrawn from the floor after talent and managers guilds protested discrimination against actors. Wednesday's hearing will be conducted by a sub-committee of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee.

China, Egypt 16m Reps At MG for Classes

Bill Cunningham, former chief of Los Angeles Overseas Bureau of OWI, has joined George Brown's Paramount flackery.

P-T Signs Kelly

Paul Kelly yesterday signed with Pine-Thomas for one of the leads in "Fear in the Night."

BRYAN FOY TO FILM FIRST PIC IN NY

First of indies to translate current talk about going to New York for stage space into action is Bryan Foy. Foy yesterday completed deal to use 20th-Fox New York studio for his first independent production. Foy said he expects to get into production early in October, but has no story definitely set for first film as yet. He plans to make only this one picture in New York and is dickering with PRC for stage facilities.

IBSEN'S GHOST HAUNTS H'WOOD PRODUCERS

Henrik Ibsen's ghost stalked Hollywood last night after one producer, one actor-producer, an agent and a mysterious Viennese scripter became involved in a quandary over whether the great Norwegian dramatist's "Peer Gynt" was in the public domain. Involved in the literary whodunit are Al Lewin, Paul Henreid, agent Paul Kohner and one Franz Moerth of Vienna.

It all started when Paul Henreid announced his intention of producing "Peer Gynt" under provisions of his Warner Bros. contract, permitting him to produce or act in one outside picture a year. Preliminary to producing the screen version, Henreid disclosed that he had purchased a screen treatment

BRITISH STUDIOS HIT BY NEW WALKOUTS

London, April 15.—London members of the Association of Cinetechnicians (projectionists), on strike in England for nearly two weeks, are being joined by the laboratory operators and studio staff workers Wednesday. Strike of studio people may cripple production of newsreels and eight features budgeted for $5,000,000. National Association of Theatrical and Kinematograph Employes in old union have been given national recognition by the film business in Britain. Cinetechnicians is a rival union.

RKO Assigns Marin

Edwin L. Marin will direct "Nocturne" for RKO and checks into the studio today to begin work on film which rolls May 1.

MCA EXECS SET UP LONDON BRANCH

New York, April 15. — Taft Schreiber and Jimmy McHugh, Jr., plane to London tomorrow to establish MCA offices there. Schreiber will return here in three weeks. With MCA having biggest list of London clients available for American production, they are in hopes that the double taxation clause of the British laws will be repealed for foreign actors working in England, figuring the agency is ready with its setup to pact a large number of Hollywood players to appear in British films.

Abel Quits Rep

Rudy Abel has checked out of producer berth at Republic to become production manager for Harry Sherman at Enterprise. He will work first on "Ramrod."

ASCAP TOPPERS FIND DIVVY DOWN 16½% FOR QUARTER

Local writer-members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers yesterday got a jolt along with receipt of their 1946 first-quarter dividend payments. The higher classifications of songwriters especially felt the impact of discovery that their slices of the Society melon were down approximately 16½ per cent from last quarter.

In the AA, or top, classification, members yesterday got $4,584 as against last-quarter's $5,495. The percentage of reduction spiraled right down through next seven

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

GENERAL-MEMBERSHIP meeting has been held by Local 767, Negro Musicians Union here, at which windjammers talked over ways and means of getting more radio work. At present no all-sepia orks are playing any ether commercials hereabouts, and only occasionally do solo members get chance to sit in with white bands. Small groups, such as King Cole Trio, regularly get network sponsored shots, but union hopes to increase ratio. Colored musickers mulled ideas presented, such as fact most are rather too "hot" as jazzmen to get much consideration for commercials. Idea finally advanced by Ed Bailey, prexy of 767, was that colored crews should form with radio specifically in mind, put in serious stretch of rehearsing and would then find they'd fit more in mold of what radio wants.

COAST members of songpluggers' union have decided to meet regularly first Monday night of each month, commencing in May, for purely social relaxation. Tune-touters will dine en masse and afterwards play a few hands of gin-rummy. Music trade is viewing experiment with high interest, as this is first time the pluggers' union has attempted to bring members regularly together on social basis and try to induce them to forget grievances so many seem to hold against their fellows in intensely competitive occupation. Monday has been selected as "off" night of week and the spot, as yet unselected, where the touters will cluster, will not have a band, definitely, for fear some of the lads would be trying quietly to pry a few plugs from band-leader while the rest innocently were sipping their soup.

THEY'RE working the cameras for nostalgia in the Paramount filming of the "Perils of Pauline," story of Pearl White, serial queen of the silent days. Photo styles of 1914 are being duplicated by Cameraman Ray Rennahan with his modern Technicolor cameras to reproduce a facsimile of old-time movies. Lighting effects of the early day movies are also being duplicated, and camera speed for the serial scenes is being set at the old 16 frames to the second which was responsible for the jumpy, jerky effect that gave the pioneer cinema the name "flicker." Also being revived is the old "iris-in" shot. Much of the production is a "picture within a picture" and audience will get a graphic illustration of progress made in shooting flms since the old nickelodeon days.

HELEN Miller, widow of the late band-leader Glenn Miller, will have complete say on script and filming of feature built around career of husband when Harry Romm's independent production goes before cameras in August for United Artists release. Terms, whereby Mrs. Miller agreed to have Romm make pic, stipulates she could reject any item, phrase or sequence which did not meet with her approval. Don W. Haynes, who was with crew of Miller before his death in service, and is now personal manager of Glenn Miller-Tex Beneke band, will be technical director on pic and act under direct orders of Mrs. Miller. Film has not been definitely titled, but at present the tag receiving the greatest consideration is "In the Mood."

FOR next year station KMPC will concentrate on expansion and improvement of its news broadcasts and musical programs, according to plans of manager Bob Reynolds. Every effort at enhancing station's position will be directed toward those two features. Station will steer clear of special events unless subject matter is first class and unless station can give it everything necessary to carry off such programming in A-1 style. No attempt at keeping up a regular schedule of ear-catchers is planned, but special events will be exactly what name implies. Decisions were reached after Reynolds' recent return from transcontinental trip during which he gandered station operation elsewhere, particularly at WNEW, New York.

OPERATOR-LESS camera was used by Paramount yesterday for filming balloon-ascension scenes for "Perils of Pauline." Camera which dispensed with services of cameraman was placed in bottom of basket attached to rubber balloon, and as huge sphere rose to height of 300 feet camera automatically ground away through an opening cut in floor of basket. Controls were handled by Lieut. J. J. Leonard, balloonist on loanout from Navy who is acting as technical adviser on lighter-than-air sequences.

Ding Dong Williams

(Comedy)

RKO RELEASE. Executive producer, Sid Rogell. Producer, Herman Schlom. Director, William Berke. Screenplay, Brenda Weisberg, M. Coates Webster. From Collier's magazine stories by Richard English. Photography, Frank Redman. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Art direction, Albert S. D'Agostino, Lucius Croxton. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera. Editor, Les Millbrook. Sound, John L. Cass. Re-recording, Terry Kellum. Orchestral arrangements, Gene Rose.

CAST—Features Glenn Vernon, Marcy McGuire, Felix Bressart. Supporting players, Anne Jeffreys, James Warren, William Davidson, Tom Noonan, Cliff Nazarro, Ruth Lee, Jason Robards, Bob Nolan and Sons of the Pioneers, and Richard Korbel.

TRADESHOWN at Alexander Theatre, Glendale, Calif., April 9, 1946. Running time: 62 MINS.

"Ding Dong Williams" will score strongly with jitterbug trade, but apart from classical rendition of 11-year-old concert pianist Richard Korbel, carries little appeal for more mature audiences. Film is stylized smartly to meet demands of boogie-woogie crowd, but due to limitation of this draw and lack of marquee names will fall into secondary position on double bills.

Picture is adapted from Collier's mag stories written by Richard English around title role character, a hot-lip sax player who lays 'em low with his sweet playing. Felix Bressart, musical director of a Hollywood studio, is desperate for a score for a picture nearing completion, and he's told to provide something hot and immediate or out he goes. He brings in Ding Dong—played by Glenn Vernon — through persuasions of his doting secretary, Marcy McGuire, and when it's too late discovers that though Ding Dong turns out exact type of music he wants, compositions are strictly improvised on the moment and Ding Dong can't compose.

This theme is played up for comedy effect, with no holds barred. Action also permits warbling of three song numbers, and piano playing of Richard Korbel, latter highlighting film in interest. His execution of Grieg Piano Concerto and Fantasie Impromptu, by Chopin, is brilliant.

Vernon, in title role, sometimes appears dazed, but this is fault of indecisive characterization in script. Otherwise, he does well. Miss McGuire and Bressart are starred with him, trio working nicely together. Tom Noonan and Cliff Nazarro as pair of composers appear briefly in zany roles, Anne Jeffreys sings "Candlelight and Wine," by James McHugh and Harold Adamson, and James Warren contributes neat bit as western star. Other two song numbers are sung by Miss McGuire, doing "I Saw You First," McHugh-Adamson number, and Bob Nolan and Sons of Pioneers, with "Cool Water."

William Berke contrived to keep action moving in his direction and Herman Schlom made most of his limited opportunities as producer. Brenda Weisberg and M. Coates Webster collabed on script, which had to hit jitterbug groove, and Frank Redman handled cameras. Technical credits are standard.

Stooges Stooge Today

Three Stooges will start work today in "Three Little Pirates," two-reeler comedy, at Columbia. Others in the cast are Robert Stevens, Vernon Dent, Christine McIntyre, Dorothy De Haven and George McGrath.

'FOLLIES' TAKES $81,500 IN SMASH FIRST WEEK

"Ziegfeld Follies of 1946" finished up its first week at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz theatres last night with boffola $81,500 estimate to lead local first runs currently. "The Outlaw," on its second frame in the four Music Halls, is shaping up to a very fine $70,000 or thereabouts and heads up holdover bills.

First runs with new bills are benefiting from Easter holiday week for schools, reporting increased matinee trade, but overall gross picture is down slightly due to holdovers in 16 of the de luxe houses. "Road to Utopia" continues fancy on its fourth frame in the two Paramounts, with $37,000 in sight. A second feature will be added at the downtown house Thursday for fifth week. Coming in as supporter for "Utopia" will be "They Made Me a Killer," Pine-Thomas production.

"Tomorrow is Forever" has possibility for neat $35,000 on its second week at the Hillstreet and Pantages theatres. Sixth and final week for "Saratoga Trunk" in the three Warner theatres is very fine at $33,000 estimate. "Sentimental Journey" and "She Went to the Races" closes three-week run at the State, Chinese and Uptown with likely $30,-000. "Enchanted Forest" and "Johnny Comes Marching Home" at the Guild, United Artists and Wilshire theatres is cut to order for the holidaying students and is shaping up to nifty $35,500 on the week.

"Seventh Veil" continues strong at the Carthay Circle theatre, and has prospects for sturdy $8,000 on its current week, the fifth of the indefinite run. Desi Arnaz, making his first theatre date with new orchestra, closed at the Orpheum last night with approximately $21,000.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

Today's session of the United Nations security council could see another Soviet walkout. The Iran issue has again arrived at a tense point. It could have been shelved until 6 May if the Soviet had not decided to press the issue of removing it altogether from the agenda. With Iran agreed also to ask for dropping the case, the Soviet apparently figured it had the means of saving its face by getting the council to agree to do what would have amounted to saving the Russian face and dodging the issue. It has an argument, a good one. But there is a disposition within the council to think there may be something rotten in Iran. They recall that Iran had said negotiations were unlawful while foreign troops are on her soil and no agreement is completed until the parliament, now disbanded, acts. How, therefore, can there be agreement? Might not the announcement of one, and the suddenly changed Iranian plea, be due to the pressure of those troops? The case is closed, say the council majority, only when the troops have left. That was the point at issue—no matter what Iran, as a possible Charley McCarthy, may say now. That brings us back to where we came in—and Russia walked out.

RAFTERY'S SEARCH FOR STAGE SPACE PANS OUT N.S.G.

Edward Raftery, United Artists prexy, left yesterday for his New York office, after nearly two weeks here trying to arrange for stage space for UA producers and discussing number of production deals.

Exec, who came west primarily on stage space hunt, was unable to arrange for any stage rentals while here, despite talks with heads of every rental lot. Results of his talks with indie producers will be brought up at board of directors meeting, now slated for next Tuesday in New York, providing Gradwell Sears arrives back from Paris. Several production deals are expected to be announced following board meet.

• JUST FOR VARIETY •

THE GRAPEVINE: One reason Clark Gable is reported holding out for a new contract at Metro, which would permit him to make one picture off the lot annually, is that he's interested in "The Fountainhead." Henry Blanke is set to produce the Ayn Rand story at Warners, and Gable is said to be eyeing the architect role in great interest . . . Curtis Bernhardt will have two pictures he directed for Warners on Broadway simultaneously when "Devotion" hits the Strand and "A Stolen Life" moves into the Hollywood on the heels of "Saratoga Trunk" . . . Leo Morrison, who knows more celebs than all the rest of Hollywood's agents, is dedicating the new Morrison Building in Bevhills Sunday with a super housewarming. Generals, admirals, ambassadors and Hollywood's top layer will be present. Refreshments will be imported from Chasen's, Romanoff's, the Mocambo and the Tropics . . . John Ford's Field Photo Memorial Farm is the old Irving Briskin ranch at Reseda. Besides housing 16 permanent or temporary guests, it will have a memorial chapel dedicated to those lost in action. Mrs. Ford is now supervising construction of the chapel . . . Enterprise and Jean Renoir are talking contract . . . John Steinbeck sent the first draft of the "Cannery Row" screenplay to Bernie Byrens, indie producer who's set a $1,600,000 budget for the film . . . Walter Compton took off for Kansas City yesterday on a promotion campaign for Look mag.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: A producer who believes himself touched with genius and wants to write, direct and cut his films overstepped himself recently. He insisted on personally lighting the set for a romantic scene in his production. So how did it come out in the rushes? Blank. Shot in the dark! . . . Ralph Jordan, now in the Metro publicity dept., yesterday received a Navy citation for outstanding service while attached to the Navy as International News Service correspondent . . . Warners has three Oscar winners at work currently, Bette Davis, Irene Dunne and Gary Cooper . . . Janis Paige took up knitting very seriously. She promised the first pair of socks to Pat diCicco. The other night, at the Villanova, she presented them to him with a pretty speech. And diCicco, overcome by the tribute, immediately put them on in plain view of all the other guests. Janis is still blushing . . . Washington nitery operator who bought the Colony House, and plans sinking 100 G's into renovation to make it one of the Strip's top night clubs, is Sam Weiss . . . It's hard to believe but Pittsburgh, underneath all the soot, is terribly sensitive and easily hurt by unkind remarks. Pittsburgh's Chamber of Commerce is demanding that David L. Loew delete from "A Night in Casablanca" a scene in which Groucho Marx, gasping in a cloud of cigarette smoke, observes, "This is like living in Pittsburgh—if you can call that living."

CALL SHEET: DAVID RAKSIN returned from NY somewhat disappointed. "Cinderella 46," for which he wrote the music, was unable to start rehearsals. Show won't open until fall, when theatre space becomes available . . . SCOTT ELLIOTT returned from three months in NY, going back on "A Date with Judy" airer and up for several picture roles at 20th and Metro . . . GEORGE ZORITCH, ballet star who appeared in Warners' "Night and Day," is arranging for his mother to come over from Paris . . . RUSS MORGAN, who opens at the Biltmore Bowl May 23, has bought a home in Bevhills and intends to make that his permanent address . . . MITCHELL KOWAL claims he's writing a cookbook in which recipes are interspersed with ghost stories, explaining, "It's intended for occasional cooks who wish to scare up some grub" . . . BONITA GRANVILLE is seeing a lot of Kenneth Friede, Annenberg Publications exec, while in New York . . . BRIAN DONLEVY and his wife will take off for New York any day now, he on business, she for shopping . . . GIG YOUNG was tested at Warners for one of the male leads opposite Joan Crawford in "The Secret" . . . SAMUEL BRONSTON'S production of "John Paul Jones" will have one of the most colossal lap-dissolves in history, one to make an admiral groggy. An epilogue will show Jones' Continental flagship, the Bon Homme Richard, which will dissolve into its modern namesake, a 27,000-ton aircraft carrier.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: His new son must be an inspiration to Mickey Rooney. He's just finished the score for a legit musical tagged "Blessed Event" . . . Paramount execs liked the work of Ariane Allen Ross, wife of Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, so well in the rushes of "Welcome Stranger" that they're building up her part . . . PRC will neither confirm nor deny reports that "Missouri Hayride" is based on the Truman administration . . . Producer-director William A. Wellman made an honorary associate producer out of Harry Hopkins, head prop man of "Gallant Journey" at Columbia, for contributing more usable ideas than any other member of the crew. Hopkins was bestowed the "customary trappings of such a post," including a chair on the set . . . Peter Lorre is preparing two European plays, to which he owns the rights, for tryouts in summer stock . . . June Haver is home from the hospital but must spend another week or two in bed . . . Ann Sheridan and Steve Hannegan were attendants at the wedding of Tony Romano and Barbara Hayden Sunday night at the home of the bride's parents. Ann and Tony are old friends, having made a USO junket together . . . How artistic can you get? Angna Enters is giving a performance at the Philharmonic April 27, and meanwhile an exhibition of her paintings and sculptures is being given at the Francis Taylor galleries, Bevhills hotel. NEW JURISDICTIONAL ROW LOOMS IN MEXICAN PIX Mexico City, April 15.—Jurisdictional labor trouble again looms here as a result of an injunction obtained by the National Cinematographic Industry Workers union against a Federal Board of Conciliation ruling. Injunction permits the union to dominate film production setup.

Board decision, favoring Production Workers union, would have permitted the mixing of the registration of National's five locals. PWU, which claims locals involved belong under its jurisdiction, plans to appeal the injunction to the Mexican Supreme Court. An earlier squabble between the two unions had caused a production shutdown.

Verdayne Named To Far Eastern Post

New York, April 15.—Paul Verdayne, pre-war Paramount manager for Malaya and Java, has arrived from Australia, via London. He has been named company's general manager for the Straits Settlements by J. BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

At a recent cocktail gathering, Eric Remarque met the star of a current Broadway success. Acknowledging the introduction, he kissed her hand fervently and said, "Madame, I saw your performance last night, and you are Duse—you are Bernhardt—you are Rejane—you are Rachel—you are the ultimate of every great actress there was and is. But tell me, this actor, who plays opposite you, is he your lover?"

The star, who happens to loathe her vis-a-vis, practically hit the ceiling, and when she bounced back, retorted indignantly, "I should say not! Whatever gave you such an impression?"

Remarque shrugged his shoulders and explained, "It is the only reason I can imagine for his playing the part!"

SCOOPING AROUND: Raymond Massey just received a wire from Jerry Wald telling him that the script of "The Secret" should be finished this week, and he is trying to get his pal, David Niven, for the other important male lead opposite Joan Crawford. Massey, who thought the script completed long ago, confides that he suspects the reason behind the delay. It seems that when he checked off the Warner lot after "God Is My Co-Pilot" to return east, he turned over his wife's car to Wald, and now, the sooner he returns, the sooner Wald will have to turn it back to him! Incidentally, in preparation for the time when Massey must leave the cast of "Pygmalion," John Williams is standing by, ready to replace him . . . Watch for the big story break on Robert Ringling, present owner of the circus, losing it to his cousin, John North, from whom he won it two years ago, and watch for the legal fireworks in court . . . David Holtzman, sec-treasurer of Aldrich Prod., "Constellations" to the Coast today to try to line up "moom pitcher" names for the Cape Playhouse, where Bette Davis, Bob Montgomery, Anne Baxter and Gregory Peck are some of the famous alumnae . . . 20th-Fox, who had a real "Amber" on the lot, first name Eve, and plenty sextacular too, overlooked her "amberous" qualities, so she's off to her native London, where John Sutro has placed her under a personal three-year contract . . . Shocking how few of the Broadway crowd turned out for Vincent Youmans' funeral service at St. Thomas'. But those who were there, wept unashamedly as he left this mortal soil to the organ strains of "Through the Years."

SWELL JANE: The Copacabana was jammed to the doors. At the ring-side sat Frank Sinatra, Sophie Tucker, Eddie Albert, Jimmie Ritz, Xavier Cugat, Renee de Marco, Carol Bruce, Rex Smith, the Sonny Werblins, Adah Lewis, Jane Ball, Jules Stein, Ted Shapiro, Rose Marie, Haila Stoddard, Jacqueline Susann, Dolores Grey, Jerry Wayne, Benny Baker and Toots Shor (whose "Helen Morgan-ing" on the piano had the audience convulsed and Toots sooo embarrased that for the first time in his life he blushed instead of cussing). Suddenly, the lights dimmed and then blacked out completely. When they came up again, there, standing on a portable, moving platform was Jane Frohman, her bouffant skirt hiding her steel braces and her strong, lovely face radiating her courage and gratitude for the only "harness" she knows—singing for her supper again. Suffering can do two things to people—it can either make them very bitter, or give them a new understanding and tolerance. For Jane Frohman, she has not only acquired the latter two, but she has developed a poise and sense of humor that has enriched her as a person and an artist and made her talent shine brighter than ever. A votre sante, Jane!

MOVING ALONG: The Radio Director's Guild held a meeting this week and passed a resolution to emulate the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences with a voting ballot for annual awards to the "bests" in the radio field. Only their "Oscars" will be called "Mikes"—subtle, eh what? . . . Alan Lerner and Fritz Lowe, whose "Day Before Spring" has garnered them a winter harvest, are putting the finishing touches to their second collaborative effort, a Scotch fantasy called "Brigadoon." There's a wonderful part in it for Henry Travers, if he'll just give the nod. John C. Wilson will, of course, have first crack at it . . . The Rouben Mamoulians will be returning to their home, sweet home on North Palm Drive this Thursday. They're Chief-ing back so Rouben can sleep uninterruptedly for three days with nary a phone to answer!

Gus Edwards would have been proud to see Frank Sinatra, Jean Sablon, Paul Whiteman, Johnny Mercer, Lana Turner, Bea Wain and the Lawrence Tibbetts flocking to the Wedgewood Room to hear his niece, Joan, a "hit parade" with the ringsiders . . . The AMPA gang will get a chance to hear Paul Hollister expound his theories on advertising and merchandising as applied to motion pictures when he is their guest speaker at the Hotel Plaza (24) . . . Irving Engel, treasurer of the Century theatre, says never in his experience has he seen anything like the mail order demand for tickets for the six weeks' engagement of the "Old Vic." Letters are pouring in on the average of 3000 a day, and the house is already clean for the May 2 preem. And Theatre Inc. is a non-profit organization!

As predicted in this column several editions ago, Susan Douglas of "He Who Gets Slapped" is being deluged with picture offers by every company except one—MGM. The reason that this is pretty ironic to Susan is because it is the one company where she has a terrific "in."

For two years she was a page girl in the local publicity office and all the MGM praisers promised her that when she "clicked" and became a big movie star, they would twenty four sheet her all over the town.

MILLER-BENEKE ORK BY-PASSES AVODON FOR PALLADIUM

Don W. Haynes, personal manager of the Glenn Miller-Tex Beneke band, yesterday refused to sign the contract committing the musicrew to the Avodon ballroom for six weeks starting Sept. 11 at $7,500 weekly. Deal had been almost set, with General Artists Corp., which agents the band, having drawn up a paper, but Haynes nixed projected deal after surveying dancery, which is now nearing completion, on the grounds he found the bandstand too narrow to fully accommodate the 31-piece ork.

Last night pact was signed for band to open a six-weeks stand at Palladium, starting Sept. 3 at $7,500 weekly. Maury Cohen, operator of the Pal, had engaged in spirited bidding spree with Avodon last Friday, stopping at $7,000, which he then named his limit. When he learned Avodon booking had collapsed, he tilted his offer to what is minimum Haynes would accept. Greatest previous weekly stipend Palladium ever has paid for a band is $6,000.

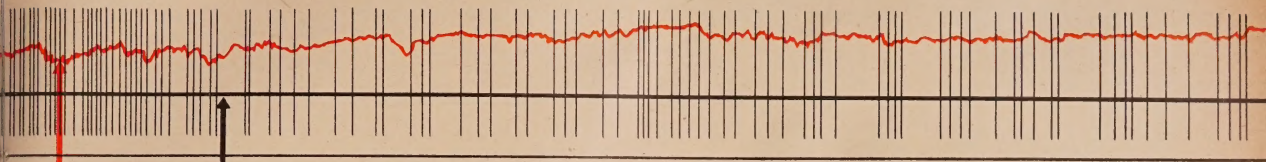
AND FINDS AN UNUSUALLY HIGH LINE OF ENTERTAINMENT!

Here's the inside story of one of the most interesting discoveries in motion picture business since sound! The graph above is a Preview-Profile of how an audience reacts to "Gilda". Typical movie-goers, representing all types and ages in an average theatre audience, were shown the picture. They had heard nothing about the picture in advance. Their reactions...sequence after sequence...were recorded by an exclusive patented process developed by Audience Research Inc. Tests over seven years have proved that through these Preview-Profiles the Gallup organization can forecast audience reaction to a new picture with scientific accuracy.

Gilda's curves are

GILDA PREVIEW-PROFILE



Black Line shows the neutral or average audience reaction. This is the base from which plus or minus reaction is measured.

Red Line charts the audience interest and enjoyment of "Gilda" throughout the showing. (This is one of the most exceptional entertainment lines in 3 years of Gallup profile records.)

it shows audience acceptance—and enthusiasm for Rita Hayworth in a dramatic role.

it shows unusual build-up in interest, and ends high—the distinctive mark of TOP pictures—insuring widespread and favorable word-of-mouth.

it shows THAT Gilda IS ONE OF THE TOP AUDIENCE ENJOYMENT PICTURES OF THIS YEAR!

Another Anniversary Box-office Winner from Columbia!

BIVOUAC SHORTAGE HITS FILMS 'WAY DOWN IN SONORA

The present housing situation is causing producers to shy away from long, out-of-town locations for pictures, it was disclosed yesterday with completion of arrangements for location shooting on "The Red House" in Sonora.

Chief headache of Clem Beauchamp, production manager for Sol Lesser, in making preparations to film the picture was finding quarters where the troupe of approximately 100 persons could be accommodated for four or five weeks. Even in Sonora, which isn't exactly a congested industrial center, virtually every available room seemed to be taken and it took Beauchamp several weeks to arrange for housing the company in motels, hotels and private homes.

In the case of other pictures currently headed for distant location it will be a camping-out proposition. Company of "My Darling Clementine," part of which will be filmed in Monument Valley, 160 miles from Flagstaff, Ariz., probably will be housed in tents. Same goes for "The Short and Happy Life of Francis Macomber," Benedict Bogeaus - Casey Robinson production, scheduled for location shooting in Mexico.

Lowenstein Named Art Directors' Biz Rep

Norman Lowenstein has joined the Society of Motion Picture Art Directors as new business representative. Lowenstein, recently discharged from the Army after service with the ordnance department in New Guinea and the Philippines, was a wage economist with the War Labor Board and prior to that in the Compliance Division of the War Production Board.

CSU'S LOCALS WILL SEEK SANCTION FOR PIC STRIKE

forthcoming to take strike action if necessary to break impasse in contract negotiations with the producers.

Meanwhile producers were huddling on strike possibility if Eric Johnston, prexy of Motion Picture Association of America, is not able to clear up the situation by tomorrow at 6 p.m., deadline he requested from Conference.

SORRELL WIRE

Following wire was sent out last night by Herbert K. Sorrell to L. P. Lindelof, International Painters president:

"Because of the producers avowed open shop policy and steadfast refusal to sign contracts, Painters Locals 644, 1421, 1488 and Studio Carpenters, Electricians and Machinists have all taken overwhelming strike votes. Cartoonists Local 852 votes this week. We expect sanction from our affiliated locals' International presidents April 16. We request your immediate sanction for such strike action if necessary. Please wire reply."

IMPASSE ON MONEY

While strike clouds gather for CSU locals, contract negotiations between several IATSE unions and the producers have hit an impasse on money. So far involved in the bogging down are grips and juicers. Roy M. Brewer, IA International vice prexy in charge of Hollywood, returned over the weekend from the east and met yesterday with business agents of the locals on progress of negotiations.

Brewer attended meeting of IA International representatives in Chicago, presided over by Thomas J. Shea, recently named assistant to Richard Walsh, International prexy, and then went on to New York for meeting with Walsh on the Hollywood situation. Upon return, Brewer quoted Walsh as declaring that the IA will not recognize any non-AFL picket line. Remark is believed aimed at present strike talk which would involve the non-AFL International Association of Machinists.

SONGWRITER SUING COL FOR 265 G'S

Allie Wrubel yesterday filed suit in Superior Court asking $265,000 from Columbia Pictures and Burt Kelly, producer, charging plagiarism and breach of contract. Wrubel, songwriter, charges that he originated the story "Meet Me On Broadway" and sold it to Columbia and Burt Kelly in 1944.

Wrubel alleges he was to be paid $100,000 for the story, plus $15,000 to write the score for the film. He also states that screen credit, which was not on the film, is worth $50,000. Additional $100,000 is sought as damages. Harold A. Fendler is representing Wrubel in the suit.

IBSEN GHOST HAUNTS HOLLYWOOD PRODS ON 'GYNT' RIGHTS

from a Franz Moerth of Vienna.

Disclosure that Hollywood was reaching up in the higher literary strata precipitated plenty of action yesterday. First of all agent Paul Kohner flatly stated that "Peer Gynt" was not in the public domain and that he represented the sole heir of the dramatist-poet — Henrik Ibsen's granddaughter, Her Excellency Countess Bergliot-Ibsen, currently residing in Sweden.

Also brought to light was the fact that producer Al Lewin, believing Ibsen's works in the public domain, had registered his intentions of producing "Peer Gynt" with the Motion Picture Association of America.

KOHNER'S CLAIM

Kohner, however, declared: "Several deals on 'Peer Gynt' are now pending and I am currently carrying on negotiations with William Wyler of Liberty Films on the play property. Anyone who wishes to produce it must first purchase the play. I have written Mr. Henreid either to purchase the property or desist from publicizing that he is going to produce it.

"If it's only a press agent's dream, I want Henreid to make a retraction in all the papers which used his announcement. However, I'll be glad to talk business with him if he wants to buy it. He's an excellent actor and would probably make a good 'Peer Gynt.' As to Mr. Lewin, this is news to me, but the same procedure applies to him."

Al Lewin also communicated with Henreid yesterday on the situation, unaware of the Kohner development. "I informed Henreid that I had registered intentions of producing 'Peer Gynt' with the producers' association several months ago," Lewin explained. "By this step I have first priority on the property. I assumed that Ibsen's works were in the public domain on the advice of my lawyers.

"I'm no legal authority on these copyright laws — I'm only the guy who wants to produce 'Peer Gynt.' It's a question for the lawyers to solve. I'll buy the play if it isn't in the public domain—but it ought to be, it's old enough. As to Henreid, it's possible for us to make a deal.

HENREID'S STORY

Paul Henreid, who initiated the controversy, expressed surprise at the turn of events. "Now that the mails from Europe are open, I get all sorts of screen material sent my way," Henreid stated. "Franz Moerth sent me the 'Peer Gynt' screen treatment from Vienna and I bought it. I thought that the Ibsen play was in the public domain and that no one else had registered it with the producers' association. Al Lewin phoned my agents at MCA and told them of his prior action. Maybe I will have to drop the whole thing since I certainly don't wish to fight with Lewin. Or maybe we can do it together."

No statement was available from the ghost of Ibsen.

covering studio musicians would be reached by the end of the week. However, it is not improbable there will be some tangles when the money clause comes up because of the drastic demands made.

At today's session, American Federation of Musicians agreed studios could use the same sound track in transferring a picture to 16m, while the producers agreed not to use a library track for shorts, leaving question of their use for trailers and previews open. In connection with the clause prohibiting musicians under agreement to work on productions not wholly owned by a producer, AFM agreed to consider the offer that this would obtain only when the interest in the picture was less than 25 per cent, but with the reservation that musicians would not be farmed out.

Studios agreed to clause that agreement would cover the services of not only staff musicians but all other musicians, including name bands, featured artists, etc. They also okayed clause under which producers agree to submit all contracts for featured artists and orchestras for approval by AFM before becoming effective.

Taking a breather tomorrow, the producers will meet among themselves to further analyze and study AFM demands before resuming meetings Wednesday.

B'CASTERS, GABBERS BARGAIN TODAY

Following extraordinary session last night of executive board and indie station announcers for whom increase is sought, American Federation of Radio Artists will make its final secondary proposals to establish bargaining with Southern California Broadcasters today. Announcers have already voted to strike by May 1. Broadcasters have issued their last counter proposal.

Union meet was held as last resort to avert blowup unless union could come up with acceptable alternate position. If union doesn't come up with a new tack, long-pending stalemate will have been reached, after over a month of haggling.

"higher" classifications. Members pegged in lowest, or "fixed" brackets, the One, Two, Three, Four fields, were given a seven and one-half per cent tilt over last quarter. Fact did not surprise them as they had been promised increase, while many of the lower-level members were plainly disappointed due to anticipation of greater gain.

All the upper-level members were stunned, judging their comments, by the hefty cut in their takes. Although they had been somewhat warned they would sacrifice for the lowly members, they had given credence to rumors that ASCAP during early 1946 had realized so much more money than during any recent periods that payments accruing to them would be off but a trifle actually.

New York, April 16.—Arnold Grant, prexy of Mervyn LeRoy's Arrowhead Productions, trained west last night to complete deal for LeRoy to produce "Little Women" with Danny O'Shea for Selznick.

'FOLLIES' GETS 83G; BEATS BEST GUESS

"Ziegfeld Follies of 1946" went nearly $1,900 above its original estimate for the first week at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz theatres. Metro film closed initial frame with $83,400, against original prospects for $81,500.

WB And Six Firms Will Celeb Sound Pix Birth

Warner Bros. will join with six scientific and engineering firms or organizations in staging a series of celebratory events marking the 20th anniversary of sound films, culminating on the precise date of the anniversary, August 6, 1946. Joining Warners are the co-participants which first made talking pictures commercially feasible — Bell Telephone Laboratories, American Tel. and Tel., Eastman Kodak, RCA-Victor, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

It was on Aug. 6, 1926, in the Warner theatre, NY, that

METRO FEATURES WILL BE SHORTER

New York, April 16.—Metro features are expected to run shorter in the future, in line with company's new production economy program. Confronted with instructions from Louis B. Mayer to pare production costs but maintain picture quality, Metro producers are to concentrate on use of shorter scripts which will result in less shooting time and consequent shorter running time.

Mayer revealed in New York last week that huddles he had with producers on Coast before coming east for home office confabs had been "very healthful."

Seymour Nebenzal is currently negotiating with Barbara Britton for starring role in "Temptation." Yarn, is an original by Herbert G. Luft.

NEW PLAN SELLING PIC SEATS BY YEAR

New York, April 16.—A revolutionary method of selling seats is planned by Walter Reade Circuit for new Park Avenue theatre. Seats selling on $50 per year membership basis are paid for in advance, entitling buyer to the same seat on same night 52 weeks a year.

Six hundred-seater, slated for September opening, will have late runs three weeks after RKO and Loew circuits, but aiming to show only year's best pictures. If all seats sell, guaranteed weekly gross would be $8,000 per week.

Selznick, Son Vacation

Washington, April 16.—David O. Selznick is vacationing here with his son. He will remain in Washington most of week, then return to New York for another week.

Studios Offer 17,000 Workers 18½c an Hour or 10% Pay Raise

Major motion picture studios yesterday adopted the wage policy established in eastern wage settlements and offered to increase hourly rates for daily employes 18½ cents, or 10 per cent, whichever is greater. Equivalent increases were offered to other classifications of employers, such as cumulative weekly workers and flat salaried employes.

Offer, which affects 473 different job classifications with an average daily employment of 17,000 workers, excluding talent brackets, comes as studios' answer to wage demands ranging up to 50 per cent being sought by unions in 1946 contract negotiations. Similar increases were accepted in the steel, automotive and other industries recently, in line with adminstration policy on general upping of hourly rates for workers.

STOCK PUT ON $1.20 A YEAR BASIS

RKO yesterday voted two dividends of 30c each on the common stock, the first ever declared on the junior issue. The stock was placed on an annual basis of $1.20. The action of the board of directors in New York was anticipated on the New York stock exchange, more than 16,000 shares

L. B. Mayer Stays On In NY Another Week

New York, April 16.—Louis B. Mayer was discharged from Mt. Sinai hospital over weekend after routine checkup, and again has postponed his departure for Coast. Rather, the Metro chief decided to spend another week in NY, during which he will huddle with Nicholas Schenck and Ben Goetz. Latter, Metro's European production head, arrived from London Monday.

Fox and Seidelman Due for Paris Visit

New York, April 16.—Matty Fox, prexy of United World Corp., and Joseph Seidelman, head of Universal's foreign sales, are due in Paris this week, following windup of J. Arthur Rank's London convention. Both plan a check of distribution prospects in France and throughout Europe.

Coyne Gets Exec Post

New York, April 16.—Robert W. Coyne, former field director of the Treasury Department's War Finance Division, today was named executive director of the American Theatres Association. He will act as administrative chief for the new group which is about to launch a membership drive.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

DISCUSSION of United Artists unexpected hit with "Henry V" in Boston has set actors hereabouts cutting up touches over "when I played Shakespeare in—." Among them is Zorina, dancer who is getting her first straight acting part in the Mike Fessier-Ernie Pagano film, "Lover, Come Back," at Universal. She claims to be the only woman who ever played the part of "Ariel" straight through "The Tempest." Role calls for ballet and for constant motion from start to finish and the chore is usually assigned to at least three dancers, each playing a portion of the show. Incidentally, Zorina says she is now off of the "Ariel" role and also off of dancing and going in for straight acting from now on.

HOLLYWOOD bookies yesterday weren't having any of the harness racing. A few of the commission boys who took bets early in the day later returned the dough, explaining that "we phoned them in and they're not taking them." Bookies said they weren't equipped with scratch sheets, etc., had made no arrangements yet to handle bets on the trotters and pacers. Opinion among the players was that the horse stores here are leary of playing in game with which they have little experience; but with favorites going down and longshot winners hitting the circle on the opening day yesterday it's a safe guess that the boys will soon have their gimmicks polished and sharpened and ready for action.

ALL other union demands are nothing compared with current attempts of Radio Writers Guild to up their long-standing minimums via negotiation with C. P. MacGregor, transcription firm. Guild's basic minimum has remained unchanged for nearly five years. When they started organization here, $40 was considered ample stipend per free lance script. War conditions prevented changes before now, and though indie producers average $150 per script now and minimum is disregarded completely, union is prepping for future. Return to the meagre days of radio writing remains a threat so long as the minimum remains unchanged.

EVICTION suit brought by Maury Cohen of Palladium against Hollywood Recordings, tenant in Pal building on Sunset boulevard, has been tossed out of Superior Court. He is now permitted to remain for another three and half years when lease expires—though offering to sell out to Cohen for $75,000. Inside is that Cohen wants attractive site as showcase for his own recording setup under which he would produce Palladium label, in addition to operating pop retail outlet.

LIFE mag, in its report to stockholders, states it is guaranteeing a 5,200,000 circulation by this November. Development is being made possible because the outift is acquiring paper manufacturing plants all over the country and converting, where necessary, from producing news print to slick stock. Company recently bought two Crown-Zellerbach plants on the Coast and is rapidly converting them to a nearly 100 per cent output of slick. Latter move is chief reason why dailies on the Coast are currently plagued by a newsprint shortage.

THREAT of a strike by indie station announcers had plenty of other station employes worried lest they be dragged in with gabbers due to continuing to hold cards with American Federation of Radio Artists. Indie stations have long been the school of the industry as far as announcers go. Graduates to better things are numerous, particularly in this locality where station press agents, account execs, and others of executive position or other status have retained their actor and gabber ducats against a rainy day.

Listen, my children, and you shall hear,
Not of the riding of Paul Revere,
But the riding of Hopalong Cassidy
Who set the honest old ranchers free;
The midnight riding of Johnny Mack Brown
Who foiled the crooks in a cattle town;
The galloping hoofs of Buster Crabbe
Who foiled his foe with a swift left jab;
The canyon chases of Sunset Carson,
A cowboy bold with the heart of a parson;
Gene Autry galloping thataway
To save the ranch at the break of day—
Old Paul Revere was a rider once
And he got away with heroic stunts
But he lived too soon, for he couldn't croon
In the light of the silvery western moon.

Paul Revere never wore a ten-gallon hat nor a set of spurs that jingle-jangle-jingled, nor an Easter-egg shirt, but his ride through the canyons of Massachusetts was the most important gallop in American history. His memory is enshrined in Boston where the baseball clubs play two games on Patriots' Day, one in the morning and one in the afternoon, with separate admissions to each game.

TRADESHOWN at RKO Hillstreet Theatre, Los Angeles, Calif., April 11, 1946. Running time: 97 MINS.

"Badman's Territory" is a high-budget western with all the attributes of a money picture. It has been produced and directed with down-to-earth honesty, and only in the romantic scenes and sequences does it fall short in entertainment values. This latter footage slows action down to a walk. Otherwise, film is fast-paced and often stirring, a credit to both producers and cast.

Title designates that narrow strip, now in Oklahoma, directly above Texas Panhandle, before it was annexed by Oklahoma. This strip was known as Badman's Territory, without law of any kind and a safe haven for outlaws of every description. Here the action of the picture unfolds, sometimes episodic, sometimes without apparent purpose, but nearly always entertaining.

Randolph Scott plays a Texas sheriff who follows the James Boys into this territory, to rescue his brother whom he thinks was kidnapped by pair. He is greeted with mixed reactions by assorted populace, some welcoming him as a man, others treating him as a sheriff. Before he has been there many days, he discovers that he's been framed by a crooked U.S. marshal and has a reward on his head. Thereafter, action involves both the James and Dalton gang, efforts of Ann Richards, crusading newspaper editor, to have law brought in and strip annexed by Oklahoma, and Scott acting as "regulator" for the territory.

Characterizations are expertly drawn and colorful, George "Gabby" Hayes completing star threesome. Scott does well enough with his role, but has tough sledding in keeping up to Hayes. Most picturesque performances are contributed by Lawrence Tierney and Steve Brodie, as Jesse James and Bob Dalton, respectively, brief in footage but standouts in interest. Nestor Paiva as Sam Bass, the outlaw, also is memorable role, and Isabel Jewell does yeoman work as Belle Starr. James Warren is OK as Scott's brother who joins Dalton gang.

Nat Holt handled production reins with showmanship and Tim Whelan's direction carries punch. Jack Natteford and Luci Ward rate hand for their original screenplay, and Clarence Upson Young and Bess Taffel wrote additional sequences. Robert de Grasse's photography is of high standard, art direction by Albert S. D'Agostino and Walter E. Keller and set decorations by Darrell Silvera and James Altwies properly atmospheric, and music score by Roy Webb enhances dramatic effect.

Petrillo Makes AFM's Film Wage Demands

New York, April 16.—American Federation of Musicians money demands highlighted a private session of producers' representatives this afternoon at Pat Casey's office. Indications point to the demands getting increased resistance when negotiations resume tomorrow with James C. Petrillo.

It was learned that the studio group have not, thus far, made any counter-proposals on the money clauses. The producers are not clear on three points and will ask clarification of them. The measures relate to the hourly rate; whether the weekly or annual guarantee will apply to cover a minimum number of men and what will constitute the size of the orchestras.

PULL 'SPELLBOUND' FOR 'KID' DEBUT

New York, April 16. — Withdrawal of David O. Selznick's "Spellbound" from the Astor this week to permit opening of Samuel Goldwyn's "The Kid From Brooklyn," was in reciprocity, it was learned, for Goldwyn's cutting short "The Wonder Man," run five months ago to permit "Spellbound" to debut.

The two producers have a five-year deal to share the Broadway showcase, with clause allowing a picture to remain as long as its gross is $17,000 or more weekly. Although both pictures exceeded the stipulated figure, the producers agreed to yank them for their mutual benefit.

Hersh Seeks Re-Issue On 29 Korda Films

New York, April 16. — Martin Hersh, prexy of Ideal Factoring Corp., is currently negotiating for purchase of the re-issue rights on 29 Alexander Korda films. More than $500,000 is involved in the deal. If deal is consummated, IFC would obtain all rights, except in 16m, to the Korda films in the United States and Canada.

Par Office Workers Given $12,983 Back Pay

New York, April 16. — Federal Court yesterday awarded 35 building employes of Paramount Building, Par's home office, $12,983 in overtime wages. Grant was made under Fair Labor Act, following suit filed by workers last year against Paramount Theatres Corp.

THEATRES BURN AS SINATRA CANCELS

New York, April 16.—Both Downtown theatre, Detroit, and Chicago theatre, Chicago, burned at Frank Sinatra today when told that negotiations for playdates had been cancelled.

Dates had been confirmed orally and called for Sinatra to draw $25,000 guarantee at Downtown against 50-50 split, same guarantee to prevail in Chicago and split over $60,000. Guarantees would have been the greatest paid by either house to any performer. Sinatra cancelled dates to rest on doctor's orders.

NBC Tele Head Defies Petrillo on Pic Edict

New York, April 16. — Despite ruling of James C. Petrillo, AFM prexy, television broadcasters will continue using films as necessary adjuncts to live shows. Edict that standby orchestras be paid whenever film with musical score is broadcast will be disregarded, according to John F. Royal, exec-v-p of National Broadcasting Co. Industry leader sees ruling as another stumbling block continually placed in video's path by musicians union.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

Great Britain and the United States come to the United Nations security council today as men from Missouri who have to be shown. We admit Spain is totalitarian, but seek proof that she is a threat to world peace—which she would be if the Polish charges are true—and then we seek a means of action. Our experience with breaking relations has not been effective. We have found this strengthens, rather than weakens, the power of the protested incumbent. We also do not want to promote a civil war, which would necessitate military expeditions to which we are not anxious to contribute. Also we fear that if Franco goes out, he may be replaced by an anarchist or communist regime. If sanctions were voted, Britain considers, she would be without her main source of many foodstuffs, especially citrus fruits, with the Labor government already worried about the effect of short rations. Further, sanctions would be effective only if all Latin American countries participated, including Argentina. Spain is one of the most self-sufficient countries in Europe, used to living on little. And the move, Britain further figures, might affect her food supply from Argentina, even of greater volume and variety than from Spain. If the British got their loan, they could buy elsewhere, but they haven't got it yet. All these points and more will be in the background today.

Color consultant, Mique Nelson. Process effects, Ub Iwerks. Sound recording, S. O. Slyfield and Robert O. Cook.

TRADESHOWN at the Walt Disney Studios, Burbank, Cal., April 15, 1946. Running time: 74 MINS.

"Make Mine Music" is fundamentally a 10-act vaudeville show in animated color cartoon. But it's all headline vaudeville with any one of the acts equal to top billing. Appeal is varied. None of the ten parts lacks entertainment for a whole audience and each is slanted for enthusiastic response from individual fan groups, ranging from the jive fans to the symphony devotees. Picture should meet with good box office response and may be the best Disney money maker since "Snow White."

Highlights of the show for the bulk of the customers are probably the opener, comedy story of the feudin' Martins and Coys with hillbilly music; "Casey at the Bat," recited by Jerry Colonna and introducing the song, "Casey, the Pride of Them All," and "The Whale Who Wanted to Sing at the Met," featuring Nelson Eddy doing all the voices in a miniature opera.

The Andrews Sisters get over well as the voices for "Johnny Fedora and Alice Blue Bonnet," comedy love fantasy; Benny Goodman and orchestra "send" the swing fans in "All the Cats Join In" and "After You've Gone."

Sterling Holloway furnishes the voice for Sergei Prokofieff's orchestral fable, "Peter and the Wolf." This is one of the numbers done in the more traditional cartoon style. "Two Silhouettes" (the silhouettes are the ballet team of Riabouchinska and Lichine) lives up to its programmed description of "ballad-ballet." Dinah Shore does the voice for the number. "Without You" is kaleidoscopic mingling of color, motion and design keyed to the voice of Andy Russell and "Blue Bayou" presents a similar treatment with the Ken Darby chorus doing the dong.

The "Casey at the Bat" number is made especially effective by cartoon style reminiscent of the Currier & Ives prints.

Color and technical details of animation are deftly handled.

Milt Howe's 'Stranger'

Milt Howe checked in yesterday on special exploitation deal for International's "The Stranger." Film, to be released in June, is International's last for RKO distribution.

METRO DUBS 50 PIX FOR 16M WORLD CAMPAIGN

Metro has completed dubbing of 50 pictures in three languages, in 16m, which will be shipped immediately to 25 foreign countries in bid to be first Hollywood company to line up narrow-gauge program abroad. Films were dubbed in French, Spanish and Italian. English versions also will be sent to English-speaking countries.

Pictures are slated for communities where motion pictures never before have been shown. Loew's International organized 16m setup nearly a year ago, program to supplement rather than compete with its regular 35m showings overseas, and for past six months has brought territorial execs to this country for training in 16m field. Block of 50 consists of both features and short subjects.

Territories which will receive 16ms include England, Australia, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Ireland, Palestine, India, Singapore, Philippines, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico, Panama, Peru, Venezuela, Puerto Rico, South Africa, Portugal, Thailand, China, Egypt and Finland. Shipment to Brazil and Italy will start soon.

Films will be shown in schools, halls, anywhere 16m projector can be set up for public exhibitions. In some cases, it is expected mobile units will be utilized, for back-country showings.

'Giant' Starring March Put on Decca Disc

THE GRAPEVINE: Sounds like something out of George S. Kaufman's rib on the film industry, "Once in a Lifetime," but it happened in an indie's cutting room. One of the cutters working on the producer's $6,000,000 epic was fired because he had a wart on his thumb. He had refused to wear gloves, as is required of cutters running film through the movieola, and the wart scratched all the film he handled—which made some of the scenes, shot in sunlight, look as though it was raining! . . . Maxies Rosenbloom and Baer are wowing 'em in NY. They're playing Club 18 at $4800 a week. Next they go into the Capitol at six gees weekly . . . Charlie Einfeld and Anatole Litvak were deep in conversation over lunch at Lucey's. Looks like Litvak, recently discharged from the Army Motion Picture division, will choose between Enterprise and Liberty, and that's business, not ideology . . . Big trek by the literati from New York to Hollywood. Mag writer Francis Sill Wickware, Vernon Pope, editor of Pageant; Miriam Howell of Goldwyn's eastern story dept., and Kay Brown of MCA's literary dept., are in town . . . RKO is gloating over sales figures on "The White Tower," which it will film in Europe. Book has hit the 650,000 mark and is now ahead of "Forever Amber" on the NY best seller lists . . . Louella Parsons rated a big hand around town for carrying on with her broadcast Sunday night, hours before she went to the hospital for major surgery.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Gene Fowler has written the biographies of such assorted characters as William J. Fallon, Bonfils and Tammen, Mack Sennett and John Barrymore, but he's never more interesting—and this is no snide hint at egomania—than when he's writing about himself. His "Solo in Tom Toms" is just out. It's autobiography but does not concern Fowler, the bravo of the city rooms, the man who played a concertina while Hearst burned, the terror of Hollywood pomposites, the Fowler of robust legend. His "Solo" is more violin than brass section: a wistful recollection of his boyhood in Denver. And it's very good. Almost as good as his first (and best) book, "Trumpet in the Dust" . . . High Bonnet restaurant, named after Idwal Jones' book on luxurious eating, opened in San Francisco, with wine and food connoisseurs on the board of directors and all chefs Parisian. It's also claimed that "no publicity" is a rule of the High Bonnet—"the prestige of the house depends on its cuisine and service"—but what the heck's this? . . . Beryl Wallace will make a nightly appeal for the current Cancer Fund drive during the next two weeks at Earl Carroll's . . . Fern Barry, whose hands and legs have been used for inserts in pix, subbing for stars with less shapely members, is playing a role in "The Sentence"—all of her, not just a limb or two . . . Mickey Rooney's jitterbug dance with Dorothy Ford, finally chosen to play the tall girl role opposite him in "Uncle Andy Hardy," will be a cameraman's bugaboo. She's a foot shorter than he is.

CALL SHEET: AUDIE MURPHY, Congressional Medal of Honor winner, will be one of the principal speakers tonight at the Bevhills chapter of the Veterans Committee rally at Beverly Hills High school. Such members of AVC as Tyrone Power, Gene Markey, Robert Montgomery, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Will Rogers, Jr., will also be present. It's getting a big coverage from wire services, radio and press . . . LARRY ADLER and his wife celebrated their eighth wedding anniversary the other day . . . EARL CARROLL and P. K. WRIGLEY are flying to Catalina today to look over property for a new night club . . . MICHELE MORGAN returned yesterday after six months in her native Paris. She played in two pix for the French government . . . JOHNNY COY'S sister, Patricia, a Montreal model, turned down studio offers with the statement, "One movie star in the family is enough. I'll stay home with mother" . . . GINA KAUS has been assigned to write the screenplay of "Black Oxen" for Metro. Gertrude Atherton's novel, a shocker two decades ago, was one of Hollywood's first big exploitation pictures with three stars sharing the billing . . . BILL LUNDIGAN says they shot so many tests for "The Razor's Edge" that when it's released, the film will seem like a revival . . . JOHN ALEXANDER, veteran of the NY stage and films, celebrated his 84th birthday yesterday on the set of "A Woman of My Own."

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Quite a mob milled around the front of Bruno's on Vine Street yesterday. Not a nylon in sight, just Red Skelton having his picture taken . . . SCHINE WINS THREE WEEKS' RESPITE IN TRUST CASE

Buffalo, April 16.—Despite vigorous objections from Assistant Attorney General Robert Wright, attorneys for the Schine Chain Theatres in the Government anti-trust suit, won a three week adjournment in Federal Court here today on the plea that more time was required by them for study of the Government proposal to divest the Schine companies of eighty out of a total of one hundred sixty theatres.

Judge John Knight set matter down for final argument May 7 on Government's plan and Schine objections thereto.

Legal Friends Help Nugent in 20th Suit

New York, April 16—Music Publishers Protective Association, Songwriters Protective Association, and Shapiro Bernstein, publishers, have allied with Maude Nugent "as friends of court" against 20th Century-Fox. Trio combined in filing brief that combats the theory advanced by 20th in action that, under section 1E of 1909 copyright law, use of songs in films is no more than mechanical usage entitling publishers to a two cents minimum per use.

ROBBINS TO START 'LEAVE' CAMPAIGN

Coincident with release of Metro's "No Leave, No Love" on May 5, Robbins Music launches biggest promotion campaign on a film score in its history. Date will also mark release of recordings of film's songs made by several disc companies, including Cosmo's platters featuring Pat Kirkwood, British star of film.

Extensive exploitation will center on tunes, "Love in a Greyhound Bus" and "All the Time." Plug copy will be featured in 28 national magazines in which bus line advertises. Batch of 10,000 title pages to songs will be displayed in terminals, in addition to posters.

Light 'n' Airy
by JACK HELLMAN

Sloppy guest work by stars from radio has brought down a lot of criticism on their heads. The fault lies both in their inexperience and a decided lack of interest in their work. Those who came to pictures from the stage are the least troublesome, having been trained in the niceties of timing and knowing the value of punching a line in the right place. Young picture stars, say the producers, are the worst offenders and seem to treat a radio guest shot as a lark. For the munificent fee paid them for a few hours work, the agency and client feel they're entitled to an honest and inspired performance. Unless the condition improves there may have to be extended rehearsal periods to keep muffed lines at a minimum. What must be impressed on the young player is that a bad air performance can be just as harmful as a bad picture, both to her own artistry and the film's box office. The stars' responsibility is not a light one, what with millions at the dials hanging on to their every word.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

—By FLORENCE S. LOWE—

Washington, April 16.—First chore of the infant ATA seems set. As predicted in "Hullabaloo" some weeks back, the pressing problem of the food crisis is one in which the film industry can perform a real service. Job is at hand.

Department of Agriculture already has submitted to ATA plans for two or possibly three trailers, 1½ minutes each, on the subject of famine. Deal, which is about to be set, calls for Agriculture to supply the raw stock for the prints. Trailers will be made in Hollywood and follow the usual pattern with big names being featured. Since the problem is so urgent, ATA will have to act fast.

The food films drive is well along on other fronts. Agriculture is distributing 500 prints of Pathe's "Famine or Plenty."

"Suffer Little Children," the Canadian Film Board pic which UNRRA's film head, William Wells, could not sell for theatrical distribution here, is faring better elsewhere. It is being widely shown in theatres of Canada and the United Kingdom, and is about to be circulated theatrically in Latin America by a large Mexican circuit.

Agriculture has bought 300 prints for non-theatrical screening in the U.S. from Brandon Films which made a special low cost deal with the department, the Canadians waiving royalties.

MPAA sets up housekeeping for itself here April 27, when it moves to its new building at 16th and I Sts. Eric Johnston will find his desk in order when he formally takes over following the U.S. Chamber of Commerce convention in Atlantic City, May 2-3. At that time, he bows out as C of C prexy and formally goes on the MPAA payroll. Johnston's staff will merge with the local Washington unit headed by Jack Bryson, bringing a total of 15 persons under the one roof. Construction freeze has sharply curtailed the amount of work which can be done in putting the building into shape, but it will provide comfortable offices until such time as a real job of renovating can be done.

"We 'Southrons' have been kept sufficiently busy asserting to our Northern friends that we aren't all morons and degenerates a la Tobacco Road, or banjo-picking mammy singers a la Al Jolson, but now we have to go around protesting that we aren't all raucous nitwits and foghorns like Senator Claghorn, 'from the South, that is.' Chungking, wartime capital of China, became an international film center during its short period of greatness, Department of Commerce reports in a survey of the city's meteoric rise. Survey says in part:

"Several new motion picture houses opened, and modern Chinese plays, some satiring life in Chungking during the war, were added to the theatre repertoire.

"Even Hollywood went to Chungking. As many as nine agents of foreign motion picture companies were residents of Chungking at one time, eight of them representing American concerns. Two Chinese firms produced motion pictures under fantastic conditions in studios half buried in caves for protection during air raids.

"Representatives of one of the producing companies went into Tibet early in the war to photograph the coronation ceremonies of the new Dalai Lama. The two aforementioned companies together maintained mobile projecting units that went from village to village showing motion pictures free of charge to many people who had not known before that such things existed."

Of course, with the coast cities of China free of Japs once more, Chungking's era of temporary greatness is on the wane.

AFRA, B'DCASTERS NEAR SETTLEMENT ON ANNOUNCERS

Impending battle between Southern California Broadcasters and American Federation of Radio Artists—and possible announcer strike—has been amicably settled. Indications are that union has retreated from previously adamant stand. Except for working out of few minor details settlement looks to be effected today or tomorrow. Opposing sides are expected to issue joint statement on settlement and new contractual terms.

Immediately on settlement of AFRA problem, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers will step in where AFRA left off. Hanging fire for over three weeks now, technician union is eager to press its demands for average 30 per cent wage increase, plus other working condition improvements which have already been handed to managements. Roy Tindall, IBEW rep, stated last night that he would start negotiations before the weekend. Broadcasters are more favorably inclined to IBEW proposals, according to managers.

CBS PLANS TO DROP RADIO AUDITIONS

CBS is considering discontinuing its radio actor classification listings. Results of regular monthly auditions have been published for trade for past two years, but with AFRA and Radio Directors Guild trying to work out new system of screening talent, CBS sees its efforts as a duplication. Outcome of AFRA-RDG discussions will decide fate of net's chore.

Idea was started at KNX as an aid to its own producers but was later also released to all radio producers as a gratis service by Hal Hudson, of CBS, who handles directory.

2750 VETS RETURN TO JOBS; STUDIOS GIVING BONUSES

Total of 2750 war veterans are back on their jobs at major studios, according to figures released yesterday by the Association of Motion Picture Producers and compiled by a special veterans' committee headed by Fred Meyer. Service flags of the nine member studios carry 4743 stars.

Studios are granting bonus vacations with full pay to service men and women returning to their jobs except in cases where studio has already made extra payments to veterans. Veterans with year or more of service get two weeks vacation, starting with date of re-employment, or 12 days pay instead of the time off, if they prefer. The bonus vacation is adjusted accordingly in cases where service was less than one year.

OPEN SHOP PLAN IS DENIED

that Herbert K. Sorrell's "charge is without foundation."

In an effort to correct what they claim is the "complete misrepresentation made to" the International prexies "by local representatives," 10 major film companies' wire declares that "producers have not proposed an open shop policy in the motion picture industry" and goes into detail on circumstances whereby such a question arose.

ONE EXCEPTION

According to wire "the one necessary exception to this policy has been created by the withdrawal of the Machinists Union from the American Federation of Labor and the issuance of a Federal Charter to Machinists in the motion picture industry by the American Federation of Labor." Wire further states that "under these circumstances we cannot discriminate against this American Federation of Labor Union by denying employment to machinists who are members of that union."

Regarding Sorrell's claim in wire he sent out Monday asking strike sanction from the International prexies that producers had steadfastly refused to sign contracts, studios assert "there has been no such refusal. The only demands made upon us have been for what amounted to a general 50 per cent wage increase. Nor was there any presentation of, or opportunity to negotiate, the other elements which would be a necessary part of any contract. The negotiations were broken off by Mr. Sorrell and not by the Producers, who stand ready to resume them at any time."

DEADLINE AT 6 P.M.

In connection with the strike talk over the "open shop" question, Eric Johnston and Byron Price trained to New York from Washington last night to confer with company officials. Session is in the hope that some solution will be found which will prevent a CSU locals strike. Johnston has until 6 p.m. tonight, his own deadline, to give locals an answer.

RKO VOTES COMMON DIVVY

being traded in yesterday for an increase of 1¼ points.

The dividend action on the common stock was forecast in the March 29 issue of Daily Variety. The stock has advanced in a year from around $8 a share to a close yesterday of $25½.

Announcing the action of the board of directors in New York, Chairman Floyd B. Odlum issued the following statement:

"At a meeting of the Board of Directors of Radio Keith Orpheum Corp. two dividends of thirty cents per share each were declared on the common stock.

"The first dividend is payable May 15, 1946 to holders of record at the close of business on May 6th, 1946 and the second July 1, 1946 to holders of record at the close of business on June 15, 1946.

"Declaration of the two dividends at this time is in accordance with the present policy of the Board to place the stock on a $1.20 annual basis, so long as earnings justify the dividends.

"Profitable operations during the past few years and the consummation in February of the re-financing plan have created a strong, working capital position, adequate to meet foreseeable requirements of the business."

CARROLL WINNER OF NIGHT'S PAY IN ARBITRATION

Earl Carroll yesterday won decision handed down by Labor Board of Arbitration in a contest with American Guild of Variety Artists. Ruling was that showman will not have to pay cast of performers at his nitery for darkening place on Nov. 20, 1945, to effect repairs to roof.

Site was shuttered suddenly for the one night when it was discovered a center truss sagged. Cast was docked for the night and AGVA sought to obtain salaries for performers on grounds closing was not "an act of God." Board reported the closing was "due to an accident which could not be reasonably anticipated or prevented" and that while it was "not an act of God," closing was not the fault of Carroll and therefore he need not pay the salaries, which amounted to nearly $1,000 for performances missed.

Kaufman Setting Up 'Sacramento' Preem

Les Kaufman, Republic chief flack, leaves today for Sacramento to set up preems of Joseph Kane's "In Old Sacramento." Picture will get simultaneous openings in the capital city at the Capitol, Hippodrome and Alhambra theatres and exploitation will be hooked with advance publicity on Sacramento's coming centennial celebration.

Red Skelton to Star In 'Guardsman'

Red Skelton will star in Metro's remake of "The Guardsman," in which Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne previously appeared for Culver lot. Script, being brought up to date, is being written by Harry Ruskin and John Meehan, and Nat Perrin is set to produce.

WB Slates 'Dance'

Warners has slated "Romance and Dance," two reel Technicolor short, for early production with Lios Barona directing. Picture will trace Latin dance festivals from Aztecs to the present day.

Traver Leaves 'Abie's'

Lee Traver has resigned as casting director for Bing Crosby Producers Inc. on "Abie's Irish Rose" and will take a vacation. He is being replaced by Pat McGrath, formerly with International.

An Answer to

The following wire was sent today to William L. Green, President of the American Federation of Labor; L. P. Lindelof, International President of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers; William L. Hutcheson, International President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and Edward Brown, International President of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers . . . to correct the complete misrepresentation made to them by local representatives:

According to the Hollywood trade papers Herbert K. Sorrell telegraphed you Monday night that "because of the Producers' avowed open shop policy and steadfast refusal to sign contracts, Painters Locals 644, 1421, 1488 and Studio Carpenters, Electricians and Machinists have all taken overwhelming strike votes . . . We request your immediate sanction for such strike action if necessary."

Mr. Sorrell's charge is without foundation.

The Producers have not proposed an open shop policy in the motion picture industry. They have been and now are ready to negotiate closed shop contracts with the Painters, Carpenters, Electricians and other American Federation of Labor Craft unions which have heretofore had closed shop contracts, and union shop contracts with the unions and guilds with whom they have heretofore had such contracts.

The one necessary exception to this policy has been created by the withdrawal of the Machinists Union from the American Federation of Labor and the issuance of a Federal Charter to Machinists in the motion picture industry by the Misrepresentation

American Federation of Labor. This charter was signed by President William Green, by yourself and by each of the other twelve Vice Presidents of the American Federation of Labor. We have been advised by the Central Labor Council and the Building Trades Council here that the American Federation of Labor Federal charter union is the only accredited American Federation of Labor union for machinists in this industry. Under these circumstances we cannot discriminate against this American Federation of Labor Union by denying employment to machinists who are members of that Union.

Mr. Sorrell claims a "steadfast refusal to sign contracts." There has been no such refusal. The only demands made upon us have been for what amounted to a general 50% wage increase. Nor was there any presentation of, or opportunity to negotiate, the other elements which would be a necessary part of any contract. The negotiations were broken off by Mr. Sorrell and not by the Producers, who stand ready to resume at any time.

Loyd Leaves Hughes

Beverly Loyd has secured release from her contract with Howard Hughes and yesterday inked term deal with Hal Roach. First assignment will be femme lead opposite William Tracy in "Here Comes Trouble," to be producer-directed by Fred Guiol.

FRENCH MAKING GOOD PIX UNDER HANDICAPS

French producers, with little to work with and laboring under numberless disadvantages, are still turning out picture that will make competition, according to Michele Morgan, who returned from Paris yesterday.

Miss Morgan, who came here from France five years ago and is first French star to return to Paris for picture work, has just completed role in film called "Symphonie Pastorale." Pic was produced in Paris and on location in Switzerland. Actress said production in France is strictly on indie basis, with no big studios operating. No new materials are available, old sets are being made over, lighting is serious problem. She said picture on which she worked had only one set of lights which had to be moved from set to set as needed.

Miss Morgan planed in yesterday to join her husband, William Marshal, who is working on Republic's "Earl Carroll Sketchbook."

SPIKE JONES SIGNS FOR FOUR WKS. AT $12,500 PER

Spike Jones, definitely set to close at Trocadero on May 8, has been inked into Strand theatre, NY, for four weeks commencing July 12 at $12,500 a week. Following Troc closing, Jones will disband 32-piece dance-hall ork he's now sporting and hit the road with his 14-piece "City Slicker" combo, plus supporting novelty acts.

After three-day stand, May 10-11-12 in San Diego, Jones scoots north for swing through Pacific Northwest and Canadian keys, coming to pause at Winnipeg with two-dayer, May 24-25. He'll then watch Indianapolis 500-mile race on Memorial Day, in which he hopes his souped-up jalopy will be entered; it has yet to qualify in speed trials.

Band then plays six straight stanzas of midwest vaude before NY date. Jones has not yet discarded his plan, broached earlier this year, of playing fairs and carnivals. He is still figuring on the canvas-covered time in late summer and early autumn.

El Rey Launches Its Safety Drive Today

El Rey theatre, Fox West Coast house in Wilshire boulevard Miracle Mile, launches Junior Safety Drive program today to promote juvenile cooperation with police and fire departments. E. D. Harris, manager of house, has booked in "Son of Lassie" as special attraction during the 10-day drive, and will feature a quiz and demonstrations of safety and first aid on the stage. El Rey drive ties in with police department's "It's the Law" campaign.

Mamoulian Due Here To Prep 'Wilderness'

TRUMAN SIG ON ANTI-PETRILLO BILL

Washington, April 16.—President Truman today signed the Anti-Petrillo Bill, designed to curb American Federation of Musicians' activities in connection with the broadcasting industry. The measure, which is an amendment to the Federal Communications Act and which carries penalties up to a year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine, is to prevent attempts to coerce broadcasters to:

Hire more musicians than they need; pay money for services not performed; pay royalties to unions on transcriptions; pay for the re-broadcast of a transcription.

The legislation would also bar interference with foreign-originated musical programs, as well as with cultural, non-commercial broadcasts.

Donlevy, Rep Square Off All for Love of 'McGee'

The "Slippy McGee" controversy flared anew yesterday when Brian Donlevy indicated ending of the truce with Republic over filming the Marie Conway Omler yarn. Actor disclosed that, despite Republic's plans to produce the yarn, his New Colony Productions Company is currently readying plans of its own to produce the story under the tag of "The Minister and the Safecracker."

Previously, Republic had announced that negotiations with Donlevy on a producing deal on the property, which is in the public domain in the United States, had been cancelled. Studio assigned Lou Brock to produce and set Albert Kelly as director. The film has been given a June 1 starting date.

Understood that Tom Somlyo of the Frank Vincent Agency, representing the actor-producer, turned down the Republic offer. Indications point to Somlyo serving as co-producer with Donlevy in their indie venture.

Although the property is in the public domain, it was learned last night that Republic purchased the Oliver Morosco stage dramatization and copyright of the "Slippy McGee" play written by Edward Rose, based on the late authoress' novel. Deal was made through the Oliver Morosco estate with George Bentel, New York play broker, negotiating. Understood further that Republic is currently acquiring rights to the property in all parts of the world where the copyright has not run out.

CELEB FOR SOUND'S ANNI

what were soon thereafter to be colloquially termed "talkies" were shown an audience in a form and technical manner that has remained largely the same through the years.

BIRTH CRIES

That first presentation consisted of a series of renditions by Metopera artists on sound-film, followed by the premiere of "Don Juan," starring the late John Barrymore. Those first feeble, scratchy (by present standards) mewings were really the birth cries of a screen industry now known to have been revitalized at that time.

The co-sponsors of the 20th anniversary celebrations will splash soon with a series of special programs largely designed to highlight scientific developments and cultural contributions of sound pictures. Honored will be the scientists who helped pioneer latter-day pictures, and ceremonies are being planned both in U.S. and abroad.

Effort will be made especially to point up achievements of films in broadening general education and public service. Climax will be reached on Aug. 6 with local celebrations in key towns throughout this country, Canada, Great Britain, Latin America and wherever American pictures are being shown in Europe.

Among events being planned are special exhibits of early communications and photo equipment; national and international science and industry conferences on future developments; educational forums on application of films to teaching arts and sciences, plus use of films to promote closer-grained understanding between nations and races. Special programs will either be proposed or built for theatres throughout the U.S.

BUDGET EXPERT QUESTIONS RADIO SURVEYS FIGURES

Washington, April 16. — Testimony of W. Edwards Deming, top statistical expert for Bureau of Budget, highlighted second day of Federal Communications Commission's hearings on clear channel radio service here today and questioned validity of costly broadcaster surveys.

Deming's statements disparaged techniques usually employed by industry poll-takers. It climaxed a day of blow-and-counter-blow testimony by government and industry researchers, with each defending their particular brand of listening survey.

Dr. Forest Whan, Wichita University researcher, responsible for several industry-sponsored surveys on mid-west audiences, was special target for government cross-examiners. His studies generally show listeners as 80 per cent satisfied with present radio service, or, in any event, unable to suggest preference or improvement of programming.

FCC-sponsored rural survey conducted last summer by Agriculture Department's Bureau of Agricultural Economics was, in turn, deprecated by Whan. Bureau's check found several counts on which radio fell short of meeting likes and needs of farm belt.

While government study showed sharp division among women listeners regarding soap operas, Whan's survey of Iowa audiences revealed 40 per cent of femmes polled sincerely believed serial listening helped them cope with personal problems.

REPUBLIC RESUMES REGIONAL SALES MEETS IN MAY

Resumption of Republic regional sales meetings, discontinued during the war, starts with three such huddles in May, it was announced yesterday by James R. Grainger, executive veepee.

Grainger in a message to the studio here from New York, said meetings will be attended by all salesmen in addition to district sales managers and branch managers. First, for the Western division, is scheduled to be held here May 20 to 22 with Francis A. Bateman, Western division sales manager in charge. Attending will be representatives from Seattle, Denver, Salt Lake City, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Meeting of mid-Western, Prairie, Southern and Southwestern divisions will be held at the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago May 24 to 26. Will H. Baker, mid-West district sales manager, will head group representing Chicago, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and Minneapolis branches; Nat Steinberg, Prairie division sales manager, will head delegations from Kansas City, Omaha, Des Moines and St. Louis; Merritt Davis will be in charge of the Southern division group from Atlanta, Charlotte, New Orleans and Tampa; Norman J. Colquhoun, heading delegates from Memphis, Dallas and Oklahoma City. Carl Ponedel, Republic Mexico City branch manager, will also attend the Chicago meeting.

Third of the huddles will be that of the Eastern, New England and Central divisions at the New York Athletic Club in New York City May 27 to 29.

Prexy Herbert J. Yates will attend all three meetings and 1946-47 program for the company will be detailed.

OBITUARY

JOHN LEROY JOHNSTON

John LeRoy Johnston, director of advertising and publicity for International Pictures, died early yesterday morning following a heart attack at Hollywood Presbyterian hospital. He was 49 years of age.

Born on Dec. 28, 1896 at Bloomfield, Indiana, Johnston broke into the newspaper ranks as a copy boy for the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. He soon graduated into a cartoonist-reporter.

Johnston began his press agenting career with the St. Paul Symphony and followed with theatrical publicity and exploitation work. His motion picture career began in 1918 as assistant publicity director for Universal Pictures

FLACKED TOP NOTCHERS

In the ensuing years, Johnston was a publicity executive for various producers, including Famous Players, Corrine Griffith, Mack Sennett, Frank Lloyd and Thomas H. Ince. He also served as personal representative for Edwin Carewe. The publicist was West Coast representative in 1938 and 1939 for Photoplay magazine and Movie Mirror. He later functioned as publicity and advertising head for Walter Wanger and subsequently served as an executive under Charles Einfeld at Warner Bros., and with Republic in a similar capacity.

Johnston helped start the new Hunt Stromberg Productions in 1943 and the following year joined the William Goetz-Leo Spitz combo at International Pictures. "Johnny" had a wide acquaintance in the film industry and served it in many volunteer capacities. He was secretary of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences; was in charge of the weekly Saturday night entertainments given by The Masquers for servicemen. He was twice prexy of the WAMPUS, which flourished up to 1932 and was a member of the Motion Picture Association of America, serving as chairman of its committee of publicity directors from 1934 to 1937.

32 DEGREE MASON

Johnston was a 32nd degree Mason and was active in Masonic activities. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gladys Johnston; two sons, John LeRoy Johnston, Jr., 26; William Alden Johnston, 23; and one daughter, Mrs. Patricia Jeanee Gold, 21, of Buffalo, N.Y. Mrs. Gold is en route to Hollywood to attend the funeral. Remains are at Pierce Brothers Hollywood Mortuary and funeral arrangements are to be announced today.

Prexy Jean Hersholt, on behalf of the Board of Governors and Officers of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, eulogized John LeRoy Johnston yesterday as one of the organization's "most loyal and hard-working members."

"With the passing of John LeRoy Johnston the Academy loses one of its ablest officers, and Hollywood one of its best loved gentlemen," Hersholt stated. "For years he gave tirelessly of his time and effort on behalf of Academy activities."

'OUTLAW' GRABS 64G 2ND WEEK

"The Outlaw" continued its record pace on the second frame in the four Music Hall theatres with a socko $64,400 gross. Take compares with the first week's "loot" of $76,200 in the four houses. At Downtown Music Hall, drop for second frame was only $518, theatre finishing with tremendous $29,300. Fourteenth day at the house was only $12 under the opening day of the run. Largest drop, of $4,500, was at the Hawaii, but this house splits boulevard trade with the Hollywood Music Hall.

Actors Ask Fair Deal In British Tax Treaty

Washington, April 17.—Show business demanded today a fair break in the proposed British-American treaty which would eliminate double taxation for businessmen but continue to penalize actors by forcing them to pay income taxes both in the U.S. and Britain.

Urging that actors be given the same rights under the new treaty as businessmen journeying to Great Britain were John Dales, Jr., of the Screen Actors Guild, Adrian McCalman of the Artists' Managers Guild and Walter Abel, stage and film

TWO PRODS LEAVE COL

Producers Leon Barsha and Leonard Picker served notice on Columbia yesterday terminating their contracts with the studio. Barsha checks into a producer berth at Universal May 6, after completion of his current film, "Sing While You Dance." Picker, who produced the money-making "Bandit of Sherwood Forest," is reported set for a Metro deal.

Barsha said his resignation, turned in to Ben Zeidman, "was verbally accepted." Picker is reported to be leaving the lot May 4.

John Huston draws the directorial assignment on Warner Bros.' "Treasure of the Sierra Madre." Henry Blanke will produce.

BRITISH COIN BAN LIFTED

London, April 17.—Great Britain has let the bars down permitting foreign acts to play the country. All income earned will be allowed to be taken out of England upon termination of contracts. Development resulted when the English Treasury gave official sanction on the change to various talent groups here including the Agents Association, Variety Artists Federation, Managers Association and the Circus Proprietors Association.

WB Assigns Blanke

Henry Blanke will produce "The African Queen" for Warners. Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid will have the lead roles.

Spewack's Comedy On News Dynasty Wet Fire Cracker

New York, April 17.—Bella and Sam Spewack, off Broadway for years, unfolded their newest comedy "Woman Bites Dog" tonight at the Belasco under Kermit Bloomgarden's banner. Play puts the Patterson-McCormick publishing dynasty under their sharp pen and in not very subtle manner takes them over the coals for their rabid exploitation of Americana. This exposure is pretty tame stuff.

Taylor Holmes plays Commander Southworth (Col. McCormick) to the hilt; Royal Beal as the Patterson prototype and Ann Shoemaker in the Cissy Patterson role exploit their roles without shadings. Kirk Douglas, Frank Lovejoy and Mercedes McCambridge turn in effective portrayals. Coby Ruskin did an exceptionally fine staging job, but the Spewacks, despite some funny moments, have failed to deliver a quick comedy.

JOHNSTON SILENT ON OPEN SHOP

Hollywood labor situation over the "open shop" question remained unchanged last night, although deadline set by Eric Johnston came and passed. Indications last night were that no immediate strike is in prospect, although unions involved would make no statement on what action they might take. Conference of Studio Unions reported no word had been received from Johnston regarding

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

BALLROOMS are jockeying and elbowing to get network radio remote pickups this summer in a push unprecedented. The fillip is added to the frolic in that there are not enough wires to go around, and who will come out the winners is matter of great interest—especially to the name bands booked into the hoofing halls. Present lineup is this: Palladium has CBS as well as Trianon; Meadowbrook's on Mutual, Casino Gardens linked to ABC and Cocoanut Grove has NBC. Frozen out is the Aragon, which has been trying to nose way in for some time, but just now has to be content with buying time on KMPC locally and nothing more. Just what will happen here when the Casino ballroom on Catalina Island opens on Decoration Day is matter of much conjecture. Spot is owned by Wrigley interests, also large CBS stockholders, and the Vine St. grapevine has started swaying with talk that the Casino can have pretty much what it wants from CBS when it opens, not with a nameband policy, but with lesser-light combos. Meanwhile still trying to get a remote wire is the Avodon, downtown dancery due for May debut.

THE $15,000 price limit put on sets by the Civilian Production Administration is going to mean script changes on pictures in many instances and expensive location trips in others. Most movie sets cost well under the $15,000 limit, but the big street scenes and duplications of expensive exteriors run into a lot more dough than that. It is usually far cheaper to build such sets on studio lot than to take a troupe on location. With the CPA price limit in effect, however, there are only two answers—write the scene out of the script or stand the tap for location expenses. First company to run up against the CPA snag is Enterprise which had planned to build Parisian street scene for "Arch of Triumph" on the lot. Instead, they'll build a few small sets, for some of the shots and plane a crew to Paris to shoot the rest on the actual setting of the story.

SURVEY of the J. Arthur Rank vast film interests in England reveals the broad scope of his domain. Rank now controls 20 of the 30 available British sound stages and owns 1100 of the 4761 motion picture houses in Great Britain. Total capital of his companies is reported well over $220,000,000. The film tycoon sits on 65 boards and is chairman of 23 of them. Allied industries under his control include processing, printing, developing plants and distribution organizations. In addition to making and distributing motion pictures, he still finds time to attend to his immense flour-milling interests. His debut into motion pictures was sponsorship of a Methodist short showing the horrors of the demon, John Barleycorn.

WHAT is probably a record in speed in giving birth to a story idea and launching it as a screenplay was scored by Lionel Houser, in case of "Snow Moon," which Metro has just assigned him to produce. Houser, who holds producer-writer contract with Culver lot, hit upon idea at midnight, wrote detailed outline at studio early next morning, went before executive board at 2:30 p.m. that afternoon and half-hour later had the board's full okay. At 4:30 same afternoon, he had Laurence Hazard in his office and was going over outline, for Hazard to put in script form.

HEARST clan is beginning to gather in California for the observance of W. R. Hearst's 84th birthday which comes off April 29. R. E. "Dick" Berlin and his wife have been here for four weeks. Berlin was just released from the Cedars after checkup for an ailing ticker. They'll stick around, and Hearst's son, Bill, with wife, Lorelle, is due in from New York next week. Conclave around the cake probably will be at San Simeon, even though W. R. H. is staying in Santa Monica at the moment, and will be in town a few days.

FOLLOWING findings of Audience Research Institute that terrific boxoffice inflation is resulting from admission inflation—and not more admissions—high budget pictures are getting wary eye from topflight producers. Since films produced today may not be released until 18 months hence, fear is that current b.o. trends may change in interim. Top producers are alerted by survey of Gallup subsidiary, and are reportedly swinging to simpler plots in search for well trimmed budgets.

STORY editors are reported to be doing a load of teeth-gnashing at increasing studio trend to nix buying a literary property, regardless of its merits, if individual producers on the lot won't volunteer for filmization. On the other hand, if one producer likes a story and indicates he will do it, the studio will acquire it. Most editors are currently trying to learn the type of material individual producers go in for and slant particular stories their way.

When royalty held ancient sway
Way Back in good King Hoosit's day
The jester spoke
A corny joke
And all concerned were blithe and gay.

A jester was a lowly clown
Amusing folks of great renown
And shot his quips
Between the sips
Of toasts about the royal crown.

Now royal kids with crowns of gold
Are prowling night clubs to behold
The clowns of yore
Who profit more
Than monarchs in the days of old.

Partners In Time

(Comedy Drama)

TRADESHOWN at RKO Studios, Hollywood, Calif., April 15, 1946. Running time: 73 MINS.

"Partners in Time" is one of top offerings of Lum and Abner series and should draw exceptionally well in market which caters to radio comics on screen. Some of action carries genuine heart tug and Ben Hersh as producer has gone limit with his budget in building up entertaining picture. Story is less contrived than usual, is more genuine and heart-warming and filled with type of homely humor nabe and small town audiences go for.

Much of plot is flashback to 40 years ago, when characters were young men, and has been done legitimately to tie in present-day sequences. Abner, a gay young blade with Pine Ridge's first automobile, passes through Arkansas hamlet, enroute to California, to greet his Spanish War buddy, Lum, takes one look at girl Lum is secretly in love with and decides to stay, going into partnership with his pal in Jot 'Em Down General Store. It is first time pair's past life has figured in series and has been handled with lusty good humor.

Lum and Abner—Chester Lauck and Norris Goff, respectively—take their customary roles as aging small town merchants, and disclose new personalities as younger men, when they teamed up so many years ago. Because of diversity of characterizations, this picture will be adjudged by many their best. They are supported by some of familiar characters who have appeared regularly in series, Danny Duncan and Grady Sutton standing out, and have benefit of new talent: Pamela Blake in particular is excellent, as Elizabeth, girl Abner marries. Others here are John James, Teala Loring and Charles Jordan. Dick Elliott again portrays Squire Skimp and Phyllis Kennedy is Abigail.

Charles E. Roberts wrote original screenplay, a craftsmanship job well done which William Nigh in his direction handled with ease and good taste. Jack Mackenzie's photography is standard. Art direction by Ralph Berger and set decorations by Julia Heron and John Sturtevant lend nostalgic atmosphere to picture.

Hersh Baiting Col, RKO With 'Lum and Abner'

Ben Hersh is talking releasing deals with both RKO and Columbia for new "Lum and Abner" series. RKO previously handled distribution of series which started six years ago, but deal winds up with current delivery of "Partners in Time." Jack Votion originally launched production, but for past four years, during his absence in Army, Hersh has held production reans. He will now produce new series on his own.

Britain Will Use More Pix In Peace Than War

Washington, April 17. — Films division of Britain's new "Central Office of Information" (successor to the British ministry of information), will play a greater part in that government's information program than it did during the war, Neville Gardner, film head of the British information services here, disclosed today.

Gardiner, just back from eight weeks in England, explained the COI setup at a luncheon of government film workers. British government has set up a three-point post-war international information program. It has committed itself to:

1. Provide information for its own people.

2. Continue in peacetime the wartime policy of a single information unit for information.

3. Provide information for exchange with other countries.

200 FILMS ON SKED

Films play an important part in each point of the program. The 1946 program calls for production of 200 films, mostly shorts. Ninety per cent of these will be made at the request of the various ministries, and 10 per cent will be instigated by the COI.

Already in production at the request of Prime Minister Clement Atlee are films on the subject of food, problems of international trade, military government, etc. One, on displaced persons, has already been completed.

FOREIGN PIX ON SKED

In addition industrial films of special interest will be distributed, plus those of foreign countries. Now in circulation are pix from United States, U.S.S.R., Canada and The Netherlands.

Theatrically, deals are being made for individual films with British exhibs. Although no attempt will be made to equal the figures of 50 per year which BMI distributed theatrically during the war, the program is being actively pressed. Gardiner expects to press for screenings of some COI documentaries in this country.

35th P-T Feature

Pine-Thomas put its 35th feature, "Fear in the Night," into production yesterday. DeForest Kelley and Kay Scott have the lead roles with Ann Doran as featured player. Maxwell Shane is directing his first production with this film.

MAJORS FROWN ON MOVE TO NY

New York, April 17.—Major studios are nixing plans for production activity in this area, despite Hollywood studio space shortage, because they don't wish to develop a competitive market for players, writers, directors and technicians. Another factor discouraging the move is the increased costs which would attend production in the New York region.

MG Tradeshows 'Years' In Six Key Cities

New York, April 17.—Metro today slated six key-city trade showings for "The Green Years." Film screens at the Granada, Minneapolis, April 30; Marlo, Salt Lake City, May 1; Warners Delaware, Albany, May 2; Arbor, Omaha, May 6; Varsity, Seattle, May 7, and the Villa, Oklahoma City, May 8. The picture goes into its third stanza tomorrow at New York City's Music Hall.

Rep Gives Top Budget 'Rio' To Bob North

"Rio de Janeiro," original by Parke Levy, yesterday was handed Robert North to develop as a top-budget musical for Republic. Producer previously turned out "Brazil," one of company's highest grossers, and new picture will be developed along same lines.

Scouts for 'Ramrod'

'Journey' Additions

Ernie Adams and Pat Moran have been added to the cast of "Gallant Journey" now working at Columbia.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The case against Spain as presented so far is conclusive and agreed upon as far as the past history of that country under Franco is concerned. We also are all agreed that Franco Spain is totalitarian. But the evidence that Spain is now a base for German plotting is unfortunately not so direct as had been hoped. Oscar Lange makes a good case circumstantially, but he says: "There seems to be some indication that at least an effort is being made in this direction." He says the United States and Great Britain would have evidence on this in their files, but we deny that. If we are not able to prove that Spain is a base that constitutes a threat to international peace and security, there will be no unanimity among the council, and the situation will remain as much a problem as ever. We are against outside action as strengthening rather than ousting Franco, against fomenting a civil war unless necessary because we do not believe sanctions can be effective, especially without the Argentine, which can use this development. There is also a fear, on the part of Britain especially, of anarchism or communism. On the other hand, the exile government in France is a coalition. The difficulty is figuring a way in which Franco can be tossed out and the coalition go in until free elections can be held, and the government restored to the people.

The Truth About Murder

(Mystery Melodrama)

RKO RELEASE. Producer, Herman Schlom. Executive producer, Sid Rogell. Director, Lew Landers. Assistant director, Sam Ruman. Original screenplay, Lawrence Kimble, Hilda Gordon and Eric Taylor. Photography, Frank Redman. Art direction, Albert S. D'Agostino and Walter E. Keller. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera. Music by Leigh Harline. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Sound, Francis M. Sarver and Terry Kellum. Gowns, Edward Stevenson. Film editor, Edward W. Williams.

CAST—Bonita Granville, Morgan Conway, Rita Corday, Don Douglas, June Clayworth, Edward Norris, Gerald Mohr, Michael St. Angel, Tom Toonan.

TRADESHOWN at RKO Studios, Hollywood, Cal., April 10, 1946. Running time: 63 MINS.

"The Truth About Murder" is run-of-the-mill whodunit, showing evidences of quickie treatment, but packs enough wallop and suspense to keep an audience from getting restless. Yarn is a mixture of romance and murder mystery, with the mystery department carrying most of the entertainment load. Picture brackets as an adequate second half of double bill.

Bonita Granville and Morgan Conway carry both the romance and the detecting chores in the drama. Conway is district attorney investigating the murder. Miss Granville starts the picture as a career girl working in his office and putting the chill on his pitch for matrimony. She resigns her job as an expert with the lie detector when Conway refuses to take her seriously as a lawyer and joins up with Edward Norris as law partner. Norris is trying to dim his anguish at the philandering of his wife (June Clayworth) in an alcoholic fog.

Miss Clayworth qualifies as a murder victim early in the footage and Norris is arrested as chief suspect. Miss Granville takes over as his defense attorney and starts hunting down the real killer.

She gets in numerous mixups with both suspects and the district attorney's operatives, and ends up in a tight spot alone with her lie detector and the murderer. Conway rescues her in true hero style in the nick of time.

Rita Corday is adequate as early suspect and later murder victim. Don Douglas, Gerald Mohr and Tom Noonan are convincing in their respective roles.

Direction by Lew Landers paces the action a bit slowly at times, but generally gets full suspense value out of a not too tightly plotted script.

Herman Schlom has exhibited showmanship in whipping together materials afforded him for production. Camera work by Frank Redman and music by Leigh Harline meet the demands of the show.

LAUREN AMELL INSTALLED AS COLLAR PREZ

Lauren Amell, of Metro, was installed last night as president of the new Office Employes International Union, Local 174 in ceremonies at the Studio Club. Miss Amell was elected to spot by 967 votes over her opponent, George Macon, tally of 733. Elected to important post of business agent was Max Krug, with 941 votes as compared to 560 for Bernard Lusher and 212 for Stuart Kelman.

LeRoy Patterson, RKO, won out for vice president; Leon Richardson, Metro, was chosen secretary-treasurer. Other officers are: Hazel Parker, Republic, recording secretary; Anne Small, Republic, one-year trustee; Grace Dudley, 20th-Fox, two-year trustee; Earl Shanks, Columbia, three-year trustee; Fred Williams, Universal, sergeant-at-arms; and James Fasbender, Metro, conductor.

Members completely by-passed former officers of Screen Office Employes Guild who were candidates, failing to seat any in executive posts.

Sistrom Returns From Huddles With Maugham

Joe Sistrom arrived yesterday from New York, where he and James Hilton confabbed for past two weeks with Somerset Maugham, on production details of author's "Ashenden, British Agent," which Sistrom will produce for International and Hilton will script.

Glenn Dolberg, overall western rep of Broadcast Music, Inc., and Eddie Janis, Hollywood office head of BMI, leave Friday on trips that take pair in different directions. Janis goes to New York for home office conferences. Dolberg leaves on station relations trip through Texas, Arizona and New Mexico.

CASTING TROUBLES DEFER U FILMS

Start of two top-budget productions is being held up at Universal, due to casting difficulties. "The Magnificent Doll," Jack Skirball-Bruce Manning production which stars Ginger Rogers, was to have rolled two weeks ago under direction of Frank Borzage, but present outlook indicates it will be another two weeks before film goes before camera. Tests are still being made for leading man, as well as several other top roles, without any definite assignments in sight.

Mark Hellinger was set to go nearly two weeks ago with his first indie film for Valley lot release, "The Killers," with Burt Lancaster and Audrey Totter in two top spots. Withdrawal of Miss Totter, however, by Metro, to go into femme lead opposite Robert Montgomery in "Lady in the Lake," left producer without any femme star.

Producer is making intensive search for replacement in part, and Robert Siodmak, who will direct, has tested 30 girls and had 125 others read part, but thus far no one has been found for role.

THE GRAPEVINE: One of those people now living in a pink cloud over the rise of RKO's stock to 26½, and the news of the first two dividends ever declared on the company's common stock, is Fred Brogio, former partner in Lucey's restaurant. Brogio mortgaged the place to sink a wad of dough in RKO stock when it was selling at around $3 a share, and now—The rest is hysteria . . . P. J. Wolfson, Paramount writer-producer, takes off today on a two-month vacation, first to Oregon, then to the High Sierras, then to catch the new crop of Broadway shows . . . Buff Cobb and Bill Eythe two-gether at Billingsleys . . . Gary Cooper introduced two sons of famous fathers on the set of "Cloak and Dagger" yesterday—John Huston, son of Walter Huston, and John Hemingway, son of Ernest . . . Personal maids, almost a necessity for femme stars during a film's shooting schedule, are on the current scarcity list. Some stars are placing their maids under personal contract . . . Director on a major lot was handed a musical as his next assignment, with the cast to be composed of players all under commitment to the studio. He suggested the title ought to be "Commitments of 1946"! . . . William Wellman organized an anti-b.b. gun and slingshot patrol around his Van Nuys location yesterday. He had a $10,000 balloon aloft for "Gallant Journey" and couldn't take any chances on the local Penrods and Nimrods.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Oh, to be a casting director at RKO. Poor chaps are casting 25 harem beauties for "Sinbad the Sailor" and 32 debutantes for an artists' party scene in "What Nancy Wanted" . . . Ray Milland left his foot and handprints in Grauman's Chinese theatre pavement yesterday . . . Southern Comfort's plans for an animated sign at Sunset and Vine include, and we quote now for obvious reasons, "the historic race between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez on the Mississippi. Flames flash, smoke and steam roll from the smoke stacks, clouds rush across the moon"—and all that will be missing, apparently, will be Wolfe Gilbert singing his old hit, "Waitin' for the Robert E. Looks like more excitement will be brewing in cowboy circles. James M. Cain's hero in "Past All Dishonor" carries his roscoe in a shoulder-holster—just like one of them pasty-faced Chicago characters . . . Jimmy Dunn, with a startled eye on his gleaming Oscar on the mantle-piece, received a belated letter yesterday from the Academy notifying him he had been nominated for the best performance by an actor in a supporting role . . . Observers say that the harness races will have to ring up more money than they did opening day to break even . . . Gleaned from Columbia's casting news: June Bryde goes into "Gallant Journey." Just a coincidence, presumably.

CALL SHEET: JACQUELINE LOGAN, silent film star now retired and living in New York, tossed a luncheon at Romanoff's for as many as she could locate of an original 20 Hollywood newsmen she entertained at her home 20 years ago . . . PHILIP DORN is scheduled to return tonight from a visit to his family in his native Holland . . . JACK BARTER, after 12 years in Paramount's production department, leaves the studio this week when he winds up his assignment as assistant director on "Suddenly It's Spring." He'll open an antique shop in Carlsbad, Calif. . . . JOAN CAULFIELD and other hunch players in the "Welcome Stranger" company cleaned up the other day. They bet on "Joan's Joy" at Bay Meadows, which paid $101 . . . ETHEL MEGLIN recites the story of the leading man's girl friend. She wasn't satisfied with a lock of hair for the back of her watch, she wanted his whole toupee for the back of her grandfather's clock . . . LUCIUS BEEBE, the professional fop, will escort five Goldwyn Girls down Fifth Avenue in the Easter parade. Mr. Goldwyn's publicity dept. admits it is "somewhat breathless" about the whole thing . . . VIVECA LINDFORS, Warners' Swedish importation, arrived yesterday in a barrage of flash-bulbs.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Earl Carroll's really putting on a production for the hat auction Monday night which will benefit the Braille Institute of the Blind. Auctioneers, who will invite bids on 103 winners in a national millinery contest, will include Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Mickey Rooney, Merle Oberon, Loretta Young, Andy Russell, Phil Regan and Tony Martin . . . Jack Warner entertained an old customer yesterday. He was Mike Zar, manager of the Voge at South Gate, who bought films from Warner 35 years ago when the latter operated a film exchange in San Francisco and Zar ran a nickelodeon called the Edison . . . Art Mehlinger is in a plugger's paradise. Miller Music has ordered him to plug the late Vincent Youmans' "More than You Know"—and right now he's got more demand for the old tune than he can handle . . . Seeleg Lester and Merwin Gerard returned from Mexico, where they did research for their comedy-in-the-works, which they insist they will title "Aztec the Highroad" . . . Honesty-in-advertising-note: A store window sign reading, "Old furniture we buy—antiques we sell" . . . Peter O'Crotty's "Desert of Fire," PRC's forthcoming pic on a search for uranium in a volcano, is facing a holdup of production for lack of a helicopter. So if you know of an unemployed helicopter, page Mr. O'Crotty . . . Maybe you think that with real estate selling like sirloins in Ketchikan during the Gold Rush, all is love and kisses in the realty business. Not so. ACTORS ASK FAIR DEAL IN BRITISH TAX TREATY actor. Walter Pidgeon, also slated to appear before the sub-committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was ill and unable to attend.

Under present terms of the proposed treaty, only actors and professional athletes would continue to pay double taxes during their British appearances. Others, if they work less than 183 days of a year in England, would be exempt.

In one of the strongest attacks on "discrimination" against actors, Dales argued that "only 400 of an estimated 8000 screen actors make more than $15,000 a year. The bulk of the actors earn between $2000 and $15,000 annually with the average about $6000. Lesser-paid actors working in England would be penalized beyond businessmen who make far more money during short trips to England."

Dales suggested: "If you are worried about the top income people and want to hit them, why not let the tax apply to all high income people, whether or not they are actors?"

As an example, Dales said that if Robert Montgomery, now an actor-director for Metro, journeyed to England to direct a film there he would be exempt from double taxation. If he were to act, however, he would be doubly penalized, Dales pointed out.

Abel read a cable from Will Hay, head of the Variety Artists Federation of England, declaring that any reduction of taxes which would promote interchange of actors would be helpful.

McCalman told the sub-committee that Joseph Nunan, head of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, believes the present treaty setup is "discriminatory and not necessarily binding upon the Treasury."

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

Are joke shows slithering to the end of their tether? The trend, and it's not new, is slanted toward situation comedy and we can look for more of that type format next season. When such a master of the quip as Bob Hope casts a longing eye in that direction and many of the high steppers on the Hooper track find their salvation from audience ennui in the running situation where three jokes do the work of 10, it's not surprising that an old trend is taking on new life. Scarcity of good joke writers is no small factor in the change, for how many Bill Morrows are there around? Most of them have gone to the well too often and what comes up in the bucket is prety muddy stuff. If there's a run of shows next season that sound like variants of "Fibber and Molly," "Aldrich Family," "Ozzie and Harriet" and others of that genre you'll know that the drift from hit-'em-over-the-head-with-a-yock routine is on in full cry.

Roughest casting job of the year has fallen to the lot of BBD&O's Wayne Tiss. All he has to do is line up the principals for Cavalcade's broadcast April 29 of "Alcoholics Anonymous." He was after you-know-who but he's through with bottle dramas for a while. A certain red-nosed gent may also get a chance to turn it down. If top names spurn the leads, Tiss may have to resort to a cast of secondary players. "AA" is a straight-forward drama of how the cure works and mends broken families. DuPont is eager to do the piece and won't be thwarted by the refusal of name players to be identified with Alcoholics Anonymous even though it's only make-believe and a pressing social problem.

Chain breaks . . . What's this about Henry Legler buying one of the top 10 shows? He sped back east without divulging who it is or who it's for. Some are guessing Danny Kaye, who is definitely washing up with Pabst first of the year when his contract runs out and mebbe even before then . . . Ken Dolan gave Foote, Cone & Belding first refusal on the Frances Langford summer show . . . Bill Gargan is rating-happy, what with "Murder Will Out" third high in the ABC lineup with 9.6 and "I Deal in Crime" posting an even seven opposite Lux . . . Durante-Moore show moves to Minneapolis for April 26 airing at Rexall convention . . . Dennis Day record will be cut by Tom Harrington at CBS tonight. Frank O'Connor directs, Bud Dant looks after the music, Austin Peterson edits the script and supporting players include Dink Trout, Sharon Douglas, Joe Kearns, Verna Felton, Bea Benadaret and John Brown. Three Ted Bates clients—Colgate, Standard Brands and Continental Baking—get the first discs . . . Sigmund Romberg's summer stint for Raleigh will be from here starting June 11 . . . By any other name it will be Nelson Eddy singing "Shortnin' Bread" on the Electric Hour April 28. He'll be billed as "Willie the Whale," his character in Disney's "Make Mine Music" . . . Word from the east is that Sammy Kaye is being dropped by Tangee . . . In the midst of their summer buying, agencies are already showing an interest in the new Groucho Marx show, put on wax last Tuesday night, as a fall starter in the comedy field. Roland Kibbe wrote and directed the zany piece, "Beverly Groucho Hotel," and supporting cast included Wally Maher, Elliot Lewis, June Foray, Bill Johnston and Lucille Meredith

If you think booking a summer show is a soft touch you're barking up the wrong tree. Consider the plight of an agency where one of the important fillers must be bought within a matter of weeks. The client favored a whodunit but there's one in the following spot and the network would hardly give its approvel. Next choice was a name band but just ahead of it is just that. Sponsor no like audience participation and what's being replaced for the summer is a comedy piece so what does that leave them? Pass the aspirin, Nell.

Hitch hikes . . . Dinah Shore's voice was still a little fuzzy yesterday so it was decided to substitute for her on tonight's Birdseye broadcast. Filling the the stanza will be Tony Martin, Lina Romay and Les Paul Trio . . . Craig Rice's "Crime Digest" has been taken under option by Lennen & Mitchell as possible summer standin for "Frankie or Parky" . . . When Dick Haymes takes off for eight weeks spot will likely be filled with music by Gordon Jenkins . . . "Cavalcade" moves to New York for May and June airing and then takes a two months hiatus . . . U.S. Steel's "Theatre Guild on the Air" has been farmed out to Wilshire Ebell theatre by ABC for May 12 broadcast . . . Larry Berns continues to improve and should be out of the hospital in two weeks to rest up at home . . . Carl Wester trained in yesterday from Chicago to set up headquarters for the General Mills strip of Irna Phillips daytime shows moving here in the fall . . . Jean Hersholt takes "Dr. Christian" to New York for five or six broadcasts after the May 15 airing.

NBC will do half hour broadcast April 27 at dedication of Rodger Young Veterans Housing Project in Griffith Park with Jack Benny as emcee. Others participating include Dennis Day, Dinah Shore, Bette Davis and Lena Horne . . . David Anderson, NBC war correspondent in Europe for six years, doles out the news on the net's "Sunday Editor" newscast . . . Elbow benders will gather at the Beverly Hills Club after Tony Martin's opener for Bourjois Saturday eve . . . Lew Ayres will do a serious skit on Mutual's hour show tomorrow night for Cancer Society which will be emceed by Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra . . . Lena Horne subs for Dinah Shore as Tony Martin's opening guest . . . Pull-out of petitioners for television licenses is said to be more a matter of economics than color-consciousness.

MPTOA FACING FIGHT FROM NEW THEATRE GROUP

New York, April 17. — Spurred membership drive in hinterlands by American Theatre Association augurs battle between newcomer theatre group and established Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

Confused reports from indie hinterland continue about headway ATA is making in drive. Plethora of meetings being held to consider bids to join, following close of ATA St. Louis, Mo., convention two weeks ago.

MPTOA elects its new officers June 10 and 11, and is considering new aggressive program to combat ATA movement. Si Fabian, ATA prexy, and board chairman, Ted Gamble, continue to map drive.

Southern California Theatre Owners and Independent Theatre Owners of Northern California meet this week to decide on masse entrance into ATA. Missouri-Kansas Theatre Owners are slated for huddles on same issue, with strong opposition expected. Significant move now under way among Pennsylvania indie exhibs, who are unaffiliated. They will consider pros and cons of joining ATA.

'Angel and Outlaw' Flies To Locash

What may well be standard practice henceforth for location trips will be inaugurated today when Republic flies cast and part of technical crew of "The Angel and the Outlaw," John Wayne's first producer-star effort, directly to location site in Arizona, 90 miles from Flagstaff. Studio has chartered four planes to transport party, and one plane will remain on location during troupe's six-week stay, to be used in plying back and forth to studio, where further members of cast will be picked up as date of their commitment arrives. Reason for utilizing planes to land company on location is that road between site and Flagstaff, nearest railroad juncture, is practically impassable, and considerable saving of time will be effected. Republic has built complete western town in Sedona Basin, near Monument Valley, for picture, and approximately 50 construction men still are there.

'GI' Starts Today

"GI War Brides" hits cameras today at Republic, with Anna Lee and James Ellison co-starred and George Blair directing. Hilyard Brown is art director and Morton Scott musical director for this Armand Schaefer production.

PETRILLO RULES FOR BEL-TONE OVER ISSY MORALES

Bel-Tone Records, local pop-plattery, yesterday learned it had been ruled winner in a contractual dispute, with band-leader Issy Morales, that went all the way upstairs through American Federation of Musicians' channels until the decision was handed down by prexy James C. Petrillo himself. Sometime back Morales, batoneer of Latin combo which was recently working Trocadero nitery as relief crew, signed for recordings with Bel-Tone. Contract went to AFM for approval and promptly came back, cited as being contract-form for vocalist, not musician.

Morales then balked before inking approved form, seeking a reported tilt in figure. Bel-Tone appealed to AFM and waited till dispute was bucked up to Petrillo who held that Morales jotted original pact in good faith and must fulfill the original contractual obligation in every detail. It is first time local dispute of sort and slight dimensions has ever been dealt direct attention by AFM prexy himself.

WALLACE BACKS REELERS IN TIFF WITH LE ROY

Newsreel men are burned a-plenty at Mervyn LeRoy who is staging the show for the Jackson Day Celebration, at the Shrine Auditorium, where Henry Wallace will be the honor guest. The boys wanted to shoot the stars and principals of the stage show. LeRoy came out with a flat no. He said he did not want the stars exposed to the white lights as he did not know their political faiths and they might be embarrassed.

But the newsreel boys did not stop there, they got in touch with Wallace's secretary in Washington, informed him of the facts and the latter is reported to have told them that LeRoy would be informed today after Wallace's arrival that it is the wish of the guest of honor that the newsreel men get their footage.

Growing Boy

It was man-talk when Larry Olsen, eight years old, and Gary Cooper got together for first time yesterday on set of Warners "Cloak and Dagger." Quoth Larry, "Mr. Cooper, I've grown six inches since I worked in your picture, 'Casanova Brown.' How many have you grown?" Cooper grinned his answer by handing boy an apple.

GOP HEAD LINES UP WITH B'CASTERS

Washington, April 17. — Carroll Reece, new chairman of the Republican National Committee, indicated today that the GOP intends to line itself up with broadcasters in opposition to the Federal Communications Commission. In an address at the National Press Club, Reece charged the administration with trying to "infringe" on freedom of the press and air.

"Months after hostilities have ended," he said, "you are seeing today attempts on the part of this administration to substitute so-called official news for the untrammelled news reports of the American news services and newspapers. I am sure you are also familiar with similar attempted infringements upon the freedom of the air."

Jimmie Davis, the songwriting-singing governor of Louisiana, has made a Decca recording with the Lawrence Welk orchestra of "Tired of Crying Over You." Tune is published by Peer International.

Milt Dahlberg, vocalist at the Bar of Music, has been booked for six weeks of personal appearances in the east this summer.

David Street's first recordings for Diamond will be on the stands today.

Spike Jones handed a new transcontinental remote wire by Mutual last night, making for total of 11 weekly wires band is getting from Trocadero. New t.c. is from 9:45 until 10 p.m. every Wednesday. Others are daily regionals.

Donald O'Connor, Universal contractee, and pal, David Holt, one-time featured Paramount kid actor, have turned songwriters. Pair are collabing on several tunes which they are hustling among publishers. O'Connor is writing lyrics, Holt is doing music.

AN OPEN TELEGRAM

In reply to a wire sent yesterday to E. J. Mannix, president of the Producers Ass'n, to various Hollywood guilds and unions— a wire in which Mr. Mannix, talking about outside machinists the studios have hired, made this statement:

"A demand has now been made upon the producers by Local 1185 of the Int'l Ass'n of Machinists to discharge all of these men, and that, unless this demand is complied with, A STRIKE WILL BE CALLED AT SIX O'CLOCK P.M. ON WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1946."

Ladies and gentlemen of the picture business, look at your calendar. That was last night.

There were no picket lines in front of studios this morning because NO SUCH DEMAND WAS MADE.

We repeat: n-o-n-e w-a-s m-a-d-e .

It could be that Mr. Mannix was thinking about a time limit asked by Mr. Eric Johnston for acting on the open shop policy declared by studios. We don't know. We do know, though, that he imputed to this union an act it never threatened. It also made many people fear the studios would be closed this morning.

We respectfully suggest that unions involved be permitted to set their strike dates in the future.

It appears Mr. Mannix had an attack of the pannix.

KNX SIGNS DEAL WITH RADIO DIRECTORS

Radio Directors Guild has made first inroad into network operation here. Station KNX has signed its 16 program directors over to the Guild via agreement between latter and American Federation of Radio Artists, with which directors had been affiliated. Papers effecting transfer have been signed by Don Thornburgh, Columbia Broadcasting System v-p. Only formal acceptance of directors by RDG and notification to AFRA remains to complete switch.

Men concerned have had applications on file at RDG for some time, following AFRA's agreement to release them. They have, in effect, been members, attending meetings and otherwise participating. They joined AFRA prior to organization of an RDG unit here. Similar switches had been made in Chicago and New York when RDG organized after AFRA in those locales. Turnover is made by Guild's acceptance of all contractual conditions formerly held by AFRA. Agreement RDG assume expires in October, 1946.

Guild now has committees at work in various network units surveying wages and working conditions with eye to opening negotiations with nets for contracts. Move into CBS on personnel switch probably will be used as a lever in dealings some time before old AFRA contract Guild acquired terminates. It's indicated that wage increases and other changes will be worked into new agreement.

Indictment Voted For Obscene Pix

New York, April 17.—Indictment charging Robert Silverstein with two counts of sending obscene films through the mail was handed down by Federal Court here today. Silverstein, according to John Donovan, Jr., assistant U. S. attorney, operated American Art Service, dealing in so-called art prints and film.

After mail order customers became known through the purchase of prints, Donovan charged, Silverstein sent a letter offering something special at $30 a reel. Donovan said that a correspondent in Salina, Kan., received "Girls in Apartment 13" and a Santaros, Calif., customer got "The Radio Man," both obscene to extreme degree. Silverstein was released on $1000 bail. Authorities said he was warned by the postoffice in 1943 to discontinue sale of a salacious book and was jailed for 30 days in 1942 for a compensation law violation.

VOTE OF 41 FILM OUTFITS SOUGHT BY PUBLICISTS

Cross-petition seeking to register additional 41 production companies for any voting to determine collective bargaining agent for film flacks is being prepared for filing with the National Labor Relations Board by Screen Publicists Guild. Companies will include various independent outfits and others not now listed among the nine majors usually polled in collective bargaining voting.

Action was voted by membership, which also okayed executive committee's stand on seeking an industry-wide NLRB election. SPG wants election to be open to every publicist on a studio payroll, major or independent, and not limited to the nine big companies.

Guild has also nixed request of 86 members for withdrawal from the SPG. Members were turned down because the guild considers they are still under its jurisdiction by virtue of employment in Hollywood studios. The 86, of whom 84 are employed at major lots, have been under suspension since last Monday through failure to pay dues. Suspension is for three months, after which, if not becoming members in good standing, group will be expelled.

Managers Ask Johnston Aid in RKO Dispute

New York, April 17.—Failing to make any headway during the past week with RKO for a contract due to chain's demand that impartial arbitration and maintenance of membership clauses be eliminated, the Motion Picture Theatre Operating Managers and Assistant Managers' Guild has sought the intervention of Eric Johnston in the negotiations. The appeal has been made to avert a walkout and is based on Johnston's March 25 report proposing mediation in all labor disputes.

Film Strike Reaches Impasse As Johnston Remains Silent

producer policy on "open shop" despite fact he had promised an answer by 6 p.m. April 17.

Johnston and Byron Price conferred in New York yesterday with presidents and vice presidents of major film companies seeking a solution to the new labor problem and will continue the conferences today. Resumption of studio sessions with James Petrillo on a musicians contract has been postponed another day due to today's confab on the Hollywood situation.

Despite fact that unions have taken no strike steps other than to empower executive committees to take economic action in the event all negotiations with producers break down, strike talk continued to be the chief subject of conversation yesterday.

CSU locals are still awaiting strike sanction from their international presidents without which a studio walkout is not likely. Only sanction forthcoming up to last night was from L. P. Lindelof, head of the Painters who conditioned it upon similar sanction from the other international prexies. Obtaining of the sanctions is part of the locals move to strengthen their position in negotiation and break down what they charge is stalling by the producers.

CSU policy committee, headed by Herbert Sorrell, met early yesterday evening to discuss situation and lack of word from Johnston. Later, committees from the locals met to draft telegram to the international presidents refuting misrepresentation charges made by the major studios. Wire reiterated stand by the locals that producers have brought an "open shop" question into contract negotiation and that it is impossible to continue an agreement until situation is cleared up.

Regarding studios' public offer of a 10 per cent wage increase to workers, CSU executives declared it was the first offer of any kind they have yet had. Union pointed out that "as the published offer refers to studio workers generally, without recognition of their legal bargaining agents, it substantiates the open shop threat voiced to us April 3 by producer labor chairman B. B. Kahane and since then reiterated in various statements and communications citing the unions or special situations to which the open shop will first be applied."

Conference went on record with statement that:

"If the present published wage offer is authentic and can be construed as marking readiness of producers to negotiate wages and hours under union contracts, the CSU is ready to present its counter proposal."

Producers' wage increase offer contained statement that "the negotiations were broken off by Mr. Sorrell and not by the producers, who stand ready to resume at any time."

Only comment to be made by the IATSE group regarding wage offer was that it was studying the matter but whether it can be classed as good or bad depended largely upon other conditions that would necessarily go with an increase. A third IA local, the projectionists, reached an impasse yesterday with producers on wages.

GILBERT, JESSEL TIFFING OVER 'DREAMLAND'

Minor feud is ensuing between George Jessel and vet songwriter L. Wolfe Gilbert over disposition of song, "Dreamland Rendezvous," which they authored along with Ben Oakland. Trio published ditty recently by firm they formed, Magnetic Music. Now two large pubs, Mills Music and Bregman, Vocco and Conn, have shown interest in taking over song and Jessel wants to bid it off to one or other whereas Gilbert wants it to remain lodged in Magnetic library, where, incidentally, it is the sole item in the catalog.

Jessel holds that by selling it to nationwide, established pub, thorough exploitation may put tune over. Gilbert contends that "in view of pending recordings" Magnetic can accomplish something, even though outfit employs no songpluggers and to date has printed but a scattering of other than professional copies. As far as is known only waxing "Rendezvous" has received is the Decca disc, as yet unreleased, made by Dick Haymes. Gilbert further holds that if Magnetic peddles the ditty, firm will automatically dissolve.

While the two co-authors of the lyrics are at their tug-of-war over fate of song and firm, the third partner and composer, Oakland, seems to be sitting it out on the sidelines.

OPEN BIDS ON STATIONS SEEN

RECORD PRICE CUT TO 18c BY OLYMPIC

Bombshell was tossed into Coast pop-platter business yesterday when L. K. Russell, operator of the Olympic Record Co., largest indie pressing and processing plant in area, slipped word to all the indie recorders in town that he had slashed price on production to 18c per record. Olympic price till now had been 25c a disc.

Whether or not the slash by the largest of the indie plants will stampede rivals into a price-cutting fracas remains to be seen. About the cheapest work being done, job-lot, up to yesterday was 21c a record, though one or two small labels were getting their recordings manufactured on long-term pacts for about 19c.

Olympic's new offer is to take on at quoted price orders however small. The plant is known to have a capacity of 26,000 records daily. This chop marks the climax to gradual decrease in pressing costs, which last year were 35c per platter and 30c last October. Production costs started downward from the war-years' high when materials began to return to the market after cessation of hostilities. Shellac, which must be imported from Congo, is still hard to obtain.

Leslie Starts Fight To Become Free Agent

Joan Leslie's suit to win her freedom from Warner contract started in Superior Court yesterday, when actress tried to have studio injunction set aside which would prevent her from abrogating contract and also keep her from appearing in femme role in Seymour Nebenzal's "The Chase." Actress is attempting to have court end contract which she signed as a minor four years ago. Studio contends that deal was approved by Superior Court in accordance with special law in the civil code.

DECCA PREPPING JOLSON ALBUM

Decca Records is prepping an Al Jolson album, part of which already has been recorded by singer and all of which will be renditions of ditties Jolson prominently used in his repertoire throughout long career. Plattery has yet to decide conclusively just how many discs will be included in the package and at what price. Release will be concurrent with Columbia film "Life of Jolson," still in production.

The "Jolson" picture has continued to buy songs for however brief inclusion, total now touching 44, a record number for any film. All are oldies which loomed more or less prominently in the Jolson career. The earliest is "After the Ball," purchased by Columbia from Southern Music Co. That song was written and released in 1892 by Charles K. Harris.

Biggest Paycheck Still Goes To Radio Salesman

Washington, April 17.—The salesman who brings in the business is still the best paid man in radio, aside from a few top execs, Federal Communications Commission figures reveal. In its annual summary of employes and compensation by occupational groups for a sample week, that of Oct. 14, 1945, such are the findings.

The figures cover nine webs and 876 stations and prove definitely that while there may be more romance and publicity in writing, announcing and acting, with the exception of the handful of nationally known toppers, the boys who walk in with the signed contracts walk out with the fattest paychecks. On an industry-wide basis, here are how the figures shape up:

General managerial execs average $173.36 a week. National webs pay $475.12 on average; regional webs, $308.70; Local stations, $159.36, with last figure slumping to average of $66.25 for very smallest outlets. Next best paid in exec brackets are the commercial people, averaging $138.80 for all stations and webs. Top press-agents glide into third place with an average of $101.96.

However, outside salesmen for networks and stations average $106.56. Nationwide webs and their ten key stations pay an average of $137.77 to the time-peddlers; regional webs, $119.60; local stations, $102.29.

Contrasted with those figures, average program staff is paid as follows on nationwide average: production men, $62.50; writers, $47.93; announcers, $57.79; staff musicians, $81.20; actors and other artists, $76.90. It is noticeable that the best paid group in the program bracket is the musician because of his strongly organized union.

Toumanova Guest Ballerina in Paris

Tamara Toumanova was dated yesterday to appear as guest ballerina at Paris Opera early next April and for ballet appearances in London immediately following. She is currently rehearsing for "The Life and Loves of Anna Pavlowa" which her husband, Casey Robinson, is co-producing with Benedict Bogeaus.

VOGUE RECORDS WILL RELEASE HERE IN JULY

Vogue Records, Detroit pop-plattery, which long has been prepping for a nationwide splash into the disc biz, will release product on Coast by mid-July, according to prez Tom Saffady. Vast interest in venture was aroused in trade some time ago when it was evident Vogue was spending tremendous bankroll in entering field. Discs will be rainbow-hued and albums toned up into almost Tiffany packages.

Yet to be set are the Vogue distribs, which, according to firm's announcements in past, must also buy gaudily painted trucks in which to deliver the records, plus a large variety of props to enable retailers to peddle them. Ina Ray Hutton band long ago cut eight sides for Vogue, but to date they are unreleased and ork lost an engagement recently when Avodon ballroom here turned down band because crew "has no records around town in the jukeboxes."

500 So. Calif. Houses Pledge Cancer Help

Ninety per cent of theatres in the Southern California territory have pledged participation in the forthcoming cancer campaign, according to report by Sherrill Corwin and Jack Berman, exhibitor co-chairmen for the area. This represents more than 500 film houses and the remaining, unpledged 10 per cent are being urged to send in pledges immediately.

Kaufman Back to NY

George Kaufman returns Saturday to New York after completing book of "Park Avenue" in collaboration with Nunnally Johnson.

Donlevy Fight Appears Not To Be A Private One

Brian Donlevy and Republic will have still another party to deal with in connection with their proposed filming of "Slippy McGee." Robert Lawson, an actor, came forth with documents yesterday, claiming his rights to all of Oliver Morosco's plays and productions. Lawson presented photostat copies and original documents at Daily Variety yesterday, in an effort to show that he has rights to the Morosco shows, one of which was "Slippy McGee."

Lawson's claim to the plays is based on a will in which his deceased wife left him and their three children all of her property. Lawson's wife was married to Oliver Morosco and divorced him, subsequently marrying Lawson. She died in June of 1945. However, another document held by Lawson grants "Helen Mitchell sometimes known as Helen Morosco" rights to all of Oliver Morosco's plays. The document is signed by Morosco and witnesses, and was drawn up in 1934.

Lawson stated yesterday, "If anyone is doing 'Slippy McGee,' I feel I should be consulted and get in on the profits."

FCC IGNORES PROTESTS BY NAB

Washington, April 17. — Despite protest from National Association of Broadcasters, rules calling for open and competitive bidding before a radio station can be sold will be written into the FCC's rule book—and soon. This much became clear as FCC heard arguments today attempting to block enforcement of the new regulations governing sale of radio properties.

New procedure was first announced in the FCC's decision of last October on the sale of WLW, Cincinnati, to Aviation Corp. of America. NAB council argued that FCC lacked authority to pick and choose between station buyers but admitted the commission's right to license or not to license stations in the public interest or draw up new rules to this end.

Procedure, according to Don Petty of the NAB Council, would result in higher rather than lower sales tickets on stations and would attract "speculative capital into the broadcasting business." To this, Acting FCC Chief Charles Denny countered by saying that FCC will shortly ask Congress to grant specific authority to control prices of stations. If given, this will take care of both problems, Denny said.

Counsel for Stations KSOO, Sioux Falls, S.D., and WICA, Ashtabula, O., both objected to the language of the rules which call for open bidding when stations—as parts of an estate —are transferred from executors to heirs or third persons. Although FCC may relax the rules somewhat to allow for relief in specific situations, it will insist on having the last word on who may or may not buy into radio, according to observers here.

Theatre Guild Stops Its Talent Auditions

Queenie Smith, Hollywood talent scout for the Theatre Guild, has called a hiatus on talent auditions. Reason for the temporary suspension is because there is now a sufficient number of performers on the list for Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner, Guild chiefs, to scan on their forthcoming trip to the Coast. Pair is expected here by the end of the month.

GRAINGER GOES ON TREASURE HUNT

Edmund Grainger planes tomorrow to Tampa, Fla., to huddle with Irwin A. Williamson on technical details relative to his locating remains of Spanish galleon, Santa Rosa, in waters off Cuba. Williamson, explorer and deep sea diver, recently found treasure ship which was sunk centuries ago in days of the Spanish Main, reportedly with fortune of $30,000,000 in jewels and bullion, which Cortez had seized from Montezuma in Mexico.

'Call Me Mr.' Is Rated Newest Broadway Buffola

New York, April 18.—There's a new musical smash on Broadway tonight. Its title is "Call Me Mr." which starts where Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" left off. It's the postwar plan for GI entertainment populated completely by people from the GI and USO ranks. Fortified by a smart set of songs by Harold Rome and sketches by Arnold Auerbach show is a cinch for the number one ticket buy. With Betty Garrett (solely featured), Bill Callahan, Harry Clark, George Hall, Alan Manson and Danny Scholl, there is talent aplenty. The unspoiled quality of a not too professional troupe gives the illusion of just-out-of-uniform personnel. Miss Garrett, who impresses as a young Gertrude Lawrence, and Callahan who's a natural for Hollywood are particular standouts.

27 SET FOR RELEASE IN U.S.

New York, April 18. — J. Arthur Rank's lengthy string of affiliated companies presently are sporting a list of 27 films either on current release, in production or on immediate-preparation slates. A total of $22,000,000, it is estimated, will be spent on the group of pictures.

All probably will have been released in the U.S. by the latter part of this year through United World or Eagle-Lion, the Rank distributing companies in this country. Nine of the pictures currently are before cameras, seven are being prepped, eight being edited and three already have been earmarked for April release.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

STAGE space and set cost limitations bid fair to put an end to practice of making costly re-takes, with even producers and directors on the top-budgeters being required to make their decisions at near-quickie speed. It is now a matter of looking at the rushes and deciding right now on whether to make a re-take or not. Stage space commitments being what they are time is decidedly of the essence and re-takes now are likely to be made at the earliest possible moment instad of being postponed till the finish of the picture. Sets are frequently struck within two days to a week after they have served their original requirements. Also, practice of building big standing sets is virtually out because of the $15,000 CPA cost limit.

CAST — Stars Boris Karloff. Features Anna Lee. Supporting players, Billy House, Richard Fraser, Glenn Vernon, Ian Wolfe, Jason Robards, Leland Hodgson, Joan Newton, Elizabeth Russell.

TRADESHOWN at studio, April 16, 1946. Running time: 80 MINS.

"Bedlam" is a suspenseful exploitation picture from which RKO may expect heavy grosses. Produced by Val Lewton, whose past offerings in this field have netted high revenue for company, film has been directed forcefully by Mark Robson, with many a sock dramatic moment. Boris Karloff is starred, again in one of his off-the-beaten-path characterizations, and film as a whole has been well done.

This is the story of Bedlam, a notorious madhouse of London where inmates were inhumanly treated like so many animals. Unfolding in year 1761, plot presents Karloff as Master Sims, keeper of the asylum, and how he tries to fend off the attempts of Anna Lee, mistress of resort's principal patron, to improve conditions there. Through conniving, he manages to have femme committed to his care in the asylum, with all the subsequent horror place provides.

Narrative permits spicy melodramatic action which Robson handles effectively in his direction, with cast of principals hand-picked for their roles. Karloff makes a picturesque and sinister character of madhouse keeper, and Miss Lee scores definitely as courageous young woman whose battle against treatment of the insane in Bedlam finally wins attention. Billy House is standout as Lord Mortimer, patron, Richard Fraser, playing part of a Quaker, does good work, and Ian Wolfe, as insane lawyer who conducts trial of Karloff for his misdeeds by lunatics, is excellent.

Film was suggested by William Hogarth's painting of Bedlam, and scripted by Carlos Keith and Robson, who did craftsmanship job. Nicholas Musuraca's photography, always in low key, is exceptional piece of camera work, and Albert S. D'Agostino and Walter E. Keller's art direction atmospheric. Other credits are in kind.

LEGIT OPENING

New Haven, April 18. — Philip Yordan's "Windy City" lifted the curtain on a curious mixture of frustration, offstage choral ensemble and ballets leaning heavily towards the sensuous. Story of a gambler's futile attempt to break away from the only life he has ever known, to win a girl who wants a more secure existence, is loaded with pessimism and despair.

Highspots include a good comedy number sung by Frances Williams, and John Conte gives personality to the gambler. Susan Miller does well as the other half of the love interest. Al Shean and Loring Smith give substance to the straight roles.

Femme Producers Do Four Pictures At RKO

RKO's new femme producer setup of three women will make four of the 12 features studio will turn out during next three months.

Joan Harrison starts ball rolling May 1, with start of George Raft starrer, "Nocturne." On May 26, she puts second film, "They Won't Believe Me," before the cameras.

Lillie Hayward, just elevated to producership, goes June 10 with her first picture, "Banjo," which she will also write. Harriet Parsons follows on July 8 with "A Very Remarkable Fellow."

Columbia yesterday added to femme producing contingent, with addition of Frances Manson to its producer roster. She joins Virginia Van Upp, who has produced there several years. At Universal, Jane Murfin is readying pair of properties for early production.

LASKY, MAC EWEN $5 MILLION SKED

Budget of $5,000,000 has been set by Jesse Lasky and Walter MacEwen for the three films to be produced under Jesse L. Lasky Productions banner. Films are "Intermission," "The Apple Tree," and "Caruso Sings Tonight," which will be produced in that order.

Donlevy, Round 4; Lawson On Floor

Fourth round in the Brian Donlevy-Republic-Robert Lawson-"Slippy McGee" battle royal yesterday found Lawson taking the count from Dorothy Morosco, widow of the stage producer. She asserts Lawson's claims are invalid, because Helen Morosco Lawson, divorced wife of the producer and deceased wife of Lawson, had no further claim upon the Morosco productions subsequent to her death.

PRC Prez Coasting

New York, April 18. — Harry Thomas, PRC prez, leaves tomorrow for Hollywood studio. Thomas will stay in Hollywood from four to six weeks, arriving next Tuesday after day's layover in Chicago.

Honoring Harry H. Thomas, president and general manager on his first year with PRC, the organization is tossing a luncheon and reception Tuesday noon at the Club in Beverly Hills.

Kovacs Preps 'Family'

Edward Kovacs, European producer, has been appointed by Abe Silk, president of Cinema Century Productions, as vice-president in charge of production, and starts preparations at once on the screen version of "One Man's Family," the noted NBC radio serial, written by Carlton E. Morse.

But Can He Win?

"The Bart" was signed on by Metro yesterday—which completes what the studio calls its toughest casting job of the year. Picture, "My Brother Who Talks to Horses," calls for a race horse, able to breeze a mile and a sixteenth in even time or better. This would be easy but—horse must also be black with pronounced white blaze on forehead, be good natured and gentle with children and be able to take direction. Curley Eagles, Metro's horse talent scout, checking at Tiajuana, found "The Bart" met all requirements and signed him on.

BANK OF AMERICA FINANCES EINFELD

Bank of America will handle financing of Enterprise, it was announced yesterday. Deal is expected to be closed within next two weeks.

Total of $13,000,000 has been budgeted for first year's schedule of six pictures. Company currently is constructing $200,000 sound stage, as well as other extensive building on lot.

Joan Barton Inked For Wayne Film

Joan Barton signed yesterday by Republic-John Wayne Productions for a featured role in "The Angel and the Outlaw." Agent George Banyai negotiated. Wayne is both starring in and producing the film for Republic release.

Int Buys 'Mermaid'

"Peabody's Mermaid," by Guy and Constance Jones, has been acquired by International Pictures.

CITE COMMERCIAL PIX DAD

New York, April 18.—Thomas Armat, who 50 years ago invented the vitascope projector and consequently started commercial film business, will be especially cited by the Society of Motion Picture Engineers at its annual banquet here May 8. The feed will highlight SMPE's five-day technical conference May 6-10.

Armat became interested in picture projection after seeing Thomas Edison's kinetoscope and subsequently developed the method of projecting pictures on a screen, an occomplishment Edison had not thought possible. Films for vitascopes were made by the Edison Co. for professional reasons because in that way Edison's name could be used exploitatively.

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Colbert Clark. Director, Ray Nazarro. Screenplay, Louis Rousseau and Ed Earl Repp. Story, Louis Rousseau. Photography, George Kelley. Editor, Paul Borofsky. Art, Charles Clague. Sound, Philip Faulkner. Assistant director, Carter DeHaven, Jr.

CAST—Stars Charles Starrett. Features Marjean Neville and Smiley Burnette. Robert Kortman, George Chesebro, Frank LaRue, Lane Chandler, Phyllis Adair, Robert Williams, Jack Kirk, John Tyrrell.

REVIEWED at Hitching Post, Hollywood, Calif., April 18, 1946. Running time: 54 MINS.

Latest Charles Starrett starrer, in his "Durango Kid" series, is cut above run-of-mill western fare, chiefly because pace of action is kept brisk and a host of heroics are displayed. For some time sagebrush sagas have neglected to have stars do a heap of breath-taking lariat heaving and impossible trigger work. The fans always liked that s t u f f and they'll welcome the displays herein.

Starrett again is the dual personality, the black-garbed masked "Kid" a n d t h e peaceable peace-officer. When one character doesn't suit a given situation he changes costumes and gets results. Yarn basically is same as he repeatedly does, but it's kept lively with rapid succession of fist-fights, jail-breaks, ambushes and hard-riding amid a constant cloud of six-gun smoke.

Smiley Burnette, one of the better western comics, gives grand support and always popped up to mugg and frolic for the camera while the hero ducked to switch costumes. No romance; only femme in cast, Phyllis Adair, is a dance hall denizen and as such could never qualify for a clean, close-out clinch. She had to step into the villain's lane of fire. Teen-age Marjean Neville gives sprightly performance as cowtown mayor's daughter the baddies tried to kidnap to spring hero into trap and there is as grimacing, grunting a gang of heavies as has been seen in some time. Most memorable, and all old hands at the thing are Lane Chandler, Robert Kortman and George Chesebro.

Producer Colbert Clark afforded the piece a fine town and at least sprinkled some figures around the streets, which removed the bleakness so many extra-less westerns are currently cursed by. Ray Nazarro, directing, kept the pace driving and the action rough. George Kelley's camera caught the spirit sought, especially during the chases and gun fights.

RKO Buys O'Neill's Stage Hit 'Electra'

"Mourning Becomes Electra," Eugene O'Neill Theatre Guild stage hit of decade ago, yesterday was purchased by RKO and assigned for production to Dudley Nichols. Nichols also will write adaptation to screen, and handle direction as well.

Rosenman Hosted

Judge Samuel Rosenman, former advisor and aide to late President Roosevelt, was guest yesterday of Samuel Goldwyn at lunch and on tour through studio. H. G. Wellington and R. F. Atwood, of New York stock exchange, also were in party.

Flynn, Stanwyck Co-Star

Errol Flynn will co-star with Barbara Stanwyck in "Cry Wolf" at Warners.

NASSOUR ADDS TELE STAGE TO NEW STUDIO

New experimental stage for television is being built at Nassour studio, in current $2,500,000 construction program. When finished, studio will have five sound stages for motion pictures in addition to television setup.

Edward Nassour has made application for a television license, but it will be year at least, he estimates, before this will be forthcoming.

Minimum of $250,000 must be expended for television station, under official ruling. Television setup will have its own entrance on Sunset Blvd.

Overall building program, started two weeks ago. It will require between 90 and 120 days to finish. During this period, indie producers who in past have made use of studio's one stage, will not be able to shoot there. Several, including W. Lee Wilder, Walter Colmes, Steve Sekely and Golden Gate Productions, who had planned to utilize studio's facilities for short filming, have had either to make other arrangements or postpone filming until new stages are ready.

KFWB Puts on Skates For Rink Coverage

KFWB puts its mike on skates with preem of program of new commercial from Hollywood Roller Rink tomorrow from 10:30 to 10:55 a.m. Hal Styles, leader of Rink ork, will wheel through skaters for interviews, gagging and other audience participation gimmicks. Show is sponsored by Teaser's Popcorn and has been set for one year on station with Rink as permanent origination.

'Abie' in Front

Despite the fact that he is working with two newcomers to the screen —Joanne Dru and Richard Norris, the romantic leads—Producer-director Eddie Sutherland is a full day ahead of schedule after four days shooting on "Abie's Irish Rose."

the core of the 91-clause contract tomorrow.

The producers' reps made several major gains in today's deliberation. Agreement was reached with AFM that if a song or songs are recorded for a given picture, and not used, they may be allocated to any future production.

On the other hand, producers agreed today not to sell, lease or rent any sound track, while the AFM withdrew its demand that musicians be paid again for sound track when transferred from 35m to 16m. The AFM further agreed that music recorded for any picture could be used for advertisement purposes.

' JUST FOR VARIETY '

THE GRAPEVINE: Technicolor must be jinxed for Columbia producers. In the past year six have left the studio after finishing Technicolor pictures, all of which scored at the box office. Check-out parade started with Arthur Schwartz after he produced "Cover Girl," and was continued by Lou Edelman after "A Song to Remember," Victor Saville after "Tonight and Every Night," Sam Bischoff after "A Thousand and One Nights," Michael Kraike after "Renegades" (soon to be released) and the other day Leonard Picker, who made "Bandit of Sherwood Forest." The rumble now is that Don Hartman, producing "Down to Earth," is due to ankle off the lot . . . Maria Palmer left yesterday for San Francisco and Reno—just for a vacation, she's neither married nor engaged . . . Just before the first anniversary of Benito Mussolini's sudden death, a three-part story will be released by United Features by one of his executioners. Grisly sort of remembrance . . . Coke Miller, newcomer to the industry as Charlie Einfeld's aide and formerly a news syndicate exec, has caught on in a big way . . . Joan Crawford decided to take her rest in Hollywood. She returned from La Quinta yesterday . . . Two ex-husbands of big stars are trying to beat each other's time for the affections of a starlet, who won't give either a tumble . . . Paired off at the Beverly Tropics: William Tracy and Lois James, celebrating their first wedding anniversary, and Belita with Joel McGinnis.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Announcement following the Screen Guild show on KNX the other night that Van Johnson would be the next guest star brought the usual uproar from bobbysoxers in the audience. But the loudest screamer and applauder of all was a girl who had just finished playing in the show—14-year-old Elizabeth Taylor, Metro player . . . Quite a problem for the Warner prop department was the rough-and-tumble scene in "A Very Rich Man." Script called for Dane Clark and Craig Stevens to brawl through three rooms filled with antiques and objects d' art which have to be copied exactly for the fight sequence . . . Today's worry: Will Petrillo demand that President Truman join AFM Local 161, Washington, or tell him to get off that piano stool in public places? . . . Most of the studios in town are bidding for screen rights to Tennessee Williams' play "The Glass Menagerie." Williams' agents are reported to be demanding $500,000 against 50 per cent of the net . . . Jerry Wald must be getting superstitious over "S"—his next three pix are "Secret," "Serenade" and "Silver Lining" . . . Bo Roos and Frank Borzage return today from Salt Lake City, where they were looking over Borzage's property . . . Orson Welles and Cole Porter's "Eight Days Around the World" will get its pre-Broadway tryont in Boston next week . . . Jazz is getting so respectable that Ross Russell, boss of Dial Records, starts a lecture series on "American Jazz Tradition" Tuesday at the Hollywood Educational Center.

CALL SHEET: JACK CARSON finally won a little artistic recognition around town. His four-year-old son, Jack Jr., brought home from nursery school a lump of modeling clay and announced it was an Oscar for his father . . . MARY BRIAN, alumni of the Paramount college musicals in which Jack Oakie was the perennial fullback, visited Ann Sheridan at Warners yesterday . . . GEORGE JESSEL starts recording his ARA album today . . . WAYNE MORRIS spends his weekends at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station piling up flying time as a naval reserve pilot . . . ANNE JEFFREYS and LAWRENCE TIERNEY take off Monday for personal appearances in Salt Lake City . . . NAT PENDLETON is proud of the way he covered his pool table with an old green suit. "It's the only billiard tible in town with patch-pockets," he says . . . PHIL REGAN'S son, Joseph, is entering Loyola to prep for Notre Dame after serving in the Army Air Forces. His other son, Phil Jr., is stationed with the Army in France . . . SIGMUND ROMBERG arrives next month for picture and radio commitments. No housing troubles for him. He kept up his Bevhills home during his two-year absence . . . ROY CHANSLOR'S "Hi Nellie!" filmed by Warners from his magazine story, is being included in an anthology of famous newspaper stories . . . ARLEEN WHELAN was doing all right in a scene for "Suddenly It's Spring" at Paramount yesterday until she lost her bracelet, then dropped her purse. "I've heard of breakaway props," she told director Mitch Leisen, "but I'll bet I'm the first breakaway actress you ever saw!"

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Newlywed director's only current regret is that he got spring fever a little early. He had his swimming pool, empty all winter, filled the other day. That night his ex-girl friend caused a rumpus when she came over, nicely clad in earrings, for a midnight dip . . . Capitol Songs has stopped handing out baking recipes with copies of "Shoo Fly Pie and Apple Pan Dowdy," now that the song is on best-seller lists. After the tune hit the 500,000-mark, Capitol didn't care who can bake, because they've got the cake . . . Spike Jones ends his engagement at the Troc May 8 and then takes his crew of musical madmen on a personal appearance tour with Paramount's "Ladies' Man," in which they appear . . . It can happen only to a writer. Liz Sanders, Thornton Delehanty's assistant, lost the manuscript of her original story, with no carbons, no identification on the script . . . Twenty-five ex-GI's, all wearing their old uniforms, are working in Goldwyn's "The Best Years of Our Lives" . . . Cast and crew of Columbia's "The Blue Diamond Mystery" serial were vaccinated against smallpox yesterday . . . Dorothy Babb has a sprained left wrist from wearing the huge rock Johnny Coy placed on her finger in token of their engagement . . . Johnny Weissmuller has invented the male answer to the frontless evening gown. It's a sleeveless, backless shirt with tie attached, to be worn under a sports jacket . . . Glummest song on current lists is Southern Music Co.'s new hillbilly number, "Is There Room in the Grave for Me?"——D.D.T.

HUGHES TAKES EXCEPTION TO LEGION STAND

"The Outlaw" has only one version and has not been shown to the Legion of Decency since its 1943 opening in San Francisco, according to Howard Hughes. Producer-director of film made the assertion in denying a portion of the Catholic censorship body's release reaffirming its ban on the picture.

Hughes, taking exception to Legion's claim that "several versions have appeared in the course of the years and no version has been shown to the Legion of Decency which would warrant any but the condemned rating," declared that picture is still as first made, with exception of footage trimming to speed it up.

Legion handed out another censorship rap to "Outlaw" when it issued the reminder to all diocesan leaders in the United States that "C" classification remains unchanged. Original ban was based on claim that film presents a glorification of crime and immoral actions and that throughout a very considerable portion of its length is indecent in costuming.

Thumbs down by the church body is in direct contrast to purity seal handed the picture by the Motion Picture Association's Production Code administrators, headed by Joseph I. Breen, a staunch Catholic.

EXTRAS GUILD SCREENS FIELD; ADMITS 142

Total of 142 adult non "B" members have been admitted to the Screen Extras Guild, according to a report issued to the membership by the board of directors yesterday. Report was made to refute charges that SEG is flooding membership rolls with extra players who were not former "B" members of the Screen Actors Guild. An additional 149 boys and girls between 14 and 17 years of age have been admitted to membership at the request of the producers, report states.

Large number of extras registered at Central Casting during the open shop period in studios between December, 1944 and April 8, 1946, have been screened and all but total above eliminated from film work, report declared.

Guild is continuing its fight to retain unemployment compensation for extras refusing $5.50 calls. Appeal brought by Loew's and 20th-Fox to bar extras refusing such calls was taken under submission yesterday by the District Court of Appeals.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

Andrei Gromyko has raised the question of the principle of intervention. He insists the continuance of fascists in Spain must not be countenanced, and that we have not only a right but a duty to intervene. There is much to be said for that kind of argument, and much against it. The question is when the United Nations or any group of nations has a right to intervene in the affairs of another. The question will come up in this hemisphere also, when the Uruguay proposal is presented to the Pan-American nations. That proposed joint intervention whenever it is necessary "for safeguarding the essential rights of man" or the "non-fulfillment of obligations freely contracted by a State." Although aimed at the Argentine, might it not also mean that the American nations had a right to insist on free, fair elections in Nicaragua and Mexico, where they are not free or fair, and a right to demand that poll tax restrictions against Negro voting in our south be removed? And if we should protect "the essential rights of man" in Spain, should not the United Nations do something about that in Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, and even the Soviet?

Haustein Named Par Portland Manager

Henry Haustein, sales manager at Paramount's San Francisco branch, has been promoted to branch manager of the Portland office, succeeding James Clark, resigned. Two other promotions have also been announced by Charles M. Reagan, vice prexy in charge of distribution. Tom Bridge, Dallas salesman, moves up to Haustein's sales manager spot in San Francisco. Ed Stuckey, sales manager at the Detroit branch, has been upped to branch manager.

AFRA Iffy on H'wood As Convention Site

Hollywood has been approved as site for national convention of American Federation of Radio Artists—but there's a big "if" connected with it. Conclave has been called for August 23 to 25, inclusive. However, feelers issued by local here to hotels on accommodations available have been unproductive. Though union expects hardly more than 60 vote-empowered delegates, no hotel will commit itself that far ahead.

Variety Club Anni

Variety Clubs of America will hold the 10th Annual Convention in New York May 15-18. Barkers and delegates from 23 Tents have registered already for the meetings which will be held at the Hotel Astor.

SPIER WILL DO 'SUSPENSE' SHOWS FOR PICTURES

William Spier, radio producer-director of the CBS "Suspense" show, has formed an indie film outfit. Tagged, Suspense Pictures, Inc., corporation papers are currently being set up by attorney Martin Gang of Gang, Kopp and Tyre.

The new indie unit will launch production in July. Spier plans to produce-direct a minimum of four films annually, following the format of his weekly air thriller.

AN ULTIMATUM!

April 18, 1946

The undersigned Unions, representing 26,000 A. F. of L. studio workers, are now negotiating, or have completed contracts successfully with the Hollywood producers. We are determined to obtain for our memberships the best wages and conditions.

Our present negotiations were delayed and disrupted because of an eight-months jurisdictional strike staged in 1945 by a rump group representing less than 5,000 people, known as the Conference of Studio Unions. Actually, these delays have deprived every worker in the industry of substantial sums of money that should have been in their pockets some months ago.

We hereby serve notice on all concerned that we no longer will tolerate disruptive tactics by this small minority, the CSU, which has no standing or recognition in the A. F. of L., and which hides behind the A. F. of L. name —but defies A. F. of L. policy.

Once again, this disruptive minority threatens to call an illegal strike and to picket the studios. They have refused to submit the issues in dispute to the proper A. F. of L. councils, or to follow established procedure which every A. F. of L. Council in Los Angeles County has adopted, whereby the councils, through collective action of all A. F. of L. Unions, makes every effort to adjust disputes without recourse to strikes.

This system has been so successful that the Los Angeles A. F. of L. has established the outstanding record of winning contract and wage gains without strikes in 95 per cent of all local disputes.

If this small minority of studio workers carries out its threat to picket the studios without first submitting the dispute for consideration by the proper A. F. of L. councils, the strike will be an outlaw strike, and none of our members will respect the illegal picket lines.

There are nearly 8,000,000 men and women in the American Federation of Labor who support established and successful A. F. of L. procedures. As a part of that national family, we demand that this small minority now threatening another wild-cat strike abide by A. F. of L. rules or withdraw from Hollywood.

We will fully support any bona fide request for assistance in matters of wages, hours and conditions.

The A. F. of L. in the motion picture industry has no place for labor leaders who defy A. F. of L. policies. If these leaders do not immediately take steps to get in line with the A. F. of L., we pledge our efforts to see that they are replaced by responsible leadership, and thus make it possible to establish sound collective bargaining in the interest of the working membership of A. F. of L. Unions employed in the film studios.

Light 'n' Airy

Bob Hope took a commanding lead in the Hooper sweepstakes with a 2.2 margin over "The McGee's" and posted a solid 29.6 to set a swift pace for the Favorite 15. His competish is negligible while "This Is My Best" took 7.0 opposite the Jordans. Placing with 25 was Charlie McCarthy, with opposing programs far off the pace, and the rest of the field pounded along in this order: Bing Crosby 23.2 with little to worry him on the other nets; Red Skelton 22.7 with only light competish; Fred Allen 22.2, opposed by "Crime Doctor" at 10.7; Lux 22.2 (Info Please 12.9, Telephone Hour 10.1; Jack Benny 21.1 (This Man 8); Walter Winchell 19.7 (Manhattan Merry Go Round 12.3, Request Performance 7.1; "Mr. D.A." (Bob Crosby 7.2); Jack Haley (light opposish); Screen Guild Players 19 (Contented Program 8.2); Kay Kyser 18.1 (Great Moments in Music 6.5); Abbott and Costello 17.7 (little opposish); Amos 'n' Andy 17.4 (Inner Sanctum 13.1).

Seasonal slump got in some hard licks on the Sunday list and soundly thumped two of the commentators, Walter Winchell and Jimmie Fidler. Latter lost more than he's got, his 4.3 skid dropping him to 4.2. The two W's fared little better and was on the minus end of 4.2 for 19.7. Jack Benny was off 3.3 for 21.1 as was Cass Daley at 13. The others pulled up thusly: "Ozzie and Harriett" 8.9, no change; "Blondie" 13.2, no change; "Calamity Jane" 4.8; Charlie McCarthy 25, off 2.2; Fanny Brice 13.1, up .8; Fred Allen 22.2, off 1.9; "Gildersleeve" 15.1, off 1.7; "Parky's" 7.8, off 2.2; Louella Parsons 9.2, off .6; "Request Performance" 7.1, off .5; "Darts for Dough" 6.4, up 1.4; Gene Autry 5.7, off 1.6; Hollywood Star Time 5.9, up .7; Westinghouse 8.5, off 1.8; Nelson Eddy 6.5, no change; "One Man's Family" 10.4, no change; Academy Award Theatre 6.2; Dick Haymes 7.9, off 2.7; Judy Canova 13.5, off 1; "Life of Riley" 14.1, off .6; "Mayor of Town" 9.7, up .9; Ralph Edwards 16.9, up 1.5. Topping the daytimers is Tom Breneman with 8.7.

By RADIE HARRIS

Mickey Rooney, who once tackled Shakespeare, may now try his histrionics on Eugene O'Neill. MGM is seriously considering handing him the role of "Richard" in the musical version of "Ah Wilderness," and it all depends on the shooting schedule whether Walter Huston will play his father, "Nat Miller." Walter, who has kept "Apple of His Eye" at the Biltmore at a great financial sacrifice to himself, because he believes in its audience appeal, will shutter it June 1 for a two months' holday on his Arrowhead ranch (which he could combine with business at Metro). In the fall, he resumes his "Appleing" with an extensive road tour, one night stands and all . . . Florence Desmond, whose spouse, Charles Houston, has just arrived from London for a close-up of her "Blue Angel" success, is waiting breathlessly until Anton Dolin leaves for South America. They want to sublet the East River apartment he has sub-let from Bea Lillie . . . Memo to DDT: don't know where you got that item about Ed Wynn's serious illness. "The Fire Chief" is clanging away for Texaco until June 8, when he's Hollywood-bound to check in at the Bel-Air to summer near Keenan and Evie and be a doting grandfather to Neddie and Tracy . . . When George Abbott became a benedict shortly after his daughter, Judy, became a bride, the occasion called for a dual celebration,which it got, when Carl Fisher and Betty Mason threw open their Park Avenue apt. for a huge shindig in their joint honor. George's bride, who is beyootiful enough to decorate any Abbott musical (but will stick to her own "knitting" in her East 55th St. dress shop) is four years younger than her new step-mama, and several years younger than that from her groom! Almost stealing the honors from the newlyweds was Vincent Sardi, Jr., making his first appearance as a civvie in four years. He found himself back among so many familiar Sardi-ites that, automatically, he began seating them!

"MAKE MINE MUSIC": Sol Shapiro, concert pianist and composer of "Shootin' Star," approached his wife, Frances Heflin, just before the opening in New Haven in a very distrait state.

"What's the matter, Darling?" Fra asked anxiously.

"I've just learned that two musicians in the orchestra don't know anything about music!" he wailed.

"Darling, that's impossible. What makes you think so?"

"Because the two trombonists came over with a sheet of music and asked me what two certain notes were. And those notes just happened to be a 'rest'!"

BROADWAY BALLYHOO: Before Rouben Mamoulian pulled out for the Coast, he spent an entire afternoon with Eugene O'Neill, whose "Marco Millions" he directed back in 1927. When they parted, O'Neill gifted him with a charcoal drawing of himself autographed, "With admiration and respect"—and that, my friends, is praise from Caesar! . . . Cugat and his toupee will reopen the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf (15) . . . Ward Morehouse, drama cric and ed of the N.Y. Sun, is taking lessons in photography, preparatory to his cross country tour next month, in which he'll illustrate his coverage of "U.S.—Post War" with his own "Robert Capa-ing" . . . The Theatre Guild won't sign any actor for "Ice Man Cometh" without a two-year contract . . . When Luba Malina opens in "Roberta" in Los Angeles, May 27, there won't be any "smoke in the eyes" of the femmes oh-ah-ing her sensaytional wardrobe, especially created by Lange, or among the male contingent appreciating her— er— talent!

WOW: Basil Rathbone, who is soon to revive "Jealousy," would like to have June Havoc share the spotlight with him. Any mention of this play always reminds me of that wonderful story about the time when Fay Bainter and John Halliday were co-starring in this two-character French melodrama. It seems that Halliday ran into a pal of his at the Lambs, who asked, "I say, old boy, how does the audience react to just two people on the stage all evening?"

Whereupon, Halliday leaned over and whispered, "Confidentially, they do get a little tired of Fay!"

GOTHAM GLIMMERINGS: Billy Gilbert, who has given up sneezing for directing, will be in charge of a new strawhat stock company in Huntington, N.J., this summer . . . Jean Arthur stayed exactly overnight in the house she rented in Havana, and is now back in her Fifth Avenue sublet, reunioning in a Big Way with Frank Ross . . . Social event on the calendar: Ladies' Day at the Players Club (22), an "Occasion" because it's the only day of the year when females are allowed to cross the threshold of this male sancta sanctorum . . . Ralph Lewis, who has a stake in "Portrait in Black," planed in from the Coast to huddle with Stanley Kaufman about his new comedy, "On Our Way," to be produced by Eddie Nugent . . . At the Ziegfeld Club's successful Red Cross Party at the Hotel Pierre Roof, Pres. Gladys Feldman presented Bernard Sobel, former Ziegfeld p.a., who started the club, with a reading clock and a solid gold inscribed pencil. Now all he has to do is to turn back the clock and write his memoirs about the Ziegfeld he knew. (Any resemblance to William Powell is strictly accidental!) . . . Funniest twist in the Lana Turner-Pete Yeager front page romance is that Lana once carried a flaming torch for Adrian Samish, who shares the next office to Pete at ABC!

FARM GROUPS IN PLEA FOR MORE POWER FOR KFI

Washington, April 18.—Reps of more than a dozen powerful California farm organizations put the heat on Federal Communications Commission for increased power for KFI, Los Angeles, whose market and weather reports, they claimed, have meant millions of dollars in savings to agriculture in the state. Occasion was an FCC hearing on clear channel radio service, with the clear channel broadcasters launching their first broadside for super-power — over and above the 50 kilowatt power limit now imposed on KFI and other big time outlets.

Agricultural reps also objected to any move by FCC to let other stations, inside or outside the U.S., share KFI's channel, arguing that radio service in the valley areas outside L.A. was bad, generally "unsatisfactory" and in some cases nonexistent.

KFI Airs 'Meek' Story

"The Terrible Meek," story of the crucifixion, will be aired for the 17th time over KFI tonight from 11 to 11:30. Story, by Charles R. Kennedy, will be played by Verna Felton, Hanley Stafford, Raymond Lawrence and Ed Colmans.

B'DCASTERS GIVE GABBERS HIKE OF 25 TO 40%

Announcer wage squabble between Southern California Broadcasters and American Federation of Radio Artists was settled yesterday. Under new agreement spielers get increases ranging from 25 to 40 per cent. Hike brings peak salaries up to $67.50 on top three stations. Peak was formerly $55. Minimum, paid by three lesser stations, will be $52.50, as compared to previous low of $38.50. Deal is retroactive to March 17 this year.

Stations are broken up into three salary classifications. KFWB, KMPC and KXLA will pay new high of $67.50. Stations KFOX, KGER, KFAC, KLAC, KRKD and KFVD shell $57.50. Low bracket trio, KIEV, KGFJ and KWKW ante is $52.50. New high figure of $57.50 is equivalent to top announcer salary on local network stations.

New contract holds for 18 months. In addition to primary wage considerations, it also eliminates junior classificaton of announcers. Also provided is agreement to settle money disputes between stations and gabbers by arbitration.

BE GOOD OR QUIT H'D ULTIMATUM HANDED CSU

ample of tactics that have deprived "every worker in the industry of substantial sums of money that should have been in their pockets some months ago."

Group signaturing ultimatum declared that "We hereby serve notice on all concerned that we no longer will tolerate disruptive tactics by this small minority, the CSU, which has no standing or recognition in the A. F. of L., and which hides behind the A. F. of L. name—but defies A. F. of L. policy. Group demands that "this small minority now threatening another wild-cat strike abide by A. F. of L. rules or withdraw from Hollywood."

Policy of peace between CSU locals and producers loomed yesterday with report that John C. Tutts, commissioner for the U.S. Conciliation Department, is trying to arrange a meeting between the two groups for early next week. Both sides have signified their willingness to resume negotiations on basis of published announcements.

Eric Johnston, having passed up his requested Wednesday deadline on giving CSU an answer on the open shop question, again failed to reply yesterday, according to Conference. Meanwhile, strike sanction was granted Machinists Lodge 1185 by its International prexy, Harvey W. Brown, but CSU has not yet received sanctions from heads of carpenters and electricians.

Squads Right!

Warner Bros.' flackery was all in a dither yesterday—word had come down from high above to start a major tub-thumping campaign for Viveca Lindfors, studio's importation from Sweden. Late in the afternoon, publicity head Alex Evelove led the blonde Swedish star into his office and shortly after, phones began ringing all over the place. All department heads were asked to assemble in Evelove's office in order to meet Miss Lindfors. One bright boy busied himself with a Swedish dictionary, hoping to master a few words or phrases in the Scandinavian tongue. Imagine his surprise when Miss Lindfors greeted them all with fluent English highlighted by a broad Oxford accent.

MCA ASKS NEW FINLEY TRIAL

Acad Spending $250,000 On New Melrose Ave. Home

Estimated cost of the Motion Picture Academy's new building when completely remodeled is figured to reach close to a quarter of a million dollars. Purchase price was $150,000. Sumner Spaulding, noted architect, has been engaged to re-plan the building, and if priorities can be secured, it is hoped the building will be ready for occupancy by early fall. Building is the Marquis theatre on Melrose Avenue, which the Academy Building Corporation purchased from Fox West Coast Theatres.

Working in conjunction with Spaulding will be the Academy's Architectural Committee composed of Wiard Ihnen, chairman; Cedric Gibbons, Richard Day, Stephen Gooson, Carl Jules Weyl and Alexander Golitzen, all past Academy Art Direction Award winners.

In charge of entire project is building committee consisting of Sol Lesser, Charles Skouras, William Pereira, Frank Lloyd and Wiard Ihnen.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

MILLS Music is only pub on Coast with a songplugger assigned to work exclusively in small niteries and clubs, trying to stimulate single and small-combo musicians into playing firm's tunes. Mills, which already had two other touters handling radio and big bands and performers, recently hired Ted Snyder, Jr., son of the vet songwriter, for the club chore. Move takes the plugging business back to where it started, when original contact men used to approach piano-pounders in saloons and small-group jammers in side-street spots. Possibly Mills' move was prompted by fact that currently reigning as attention-getter in company's catalog is "Cement Mixer," which started in a small nitery and went on from there. Another angle of which the pub is well aware is that there is no competition on Snyder's present beat and some of the performers approached are downright flattered and generously respond to almost any suggestion.

LATEST gimmick for house and apartment hunters, whose ingenuity sometimes knows no bounds, is to keep track of drama pages. Whenever they read of stars or directors going on location for any length of time, they contact these individuals in hope they can move into their quarters while they are gone. In some cases, sizable bonuses are offered. Week ago, 20th-Fox put out story that director John Ford would take his "My Darling Clementine" troupe to Arizona for three-month location stay. Immediately, every name published in story was besieged with queries for permission to move into their home. Same applies to members of Republic's "Angel and the Outlaw" company, which left for Arizona last week.

SID Lorraine, general manager of Carol Music, Inc., local BMI-affiliated pub, wrote blistering letter to BMI headquarters in NY over weekend when he discovered there is another firm, also BMI, known as Carol Music Co., located in east. Last month Lorraine went to NY just to clear title of his company with BMI. Lorraine's new outfit, which is a subsid of ARA pop-plattery, has published one song to date and in view of similarity of two company names it is thought there will be confliction in both doing interstate commerce, as well as possible mixups in straightening out BMI royalties.

COLOR Television will be in relatively widespread use within the next 18 months in the opinion of Walter Evans, veepee in charge of radio activities for Westinghouse Electric Corporation. Company recently was licensed to make color television receivers under patents of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Development is significant in that Westinghouse is the first large electrical manufacturer to see color television developing that rapidly. Most other manufacturers, proponents of all out black and white television production, have placed color video from five to ten years in the future.

EXCESS of $90,000 was spent by 20th-Fox on tests for "Forever Amber," producer William Perlberg announced. Tests were made from top principals down to lowliest atmosphere player, and included several hundred persons. High expenditure was made on theory that by absolute proper casting there would be no retakes of scenes and director could shoot faster. Studio claims that already benefits are accruing to this great pre-production expense, by less time having to be spent on rehearsal of scenes.

AFRAN, house organ of American Federation of Radio Artists, carries item in current issue stating, "Board concurs in ruling refusing permission to C. B. DeMille to appear on Lux Theatre as guest." Followup statement, reluctantly issued by union, is to effect that former director of Lux program is still a suspended member and as such not permitted to appear on commercial shows. Suspension stems from his refusal to submit to $1.00 assessment some time ago.

Record tops the sales of "Going My Way" in the corresponding period by 285 contracts.

termination for the press, the radio and motion pictures," Price declared. "All of these agencies of national and world communication have become invested, whether we like it or not, with a far, far greater degree of public interest than they have ever felt before.

"You see the controversy over censorship now developing in the world of radio. You see a revival of agitation for a wider censorship of motion pictures. And you may not realize by what a narrow margin the press itself escaped in the recent war emergency from a pressure of compulsion from which you would not yet have recovered and from which you perhaps would never recover fully.

"As an alternative to possible censorship, all three great media of communication should take a stand for decency, for truth, and fairness, and intelligent interpretation; for the elevation and rehabilitation of a deeply distressed world. I counsel all of you to beware of even a little censorship in peacetime. It is an alien and dangerous weed in the garden of our liberties.

"Censorship anywhere threatens, in some degree, freedom of the press. If we are to fulfill the role of destiny in these decisive days, we must all of us be prepared to stand and fight together for decent and intelligent self-discipline, and against every form of governmental censorship over the mind and self-expression of man."

Not only in Hollywood but in New York the indies are barging in on the majors in the amusement business. We are speaking now of pugilism, one of the varied cousins of drama, and often more dramatic than the celluloid replica thereof. Our old friend Jimmy Johnston, once known as the Boy Bandit although he never toted a rod, is threatening to promote fights in Flatbush in opposition to Mike Jacobs, the Louis B. Mayer of the knuckle industry. Conditions may have changed since the war, but in an elder day a championship fight couldn't draw peanuts in a Brooklyn ball park. The Flatbush fans would flock to Manhattan to see a Queensbury roughhouse, but the Manhattan fans would never flock to Flatbush, even though it cost only a nickel on the subway. War has caused remarkable changes that you never dreamed, including the idea of Jimmy Johnston, with his derby hat, producing fights in Brooklyn, which he knew only by heresay.

Now television comes to the aid of the fight fan, who can sit in comfort by his fireside and watch a couple of palookas bopping each other around a distant ring. It is better than paying $100 to see a battle between two pugilistic ghosts from a "ringside" seat half a block from Yonkers.

Avalanche

PRC RELEASE of an Imperial production. Producer, Pat Di Cicco. Director, Irving Allen. Original screenplay, Andrew Holt. Photography, Jack Greenhalgh. Musical director, Lud Gluskin. Musical score, Lucien Moraweck, Rene Garriguene. Art direction, Edward C. Jewell. Set decoration, Glenn P. Thompson. Special effects, Ray Mercer. Costumes, Karlice. Editor, Louis Sackin. Sound, Percy J. Townsend. Puppets, Russ Clark.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 19, 1946. Running time: 68 MINS.

"Avalanche" stacks up well enough as a whodunit if audiences overlook sometimes inept treatment. Film is first offering of Imperial Pictures, and carries sufficient suspense to rate satisfactorily as supporting feature.

Plot shows Bruce Cabot, starred, and Roscoe Karns, Secret Service men, going to a mountain resort to query its owner about income tax evasions. Resort actually is a ski lodge, where devotees, and others, of sport have gathered. Federal men run into a murder, then two more. Suspense is doubly built up by threat of avalanche and where murderer will strike next.

Story hasn't been particularly well worked out, and there are frequent evidences of pressing to score a melodramatic point. Despite this, bringing in snow and ski sequences which are intermittently inserted, picture contrives to hold the interest. Most impressive scenes are ski shots.

Cabot makes most of his role and delivers convincing performance in tracking down murderer. Karns appears to be miscast as Treasury man, and is in more for comedy than to progress plot. Helen Mowery plays femme lead, and others prominent are Veda Ann Borg, Phil Van Zandt, Wilton Graff and John Good. A trained raven has a few entertaining moments.

Pat Di Cicco produced, and for a first picture turned out on a modest budget "Avalanche" reflects credit upon him. Irving Allen's direction shows evidence of talent surpassing material handed him here, and whatever suspense picture holds is due directly to his handling of characters. Original screenplay was written by Andrew Holt, and Jack Greenhalgh handled cameras effectively. Technical departments were well handled throughout.

Peck Gets New Deal

Gregory Peck signed, over the weekend, to new contract by David O. Selznick. Actor was immediately set in starring role in "Benedict Arnold."

RANK LIFTS LEASE ON NY THEATRE

New York, April 21. — J. Arthur Rank has exercised his option for another year on Broadway's Winter Garden, extending current lease which expires October 1. Rank will continue paying the Shuberts a fabulous $1,000 rental per day, although he hasn't used the house for his own pictures for months. International's "Tomorrow Is Forever" is currently there, with Universal's "So Goes My Love" to follow May 1.

Italy Wants Our Pix And Admish Coin, Too

New York, April 21.—Italy is now attempting to insert new conditions in the 1946 film agreement finalized recently between U. S. major film companies and the Italian Ministry of Foreign Trade. Italians are proposing two new clauses, both involving restrictions on money to be remitted to the U.S.

Under first contested clause, all money received from distributing American films in Italy will have to be spent in Italy within six months after being received.

Second clause would require that any person or producer making pictures in Italy for world export would have to send all of their world-market revenue back to Italy for impounding to be spent within six months.

FRANCE MAY SEIZE FILM BIZ

Paris, April 21.—It is understood French government plans to nationalize part of its film industry, a step which conceivably could result in stopping importation of American pictures. Gaston De Ferre, secretary of state for information, is said to have appeared at a private meeting with French film syndicate reps and revealed that a law is being prepared which will nationalize all picture enterprises now under government control.

Harold L. Smith, representing U.S. pictures, when he heard of meeting, expressed American apprehension with statement: "If the French films are nationalized, we are sunk."

ONE - PUNCH MONTE BLUE

Monte Blue, still nursing a bruised knuckle, last night revealed he slugged a stranger who approached him on the street as he was leaving Warners' lot recently and solicited him for a membership in Ku Klux Klan.

Stranger's face was slightly familiar, according to Blue, and when he hailed the actor, Blue paused to speak, thinking he knew the man. After giving him a buildup with flattering references to his popularity and clear diction, Blue said the man remarked, "We need men like you in our organization."

Whereupon he pulled out a membership blank and handed it to the actor. When he saw what it was, Blue let go with a roundhouse right, dropped the stranger to the sidewalk, who rapidly retrieved the blank, sprang to his feet and ran.

NEWSREEL TOPS GIVEN MEDALS

Washington, April 21.—Treasury silver medals for distinguished service in connection with the war finance bond drives have been awarded to the New York editors and Washington Bureau managers of the five newsreels.

In his speech of presentation secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson said in part, "the American people bought war bonds by the billions of dollars to back the attack which the newsreels pictured for them on the screens of the motion picture theatres of America, and I know all will continue to support our peacetime savings bond program." Medals went to:

News of the Day—M. D. Clofine, New York and J. C. Brown, Washington.

Paramount News—A. J. Richard, New York, and Robert H. Denton, Washington.

RKO-Pathe — Walton C. Ament, New York, and George M. Dorsey, Washington.

Movietone — Edmund Reek, New York, and Anthony Muto, Washington.

Universal News — Thomas Mead, New York, and James E. Lyons, Washington.

Zoltan Korda Buy

Zoltan Korda has purchased the Aldous Huxley yarn, "The Giaconda Smile," and will produce it independently later this year.

SCHAEFER HAS FULL EQUITY CONTROL

Arrangements have been completed between George J. Schaefer and a Wall Street house to acquire entire stock ownership of Equity Capital Corp. Arthur Greene, reported as associated with Equity, will have no participation in the management or stock ownership but may, however, participate in secondary financing of productions and residual purchases. Schaefer and his Wall Street associates will have complete control and ownership of Equity Capital Corp.

That 15G Building Order Red Taping

Washington, April 21. — New civilian production administration amendment to the building freeze order setting the studio set ceiling at $15,000, is reported drafted and going through clearance in various government offices. It is expected to be issued this week.

Three for 'Killers'

Sam Levene, character man, was added to cast of Mark Hellinger's "The Killers" over the weekend. Also reporting to Director Robert Siodmak for rehearsals for the pic this week are Jack Lambert and Jeff Corey.

Stone Quits RKO

William R. Stone resigned, over the weekend, as director of labor relations at RKO.

(Shakespearean Drama)

(Technicolor)

UNITED ARTISTS RELEASE. Producer and Director, Laurence Olivier, "in close association with" Reginald Beck, film editor. Associate producer, Dallas Bower. Based on the play by William Shakespeare. Photography, Robert Krasker. Operating cameraman, Jack Hildyard. Art direction, Paul Sheriff and Carmen Dillon. Costume design, Roger Furse and Margaret Furse. Text editor, Alan Dent. Sound, John Dennis and Desmond Dew. Music by William Walton. Played by London Symphony Orchestra. Conducted by Muir Mathieson.

PREVIEWED at Samuel Goldwyn Studios, Hollywood, Cal., April 19, 1946. Running time: 134 MINS.

The guy who used to write and produce them for the Globe would have liked it himself. That's the best critical description that could be asked for the film version of "Henry V"—but for the benefit of those who think of Shakespeare as a bit too highbrow for the general audience it may be added that the picture is top entertainment. The show was good when the citizenry of Elizabethan London jammed the pit of the Globe Theatre in 1600. Put out now in lavishness of production and splendor of color of which the original audience never dreamed it is still good for packed houses in 1946.

The picture was trade shown here with unnecessary timidity on the part of United Artists execs, who preceded the screening with the explanation that, while they were not apologizing for showing Shakespeare, the picture will be road-shown and not given general release. They needn't worry. The film has all the earmarks of good box office, regardless of any aura of scholasticism that may be associated with Shakespearean production.

Laurence Olivier can take a bow for his triple accomplishment as producer, director and star of the British-made film. Photography of Robert Krasker and Jack Hildyard exhibits new and subtle trickery in the use of Technicolor. Color and lighting are cunningly employed to heighten the drama.

Olivier has stuck closely to original text, though one brief scene—the death of Sir John Falstaff (George Robey)—has been interpolated. The picture opens with pam of Elizabethan London showing the Globe theatre and fades into the interior of the showhouse. Action of the play up to the point of Henry's embarkation of his army from Southampton for France is depicted as taking place on the stage of the Globe. From there on the story unfols in the "real" setting of the picture. This device is handled successfully to establish mood and ease audience into the period of the story.

Production also avoids detailed realism by conventionalizing many of the settings to considerable degree. Big scene, of course, is the battle of Agincourt where the English longbows and clothyard shafts wreaked havoc among the heavily armored

WALLACE MAKES GESTURE TO PIX AND GOLDEN

Washington, April 21.—Best that MPAA has worked out so far with Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace is a compromise for the Department's motion picture unit which had autonomous status until it was merged into the General Products Division with a lot of dissimilar commodities.

Beef by MPAA aided and abetted by Rep. Ellis E. Patterson of Los Angeles has resulted in Nathan D. Golden, head of the unit getting the title of special assistant to the chief of the commodities branch of the Office of World Trade.

While this lifts the film unit out of general products division it does not restore it to its former position. In a letter to Patterson on the subject Wallace wrote in part:

"During our recent reorganization of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce the motion picture unit was temporarily placed under the General Products Division. Since Mr. Golden's recent return from Europe however, he has been designated as special assistant to the chief of the commodities branch Office of World Trade Promotion. Such action we believe, increases the professional status of Mr. Golden to the point required by the importance of his duties and makes certain that the promotion of the motion picture industry will enjoy continued prominence."

Garson Laid Up For Several More Days

Greer Garson must remain hospitalized for several more days in Monterey, it was learned yesterday. The physician attending her stated that when she was brushed from a rocky ledge by a wave on Friday during filming of a sequence she received bruises and a severe back sprain which aggravated an old injury.

'Water Everywhere'

Columbia has placed "The Ancient Mariner," based on the Samuel Taylor Coleridge poem, on its production slate. Hal Smith is currently writing a screen treatment for the film which will be produced by Wallace MacDonald.

Producers William Pine and William Thomas have received official commendation from headquarters of the AAF's Air-Sea Rescue School, Kessler Field, Miss., for the production of "Seven Were Saved."

THE GRAPEVINE: Furore over "The Outlaw" advertising has the studios a little scary about three-sheeting sex. Paramount got the jim-jams over an ad a downtown theatre proposed to run in advance of "Kitty." The ad blared, " 'Kitty' had enough men for four women." Paramount execs went into a swivet and urged that the ad be "toned down." Little later they got a call back from downtown, and a bright voice inquiring, "How does this sound? 'Kitty' had enough men for three women." Blackout! . . . Cribbed from a script: Robert Cummings' line in "The Chase" is "Time tells on a woman, especially a good time!" . . . Rod Cameron gets a few hours between pix at Universal. He finishes his role in "The Runaround" on Tuesday and begins acting in "Pirates of Monterey" Wednesday . . . Gentlemen who hold a wet finger to the winds from Britain predict another sideswipe at Hollywood production. In the cards, before the year's end, is a British law forbidding the showing of double features in British cinemas. This would mean a reduction in the number of American films imported . . . French film offers are beckoning to Paulette Goddard and Burgess Meredith. They will take off for Paris soon . . . The Warners music department will have three new pupils scraping and banging away today. For their roles in "Deception," Bette Davis has to learn to make passes at a piano, Paul Henreid must have a bowing and scraping acquaintance with a cello and Claude Rains will have to pass as a pianist-composer.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Hollywood cast off its sackcloth and ashes— not that too much of it was in evidence—and celebrated Easter yesterday with everything from egg-rolling to champagne-quaffing. Peggy Ann Garner was hostess at a three-way party yesterday, celebrating Easter, a housewarming and the end of "Home Sweet Homicide." Guests at her first party in her new Bevhills home included Lon McCallister, Lynn Bari and Sid Luft, Barbara Whiting, Connie Marshall, Roddy and Virginia McDowell, Paul Weston, Skitch Henderson and others . . . Ann Baxter, given a long weekend away from "Razor's Edge" (careful with that spelling, Guttenberg!), motored to Carmel with her parents . . . Linda Darnell and Pev Marley celebrated their third wedding anniversary with a buffet dinner at their home . . . At Mocambo cavorted Herbert Marshall and Boots Mallory, Aubrey Totter and Ross Hunter, Joan Lorring and Russell Arms, Ann Blyth and Farley Granger . . . At Ciro's Lois Andrews at a table a few feet away from where David Street (whom she plastered with a cocktail and headlines a short time previously) sat with Marguerite Chapman, Ronald Reagan and Jane Wyman with Gracie Allen, Tony Martin and Ida Lupino, Joan Fontaine and a brace of admirers .

CALL SHEET: JOAN HARRISON, producing a pair at RKO, had lunch at Lucey's with Jorja Curtwright, which might mean a follow-up role for the latter's nicely-received "Whistle Stop" chore . . . HARRY JAMES goes on tour with his band when he finishes "That's for Me" at 20th, opening at Asbury Park, N.J., June 29. If possible, Betty Grable and their child Vicki will go along . . . ALBERT MANNHEIMER has signed with Broadway Producer John Wildberg to adapt "The Curtain Rises" by Ursula Parrott to the stage . . . COL. PAUL TIBBETTS, who piloted the B-29 which carried the atom bomb to Hiroshima, visited Metro over the weekend and agreed to having himself portrayed in that studio's "The Beginning or the End" . . . PAUL HENREID'S mother arrives from Vienna, via Paris and New York, May 7 . . . MAURY FOLADARE and LARRY GINSBERG wonder how long this harness-racing has been around. The pair of 'em, prize patsies during the Santa Anita season for running horses, came away winners from a return visit to the track Saturday . . . ROBERT McGOWAN and BERNARD CARR, producing "Curley" for Hal Roach, used the studio lawn for an Easter egg-hunt for 35 children playing in the film . . . MIRIAM FRANKLIN, now Mrs. Gene Nelson, who was dance director on "The Jolson Story," returned home from the hospital after an appendix operation . . . CHARLES KING, Sr., will play the father of Charles King, Jr., in PRC's "Ghost of Hidden Valley," an ironclad case of type-casting.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK. Tomorrow Shirley Temple is 18 and in the stately prose of Mr. Perry Lieber, "Little Miss Marker is burning down the little red schoolhouse and playing legal hookey for the first time." Which is Mr. Lieber's way of saying there will be a celebration of the event tomorrow afternoon on the soundstage where she's playing in "Honeymoon" . . . Everybody is dyeing these days. William Powell became a temporary redhead for "Life with Father," Jo Ann Marlowe converted from blonde to brunette for "Little Iodine," and whoever plays Midnight in "The Chase" will undergo a coal-black job . . . Arthur Kennedy has asked for and received his release from Warners, not long after leaving the A.A.F. and resuming his contract at the studio . . . One of Variety's sprightly young journalists referred to Lauren Amell as a "she" when he became OIEU prexy the other day. Wryly, Amell commented that "I've had the name for 53 years and, unless Miss Lauren Bacall is not telling the truth about her age, I had it first" . . . George Korvin's wife, Helena, watched her actor-husband knock off a love scene with Merle Oberon for International's "Bella Donna." She shook her head and remarked, "I met George at the Stage Door Canteen in New York. I heard he was the biggest wolf in town. I can tell you now he is just a sheep in wolf's clothing" . . . Leslie Charteris, nominating himself as "a mine of misinformation" and the "world's worst commentator," is coming out with a weekly letter which will give the lowdown on everything "from dunking doughnuts to DDT." The last has nothing to do with this daily offering before your eyes . . . Pat O'Brien and Spencer Tracy were dining at the Bevhills Club the other night. Every minute or two Pat got up to greet a friend and Spence began to get the jitters. To the next comer Spence murmered, "What am I bid for this rare old Hibernian 'Hi'-boy?"——D.D.T.

'BAD ANGEL' GOOD OFFERING FOR SUMMER FARE

Based on a similar theme to "The Bad Man," this Victor Clement-Francis Swann farce is good lightweight summer fare for any commercial house, provided spots in the first and third acts are tightened up. Picture possibilities seem likely and are enhanced by the presence of Reginald Owen, Hugo Haas and Cully Richards in the top roles of the Phoenix theatre production.

Story concerns a couple of scalawags who connive their way into a "respectable" home in southern California. Turns out the home is run by a swindling politician, his adulteress wife and graceless son. The con artists, Hugo Haas and Cully Richards, steal from the rich, give to the poor, blackmail themselves out of a possible jugging and make off with $200 and a district attorney's car.

Dorothy Mathews, Christine Gordon and Donald Curtis do okay by their parts that call for them to be foils. However, juveniles Paul Lees, Richard Webb, Jean Ruth and Donald Davis are in need of considerably more experience.

Samuel Rosen's direction permitted lags. Rudi Feld's setting was brilliant.

Charles Vidor Files Suit Against Col

Charles Vidor filed suit in federal court, over the weekend, seeking termination of his directorial contract with Columbia. Major item in director's complaint was the allegation that an officer of the company had "addressed him with obscene and abusive language." Vidor was signed to a term ticket by Columbia on June 11, 1944.

'Tobacco Road' Billed

"Tobacco Road" will bow into the Mayan May 21 under the production aegis of Louis O. Macloon. John Barton has the top role of Jeeter Lester in the hardy perennial.

Postponement, No. 5

Al Jarvis suit against Warners and KFWB has been continued until May 6. Marks fifth time suit has been postponed while opposing sides seek out of court settlement.

AFRA TOPPERS GO EAST FOR SESSION

Trio of American Federation of Radio Artists toppers leave tomorrow for national board meeting in Chicago. Traveling are George Heller, AFRA national prexy, Ray Jones, head of Chicago group, and Claude McCue, local exec secretary of AFRA. They leave Chicago for New York Sunday to open series of meetings there on reorganization of union.

Meetings were called following resignation of Emily Holt, long-time president of AFRA. Heller was temporarily appointed to replace her, and immediately called meetings to settle union's factional disputes. He and Jones have been in Hollywood since Friday (19). Outcome of meeting here points to appointment of Jones as executive assistant to Heller.

New York, April 21.—After a day of haggling, musicians unions and producer reps were unable to agree on anything pertaining to film wage problems. Opposing sides sat on coin situation and put matter over until Monday when unable to get together.

Union seeks 100 per cent increase that would up present guaranteed minimum from $5,200 annually to $10,400. Also asks that wages be payable weekly, insuring musicians of steady income.

Selznick Estate Sues Gail Russell for $2500

Estate of Myron Selznick filed suit over the weekend, to collect $2500 loaned Gail Russell to become an agency client. Complaint explains that the acertss was signed to a contract in 1945 when she was 19 years of age. Upon coming of age this year Miss Russell revoked the contract, the agency charges. The complaint avers that actress repaid $500 on the loan but is still indebted $2,500.

TONY MARTIN IN SWEET TWEET FOR PERFUME

CBS added another jewel to its musical crown and the crop of sentimental singers has a new threat to worry about in the Easter-eve debut of Tony Mortain for Bourjois. Half way through his first number, "Oh, What It Seemed To Be," the evidence began to assert itself that here is the top romantic singer of them all and let the accent fall hard on the romantic.

One of the better tweeters before he went off to the wars, Martin was in high form on the opener and is singing better today than he ever did, which indeed is not faint praise. Warm and robust, his voice has the flexibility to allow for those little tricks that tantalize the femmes. And what else is Bourjois paying him for? When not singing he's emceeing which makes it pretty much of a Tony Martin show, with the title, "Listen To a Love Song," also slanted his way. There was a lightness and bounce to the script cooked up by Milton Geiger and he managed the reading with an easy lilt and sway.

On the breaking of the Bourjois package, Martin took two songs, handed his guestar, Lena Horne, a pair and let Al Sack and his crew make music the rest of the way. Horne lent her quavery, throaty voice to ditties styled to her beat and Sack's arrangements seemed overemphasized in his specialty spots. There was evidence of trying too hard to be distinctive. Their back-up of the singers and mixed ensemble was skilled and glossy. Arnold Maguire's direction held to an even and spirited pace.

The trade boys will tell you that a musical show at that hour on Saturday (from here at 4:30) won't cut much of a Hooper figure. Two weeks hence there'll be a coast repeat following "Hit Parade." This reviewer is bucking the tide of sentiment with the prediction that the show will get a rating and a good one once the word gets around at sales counters and in office buildings. Yes, even the bobby soxers may desert Frankie for this new idol.

Astor with a gross of upwards of $65,000. House yesterday had greatest Saturday in its history with take of $11,200.

At the Paramount "The Virginian," with Eddie Bracken, Johnny Long ork and Bob Eberle on stage is doing splendidly and this first week looks like $100,000. "Make Mine Music" opened yesterday at Globe and initial day was exceptionally strong, with more than $9000. "From This Day Forward" at the Palace and "Yank in London," at Victoria, both Friday openers suffering from the crushing competition aligned against them. Among the holdovers "Green Years" is terrific at Music Hall, where an Easter spectacle is on stage and management anticipates around $145,000 on week, film's third stanza. The Hall opened at 7:30 yesterday morning playing five stage shows. This schedule will continue all during this week.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

Toughened attitude of the major networks, especially NBC, on the quality of summer replacement programs should have a profound effect on the type of entertainment to pour out of your sets in the dog days to come. NBC's program chief, Clarence Menser, has served notice on clients and agencies that just any old show won't do and unless the substitute meets with his approval network time will be withheld. That's putting it strong but NBC justifies its stringent action on the ground that the quality of its programming must be maintained the year around. One agency radio director was set back on his heels when Menser wanted to know how come a summer show was bought before he was consulted. The trade practice has been to buy a cheap show for the summer and let it go at that but NBC reversed that order and if it means better shows the network can hardly be criticized. The public is quick to catch on which may account for the low ratings in straw hat season.

Walgreen Drug will pour more than $50,000 into an hour recording to be spot-booked in towns where the chain has stores in observance of their 45th anni. Bought for the waxing at their established fees are Bob Hope, Frank Morgan, Ginny Simms, Rochester, Dennis Day, Vera Vague, Andrews Sisters, Eddie Duchin, Harry Von Zell and Ray Noble's orchestra. Platter will be cut next Sunday at CBS Vine St. theatre with Ted MacMurray producing from the script by Mannie Manheim and Charles Isaacs. If this isn't the most expensive disc ever made it'll have to do until you can top it.

Chain breaks . . . Victor Borge and Benny Goodman team up next fall for Socony-Vacuum as replacement for "Info Please." Goodman takes the summer stanza and joins up with Borge in the autumn . . . Bill Spier is running into difficulties in appropriating the title of "Suspense" for his indie picture setup. CBS owns the rights and Charles Vanda, who originated the series, may have to be reckoned with . . . Chester MacCracken, radio head of Doherty, Clifford & Shenfield, due in tomorrow to set a summer replacement for Alan Young . . . Tom Harrington and Austin Peterson en route east with the Dennis Day record. "Pete" remains in N.Y. for three weeks . . . John Lund's leave-taking of the Bob Crosby show was not without its lighter moment. After Crosby had intro'd a number by Oscar Hammerstein "the 11th," Lund flipped, in parting, "Remember me to Hammerstein the 11th" . . . Freddy Martel, who helped fill the summer spot for Eddie Cantor last year, will be back on the program Wednesday as the voice of John Steele in a Ziegfeld cavalcade . . . Writing team of Ray Singer and Dick Chevillat has been renewed for another year with Sealtest, their sixth. They'll take off for a month in the summer with Jack Haley and Producer Bob Redd . . . "Life of Riley" has been renewed for next season, weeks in advance of the option date . . . Harness nag named Dick Mack won the other day and paid $7.60 but his namesake didn't even have a sentimental bet riding . . . Groucho Marx will keep the Birdseye spot frozen Thursday while Dinah Shore listens at home . . . Gil Ralston east after passing a week with Jim Wright on Procter & Gamble biz . . . Due to the soap shortage, Lever Bros. may let CBS fill for Joan Davis this summer . . . Stanley-Kramer agency will cut a record at ABC starring Julie Styne and Sammy Kahn, songwriters, in an audience participation program called "It Pays to Rhyme." Contestants will be asked to fill in lyrics while on stage. Is it that easy?

Gay bit of hossplay to lighten the gloom of a closed-out show was injected into last night's finale of "Request Performance" by writers Bobby Lee and Jerry Lawrence. Honorable discharges were passed out to the cast and production crew under the heading of "Campbell's Chicken Noodle Soup." The synthetic parchment carried the following record:

Citations: Awarded the purple Hooper. Awarded the Mmmmm good conduct medal.

Wounds: Severe cut received in the middle of the second commercial. Lacerations from small fire by Oscar Levant.

Battles: The Veronica Lake bleach-head, the Judy Canova salient, the second battle of the Laughton Bulge.

Official seal is a replica of Campbell's Cream of Arthur Lyons Soup.

Lee and Lawrence, who pulled down a mere $3,000 weekly for their scripting chores, are by-passing radio for a time to write a play. However, this may be stalled if William Morris is successful in selling "The Atom Story" with Orson Welles as narrator. Lee and Lawrence are included in the package as writers and directors. Morris office has effected the tieup with Federation of American Scientists whereby data on the A-bomb will be made available as well as its members for guest shots. It is being peddled around the agencies as the official story of the atom bomb.

Hitch hikes . . . After 17 years of filling spots and backing up singers, the King's Men finally landed their own program and start May 10 for Almond Roca confections on NBC's Coast web. They'll fill the 15 minutes with their blended voices, they being Ken Darby, Grafton Linn, Jon Dodson and Rad Robinson . . . Abbott and Costello shift east for broadcasts of May 23-30 . . . Nancy Holme, director of education, and Peter Robeck, farm reporter, will represent KNX at Institute for Education by Radio at Columbus, O., May 3 to 6 . . . What purty, young singer doesn't use her real name which is Fanny Butts? . . . Irna Phillips won a decision over NBC's Clarence Menser by getting American Medical Ass'n to okay her campaign against the use of common drugs in her daytime serial, "The Guiding Light." of building for Sturges and his staff. Deal gives California the right to lease out lower floor, if it desires.

Although no commitment has been made for stage space, it is reported that an understanding to this effect exists, if shooting schedule of "Colomba," company's next picture, can be conveniently juggled to fit in with 20th-Fox's slate, film will be made there.

United Artists, which will release "Colomba" as second of California's two-picture deal, has granted company an extension on delivery of film, so picture may well be shot there. Original date called for feature to be turned over to distribution company by December 1.

California, after completing its second film for UA, has no releasing commitments. Sturges is reported to have a handshake agreement with Darryl Zanuck to direct a picture for company, as a result of 20th-Fox lending him Henry Fonda for "The Lady Eve" several years ago. While this has no direct bearing upon his present setup with California, he may adhere to this understanding by having his company make a picture for 20th-Fox release.

BARKLEY PRAISES THEATRES FOR WAR WORK

New York April 21. — American Theatre Association has received the backing of the Senate majority leader, Alben Barkley, Kentucky, who in extensive remarks in the Senate, called the organization of "tremendous value" in social and educational potentialities.

During the war, with the exception of banks, theatres sold more government bonds than any other group, Barkley said in recognizing these contributions. The Senator added, "President Truman indicated his interest in eliciting the continuing cooperation of the theatres during the reconversion period."

Seeking to clear up misunderstandings that have developed concerning aims of ATA, Si Fabian, prexy, has issued a statement declaring "it is not within the objectives of this organization to seek to disparage or replace any existing exhibitor organizations."

Despite specialized interests of many exhib organizations, Fabian said these interests do not "preclude such organizations from moving into a friendly affiliation with the ATA for consultation and joint action on matters in which all exhibitors are interested.

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The news on the Emergency Food Collection beginning 12 May is a prime instance of the importance of leadership, and one more example of the slow way in which democratic giants work. Those who have seen and known Europe and the Orient at first hand, not sketchily and from a distance, have known since before the end of the war that the war ravaged world, with its transport wrecked by bombs and shells, its agricultural and industrial economy wrecked, and a succession of historic crop failures, would face the threat of famine and pestilence this year. The people here have been aware of it, but were not impressed to action, nor did they know how, in numbers, to act effectively. But now finally, when the crisis is at hand, leaders spring up, a plan is worked out, and the world in the United States, Great Britain, and even in the Argentine and in Russia, in Canada, Australia and Latin America, will meet this emergency as it did the war. Late and after great losses, but surely, and with a wholeheartedness that restores faith in men, we respond to the call that comes especially from those who are the first struck down by want, the very young and very old.

Arthur Debra Here For Coast Checkup

KING COLE TRIO IS RUSHING WAX

Capitol Records currently is having King Cole Trio churning out discs as frequently as combo is able. Withing this week 12 sides of platters have been polish off, plus more than 50 song-renditions, which will be threaded together into transcription series. It is greatest concentration a major waxery has ever given single group within short span of time in Coast disc history.

Provocation of hustle is closing of Cole at Trocadero on May 6, following which he'll do week at Orpheum and then head east for indeterminate, but long stretch of time. Capitol wanted to get as great a backlog of combo's recordings, especially transcriptions, as it could. The high-geared pace will continue right up to the Troc exit of group.

schedule the peace within the next few days.

Bids for open negotiation meetings with the producers was made Friday by Herbert K. Sorrell, Conference prexy, in a wire to Tutt. Sorrell asked that sessions, if resumed, be thrown open to the press and radio so unbiased reporting can be had on what takes place. Sorrell believes such "fish-bowl" negotiations will prevent contradictory statements by either side and avoid "misrepresentation" charges made by producers against CSU to the international presidents.

In replying to ultimatum issued to CSU by a group of Hollywood unions, Sorrell declared the Conference is acting to overcome the same problems as the other group. He also reiterated CSU's willingness to settle difficulties without a strike. Statement declared:

"Six CSU unions have voted to strike if that is what is necessary to secure contracts and fair wages, but we prefer and are ready to settle all problems through negotiation and arbitration. We will never strike for anything that cannot be won by honest arbitration."

It happened on NBC

In the Beginning . . .

OCTOBER 7, 1941

"Red Skelton and Company" made its debut on NBC under the sponsorship of the Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corporation, selling Raleigh Cigarettes. Red leaped to immediate fame among NBC's top comedians.

JANUARY, 1943

Red won his all-time peak Hooper rating of 40.7 (exclusive of Eastern area). By this time he was also famous as a motion picture star, appearing in many Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer productions.*

* On the present basis of computed ratings in the Eastern Time Zone, this is equal to a 32.4 rating.

▶ Red Skelton's heritage of humor is rich. His father, who died before Red was born, was a famous Hagenbeck and Wallace circus clown. His mother, too, was in show business. When he was ten years old, Red joined a medicine show at $1.00 a week. The next few years were spent with wandering stock companies and minstrel shows. At fourteen, Red was playing on a showboat, up and down the Ohio and Mississippi. Then came a period of clowning with the circus that remembered his father a generation before. At sixteen, Red won new fame as the nation's youngest burlesque comedian. A veteran with ten years of hard knocks and experience behind him, Red was 23 when he was first heard on NBC—on the Rudy Vallee show in 1936.

If Mark Twain and Horatio Alger had ever collaborated in writing a book they might easily have produced

AMERICA'S NO. 1 NETWORK

The Story of Red Skelton) NO. 11 OF A SERIES

Later . . .

JUNE, 1944

Like many other radio favorites, Red was inducted into the Army. Already he had played more than one thousand military engagements. During his eighteen months in the Army, Red worked ceaselessly—entertaining troops in Africa and Italy.

DECEMBER, 1945

After being hospitalized because of overwork, Red was honorably discharged from the Army. He returned to NBC in his present series with the same sponsor, same product, and same Tuesday night time. His millions of loyal listeners welcomed him back with a 24.8 Hooper rating—the highest first-time Hooper rating ever recorded. This immediately put him in third place among all Hooper-rated programs.

a best-seller that would parallel the real life story of Red Skelton. Red's Clem Kadiddlehopper, Willie Lump Lump and Junior, the "mean widdle kid," bring to modern radio a rich, earthy fun that stems directly from those earlier and typically American institutions, the minstrel and medicine shows, the showboat and the circus.

Red's most famous line, "I dood it," was the slogan of many an American fighting unit during the war. General Doolittle's Tokyo raid was headlined by an American newspaper: "Doolittle Dood It."

To reach maturity, the native American talent of Red Skelton required the greatest and widest possible American audience. It found just that on NBC, with its superlative facilities, its vast listening audience, and the friendly association of other great shows heard on NBC.

ARA Will Sell Its Discs by Distribs

ARA shortly will disband its national sales organization and revert to using distribs. Pop-plattery has been operating own sales offices in eight key cities across country and is reported to have spent nearly $100,000 in building up the system. With ARA adopting the distrib setup only two recording forms, Capitol and Decca, will continue to market through own regional sales offices.

Mumps Stops Waxing

Dinning Sisters, vocal trio, forced to cancel waxing sessions over weekend at Capitol Records due to Ginger Dinning coming down with severe case of mumps. However it was thought last night that she would be able to plane out with act on Thursday for Minneapolis and work three-week stand in Radison hotel nitery, starting Friday.

Night Club Review

CIRO'S

Joe E. Lewis returned to Ciro's Friday night with a turnout of Hollywood Blue Book to welcome him back. Nitery was jammed to the rafters with SRO customers who heard the comedian deliver plenty of new material interlaced with the old routines that get calls from the audience. Lewis still sells the same type of drollery that races from off-hand asides to neatly scripted take-offs on everything from the government down to Lewis' own misfortunes at the track. Comedian was kept on the stand for an hour and five minutes, delivering all the time. He finally had to beg off from the applause with a sign of going bad in the pipes. Garwood Van's musicrew showed definite improvement over two weeks, with the piano player backing up Lewis and doing smart chores on the society brand music.

PIC TUNERS ASK CUT OF ASCAP

The Screen Composers' Association, recently formed group of 94 film scorers, came out in the open yesterday with two objectives which basically are the reasons for formation of unit. Primarily, bigger cut from picture theatre revenue derived by ASCAP, is sought. Secondly, cleffers want to control rights, other than film, of

Tom Baily Handed Plaque for War Work

Tom W. Baily, coordinator of Hollywood division of War Activities Committee during war, yesterday received large bronze plaque from the war agencies of the government for his services during four years following Pearl Harbor. Plaque was cast from same die as its original, which government presented to motion picture industry last December, and bears expressions of appreciation from Secretaries Vinson, Forrestal and Patterson.

'Homicide' Beats Gun

"Home, Sweet Homicide" was brought in week ahead of schedule by Director Lloyd Bacon, breaking all 20th-Fox records. Picture, produced by Louis Lighton, was completed last Saturday.

CHAPLIN PIC TOO BIG FOR HIS LOT

Charlie Chaplin is dickering for stage space at several rental studios, for his "Comedy of Murders," slated to roll June 4. Facilities at his own studio are not large enough to accommodate the 52 sets his picture calls for, and it is probable at least half the film will be shot off his own lot. Chaplain doesn't anticipate any particular difficulty in arranging for space, since he can trade shooting time on his own stages.

Hughes Sues MPAA For $5,000,000, Quits Body

Howard Hughes yesterday filed $5,000,000 damage suit against the Motion Picture Association of America in the U.S. District Court in New York and resigned from the organization because of its interference with "The Outlaw" and delaying the picture's release. In as strong a statement as has yet been issued against the industry's self-regulation body, Hughes charged MPAA is "a group boycott, in restraint of trade, and in absolute violation of the anti-trust laws of this country—the Sherman and Clayton Acts."

INJUNCTION ASKED

Suit, which asks an injunction against further MPAA interference with "The Outlaw" came on the eve of hearing the organization had scheduled to try Hughes on charges of using disapproved advertising copy in exploiting the picture. Hughes will not attend the meeting slated for today in New York.

Producer's statement concerning his long fight for freedom to show his film as produced follows:

"I think the public should have the true story of my present dispute

Spingold and Montague At Col for 2 Weeks

Nate Spingold, Columbia advertising and publicity head, and Abe Montague, general sales manager, checked into the studio yesterday from east for two-weeks huddle with Harry Cohn on company sales matters.

COL BIDS FOR VALLEY LOT

Columbia yesterday was understood to be dickering for a 40 acre studio site in the valley. Property is located at intersection of Moorpark and Whitsett and owned by Mrs. A. P. De Laiqua. Construction of a studio on the tract would involve rezoning. Price mentioned in connection with proposed deal was reported as $5000 an acre.

Scott in London for 'Well Remembered'

Adrian Scott has arrived in London and will huddle immediately with Robert Donat on star role for "So Well Remembered," which Scott will produce in British studios for RKO.

Gracie Fields Returning

Gracie Fields and her husband, Monty Banks, will arrive in New York from Italy on May 1. Pair have been gone from Hollywood since May, 1945, on a world-wide junket entertaining allied troops.

United World Will Give British Stars Big Bally

New York, April 22.—United World Pictures will shortly launch an intensive publicity-advertising campaign in this country for British performers, it was disclosed today by prexy Matty Fox on his return from the J. Arthur Rank international film convention in London. Development is seen as a major effort to build-up Rank players to stature of American stars.

Company is planning on a heavy outlay of coin on the campaign during the next eight months, preceding UWP's initial release of the British films.

"A major problem of distrbution of Britsh product in this country," Fox stated, "is the indifference of Americans to British players. United World

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

PRESS conference called by newly formed Screen Composers' Association yesterday proved almost interminable due to dailies' reporters' apparent unfamiliarity with American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Max Steiner, Adolph Deutsch, Leo Erdody and Robert Emmett Dolan among others were hindered in explaining SCA's objectives when forced to bat back a never-ceasing barrage of questions concerning ASCAP, with the oft-repeated refrain being "Yes, but just what is ASCAP?" Association's counsel, Len Zissu, several times took the floor and explained at length, even producing a three-page paper explaining Society's royalty payments and means by which they are predicated. Some of the reporters glanced through sheets and went back to same old refrain. Chiefly, they seemed impressed by amount annually collected by the Society. One seemed astonished to learn it has been in being since Victor Herbert's day and he had never heard of it. By the way, just what is ASCAP?

MUSIC pubs will be cheered by news that the coast-to-coast chain of Kress five-and-dime stores shortly will reinstate sheet-music depts. Nine years ago chain tossed music out of its emporia in disgust after getting involved in numerous price-slashing wars with competitors. Late last year many store managers and regional chiefs petitioned top execs to restore sheet-music, but suggestion was nixed. Pressure was maintained, however, and recently all managers in country were polled and the decision accepted. First stores to add sheet copies will be those on Coast, with space now being cleared to accommodate racks and piano. Kress thus will be only nationwide five-and-ten giant to sell sheet copies, although several decades ago all did and their total sales loomed mighty to the music trade.

CURRENT issue of Overture, organ of musicians union (Local 47), carries all time high list of suspended name leaders. Among suspended are Victor Borge, Hoagy Carmichael, Ted Fio Rito, Werner Janssen, Isham Jones, Leon Navarra, Jan Rubini, Frank Sanucci, Nathaniel Shilkret and Ted Straeter. Usual reason for suspension is non-payment of dues. Suspension follows when members are three months in arrears. Technically, suspended men are not permitted to work, however rule is not strictly adhered to since infraction of rules is considered to be only slip that is usually rectified.

WHEN musicians union moves into its new Vine Street building it will do so under new name of Musicians Association of Los Angeles. Present tag, Musicians Mutual Protective Association, has long been regarded as obsolete. Union would like to drop it but is awaiting the day of overall fresh start. Old building on South Georgia St. has been sold and is now in escrow. However, name of buyer is not being disclosed due to his present location and inability to move until the cleffers vacate. Likely to be some time now under new construction restrictions.

SAN FRANCISCO police edict on "The Outlaw" advertising for its opening today at the United Artists theatre had exploiteers scurrying for new copy. Police are understood to have served notice that ads be changed or picture would not be permitted to open. Three years ago when film teed off on a roadshow run in the bay city, it ran into censorship trouble over ad copy and billboards and guardians of public morals want no duplication of squawks from minority factions during new engagement.

RUMOR circulating anent peeve between Don Fedderson, manager of KLAC, and Al Jarvis, was scotched yesterday with return of Fedderson from San Francisco. Story was that station resented time off Jarvis has taken since joining five weeks ago, possibly weakening his disc marathon. Fedderson states he told Jarvis to take off because he was working too hard, and that Jarvis has been completely successful and the station is very happy with the entire setup.

PIC TUNERS ASK ASCAP COIN

scores they affix to reelage.

At a meeting of officers and board of composers association it was flatly asserted that all members, in signing future film deals, would ask stipulation in pacts that publication rights to their screen scores revert to composers in event studios' subsid music pub houses do not want to issue scores in sheet form. Cleffers feel that a lot of good stuff they might market is gathering dust on studios shelves because scores automatically are property of producers for whom they are written.

A pitch is being made to ASCAP, pointing out how little scorers get from the approximately $1,250,000 royalties paid Society yearly by film houses. Among Association members, only 36 are ASCAP members, almost all in lower classifications; 40 have had bids for membership nixed. A vet scorer like Max Steiner is in Class C, getting about $700 annually from ASCAP, chiefly for pop songs written years back. Steiner has scored total of 187 feature films. A vet scorer like Robert Emmett Dolan has been unable to get into Society.

Association has no members of the strictly pop song-writing set, and list includes just about all known scorers now active. Steiner is prez, Adolph Deutsch, veepee; Roy Webb, treasurer; Ed Plumb, secretary. Board includes Daniel Amfitheatrof, Leo Erdody, Werner Heymann, Edward B. Powell, Franz Waxman, Dave Buttolph, Robert Emmett Dolan, Leigh Harline, Arthur Lange, Victor Young, Herbert Stothart.

GENERAL SERVICE REORG TOLD BY BEN BOGEAUS

In a far reaching move, Benedict Bogeaus yesterday disclosed details of the reorganization of General Service Corporation, current corporate set-up owning General Service Studios and parent company of various Bogeaus producing units.

Formation of General Service Studios, Inc., is the initial step in the new reorganization. The new corporation takes over all the assets—land, buildings and equipment—of General Service Studios. C. J. Tevlin has been named prexy of the set-up, which will continue to operate the rental studio for indie producers releasing through United Artists. Samuel Weisenthal will function as secretary and Lewis E. Pennish as treasurer. Outfit will operate independently of any Bogeaus producing activities.

$1,000,000 ASSETS

General Service Corporation will operate solely as the parent Bogeaus production company, headed up by the producer himself as prexy, Tevlin as veepee, and Weisenthal as treasurer. Producer disclosed current assets "in excess of $1,000,000" for his loner set-up.

The indie unit will maintain an expanded permanent production staff with Bogeaus, relieved of all rental problems of the lot, devoting himself to production on a full-time basis. Bogeaus declared that negotiations for a full financing format for all his projected productions has been consummated with the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles.

HARRIMAN TOPS PROD

Carley Harriman takes over the reins of production manager in the new producing set-up with Arthur Landau heading up the talent and casting departments. Carl Leserman is in charge of world-wide distribution of the unit's product and A. M. Botsford will operate as liaison between Bogeaus and the various departments.

Most recent Bogeaus release is the "Diary Of A Chambermaid." Producer has just completed "Mr. Ace," George Raft-Sylvia Sidney co-starrer. Currently before the cameras is "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber," starring Gregory Peck, Joan Bennett and Robert Preston. Casey Robinson, who is co-producer on the latter production, also will team up with Bogeaus in producing "The Life and Loves of Anna Pavlova," which rolls late in May.

Paul Jones NYing On 'Dear Ruth' Plans

Paul Jones arrives in New York tomorrow for confabs with Arthur Sheekman, already there, on script of "Dear Ruth," Norman Krasna play which Jones will produce for Paramount. Picture will follow "Where There's Life," Bob Hope starrer, now winding up production.

'Dragonwyck' With 71G Sets Pace For 365G Week

Local first run box office picture is bright this week, theatres shooting for hefty $365,000 overall total. Sparking business is solid $71,500 prospect on the week held out by "Dragonwyck" at the Loew State, Chinese and Uptown and "Devotion's" good $62,000 in three Warner houses. There was no noticeable dip in majority of houses over Good Friday and business was big over Saturday-Sunday.

Second frame of "Ziegfeld Follies of 1946" at the Los Angeles, Egyptian and Ritz closed last night with fancy $67,000 estimate. Third week of "The Outlaw" in the four Music Halls continues big at $52,000 outlook. "Road to Utopia" makes way for "Kitty" at the two Paramounts Thursday after five weeks and is bringing in estimated $30,000 for final frame. "Tomorrow Is Forever" closes an eight-day third frame at the Hillstreet and Pantages with likely $29,500 and "Gilda" comes into the two day-daters Friday for a run.

"Enchanted Forest" and "Johnny Comes Flying Home" finished a three-day second week at the Guild, United Artists and Wilshire last night with approximately $11,000. "Tangier" and "Man in Grey" bow in at the three spots today. "Seventh Veil" continues potent at the Carthay Circle, its sixth week looking like solid $8,000 or near.

"Black Market Babies" and "Fear" at the Vogue and Million Dollar are light at estimated $11,000 on single week.

Hamilburg Will Open NY Office

Mitchell J. Hamilburg, agency topper, left yesterday for New York to open company's new branch office there. MUSICIANS' UNION PUSHES SUBSIDY

General membership of the Musicians Union yesterday passed resolution to speed application for state and municipal subsidies of music. Board must now name committee to study plan. Idea was proposed by independent Union Activities Committee, which reportedly drummed up union's first quorum in nearly a year in effort to push their idea. Likely that Board will now toss the potato right back to the proponents by naming committee from among them.

'One Man's Family' Will Be Modernized

The story of "One Man's Family," which was started by Carlton E. Morse fourteen years ago, and dealt with events in World War I, is to be modernized for its film production by Cinema Century Productions to the extent that its time will be laid after World War II, bringing it up to date without in any way changing the characters or the general tenor of the original idea.

Fate of State Fair Up to May 3 Meet

Sacramento, April 22.—Whether California State Fair will be held here as scheduled Aug. 29 to Sept. 9 will be decided at a special meeting of the fair directorate May 3. Governor Earl Warren told directors he does not want the fair held if it will deprive veterans' housing program of either labor or material.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The Russian decision to talk business on commercial air transport after all, is good news. That can mean that American planes will fly into the Soviet and that Russian ones will land here. That may not be opening up the Soviet very much, with most of the view from thousands of feet up, but it's a start, indicates some breaking down of Russian suspicions . . . The Spanish are taking steps to see that the Germans within their midst do not take advantage of the hospitality. The Spanish foreign office has issued an order forbidding 330 named German concerns in Spain from engaging in capital transactions without prior government permission. This is to prevent them from transferring capital to Spanish nationals, while retaining invisible control. Among the companies listed are ten industrial and chemical plants in Bilbao, where the Poles and Russians say German technicians have been working on atomic energy control. More notorious on the list are the Liseau machine tool works and the Siemens Electrical Company, both of which flew the Nazi flag during the war. Of these companies, the Allied joint control commission now has absolute control of 22, and representatives on the board of 40 others.

Green, lyrics by Frank Eyton, Edward Heyman and Robert Sour.

CAST—Dane Clark, Janis Paige, Zachary Scott, Faye Emerson, George Tobias, Howard Smith, Harry Lewis, Sheldon Leonard.

TRADESHOWN at Warners Beverly, Beverly Hills, Cal., April 17, 1946. Running time: 81 MINS.

"Her Kind of Man" is de luxe gangster story of the prohibition era, opulently mounted and showing a suave, tough guy being suave and tough against backgrounds ranging from water-front shack hide-out to swank night club and gambling casino. The action is spread a bit thin through a portion of the picture, but there are thrills enough to compensate. Love interest is sufficiently hot to hold femmes of the audience and show classes as fair grade entertainment.

Dane Clark takes top acting honors in the role of a Broadway columnist, hopelessly enamoured of Janis Paige who finds "her kind of man" in Zachary Scott, the heel lead of the piece. Scott comes through successfully in the stiff assignment of holding audience interest in an unsympathetic role. Miss Paige is a triple-threat performer in voice, looks and acting, making the romance convincing and putting plenty of oomph in the three song numbers that fall to her lot in the role of cabaret canary.

Harry Lewis is good in the role of candy-chewing, baby-faced gunman, who attaches himself to Scott as bodyguard, and finally betrays him when Scott, in his arrogance, slaps him around once too often.

Faye Emerson is adequate as Scott's sister and wife of genial night club owner (George Tobias), who turns plenty tough himself and goes gunning for revenge when Scott unintentionally shoots Miss Emerson during a raid on his new night club and gambling casino. Sheldon Leonard gets over well as Bender, whom Scott, early in the story, first cleans in a crap game and then shoots in self defense in the resulting quarrel. The police, incidentally, are not in on the self defense angle and Scott goes through the rest of the yarn as a murder suspect, among other things. Which gives Howard Smith a chance for a bit of effective drama as Detective Bill Fellows.

Production by Alex Gottlieb is tops for this class of picture. Frederick de Cordova's direction keeps the story marching, points up the drama and is a strong factor in maintaining suspense. Screenplay by Gordon Kahn and Leopold Atlas is generally good craftsmanship.

Toscanini Honored

Arturo Toscanini voted honorary life membership in Local 47, Musicians union. Conductor is now leaving for Milan, Italy, working on revival of historic La Scala Opera.

LEGIT 'LAURA' IN LINE FOR BIG ROAD TAKE

Wilmington, Del., April 22.—It is unfortunate that the stage version of "Laura" follows the film version as it will hurt boxoffice chances. However, it should clean up on the road through its three-star draw and word of mouth concerning the production's excellence. Hunt Stromberg, Jr., shot the works on this one and the result is good entertainment. Not much suspense for those who saw the movie or read the book but for those seeing it the first time, it offers smart, sophisticated whodunit fare.

Miriam Hopkins, Otto Kruger and Tom Neal play the roles created by Gene Tierney, Clifton Webb and Dana Andrews in the film. Comparisons are out of order considering the differences in medium. Kruger takes top honors as the suave, deliberately insulting writer and epigram-coiner who is Laura's "best friend." Miriam Hopkins is right at home in her semi-siren role. Her wardrobe by Valentina is a treat for femmes' eyes. Neal makes a good impression as the detective and handles lines well.

Best supporting chore is Mary Ashland as the maid. It's a meaty role good for laughs every appearance. Thomas Walsh, Walter Coy and Roger Clark all play in character in bit roles. Michael Gordon's direction is excellent. Stewart Chaney's setting of the modernistic apartment is outstanding. All in all, the producer would be wise to keep the show on tour.

'Bigger Than Barnum' Smaller Than A Hit

Boston, April 22.—"Bigger Than Barnum," authored and produced by Fred Rath and Lee Sands, opened at Wilbur tonight with Benny Baker and Chili Williams featured and seemed destined for quick limbo. Show hasn't a Broadway chance. Farce concerns couple of con men who set up carnival show with a whitewashed elephant and consists largely of people rushing around. Chili Williams provides chief diversion, others being hampered by not having curves to go with their lines. Baker and Sid Melton, as his partner, work hard but unavailingly.

Taplinger Peddling 'Comic Strip' Play

Robert Taplinger, Walter Wanger productions veepee, is currently negotiating with two studios on his story property, "Comic Strip Murder," a play by Fred Methoe.

' JUST FOR VARIETY '

THE GRAPEVINE: Would-be film actors are herewith offered a bit of advice. If you want to break into pictures, rescue a damsel in distress, particularly if she's a film star. The young fisherman who rescued Greer Garson from the briny on location for "A Woman of My Own" has been offered a contract by Metro. He can be an actor unless he likes fishing better. Catch is, according to word received by the studio, he has a contract to catch salmon off the Bering straits . . . The tide may be going out on historical romances with an infusion of sex capers, but "Duchess Hotspur," written by Rosamond Marshall, who wrote "Kitty," is making the studio story dept. rounds. It's another investigation of British boudoirs in the 16th century . . . Carlton Alsop and Sylvia Sidney have been a steady twosome at the Beverly Hills Club . . . Helmut Dantine is scheduled to arrive from Vienna next month. He's bringing his mother . . . Spike Jones, Donald O'Connor and Sabu are backing a San Fernando Valley sports center . . . RKO will erect a metal tablet bearing the names of all its employes who served in the armed forces. Gold Stars will identify those who died in service . . . Gracie Fields and Monty Banks plane from Rome to New York April 30. They'll spend a month in NY before returning to Hollywood . . . It probably won't cause a ripple in the smoked-filled hotel rooms of political conclaves, but Encino is electing a mayor again. Tom Breneman is standing for re-election against Mickey Rooney, Jim Jordan, Carmen Cavallaro and Phil Harris. The Encino politicians use press agents instead of ward-heelers and gags in place of oratory.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Edmund Goulding had been looking for a woman to play a French peasant in "The Razor's Edge" until yesterday. The director, at lunch in the 20th commissary, looked up from his plate and saw Louise Deaton, veteran waitress in the Cafe de Paris. A glint came in his eye. And a few hours later Louise was signed for the role—with lines and everything . . . John Dall is dividing his time between Sonja Henie and Jane Withers . . . Steve Hannegan took off for NY after having dinner with Ann Sheridan at Romanoff's . . . Fritz Lang, Eve Arden and her husband, George Bergen, dined at The Players . . . Alan Ladd and Sue Carol practically moved their ranch into town for the Easter party for their daughter, Alana, and neighborhood children. Imported for Easter atmosphere were a calf, lamb, pair of rabbits and four chickens . . . Columbia is negotiating for a three-picture deal with Ruth Warrick . . . Years ago Gene Fowler was bestowed the title of Bishop of Fire Island—the spot in Long Island sound where he wrote several books—by a lay church in Denver. He sends an autographed copy of every book to Frank Pope, always inscribed "To the Pope from the Bishop of Fire Island" . . . Lecouna Cuban Boys, out from under the Petrillo frowns, go into "Carnival in Costa Rica" at $50,000 for a four-week chore, then into the Orpheum June 4 . . . Probably the weirdest thief in town is the character who stole 100 Christmas cards stored away for a scene in "Abie's Irish Rose" . . . Jack Beutel, the forgotten man of "The Outlaw" (he only played Billy the Kid), is out of Navy uniform and back in town.

CALL SHEET: BOB MURPHY hosted his annual Sportsmen's dinner last night with 75 on the guest list, including Paul Zimmerman, Times sports editor, as the guest of honor, plus Bing and Larry Crosby, Bob Hope, Joe E. Brown, Earl Gay and all the sportswriters on the downtown papers . . . GARY COOPER is writing a series of articles on hunting experiences for a sports magazine between scenes in "Cloak and Dagger," or so the Warners flackery insists . . . ZASU PITTS has been informed that the Broadway production of "Cordelia" has been postponed until this fall, after she finishes her role in "Life with Father" . . . JOE MALATESTA, headwaiter at Romanoff's, is going to Italy for a visit so he was given a farewell party. At Lucey's . . . MITCHELL KOWAL claims he knows a local lass who was a former Petty model—"she never answers the telephone without putting on a flimsy negligee" . . . PATRICIA STEVENS tossed a party for Hollywood and downtown photogs at her now models' layout . . . BOBBY BLAKE, the 12-year-old who's been playing "Little Beaver" in Republic's "Red Ryder" series, quits playing Indians in "Out California Way" .

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Kiss of the week—all for the sake of art—was performed by Paulette Goddard and Fred MacMurray in "Suddenly It's Spring." The caress was delivered in a cab traveling through three blocks of New York traffic and wound up with the stunned MacMurray on the taxi's floor . . . Darryl Zanuck tossed a birthday party for Gregory Ratoff at the Doll House in Palm Springs . . . Pity the poor actors in "The Emperor Waltz." In the cast, supported by Bing Crosby and Joan Fontaine, will be two trick poodles and a gum-chewing terrier . . . Vivian Blaine moves into her new home May 15 . . . And about the same time Dick Crane and his wife move into their house in North Hollywood . . . According to a quick checkup, June Vincent is the only minister's daughter besides Barbara Britton working in pictures. Naturally she's playing a nightclub girl in Universal's "The Black Angel" . . . Don the Beachcomber is taking off for Hawaii April 27 for "two to four weeks," so he's sent a card to all his customers recommending 17 other restaurants for use while his place is closed. Besides this breathtaking gesture, he's arranged to have leis flown daily from Hawaii to his Hollywood and Chicago spots . . . Brian Aherne, after windup of "What Nancy Wanted" at RKO, is planning summer stock appearances in the east this summer. One shot may be with Gertrude Lawrence at Dennis, Mass. . . . Plugging for the newly opened "Call Me Mister" on Broadway, Bill Savitt of Witmark admits the songs in the ex-GI musical "may come from ruptured ducks but they aren't altogether lame."——D.D.T.

$392,959 ASCAP SUIT FILED BY GOVT. AGENCY

New York, April 22. — Alien Property Custodian today filed a $392,959 suit in Federal Court against Deems Taylor, as president of Ascap, and Harry M. Propper, temporary receiver of AKM, Austrian Composers Society.

It is alleged that that sum is due on royalties for AKM; SACEM, French composers society; and STAGMA, German society. All of these royalties have been withheld by Ascap since 1938. Alien Property Custodian claims title to the royalties under an order executed in 1943. At that time plaintiff vested in himself all rights in contracts made between Ascap and foreign composers.

Dialog Directors Name Candidates

At meeting of Screen Dialog Directors Guild over week-end, Ben Shaw, prexy, Willard Holland, secretary, and Raymond Kessler, treasurer, were nominated for re-election and Anthony Jowitt to succeed Madeleine Dmytryk as veepee. Election will be held some time in May. Ten nominees for Executive Board, five to be elected, also were named. These include Leslie Uhrbavh, Emory Horger, Monty Collins, incumbents, and Clay Yurdin, Irving Cooper, Ben Colman, Bill Watts, Herman Rotsten, Ed Phillips and Escha Bledsoe.

'Henry V' Limited In NY to 1600 Seats

New York, April 22.—"Henry V," Laurence Olivier's British-made production being distributed by United Artists, will be the first picture to play New York's municipally-operated City Centre theatre. Film opens June 17 and can stay 11 weeks if business warrants. Capacity of the theatre is 2600, but United Artists will close off 1000 seat balcony. Second week's gross of "Henry" at the Esquire in Boston is exceeding the first.

Kaye Faces Suit

When Sammy Kaye arrives with band for six-week stand at Palladium, commencing next Tuesday, he will be served with complaint long-lodged in Superior Court here, seeking $850 damages, allegedly resulting from scuffing up of Bevhills house in which part of his ork resided when musicrew last played here two years ago.

Light 'n' Airy

by JACK HELLMAN

Down the grapevine from the other end of the land comes disquieting news of unsettled conditions in the big agencies. Billings are said to be falling off at alarming proportions and retrenchment is in the air everywhere. One of the big commission houses, we're told, stands to lose 10 millions in billings and the axe is falling in most departments. Main reasons for the budget slashing by big advertisers are material shortages, delayed effects of the strikes, the food situation in Europe and the constant fear of the return of food rationing.

Nor is the situation helped any by the indefinite status of Bing Crosby come fall. Many clients in the market for shows are holding off on deals lest there still be a chance to corral El Bingo. When Crosby actually signs there should be a rush of clients to the nearest dotted line. While his decision hangs in mid-air so will the fate of a dozen shows.

CONFERENCE AND PRODS RESUME NEGOTIATIONS

Conference of Studio Unions and producers resume contract negotiations today at 5:30 p.m. Resumption of wage talks, abruptly broken off April 3 when question of open shop entered the picture, was arranged by John C. Tutt, U.S. conciliation commissioner.

Strike talk that threatened another studio walkout lessened last week after statements by both sides indicated they were ready to resume contract parleys provided open shop did not figure in huddles. After survey of situation, Tutt, sent in to bring parties together, met with both CSU heads and studio labor contacts and arranged resumption.

No answer has been made yet by producers on CSU bid to have meetings attended by press and radio, but this is not a major point in again getting together on a new contract for studio locals represented by the Conference.

Republic Skeds Four Pix for May Starts

Republic will send four films before the lenses in May, adding them to four features already shooting. Number will give Republic heaviest summer shooting schedule in years. May starters are "Vigilantes of Boomtown," May 6; "Rio Grande Raiders," May 17; "Last Frontier Uprising," May 18; and "Mysterious Mr. Valentine," May 25. Already rolling are "The Plainsman and the Lady," "The Angel and the Outlaw," "That Brennan Girl" and "G.I. War Brides."

KMPC Flacking Top Turns in Notice

THE PUBLIC SPEAKS..

Color television has now been shown to groups of non-set owners and owners of black-and-white sets. These groups speak for the audience television must create for itself. Impartial observers well-known in the fields of research and psychology attended the survey session. One was C. E. Hooper, who said: "I feel that Columbia leaned over backwards in being fair." Here's what the public says·

...GREATLY PREFERS COLOR, AND HERE'S THE EVIDENCE:

Both groups were given a check-list of 22 words to be applied either to color or black-and-white television. The words picked give the predominant reactions to each:

	NON-SET OWNERS	SET OWNERS
For color	"Beautiful"	"Beautiful"
	"Brilliant"	"Brilliant"
	"Exciting"	"Exciting"
	"Clear"	"Magnificent"
	"Magnificent"	"Easy to see"

	NON-SET OWNERS	SET OWNERS
For black-and-white	"Acceptable"	"Acceptable"
	"Passable"	"Passable"
	"Drab"	"Tame"
	"Dull"	"Drab"
	"Tame"	"Dull"

- Only 1 out of 12 non-set owners (and only 1 out of 8 set owners) agreed with the statement, "I am completely satisfied with the television now being broadcast. Black-and-white is good enough for me."

- Only 1 out of 4 non-set owners and the same percentage of set owners agreed with the statement, "I would rather have a 16x22 inch picture in black-and-white than an 8 x 10 inch picture in color."

›verwhelmingly picks color television

- Only 1 out of 8 non-set owners (and 1 out of 7 set owners) agreed with the statement, "It would be better to spend money to improve the quality of programs in black-and-white than to spend it to develop color television."
- Only 1 out of 4 non-set owners (and 1 out of 12 set owners) agreed with the statement, "I would be completely satisfied with the quality of black-and-white television if I could get a larger picture."

. . . WOULD PAY MUCH MORE FOR COLOR, AND HERE'S THE EVIDENCE:

The question asked: ". . . if you were buying a new set, what is the most you would pay for one with a black-and-white picture 8x10 inches...or a color picture the same size...?"

The median answer of non-set owners was 49% more for color. The answer of set owners was 34% more for color.

The same question was asked in connection with a 16 x 22 inch picture.

The median answer of non-set owners was 40% more for color. The median for set owners was 28% more for color.

. . . WOULD WAIT FOR COLOR, AND HERE'S THE EVIDENCE:

Those who did not already own television sets were asked: "What is the longest time you would wait for color after black-and-white sets are on the market?" 7 out of 10 gave replies ranging from one year to "indefinitely."

LET US SEND YOU A COPY OF THE STUDY. Its findings are of vital interest to everyone in any way responsible for planning his organization's investment in television. Address, Columbia Broadcasting System, Dept. T, 485 Madison Ave., N.Y. 22, N.Y.

COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM

LEGIT, RADIO, FILM THEATRE ON H'D BOUL AT LA BREA

New combo film-radio-legit theatre called El Patio will preem in about four weeks at Hollywood Boulevard and La Brea. H. E. and Charles Wollever will operate the 800-seater. Initial entry will probably be revival of legit production "Separate Rooms," produced by Joe Carroll and Mozelle Dinehart.

Renovations are now in progress at old Film City theatre. Stage depth is being increased from 18 to 30 feet. Radio control booth is being built in and new acoustical treatment being given interior. New carpeting, 800 new plush-cushion seats, and four large dressing rooms are being installed. Projection booth for films also is going in. However, operators will confine picture deals to road show specials and exploitation pix. An orchestra pit will be built in front of stage.

Approximately $60,000 is being spent on site that would be available to radio shows until 8 p.m. After that house will go into legit or film operation.

WB Sets 15 Shorts For May and June

New York, April 22.—Warners will release 15 shorts during May and June, it was announced by Norman Moray. Of group, 14 will be in Technicolor and one will be black and white.

'Katie' Up for Election

RKO has shifted starting date of "Katie for Congress" to May 13. Effort will be made to secure release date before November elections. Loretta Young, Joseph Cotten and Ethel Barrymore are starred.

'Tipica' at Ebell

"Tipica Revue" opens at Wilshire-Ebell theatre tomorrow night under auspices of Miguel Lerdo de Tejada. Topping cast in the new revue are Trio Jalisco, Hernanas Julian and Lupita Alday.

BROADCASTERS SET IBEW WAGE MEET

Initial meeting of Southern California Broadcasters with International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers on technician wage demands has been called for tomorrow. Demands, averaging about 30 per cent but actually extending to peak of 65 per cent, have been in managements hands for nearly a month. Action has been delayed due to broadcasters entanglement with American Federation of Radio Artists on announcer wages, which problem was settled Thursday (18).

Union wants to up wage to $2.25 per hour on KFWB, KXLA, KGER and KMPC, to $2.00 on KFOX, KFAC, KLAC, KRKD and KFVD, and to $1.75 on KIEV, KGFJ and KWKW. Low of $1.44 is paid on some stations.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

What happens to certain Hollywood celebs when they hit New York? Either they're in a holiday mood and far more receptive to everyone and everything than when they're working on the home lot, or they're so exhausted and bored with it all, they really can't be bothered, my deah—especially by their friends who knew them "when." For example, a w.k. star, who spent most of his vacation here at "21," and could have had a phone brought right to his table by just a snap of his fingers, found it too much effort to call the "friend" responsible for starting his pic career. Another visitor, in her three months' whirl here, had plenty of time for Elsa Maxwell and the Colony set, but when the pal, who put her on her first rung up the ladder, tried to reach this movie queen, her maid relayed the message, "Madame is having a massage and cannot be disturbed." And then there was the glamour boy, who left the Main Stem a Nobody and came back a Somebody, with a $45 a day hotel suite, house seats for every play and a ringside at all the glamour spots that before he had only seen "outside looking in," and yet he did nothing but gripe about everything and offend a lot of people.

Why don't these "characters" get wise to themselves and realize that "all is ephemeral—fame and the famous as well?"

BULLETIN BOARD: If Dwight Wiman can tag Rouben Mamoulian to stage his opera version of "Street Scene," he'll postpone production until after Rouben has given Helen Hayes a "Happy Birthday." With score by Kurt Weil and lyrics by Langston Hughes, this musical revival of Elmer Rice's Pulitzer Prize Play of '29, gives promise of being the most ambitious undertaking of Wiman's career. Richard Manning of the Met is set for the tenor lead, and a 19-year-old Chicago girl, a complete unknown with a glorious voice, discovered by Lina Abarbanel, will sing the role created by Erin O'Brien Moore and re-created by Sylvia Sidney in King Vidor's film version. Wonder who will be the singing version of Beulah Bondi, who was so grand as the landlady who walked her dog. Remember? . . . Watch for an interesting announcement of Richard Barthelmess' future plans. His return to N.Y. is just to wind up his affairs, before pulling out for Beverly Hills again, where he has just bought a house to settle permanently and resume his career from the exec end . . . Frank Case, whose grief is sad to watch since his beloved Bertha is no longer at his side, is seriously ailing at Doctor's hospital

BUT FOR THE GRACE OF THE GUILD: Lawrence Langner came into the Stork Club the other night, and unrecognized by the maitre d', was unable to get a table. Suddenly, he spotted Arlene Francis and called her over. "Will you please tell the Captain that most of the people in this room—and he waived in the direction of Louis Calhern, Ruth Gordon, Dennis King, Jan Clayton and Richard Conte, all once worked for me and that's one reason they are celebrities here!"

P.S.: Mr. Langner got a table.

IN THE SOCIAL SWIM: Harry Ommerle, Dorothy Lamour's east coast agent, is spending a "Lyons" share of the intake, hosting a cocktail party for office client in the Cub Room.

Larry Reid of Motion Picture Magazine is entertaining in "The Cottage" of the Hampshire House in honor of Joan Curtis, retiring ed, and Maxwell Hamilton, her successor.

The Theatre Guild, celebrating the first year of "Carousel" (plus the Drama Critics Circle Award) and the third year of "Oklahoma," is "guilding" the occasion with a midnight supper party at the Plaza.

In honor of Mitzi Green's 21 years in "show biz," Monte Proser is having open house for her "green years" at the Copa. Only, Mitzi wants it known in advance, that in spite of her record, she is no contemporary of Dame Mae Whitty. She'll be all of 25 in October.

"CALL ME MISTER SUCCESS": Melvyn Douglas can return to Hollywood, happy in the knowledge that his initial flight into the Broadway production ranks, is a socco success. "Call Me Mister" is the most original and liveliest revue that has hit town all season, thanks to the assorted talents of Harold Rome, Artie Auerbach, choreographer, John Wray, music maestro, Lehman Engel and a cast line-up of ex-service boys and girls, who, if they were as good at their jobs overseas as they are on the stage of the National, no wonder we won the war! Incidentally, one of the lyrics that got the biggest howl from the first nighters, was in the opening number when "Sergeant" Jules Munshin quips, "Tonight, the drama critics have more power than General Eisenhower!" They had—and they used it for a unanimous swell send-off.

DISA AND DATA: Bob Hutton, off to Kingston to runion with his mother, while Lana Turner duets with Pete Jaeger. If Lana is really serious about being the next Mrs. J., she'll either have to spend most of her time away from her groom, or emulate Faye Emerson Roosevelt and give up her career for L-O-V-E, "on account of" Pete, whose resignation from ABC came as a complete surprise to everyone, has just opened offices at 1 East 54th St., and has every intention of making N.Y. his business AND residential permanent headquarters . . . Now that Mac Kreindler has had a "Life"-size spread of him, everyone is telling how photogenic he is, but retorts Mac, looking meaningfully at Jack Cohn, Neil Agnew, Nate Blumberg and J. Robert Rubin, "No one has made me an offer!"

MUSIC NOTES

Carmen Cavallaro and his orchestra have been signed for a personal appearance engagement at the New York Strand theatre, starting May 3.

with the Hays Office, sometimes called the Motion Picture Association. Here are the facts:

"I produced a motion picture, 'The Outlaw.'

"This picture was banned by the censors throughout the nation.

FOUGHT TO SHOW FILM

"However, instead of cutting the picture, I hired the best lawyers obtainable, and, for two full years, I have fought for the right to show 'The Outlaw' to the public as it was originally made.

"The result of this two year battle is that now, at last, I am showing 'The Outlaw' to the public exactly as it was filmed. Not a scene has been cut.

"Now I feel I am entitled to tell the public why 'The Outlaw' has been delayed and that it is being shown in full length, that not a single scene has been cut.

"However, the Hays Office has a rule forbidding any producer mentioning any argument with the censors.

"One of the admitted purposes of the Hays Office is the discouragement of state censors in the states which do not now have censors.

"Therefore, by the Hays Office rule, all mention of censors is forbidden, taboo and very hush-hush.

AGAINST PUSSYFOOTING

"I do not believe in this pussyfooting and beating around the bush. If the Hays Office is opposed to further state censorship why not campaign against it openly?

"In any event, the Hays Office has no right to tell me I cannot inform the public of something which is true and a fact.

"In attempting to prevent me from so informing the public, the Hays Office is violating the first amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which grants everyone the right of free speech and a free press.

"Furthermore, a careful study of the Hays Office which I have just completed convinces me the entire Hays Office in its essential fundamentals, is a group boycott, in restraint of trade and in absolute violation of the anti-trust laws of this country—the Sherman and Clayton Acts.

DELIVERS RESIGNATION

"Therefore, I am delivering to the Hays Office my resignation effective immediately.

"Also, I have filed suit against the Hays Office as of this date demanding $5,000,000 damages because of the Hays Office's interference with 'The Outlaw' and the resulting delay.

"Moreover, I am requesting that the court issue a restraining order preventing the Hays Office from interfering further with 'The Outlaw' in any way.

"With reference to 'The Outlaw' I would like to say this:

"There may be many controversial points about this motion picture, but its acceptance can hardly be debated. Since, in every theatre it has played, 'The Outlaw' has broken every existing record, ever established by any picture at any time."

H'd Films Run Third With These Latin Fans

Washington, April 22.—According to a report made public by Department of Commerce, American films trail Mexican and Argentinian in popularity in Costa Rica. No. U.S. picture is ever as sweeping a success as Latin-made contemporaries. Commerce report covers situation as found by Nathan D. Golden in Costa Rica and Dominican Republic.

In Costa Rica, the U.S. has about 85 per cent of market with virtually all rest split between Mexico and Argentina. There's a market for 450 pictures yearly, with one print usually sufficient for entire country, which has 56 theatres wired for sound. Musicals and comedies draw rather well, but most popular are melodramas.

The report comments that in general Costa Ricans feel that quality of American pictures has slumped. Claims are made the Hollywood product is hobbled with same old plots and too many of the same old faces and notions. In the main, the top U.S. films will get between 50 and 60 showings, whereas Mexican or Argentinian top product will get 100 showings. The best U.S. pictures take in about same money the poorer Mex stuff does.

In the Dominican Republic Hollywood has about 90 per cent of market, with same two Latin rivals holding rest. Only occasionally does a British or French picture gets a showing. Audiences' best likes are musicals and costume spectacles, plus animated cartoons. They nix U.S. psychological dramas and many of our war pictures. Country has 31 houses wired for sound.

The American embassy rep in the Dominican Republic forwards in the report the tip that films ridiculing institutions, such as comedies poking fun at army life, of farces ribbing the Washington scene are not understood always by the Dominicans. Films in which excesses and imperfections of the democratic system are portrayed may be seized upon eagerly by enemies of the U.S. to use as anti-U.S. propaganda.

Charles Carr Named Prexy of Del Mar

Charles H. Carr, United States Attorney for Southern California, was named yesterday as president of the Del Mar Turf Club in an announcement that sale of Bing Crosby's interests in the race track had been completed. Disclosure of Crosby's sale of his stock in the turf club was made by Arnold M. Grant, newly elected chairman of the board of directors and one of the principal stockholders.

Capitol Dickering For Butterfield

Capitol Transcriptions is dickering for band of trumpeter Billy Butterfield to round out its biscuit repertoire. With addition of Butterfield Cap will temporarily close its production book on bands, having what's considered well rounded instrumental representation. Releases start some time after July 1.

THEATRES TEAM UP FOR CANCER DRIVE; FUND UP 40%

Southern California theatre collections for the American Cancer Society got off to a weekend start of 40 per cent ahead of the last Red Cross drive hat-passing. Total of 560 theatres in this exchange area are participating. Exhibs report no instance of patron resistance to the collection, the response being unusually heavy in all houses.

Sidelight on cooperation among theatres for the collection is shown by aides being furnished the Downtown Music Hall by the nearby Orpheum and Rialto theatres. All are competitive houses in the same block on Broadway. When Music Hall found itself without sufficient staff to handle collections, Orpheum and Rialto undertook to supply manpower at each show break from their own houses. Cooperation will continue during the week of the drive, and was arranged by Sherrill Corwin, operator of the two rival houses and exhibitor co-chairman for the campaign.

Donlevy Plans Indie

Brian Donlevy leaves this weekend for New York to ready his initial indie effort, "The Minister And The Safecracker." Actor-producer will set the film before the cameras in early fall. He will return the latter part of May.

Pictures is prepared to spend more on its picture dollar than any of the major companies."

UWP will release a minimum of eight Rank productions annually. The first two, "London Town" and "Stairway to Heaven" are set for January 1, 1947 release. Eight American films will be supplied by International Pictures.

Fox further disclosed that UWP will file applications, within the month, for membership in the Motion Picture Association of America. Company expects to complete its domestic sales force by November 1. Sales set-up, Fox outlined, will include an eastern sales manager, possibly a western sales manager, six district and 31 branch managers and at least 62 salesmen.

The film topper emphasized that no pictures will be sold without a screening. He reiterated that the company will purchase first-run theatres as showcases in key cities only where it is unable to get a steady play-off of its product due to backlog of other companies' films. UWP is not planning on indie production except where company may have an equity in the film itself. Although there have been some discussions along these lines, UWP, so far, has not entered into any such deals. Fox will soon announce appointment of a Canadian manager for UWP with a complete sales staff of its own.

AFM BANS REMOTE CONTROL AIRERS

Members of Local 47 of American Federation of Musicians have been instructed to not play for remote control broadcasts picked up by stations KIEV, KFVD or KFAC. Notification was given membership over the weekend. It followed refusal of stations to employ musicians.

Stations KGFJ and KWKW are also included in the nix list, but more thoroughly. Members may not even work at latter two stations, in addition to the remote ruling. Under union rules stations using remotes are supposed to hire at least one musician. In case of KGFJ and KWKW union is burned over broadcasting of nitery remotes where non-union musicians are employed.

Flying Down to Rio

George Breakston and York Copeland will fly to Rio de Janeiro May 4 to start production on PRC's "Two Yanks on the Amazon." Pair will assemble cast and crew below the border.

Understood that both Robert Young, financing PRC and the Arthur Rank interests in England, who are tied in with the organization have been strongly in favor of Foy heading the setup to make the medium and light budgeted pictures for the company to distribute.

Foy, who made an envious record at Warners where he directed "Lights of New York," first sound picture for the company, and later became a producer for making of medium budgeted pictures over a period of many years after going to 20th-Fox, in similar capacity, always made films with an economical budget.

WB Objects to Use Of 'Fat Man' By ABC

New York, April 23.—A legal tangle is developing between Warner Brothers and the ABC network over the use of the "Fat Man" title. Warners' lawyers have given notification of objections to use of the title for ABC's Monday night airer on the ground that Sydney Greenstreet, Warners' contractee, has been referred to as "Fat Man" for years.

Harry H. Thomas, president of PRC, was tendered luncheon and reception yesterday at The Club in Beverly Hills on his first year with the organization. Event was coincident with his birthday.

LOTS AT COST FOR COLUMBIA STAFF

Marking a completely new departure in film employe relations, Columbia Pictures announced today that at least fifty acres of a 400-acre site now being sought for a new studio, will be set aside for employe housing purposes.

Though the site has not yet been selected, preliminary plans have been drawn for the most up-to-date studio plant in Hollywood. Residential lots in the acreage will be made available to Columbia workers at cost.

20th Floats $20 Million Loans At Low Interest

Sale of $20,000,000 of debt obligations of National Theatres Corporation, 20th-Fox theatre subsidiary, to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the Bank of America and the Chase National Bank was announced yesterday by 20th-Fox.

Obligations were sold at 100 and consist of $8,000,000 of 10-year 2 per cent serial notes and $12,000,000 of 20-year 3 per cent debentures. Serials were taken by the Bank of America and the Chase National in amounts of $4,500,000 and $3,500,000 respectively. Debentures were purchased by

20TH AND RANK JOIN IN LOOP

New York, April 23.—Organization of a new overseas theatre circuit, with equal partnership by Gaumont British and J. Arthur Rank's Odeon circuit, was disclosed today by Spryos Skouras. 20th-Fox has a substantial interest in G-B. New chain is to spend from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 but Skouras did not specify in which countries it would operate.

He revealed company is entering the 16m distribution field aboard, exporting all 20th-Fox features and shorts. Company will use mobile units to invade the foreign hinterlands.

WARNERS AND RKO STOCKS HIT HIGHS

New York, April 23.—In a market that was selling off, motion picture stocks leaped forward again today. Warner Bros. gained 2¾ points for a new high at 50¼. RKO also was at a new peak at 27¼. Twentieth-Fox closed at 61⅛, up ⅜. Paramount finished at 79¾ for a gain of ¾, while Universal was up an eighth at 46¼ after an early loss.

Time And Life Are Launching New World-Wide Magazine

Time and Life will launch its new publication Life-International aimed for the foreign market to be circulated in 70 countries starting July 22. The magazine will be printed in the United States in English and is to be circulated around the world outside of the United States, Canada and Hawaii. It will be operated by C. D. Jackson as managing director.

Subscriptions will be $4.50 to $6.50 a year based on postal rates, with newsstand sale to be 20c and 25c.

Its advertising will be separate from the American published Life, with the L-I taking advertising copy aimed at the foreign market from American concerns. First issue will be around 150,000 copies.

REASONS behind big campaign on tune "Love in a Greyhound Bus," part of score Metro's "No Leave, No Love," is fear that edge has been taken off by other recent ditties with transportation twist. For added reason of others having possibly tired public, Robbins and Greyhound are giving it the works.

FRANCE, BELGIUM SEEN AS BIG MART FOR U.S. FILMS

Andre Ullmann, director of theatres for Paramount in France and Belgium, left yesterday after a week's visit, during which he conferred with studio's department heads and was brought up to date on technical and laboratory methods. Prior to the war he also was general manager of the company's studios in Paris.

"Paramount now operates four key showcases in France and Belgium," Ullmann disclosed. "These important houses include the de luxe Paramount in Paris, the Familia in Lille, and the Opera in Rheims. The fourth house in Brussels, which was a war casualty and is currently being rebuilt, will open shortly as the Paramount Theatre.

"All indications point to France remaining a great market for American product. Brussels is one of the best territories in the world for film attendance, because the city can be reached in a short time from any part of populous Belgium. The Belgian metropolis draws vast amusement-seeking crowds from all the provinces."

A major in the French Army, Ullmann was interned in two German prison camps, escaped and became a leader of the French Forces of the Interior, serving in the underground unit until the end of the war. The entire Paramount staff in Paris worked with the resistance forces, Ullmann said, and several were killed.

Rep Delegation Off For Sacto Preem

Couple had refused to go through with deal on grounds that the structure was overrun with termites.

FitzPatrick Sees Rich Shorts Field In Tele

Television promises to become a luxuriant field for short subjects producers, James A. FitzPatrick stated yesterday, upon his return from New York. While in east, producer had number of talks with television heads and had an opportunity to study their methods and get line on their requirements.

As a result of his observation, FitzPatrick said he is convinced that here at last is a medium to give shorts producers a chance to be represented. Heretofore, shorts have appeared only as fillers between features in theatres, and have never been seriously considered as medium of entertainment.

Confabs in east led FitzPatrick to belief films will largely supplant live broadcasts over television, when this medium begins to really hit its stride with regular hours of broadcast. Mechanics of live-action shows are so confusing and complicated, PitzPatrick said he learned, that solution resolves itself in showing of films.

Since it is doubtful that studios will permit broadcast of their features over television, due to competition it would entail with theatre business, this distinction will fall to short subject field. Eastern television heads are firmly of the opinion, according to producer, that there will be an unlimited field for shorts and short subject production in television.

MAC GREGOR SETS DEAL ON SCRIPTS

Agreement was reached yesterday between C. P. MacGregor and Radio Writers Guild establishing new writer minimum of $100 per 30 minute script. Figure doubles former minimum of $45. It also marks elimination of five-year Guild headache. New minimum erases threat of possible return to meagre earnings and is designed as overall pattern to be used in effecting agreements with other transcription firms.

Minimum of $50 for quarter-hour scripts follows in line. Additionally agreed is payment to authors within 10 days after stories are recorded.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The Soviet announcement that she will not sit down at any more United Nations security council meetings that discuss Iran is another instance of the immaturity of our international thinking—ours and theirs. Every case that has come up so far has been based on suspicion of each other. Despite the way we planned and fought the war together, pooled resources and suffered in common, the old barriers remain. We still look with grave suspicion on what the other fellow does, and think we are reasonable in this suspicion. And the Soviet looks at us askance the same way. She thinks she has not been given equal access to the oil, in this instance, of the Middle East, and to a point of influencing small governments. She thinks she has acted in the only way possible to get these ends. She resents being called on the carpet for what she thinks others also have done. We on the other hand insist that treaties must be respected if they are to have value and that force or a threat of force must not be used to gain an end. We're suspicious of the way the Iran agreement was effected, and not too sure the Russian troops will be out by 6 May.

Trade Showing

Heartbeat

(Comedy)

RKO RELEASE of a Robert and Raymond Hakim production. Director, Sam Wood. Adaptation, Morrie Ryskind. From original screenplay by Hans Wilhelm, Max Kolpe, Michel Duran. Additional dialog, Roland Leigh. Photography, Joseph Valentine. Production design, Lionel Banks. Music, Paul Misraki. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Song, "Can You Guess," Paul Msraki, Ervin Drake. Set decorations, George Sawley. Sound, John Tribby. Editor, Roland Gross. Gowns, Howard Greer.

CAST—Stars Ginger Rogers. Supporting players, Jean Pierre Aumont, Basil Rathbone, Adolphe Menjou, Melville Cooper, Mikhail Rasumny, Eduardo Ciannelli, Mona Maris, Henry Stephenson.

TRADESHOWN at Hollywood Pantages Theatre, Hollywood, Calif., April 18, 1946. Running time: 101 MINS.

"Heartbeat" should amuse the average Ginger Rogers fan, but film lacks the body of a well-turned-out comedy and some of its humor and treatment are rather too foreign-flavored for any more than ordinary response. That it will enjoy favorable reaction at the box-office, however, there can be no doubt, due to the Rogers' draw and a supporting cast of very capable players. Script is picture's most serious drawback, which at times cannot be surmounted either by cast or producers.

Star enacts a French girl escaped from a reform school, who applies for a job in Paris. She comes to Prof. Aristide (Basil Rathbone), who conducts a school for pickpockets, and is accepted by that worthy, who sees in her possibilities of a true artist. When she attempts to ply her new trade in purloining a jeweled stickpin from the tie of Adolphe Menjou, she's caught, but instead of carting her away to the police Menjou takes her home. Here it is disclosed that he is an ambassador. Reason for taking her home is to send her to a ball that evening for the purpose of lifting Jean Pierre Aumont's watch, which Menjou suspects holds the picture of his wife, Mona Maris. Thereafter, it's a situation affair, with Ginger nearly married off to Melville Cooper, so she can have a husband and not return to the reform school, and finally wed to Aumont.

Picture frequently reaches for its laughs and spontaneity which situations demand is for most part absent. Miss Rogers tries hard, and so does rest of cast, but material simply isn't there for the gay farce this should be. Most memorable performances are delivered by Rathbone, as the professor, and Mikhail Rasumny, an inept pupil who befriends Miss Rogers.

Sam Wood directed his scenes to their full advantage, but was hindered by what appears to be an antiquated screenplay. Robert and Raymond Hakim, who produced for RKO release, gave film smart mounting and music by Paul Misraki is in keeping. Lionel Banks rates hand, too, as production designer, and set decorations by George Sawley are tasteful.

Flacks Guild Asks End of Trusteeship

Removal of trusteeship under which Screen Publicists Guild has operated since August, 1945, is being asked by flacks' executive board in wire to L. P. INT MOVING ALL ITS SETUP TO U SATURDAY

International Pictures moves off the Goldwyn lot Saturday — lock, stock and barrell—to open Monday morning in new premises at Universal studio. Company has had a vanguard at Universal for two weeks, filming Edward Small's "Bella Donna." It will leave one production unit, "The Dark Mirror," to complete editing and scoring phases on the Goldwyn lot.

Under arrangements completed yesterday by general manager John Beck, Jr., moving crew will begin packing International's physical assets tomorrow. Crew will truck all material and technical equipment Saturday. Effort will be made to move company's comprehensive story files intact, rather than to disassemble them and risk confusion. The same plan will be followed with the intricate records of the accounting staff.

International will occupy temporary quarters at Universal until green light is flashed on construction of permanent structures, which have already been blueprinted.

Machinists, Carpenters Will Talk Contract

Machinists and carpenters locals of the Conference of Studio Unions will meet tomorrow with producers on contract negotiations. CSU group resumed negotiations with producers yesterday at meeting arranged by John C. Tutt, U.S. conciliation commissioner, after halting sessions April 3 over open shop question. Yesterday meeting was reported to be a satisfactory reopening of negotiations by all parties and Tutt declared highly satisfactory progress was made. He will continue to sit in on the negotiations.

THE GRAPEVINE: Whodunits and psychological pix are taken apart by a skilled satirist, Al Capp, creator of "Lil Abner," whose medium is the comic strip but whose talents are a couple hundred notches above the old "Mutt and Jeff" school. Capp is writing a screen treatment of his "Fearless Fosdick" character. Paramount is reported interested in it as a possible Bob Hope starrer. Capp describes his scalpel job as "the ultimate in mystery film horror carried just far enough to make hilarity of horror" . . . A terrible trend seems to be in the making. Four beauties, Jane Greer, Myrna Dell, Janet Thomas and Audrey Young, had the wolves gnashing their fangs when they lunched together, without male escort, at Romanoff's. And at Romanoff's Linda Darnell and Ann Miller pulled the same trick . . . Joe Frisco informed Bing Crosby he had quit playing the horses. Crosby expressed disbelief. "A doctor cured me of the habit," Frisco insisted. "I have nothing more to do with the horses." "Where is this doctor?—I know a lot of people who could use his services," Crosby said. "About six furlongs up the street," Frisco replied . . . Shirley Temple turned 18—a well-turned 18 at that—last night and many of the people who watched her grow up on the lots attended a party on the set of "Honeymoon" at RKO. Among them were Jack Oakie, James Dunn and Adolphe Menjou and the six teachers she studied with through the years in the studio schoolhouses . . . Unhappy coincidence struck Al Jermy, unit man on Paramount's "Welcome Stranger," yesterday. His wife was rushed to the hospital for an emergency appendectomy this morning—at about the same time Bing Crosby performs a similar operation on Barry Fitzgerald in the picture.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Wit crackled over the embattled courts of the Beverly Hills Tennis Club. Harold Buchman watched tournament contestants knocking themselves out in the damp heat and commented, "I understand the cups are being donated by the Beverly Hills heart specialists." And Billy Wilder, watching Milt Holmes, the tennis-pro-turned-writer, in action, remarked: "Too bad you play tennis like Ernest Hemingway and write like Milt Holmes" . . . George Raft didn't have much practicing to do for his first film, "Scarface," just flipping a half dollar and perfecting his poker face. For his next at RKO, "Nocturne," he is called upon to dance, brawl and play the piano . . . Frederic March, Myrna Loy and Teresa Wright are playing house—all for the sake of realism—on an elaborate set for Goldwyn's "The Best Years of Our Lives." Director William Wyler stopped production for 24 hours to allow the trio, who play members of a family, to wander through their five-room apartment and make themselves "at home" with entrances, furniture and fixtures. It was quite an innovation for Hollywood, whose actors are accustomed to rushing from one set to another like a troupe of traveling salesmen . . . Looks like Ethel Barrymore may finally settle down in Hollywood. In advance of her appearance in RKO's "Katie for Congress," she has requested her agent to find her a house . . . Paulette Goddard, clad in a low-cut evening gown, posed for stills outside a soundstage. A passing cyclist emitted a long, appreciative whistle. Before Paulette could turn and thank him for the compliment he was down the studio street. The cyclist was Bing Crosby.

CALL SHEET: PERRY COMO'S broadcasts from the Radio Center building have called forth special police details. At his last broadcast the bobby-soxers almost tore the building apart trying to get to the crooner, who finally escaped via a loading platform in the rear . . . PINKY LEE, trying to live up to his role of comedian on the Rudy Vallee show, says a hula dancer is a shake in the grass . . . BRIAN AHERNE'S brother Patrick and his wife are arriving from England to spend some time on his Indio ranch . . . EVERETT CROSBY returns today from San Francisco business trip for Bing. Field of potential sponsors for his airshow has now "narrowed down" to about 25 . . . RITZ BROTHERS open at the Capitol in New York May 30 . . . DANTE the magician will take off on a tour of the British Isles in September . . . MAUREEN O'HARA denies radio reports she will have another child.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: For no particular reason, Barbara Britton sent out a batch of cupcakes with notes saying, "My press agents say glamour and baking don't mix. So here is a 'Bundle from Britton.' You be the judge." Well, we don't know about your glamour, Miss Britton, but your cupcakes are excellent. Is that what you wanted to know? . . . Bucky Walter, now a San Francisco News baseball writer and formerly editor of the CBI Roundup which batted a number of hot grounders at Hollywood, will soon be coming to town with the Seals. The Roundup lashed at Hollywoodites who came out with troupes to garner as much publicity as possible with the least amount of effort to entertain the GI's. So a few of his erstwhile victims are reported to be planning to meet him on Cahuenga Pass with a spray of poison ivy . . . "Rockabye Baby" is the theme song on the "Perils of Pauline," in which three expectant mothers are working. They are Betty Hutton, the star; Margaret Field, contract player, and Sue Patrick, hairdresser . . . Cleatus Caldwell and Jim Davis have broken off, and she's devoting her time to Harry Karl. On salary, mind you, Robert Cummings is lolling around the beaches to acquire the deep tan required for his role in "The Chase" . . . Adolphe Wenland, ad exec named chairman of the forthcoming Encino elections, claims Phil Harris' campaign theme will be "On-zy, Two-zy, why be choosy? Elect Phil Harris."——D.D.T.

J. L. WARNER ASKS PIX TO COMBAT HATE DOCTRINES

First world peace prize of the Hollywood Foreign Correspondents Association was presented yesterday to Jack L. Warner at a luncheon at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Presentation of the award, statuette of a figure bearing a laurel wreath, was made by William H. Mooring, past president of the association.

The prize went to Warner in recognition of the Warner Bros. short, "Hitler Lives?" In his acceptance Speech Warner called on motion pictures and press to unite against propaganda of hate-spreading doctrines. He emphasized that screen's job is to provide entertainment, but declared motion pictures are morally bound to "present significant facts with courage and complete honesty."

Other speaks at the luncheon were Mishel S. Green, entertainment committee chairman; Howard Brown, vice president of the association, and Howard Hill, executive secretary.

Billy Berg Takes Shepp's Playhouse

Billy Berg, operator of Vine St. nitery bearing his name, has taken over Shepp's Playhouse, now-shuttered downtown black-and-tannery, and will reopen spot June 12 with Joe Liggins' ork and flock of acts. Thereafter Berg will effect unique local operation in that he will move shows, following a run at one of his spots, to other. At Shepp's Negro patronage will be sought, on Vine St., white. Shepp's has ben dark for three weeks. Negro Musicians' Local 767 yanked pair of bands from site after management failed to pay off. Berg had no interest in nitery at that time.

Someone forgot to sand the track when the Hooper book was closed last report and Bob Hope went into a tailspin that toppled him from his hight estate. Taking a 3.4 loss he skidded to 26.2, nine-tenths of a point behind "The McGee's," whose deficit was only .3. Red Skelton also felt the sting of spring reversal and his 19.5 was 3.2 under his last figure. Other Tuesday entries showed up like this: Amos 'n' Andy 17.7, up .3; "Date with Judy" 11.5, off 1.8; Lum and Abner 3.6, off .2; "This Is My Best" 7.9, up .9. "Info Pls." took the hardest jolt in the Monday listing, dropping 4.6 to 8.3. "Cavalcade" pulled up at 8.9, off 1; Hedda Hopper 2.8, off 1.8; Joan Davis 15.3, up .8; Lux 22.2, up .2; Screen Guild Players 20, up 1; Supper Club 9.9, off .6.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 23.—Pitch of John Grierson's infant International Film Associates is shaping up as one of public relations service to industrialists, via the silver screen. Grierson, ex-head of the Canadian National Film Board, and a pioneer in the field of the documentary film, has lined up an international staff shrewdly calculated to sell his idea to industry, which is where the big money lies.

Grierson believes that industry could do a job of public service, as well as advertising, by special motion pictures, to some extent along the growing pattern in radio. American business, with the exception of isolated cases like the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., has never gone in for the pattern of public good will the way British business, particularly the utilities, has.

The IFA program is to work out a project of pix for a client, recruit the talent, supervise all production, etc. Operation would be on a non-theatrical basis. IFA's fee would be 20 per cent of the entire production cost of a film.

Visitors to the office of Assistant Secretary of State William Benton are startled by the sight of a large oil painting of Gypsy Rose Lee in "Star and Garter" hanging on the wall. Combination of the ex-stripteuse and the dignified State Department calls for an explanation.

Benton claims that it is not the lush Gypsy but rather the artist, Reginald Marsh, who interests him. Seems Benton and Marsh were classmates at Yale. Since which time Benton has been collecting paintings by Marsh.

Loew's three local theatres figure that 6,200,000 have been admitted since July 1, 1944, at the special serviceman's rate. This is an outsize chunk of 31,000,000 handled by the entire Loew's chain during the period and is accounted for by the huge number of guys and gals in uniform stationed in this area. Savings here alone for service personnel estimated at $2,000,000 . . . executive chairmen of the D.C. First of the three trailers made at the request of the Department of Agriculture, as disclosed in last week's Hullabaloo, is completed and will be in the theatres this week. Because it had to be a quickie, it was given a green light by MPAA and is merely a verbal message tacked on to the newsreels. Trailer was made by National Screen. Agricultulre is still gunning for star talent for its subsequent trailers.

What is cramping the style of the Motion Picture Unit and some other old line bureaus in the Department of Commerce is the fact that the Department has loaded its Office of International Trade with a flock of personnel inherited from the Foreign Economic Administration. Of these, 106 are earning $6000 or more annually, which is big dough as Government salaries go and puts a man in the bureaucrat class.

House Appropriations Committee took cognizance of this recently in its report on the Commerce Department Appropriations bill. Report commented that if a lot of this superfluous personnel were cleared away, such long established units as the motion picture one could do a better job for industry.

George Auld Gets OK Of Doc for Comeback

Georgie Auld, name-band leader who disbanded crew several months ago on doctors' orders and retired to Arizona desert to rest, has had medical checkup and received okay to return to bandstand. Auld is now en route to NY to re-form ork and his professional return will be via brief one-nite eastern tour. Frederick Bros. agency, which handles batoneer, yesterday advised ballrooms hereabouts band would be available on Coast in mid-June.

KWKW Plea for New Frequency Stalled

Bill Beaton, manager of KWKW, has returned from Washington, without accomplishing anything with Federal Communications Commission on application to change station's frequency and obtain power boost. Hearing that had been scheduled for last week was not held. Reps of Orange County Broadcasting Co., also there to oppose frequency switch of KWKW from 1430 to 830, are still in Washington.

NBC BARS REPEAT SHOWS FROM OTHER NETS

NBC has withheld its approval of Dick Powell's "Rogues Gallery" as summer replacement for Cass Daley due to the continuance of that series on the Mutual network. Both would be under Fitch sponsorship. Lewis S. Frost, western program director for NBC, said last night he knew nothing of the ruling but was not surprised inasmuch as such an arrangement would help build an audience for the Powell show on a competitive network in the fall.

Understood the ruling, without precedent, prohibits the broadcast on NBC of a show of identical type and title with one running on another network. Quality of the program could not have been protested inasmuch as "Rogues Gallery" filled the summer spot for Fitch Bandwagon on NBC last summer.

Fitch had planned to continue the "Rogues" broadcasts on Mutual while Powell also filled the NBC Fitch time during layoff of Cass Daley.

THREE SO. CALIF. STATIONS GET FM PERMITS

Washington, April 23.—Conditional permits for new frequency modulation stations were awarded today by Federal Communications Commission to the Beverly Hills Broadcasting Co., for Beverly Hills; the News - Press Publishing Co., in Santa Barbara, and Jack Gross Broadcasting Co., of San Diego. A drastic overhauling of FCC's present clear channel allocation, which might leave California's big time radio stations undisturbed or even result in more power for them, was recommended by Mark Woods, prexy of ABC network.

Woods wants FCC to abolish the "present duplication and overlapping program service" now provided by the clear channel stations in many areas and to work out some allocation which would bring all listeners a variety of program choices. The "overlapping" is worst in the northeastern area of U.S., with possible need for more rather than fewer clear channel stations in the mountain and Pacific coast areas.

Testifying at the FCC hearing, Woods took issue with the present "concentration of control" in the hands of the major nets—NBC and CBS. Twenty-one of the 48 clear channel stations are owned by or affiliated with NBC and 18 are tied to Columbia, leaving only four for ABC, two for Mutual and three others which are independently programmed. As a result, in some areas, Woods said, listeners hear the same NBC or CBS program from as many as 10 stations.

His recommendation called for announcement by fee of a fixed date on which clear channel assignments would be re-shuffled.

Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, April 23.—Arturo de Cordova paid Argentinian writers thirty-five thousand pesos for screenplay already filmed in Buenos Aires. No producer here has yet paid a Mexican writer that much for a story. Not that I think 35,000 pesos a lot of money, but our producers seem to consider the amount atomic when it comes to paying local writers.

And the same record is played again and again. On both sides. Writers complain about difficulties which make it almost impossible for them to break into motion picture field; producers complain about lack of writers.

"No Basta Ser Charro," Negrete starrer which had not been released due to maneuvers of the S.T.I.C. (Cinematographers union), is now playing at the Palacio Chino. Bustillo Oro directed. Cast includes Lilia Michel, now retired, following marriage to Rafael Baledon, comedian Chicote, and Jorge Negrete's brother, David.

Maria Felix refused to star in "Atlantida." One quarter of a million pesos was not enough, considering the risk of working under direction of Jose Diaz Morales. Bright girl.

Opera star Salvatore Baccaloni, in Salkind production, "The Jealous Widow," with blonde Amanda Ledesma in femme lead, proves an excellent singer and poor actor.

The National Chamber of the Cinema Industry nominates Ester Fernandez to preside at May festivities as Queen of Spring. If Ester wins, she will be crowned at Artists Ball, May third, at Ciro's.

After two years in Mexico, Ed Bernoudy, who worked with Alfred Hitchcock in Hollywood, claims to have found bona fide paradise: Ajijic, a little village on shore of Lake Chapala, near Guadalajara. It was in Ajijic and about it that "Village in the Sun" was written. A few painters, two or three writers, and the native Indians make up the population.

Goldwyn Forming Own Org To Sell Top Indie Films

lose distribution rights to the Goldwyn product. The "Kid From Brooklyn" may be the last film to be released through the present distribution set-up.

Goldwyn's current releasing deal with RKO expires in June and he has the option of renewing the pact. Understood that Goldwyn's idea is to pattern the new organization along the United Artists sales format. It is reported that the set-up will concentrate on top-budgeted productions of a few select indie producers.

GOLDWYN TO BACK PIX

Move made recently by Goldwyn in serving notice on various indie producers to clear off his lot, takes on new light in yesterday's development. Goldwyn is now in position to offer desperately-needed studio space to top indie producers currently without shooting facilities. Strong possibility also exists that Goldwyn, in addition, will offer financial backing to productons which measure up to the high standards he is assertedly setting for his new distribution organization.

Present plans call for Mulvey to create a compact sales force with offices in key cities throughout the country. Mulvey arrived in New York Monday to put the program into immediate operation. It is believed that various physical difficulties confronting the creation of the new organization during period of shortages of material will be surmounted.

DEALS WITH KORDA

Entire project fits in closely with Daily Variety's original disclosure that Goldwyn was negotiating with Sir Alexander Korda on distribution deal of his product in Europe by the British Lion-Republic sales combo. At that time, this paper indicated that if the Korda deal went through, Goldwyn would handle his own distribution in the domestic market.

When queried last night for direct confirmation on the project, Goldwyn pleasantly but concisely replied:

"You may quote me as saying: 'I'm thinking about it.' "

BIG MUSIC NAMES DUE IN BUNCH FROM EAST

Starting with week-end host of music industry names are due in from New York, and others are leaving for East. Music biz activity has been heavy last couple of days with other changes also.

Dave Kapp, Decca Records v-p, due in during week. Eli Oberstein, Victor v-p, due in Monday (29), along with J. H. Bourne (Saul Bornstein), owner of ABC and Bourne music companies. J. H. "Happy" Goday, Leeds Music v-p, just arrived after several months in New York. Joe Glaser, manager, and Maury Cohen, Palladium operators, are due in over week-end. Freddy Goodman has also arrived to rep his brother Benny Goodman's Regent Music here.

With arrival from New York yesterday of Bernard Goodman and Ed Wolpin, execs of Famous and Paramount music companies, it was learned that Jack Perrin, west coast rep of both, will be replaced. Sidney Goldstein, formerly with firms here and in New York, replaces him.

Mose Gumble, of Bregman, Vocco and Conn, leaves for New York Friday (26) after three weeks here. Harry Lim, of Keynote Records, left for Gotham yesterday.

Metro British Exec Heading for H'wood

New York, April 23.—Sam Eckman, Metro's distrib-exhib chief in England, has arrived here aboard the Queen Mary for his first American vacation since the war. He is huddling this week with Arthur Loew regarding foreign distribution plans and also with Louis B. Mayer before the latter's return to the Coast this next weekend. Ben Goetz, European production chief, left Coastwards Sunday to remain until Eckman's arrival for Coast confabs.

'Trunk' in Boston

Boston, April 23.—Warner Bros.' "Saratoga Trunk" opens at the Metropolitan Theatre here Thursday for five shows a day, establishing a precedent for the house which has previously operated on a four-shows-daily policy.

School Days

Many queries have been coming in, asking who the pianist was on the Frank Sinatra show the other evening. Believe it or not, it was Shirley Ross who, when she was Bernice Gaunt, played piano and sang in her school plays. And she was so exceptional in both accomplishments that it was, figuratively speaking, the toss of a coin as to which career she should embrace. Singing won, and the piano-playing on the Sinatra program was the first she had done for public hearing for a long time.

Rank Will Outsmart That British Fog

Phil Spiegel yesterday joined Warner Brothers field staff and was assigned by Mort Blumenstock, veepee in charge of advertising and publicity, to work under Art Moger in the New England territory. Spiegel was formerly with Comerford circuit as theatre manager in Scranton.

MGM WRITERS ASK RATIONING IN COMMISSARY

Elimination of meats, fats, cereals and wheat products from the Metro commissary menu on Tuesdays and Fridays was asked yesterday by Screen Writers Guild members on the studio payroll. In a resolution signed by approximately 100 of the 120 writers employed on the lot, scribblers declare their desire to "help relieve the critical food shortage which is causing mass starvation throughout the world."

In signing the resolution, writers agreed to eat no meats, fat, cereals and wheat products on the stipulated days, and asked Eddie Mannix to see that a studio luncheon is prepared that will enable them to keep the pledge. Writers believe that by initiating the rationing method at Metro, action will inspire others to follow same example in aiding to relieve critical food shortages.

Introducing

DON BAILEY

The Sincerity Kid

WHO CAME TO HOLLYWOOD FOR HIS VERY FIRST KISS

As early as his sixth year in school, this personable youngster proved his capacity for registering with the public. Competing for the position of permanent announcer for the weekly air-shows over the school network, Don was selected by an overwhelming majority of the listeners. This position he held for three successive years.

His "audience power" was further proven, when, with practically no dramatic experience, he was offered a meaty role in a major Ohio State University production of last season, "Petticoat Fever."

Possessing a highly inspiring speaking voice, the screen aspirant was commended by professional radio people after his participation in a debate on the atomic bomb question over Station WOSU, Columbus, Ohio. Several listeners, unknown to the debater, asked to meet the person with the marvelous voice, whom they swore was a professional entertainer.

He was among the relatively few who have been approached by the staff of the Ohio State Lantern, nationally recognized student publication, for guest articles. A talented writer, whom Regina Roth, English instructor majoring on a Ph.D. at Ohio State, rated "the most vivid imagination of any writer I have worked with."

Nineteen, Don has extremely photogenic facial features. In height, five feet, seven inches, with dark brown hair and blue eyes, the lad descends from Irish-German ancestry. Weight, 137 pounds. His particular abilities include heavy dramatic acting, singing, and swimming. "A future Spencer Tracy or James Cagney"—William Breighton, agent, speaking.

Interested in seeing an original human interest comedy-fantasy, "Home on the Hillside," on celluloid, Don is seeking financial backing. However, at present he's very happy at the completion of "Heaven Was Never Like This," the story of a man's man — who got married. Don has hopes of its rivaling Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind."

This juvenile can be called upon at HALE'S MOBILGAS SERVICE, 3332 EAST OLYMPIC BLVD., after 7 P.M. ONLY. Phone calls ditto. ANgelus 9036.

Richard Wiley, Agent.

And, oh yes—ANY GIRL DISCOVERING DECEITFUL INFORMATION IN THIS AD (including the FIRST KISS) WILL RECEIVE 10 FREE KISSES.

FROZEN FOOD NEW FILM LURE FOR HOUSEWIVES

New York, April 23. — Newest gimmick luring housewives from homes into theatres is a plan to sell frozen foods via automatic vendors in lobbies. Thus, the woman would not be worried about fixing her husband's dinner.

By merely dropping the required coins in a slot, she would receive completely prepared foods, requiring 20 minutes heating. Scheme was worked out by the Grand Food Products Corp., operators of super-modern frozen food markets in New York. Prexy Sam Mataway expects to have machines in theatres within the year.

the Metropolitan Life. Deal was arranged by Lehman Brothers and Hayden Stone and Company.

Of the proceeds approximately $7,800,000 will go to buy in a like principal amount of mortgage debts which have an average life of about four and one-half years and carry an average interest rate of more than 4.4 per cent. Average annual charges for interest and debt retirement on the new $20,000,000 issue will be approximately equal to the combined average annual charges on the $7,800,000 of mortgage debts being refinanced.

Balance of the funds raised by the deal will go for general purposes. Serials are due in equal annual installments of $800,000 to April 1, 1956. The debentures call for an annual sinking fund of $800,000 starting April 1, 1957, the balance maturing April 1, 1966.

Metro Sends Scout To Lure Kelly Back

sult in the expulsion of Hughes for using disapproved ad copy in exploiting "The Outlaw," although producer had already sent a telegram, received today, giving his immediate resignation.

Apparently convinced by Hughes counsel that the MPA board might go farther and withdraw the Production Code Administration Seal from "The Outlaw," originally granted in 1943, Judge Leibell set a hearing for tomorrow on temporary injunction to restrain such action.

Hughes suit filed Monday against MPAA claimed such action would result in a virtual boycott from 90 per cent of the exhibitors and could cause losses as high as $5,000,000.

BALLROOM OWNERS SLASH PAY FOR NAME BANDS

Local ballroom operators, who as recently as last month were so savagely bidding against each other for name bands they tilted contract coin to all-time high, seem to have snapped the rubber band on the bankroll. Within last five days numerous orks have been turned down, with terpalace potentates bluntly telling agencies to slash money demands.

Roundly nixed has been Casa Loma crew, offered by General Artists Corp. at $5,500 weekly. Ballrooms nodded "no" all over town, reminding agency that outfit got $4,500 or thereabouts last summer at Casino Gardens and that that was top figure they'd consider. GAC went into huddle and bobbed up with statement that flat $5,000 was lowest figure Cork O'Keefe, manager of Casa Loma, would accept. No one has accepted.

William Morris agency has had same experience with Hal McIntyre, putting band up on block at $5,500 a week, getting no nibbles, and dropping price by $500 and still no sales, with only soon-to-open Avodon reported making an offer, that of $4,500. Music Corp. of America roundrobined the town asking $4,000 for Skinnay Ennis, with no takers, and last night agency was reported ready to make deal with Sherman hotel, Chicago.

Palladium is still saying no to Benny Goodman's demand of $8,500 a stanza to play site for run, starting Oct. 15. Maury Cohen's caper-hall is paying steepest salary to a band it ever has paid, for Glenn Miller-Tex Beneke combo, which comes in Sept. 3, at $7,500, but the asking price originally was $10,000, and aside from Palladium only one other local dancery, the Avodon, was willing to go to accepted figure.

OBITUARIES

LOUIS FREDERICK MORRISON

Louis Frederick Morrison, 80, stage and screen actor, died Monday at his home. Services will be held tomorrow at Pierce Bros. Inglewood mortuary with cremation to follow.

LIONEL ATWILL

Private funeral services will be held for Lionel Atwill, 61, who died Monday night following pneumonia attack. Atwill had been ill for some time but appeared to be recovering when seized with pneumonia. Born in Croydon, England, Atwill started his stage career at the age of 20 after studying architecture.

During the decade up to 1915, Atwill played in London and on tour with several repertory companies. He came to the United States in 1915 as leading man for Lily Langtry in "Mrs. Thompson." He remained here on the stage appearing in several plays, including "Tiger, Tiger" with Lenore Ulric, a season of Ibsen repertory, then finally in the title role of "Deburau."

From 1920 to 1932, Atwill played in such productions as "The Outsider," "The Thief," "Napoleon," "Fioretta," "Stripped," "The Silent Witness" and others. In 1932 he came to Hollywood to appear in the film version of "The Silent Witness" and stayed here from then on. He had top roles in such films as "Doctor X," "Mystery of the Wax Museum," "Nana," "Stamboul Quest," "Captain Blood," "The Road Back," "The Great Waltz," "The Three Musketeers," "The Gorilla," "Balalaika," "Boom Town," "The Ghost of Frankenstein," "Cairo," "Pardon My Sarong," and "Frankenstein Meets the Wolf Man." Atwill's widow, Paula Pruter, radio writer, is his fourth wife, having married him in 1943. Prevously he was wed to Phyllis Relph and Elsie Mackay, British actresses; and Louise Cromwell MacArthur, former wife of General Douglas MacArthur.

In addition to his widow, Atwill leaves a six months old son and three brothers, latter all living in England. Another son, Pilot Officer John Arthur Atwill, was killed in 1941 while serving with the R.A.F.

Private funeral services will be held at Pierce Brothers Memorial Chapel in Santa Monica with cremation to follow.

FILM MARKET SEEN IN AUSTRALIA, ARGENTINA

Washington, April 23.—A good market for U.S. motion picture equipment exists in Argentina and Australia, the Motion Picture Unit of the Department of Commerce reported tonight. Here is the way it looks:

Argentina: Has 1,600 theatres with projection equipment ranging up to 25 years old and averaging 10 years old, even in the modern houses. Commerce sees a top market for new and reconditioned projectors if U.S. dealers get going before European manufacturers recover. An estimated 60 per cent of the sound equipment also will have to be replaced, although many of the smaller theatres cannot afford the tariff. If prices of mechanical refrigeration can be reduced, some of that can also be sold. There is also some market for studio sound equipment and for a handful of studio cameras.

Australia: If import controls are removed, about one-third of the theatre projectors may be replaced within three years. Much of the sound equipment also needs replacement. There is a market for studio cameras and theatre refrigeration equipment. Very little market for such odds and ends as rewinds, automatic ticket selling machines, screens, reels, carpets, etc.

'Over 21' at Mayan

"Over 21" opens tonight at the Mayan theatre under the production aegis of Lou Levy. Mabel Albertson has the lead role in the Ruth Gordon comedy and the cast includes Pat McVey, Patricia Riordan, David Fulmer and Paul Maxey.

NEWSPAPERS ARE GRANTED 166 FM OUTLETS

Washington, April 23.—The press is moving in on broadcasting as though it intends to gobble the whole show, according to an analysis of FM grants issued last night by FCC.

Survey shows that as of April 1 FCC had received 834 applications for FM outlets, no less than 330 of them coming from newspapers. The remaining 504 are divided up among old line broadcasters and all other classes of businessmen, as well as labor, educational and religious institutions, etc.

Only 13 of the applications for FM channels have come from people in the entertainment industry. Labor unions have asked 15 outlets, and advertising agencies have requested five.

To date, the Commission has approved 381 conditional grants for FM stations. Of these 166 have gone to newspaper interests, the remaining 215 being divided among all other classifications. Show business people have gotten only three grants.

Joan Leslie Loses Suit Against Warners

Joan Leslie yesterday lost her suit to void her contract with Warner Bros. The actress, just turned 21, had sued on the ground that she was a minor when she signed the pact. Superior Judge Henry M. Willis ruled against her and enjoined her from violating the contract or accepting employment with any other studio. Actress said she will appeal.

Tetzlaff Returning

Camera crew, headed by director Ted Tetzlaff, is due back next Monday from Canal Zone, where two weeks were spent filming backgrounds for RKO's "Riffraff."

Old Acquaintances

For the first time since "Now, Voyager" four years ago, Bette Davis, Paul Henreid, Claude Rains, and Director Irving Rapper were reunited today in pre-production rehearsals for Warner Bros.' "Deception."

PLUGGERS WAR ON AMATEURS

Coast members of Music Publishers' Contact Employes (songpluggers' union) yesterday determined upon a plan designed further to retard efforts of amateur songwriters to get name band leaders to lamp their unpublished compositions. At a board meeting of union decision was reached to petition batoneers to ask to be shown union card by anyone approaching with a song.

What success songpluggers will have with plan has not been indicated. Freddy Martin and Bob Crosby reportedly were first leaders contacted and both are said to have wanted to mull matter before giving union an answer.

'McGurk' At Bat

Metro has started lensing on "The Mighty McGurk," with Wallace Beery in the star role. John Waters is directing for Nat Perrin who makes his bow as producer on this film. Supporting cast includes Dean Stockwell, Edward Arnold, Aline MacMahon, Dorothy Patrick, Cameron Mitchell and Vince Barnett.

Theodora Lynch featured in Universal's "Fandango" on May 7 and May 10 will do an ARA album of Rimsky-Korsakov songs used in the picture.

Al Sack's instrumental album, "Velvet Moods," is a complete sellout in 15 distributing points on the West Coast, and the Black and White Company is pressing more discs.

Garwood Van is preparing a folio of his most-requested orchestral arrangements, including his famous rendition of "Stardust."

Tina Dixon inked into Orpheum, week of May 7.

Claude Lakey, for five years alto sax with Harry James and a recent Army dischargee, has formed 17-piece ork, which yesterday was pacted for platters by 4 Star Records.

Connie Haines has waxed four new sides for Mercury Records.

Music Survey will set a new record for time spent between cutting and release of a disc. After cutting its first platter Friday (26), Survey will release it five days later to 600 record jockeys around country. Initial release is "That's My Home" for Leeds Music. Stewart Wade was set yesterday to sing number, with backing of 27-piece band under Vic Schoen.

U.S. ZONE HAS 456 FILM SPOTS

Washington, April 24.—Total of 456 film houses are now operating in the American zone of occupation in Germany, AMG announced tonight. Figure was achieved by issuing added licenses last week.

A German theatre and music screening board has been set up in Kassel to handle the applicants. Four live show theatres were also licensed last week, upping the total in the zone to 283.

THE 'BIG' ONE

Survey of Madison Square Garden in New York is being made for Howard Hughes to determine whether sports and spectacle spot would be suitable for run of "The Outlaw." If picture does go into the Garden, there is a possibility two screens will be used. Garden could accommodate between 17,000 and 18,000 people a performance.

Korda Reissue Deal Cooling Off

New York, April 24.—Negotiations by Ideal Factoring Corp. for reissue rights in U.S. and Canada to 29 old Korda productions have somewhat chilled. Martin Hersh, Ideal prez, considered Korda demands too steep, but Hersh reps will probably resume dickering at later date.

Court Bans Prod Bar On 'Outlaw' Or Ads

New York, April 24.—Motion Picture Association of America today was restrained by U.S. District Court from removing its seal of approval from "The Outlaw." Restraining order, issued by Judge Vincent Leibell, also prevents MPAA from interfering with advertising used to exploit the picture or with its release.

Order is returnable May 3, date Judge Leibell has set for a hearing on Howard Hughes' application for an injunction against MPAA to halt interference with the film, or lifting of the seal. MPAA has postponed scheduled Friday meeting, at which its board of directors was to consider what action to take against Hughes in the contro-

WB Board Votes Stock Divvy; Par Expected To Cut Melon

New York, April 24.—Following action of the Warners board today in submitting a two for one stock dividend to stockholders for approval, talk in Wall Street was that Paramount would cut a melon in the near future.

The Warner plan on which stockholders will vote in August provides for a 37½c dividend on the new stock if voted which would be equal to three dollars a year on the present certificates. The first divvy on the new stock would be payable in October. The board declared the regular 50c divvy on the present stock payable July 3 to record of June 7.

The plan voted by the board provides for increasing the present authorized

CROSBY DEAL IS SEEN NEAR

Foote, Cone & Belding agency was said last night to have the inside track on a radio deal for Bing Crosby. Emerson Foote flew out from New York for talks with The Groaner and returns east today with what is believed to be completed negotiations.

From Chicago also comes word that FCB has the deal "practically wrapped up." At the agency it was admitted that there had been conversations between Foote and Crosby but that a deal had not yet been concluded. Understood that an account outside the agency would sponsor Crosby in the event contracts are signed.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

SCREEN Composers Association, newly formed group of 94 film scorers, will have difficulty inducing American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers to give screen background-music cleffers a special slice of the approximately $1,250,000 annually collected from film houses by ASCAP. The revenue is derived from license the Society issues to theatres, making available to them performance rights to ASCAP's available catalog. This factor gives ASCAP an out, since film scores are not part of its catalog unless published by firms holding membership. In future confabs with reps of SCA, the Society will hold that it cannot improve classification of average screen scorer because his works are not published by an affiliated firm and also that salaries composers receive from studios are so scaled on basis that payments are complete realization scorers will get for compositions, all rights to which are consigned to companies producing the pictures.

THE "King Tut curse" gets a play again in the filming of "Bella Donna" by International. This is the first time the "curse" has been used in pictures. It was hot Sunday supplement stuff following the death of Lord Carnarvon in the early 20's after he headed the expedition that exhumed the mummy of Kink Tut-Ankh-Amen from its Egyptian tomb. Story of the curse was that any mortal venturing to disturb the remains of the king was in for a spell of very tough luck, indeed. In the "Bella Donna" yarn, written about 20 years before the Carnarvon incident, a man digging for the mummy of Rameses V suddenly keels over after finding the body. Actual cause is slow poison which has been administered by his wife, but the old curse is made to take the rap.

FIRST studio response to President Truman's appeal to conserve food was at Paramount yesterday. Printed notice on the commissary menus informed patrons that in case of certain food items portions, though adequate, would be limited. Under program put in effect in the three restaurants on the lot pie and cake is served only four days a week; wheat cakes are similarly limited; there is only one breakfast roll or one doughnut to a serving; one slice of bread with each entree. Sugar has been taken off the table and only one teaspoonful is served with a cup of coffee or tea. Restaurants serve a total of 4000 persons a day. So far there have been no squawks about the new set-up.

ONE of the major objectives of Gradwell Sears' current European junket is to acquire a permanent United Artists showcase in London's West End district. Understood that the Prince Edward is the shop window involved in the deal. Sears also is working out a deal for a West End screening of David O. Selznick's "Spellbound." Film was originally slated to screen at the New Gallery theatre last February, but Selznick nixed the idea. Producer, it was reported, doesn't want merely a prestige run in London, but is shooting primarily for a big box-office.

MAX Gordon yesterday wired Nunnally Johnson and George S. Kaufman that he had booked their forthcoming play, "Park Avenue," into a New Haven theatre opening Sept. 18—and first act is only half written. Pair are collabing on satire of divorce among upper classes in New York, with Arthur Schwartz and Ira Gershwin writing music and lyrics. Johnson is sandwiching in writing stint between editing "The Dark Mrror," which he produced for International, and scripting "Peabody's Mermaid," his next International production.

CASTING of Charles Boyer for the lead in "Arch of Triumph" has brought down a flood of fan letters on Enterprise Films, according to the flackery. Most of them protest. Some thought Paul Henreid should have had the part. Some complain because it went to a Frenchman. Others favor Paul Muni. Only fans apparently, who are waiting in silence to see how the picture comes out, are the ones who favor Charles Boyer for the part.

When a crooner comes along."

'OVER 21' GIVES SPICY TAKEOFF OF ARMY LIFE

Ruth Gordon's comedy of life among the military, "Over 21," was given its first Coast performance last night at the Mayan theatre as a presentation of Lou Levy's. Typical first night turnout gave it and the cast a spontaneous reception through the three acts of raucous comedy and spicy repartee.

Although play has a distinct military flavor, and is dated as war plays go, it has enough broad farce to make it stand on its own wit and its smug take-off on certain public characters not too skillfully disguised. Mabel Albertson plays the lead role, said to be a delineation of Dorothy Parker, and other portrayals are stencils of Ralph Ingersoll, Marshall Field and Orson Welles.

Mostly a conversational piece, some of the wittiest lines are lost beyond the 10th row. Miss Albertson seemed too busy moving around to whip home the lines with telling effect. Others were equally guilty. Cast for the most part is competent if not distinguished. Miss Albertson keeps the laughs rolling and is given adequate support by Patricia Riordan, David Fulmer, Pat McVey, Paul Maxey, Elizabeth Kerr, Mack Williams, Philip Van Zandt and Jean Trent.

"Over 21" won't set any records at the Mayan but should make a profitable run of it.

Tipica Players Still A Click At Ebell

The Mexico City Tipica revue opened at the Wilshire Ebell theatre last night, a boff return engagement which featured old favorites as well as new. Trio Janitzio again starred and brought down the house with its warbling and guitar playing. Other favorites to return were Carlos and Chabela, a dance team, and Los Serranitas, vocal duo, who clicked solidly. New featured players are Lupita Alday, Hermanos Julian and Antonio Escobar, who did the accompaniment. Miss Alday does sexy warbling while the Hermanas Julian are triplets who do a south of the border version of the Andrews Sisters without the jive. It's a click show and a must for all Latin music lovers.

Gower Gulch Waddy Defends Sweet Warbling Cowboys

The Gower Gulch "song versus saddle" feud flared anew yesterday with Ken Curtis, Columbia's singing cowboy star, lashing out at the tone-deaf cowhand contingent.

The song-in-the-sagebrusher, who grew up on his dad's cattle ranch in Colorado, threw this defi to "Hopalong" William Boyd, a leader of the anti-singing faction.

"I'll ride all day and do everything you do and still be able to sing—and sing good—when the day is over and you're sweating is out in a Turkish bath."

Curtis said he and other cowhand warblers, resented Boyd's cracks about "saddle-sore Sinatras" and "red, white and blue costumes."

"Tom Mix was a great cowhand and a mighty fancy dresser to boot. When I was a kid on the ranch we used to be mighty jealous of Mix's getup on the screen. The roughest cowpokes in Colorado would spend their last silver cartwheels on the best 'red, white and blue' outfits in town. And as to singing, Boyd should have been around some Saturday nights in town and heard some real fancy warbling and fiddling. A real cowhand was a mighty versatile guy in the old days—if you don't believe me ask your grandma."

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

Maybe it's dollar diplomacy, but it's a weapon that we have and can use. The $90,000,000 loan to Poland goes to one of the countries within the Soviet sphere, Czechoslovakia is the other, which has been permitted some economic liberty. While Finland is obliged to send to the Soviet reparations payments which amount to as much a year as Finland used to export, the economy of Poland is not being stripped by reparations and controlled by boards on which the Soviet have key posts. Poland will supply Russia with about 5 million tons of coal and coke, 70,000 tons of iron and steel, 70,000 tons of cement, and smaller quantities of zinc, byproducts and a few chemicals, and perform certain finishing on orders in textiles and footwear. But Poland has had enough freedom to be able to make barter agreements with Sweden, Denmark, Rumania, Norway, and Hungary, and will now make some with us. In addition, we gain assurance of safeguarding of United States property interests and adequate compensation for any properties taken over in nationalization. We also are promised "free and unfettered elections." Our dollar diplomacy is being used to protect our interests, and, as we see it, to try to promote the economic and political freedom of the Polish people.

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Associate producer-director, Joseph Kane. Screenplay, Frances Hyland. Original story, Jerome Odlum. Adaptation, Frank Gruber. Photography, Jack Marta. Art direction, James Sullivan. Set decorations, John McCarthy, Jr., Earl Wooden. Musical director, Morton Scott. Orchestral arrangements, Dale Butts. Editor, Fred Allen. Sound, Bill Clark. Special effects, Howard and Theodore Lydecker. Musical numbers staged by Fanchon. Costumes, Adele Palmer.

PREVIEWED at studio, April 24, 1946. Running time: 90 MINS.

"In Old Sacramento" is kept fast-paced throughout, to qualify as a satisfactory high-budget western and net Republic nice returns on its investment. Co-starring William Elliott and Constance Moore, this Joseph Kane production carries a romantic story which ends tragically. Plot isn't overly novel, but treatment is sufficiently endowed with showmanship values to hold audience attention.

Story opens in 1851, when Elliott and his brother are robbed of their gold claim, brother being killed trying to regain it. Action picks up two years later, when Elliott, ostensibly a gambler, actually is the notorious Spanish Jack who robs Wells Fargo stages of gold dust, as his just due for gold he lost when courts ruled against his claim. Miss Moore, star singer in gambling casino, in Sacramento, is in love with him, but she's afraid to marry him, suspecting he is the outlaw. Love story hews around this situation, with holdups, vigilante chases and singing filling in.

Elliott delivers strongly with his masquerading and turns in a top performance which will bolster his popularity as a feature star. Miss Moore fulfills her role with sincerity. Her warbling of four songs, particularly "Camp Town Races," is a treat, and numbers are logically interpolated without any particular pause in action.

Supporting roles are colorfully portrayed and well cast. Hank Daniels plays young miner in love with femme star who innocently is responsible for Elliott's death. Ruth Donnelly adds note of humor as Sacramento boarding-house keeper and companion of Miss Moore, and Eugene Pallette renders telling performance as the sheriff eternally tracking down Spanish Jack. Jack LaRue and Lionel Stander are outstanding, too, others without exception capably handling their respective roles.

Kane, as producer-director, does his customary notable job and has fashioned a picture with every attribute of success. He has a well motivated screenplay by Frances Hyland to work with, Frank Gruber doing adaptation of Jerome Odlum's original story. Jack Martin's photography is interesting, art direction by James Sullivan, and set decorations by John McCarthy, Jr., and Earl Wooden atmospheric and Fanchon's musical dance numbers were cleverly staged. Other departments contribute tellingly to film's advantage.

John Laurenz, recently signed to a contract by RKO, reports May 15 to play role of Chito in "Code of the West," second in the new Zane Grey series.

'SCARLET ST.' HELD NEITHER LEWD NOR IMMORAL

Atlanta, April 24. — Superior Judge Bond Almand today, on basis of "overwhelming evidence," overruled censor's ban on "Scarlet Street," and held that picture is not "lewd, licentious, immoral or detrimental to the health, morals or good order of the city," as claimed by Miss Christine Smith, Atlanta censor.

Five-day extension was granted city and its Board of Censors, however, to carry case to State Supreme Court, provided they post $10,000 bond to protect Diana Productions and Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., from any loss they may suffer as result of delay caused by appeal.

Court also ruled Miss Smith, under censorship ordinance, has no authority to ban a picture en toto, but may only demand deletion of certain scenes. Banning power is reserved to Board of Censors, to which she is responsible but does not belong. Judge Almand found that Board, which split four to four on motion to sustain Miss Smith's ban, had not taken positive action itself to ban picture.

Paul Short, negotiating with studios for rights to Frances Parkinson Keye's "River Road," has already rejected a $75,000 bid . . . Natural for Walt Disney: Frank Tashlin's "The Bear That Wasn't," which is sort of an animal story mixed with Chaplin's "Modern Times" . . . Vincent Sollecito, who rescued Greer Garson from the ocean, will play a role in her film, "A Woman of My Own." Studio still doesn't know, however, whether he'll make acting or fishing his career . . . Lost weekend in Mexico: New book by Malcom Lowrie is "Under the Volcano," story of a Mexican dipsomaniac . . . HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: The animal world is moving in on Hollywood, and it looks like the beginning of the end. Or maybe these are all just coincidences and it isn't quite time to take to the hills. At Universal they were shooting the highlight of International's "Bella Donna," the scene where Merle Oberon poisons Charles Korvin. In the middle of his death throes, a mournful and accusing "Who— who— who" sounded from the rafters of the soundstage, giving the impression the picture was a cheap whodunit. It was one of those owls which swoop out of the hills and louse up production at Universal. Studio has a sharpshooter employed solely to discourage the glum fowl. At Warners' lake exterior for "Cloak and Dagger," a pair of belligerent sea gulls flapped around, showing off and holding up production for an hour or so until they tired of the sport. And at Enterprise, Evelyn, a mother cat, became obstreperous. Days ago she decided the gateman's post wasn't suitable for her five kittens and moved into Sol Wurtzel's auditing department. Hugh Oliver, the auditor, moved the cat family out of his office and into the cutting rooms. Yesterday Evelyn reappeared in Oliver's office, one kitten in her mouth, so he gave up and transported the rest of the litter himself. And Evelyn flicked her tail haughtily . . . It happened in Warners' commissary yesterday—William Powell, the "Thin Man," and Sydney Greenstreet, the "Fat Man," both of whom benefited by playing Dashiel Hammett characters, lunched together . . . Lt. Col. Bill Neff, air officer attached to General Patton's headquarters during the war, is testing for the role of Loretta Young's brother this week in "Katie for Congress" . . . Bette Davis' piano lessons for "Deception" are being given by Shura Cherkassy, concert pianist.

CALL SHEET: DESI ARNAZ won't have any at liberty time this year. After he finishes "Cuban Pete" at Universal, he takes his band to New York for a May 9 opening at the Copacabana, where he'll be engaged all summer. Then he goes on a two months tour of key cities, and winds up at Ciro's late this fall . . . GARWOOD VAN'S ex-vocalists include James Brown, Gale Storm and Jeri Sullivan . . . BOB LANDRY, Life photographer, is still in all the joints. That's not a bit of scandal-mongering either. Now shooting a layout on "Life with Father," he has been drafted to cover the atomic bomb tests in the Marshalls and had to take tetanus, typhoid and smallpox shots . . . KENT SMITH leaves for New York in two weeks to discuss play offers . . . XAVIER CUGAT will marry Lorraine Allen, rhumba-dancing beauty, when his divorce becomes final. She was known as Lorraine Breacher in Hollywood. Romance started on the set of "Holiday in Mexico" at Metro . . . ANN SHERIDAN plans to take off for New York in two weeks to visit Steve Hannegan . . . JACK RICHARDSON, silent pix villain, has returned to the screen a changed man. In Columbia's "Down to Earth" he plays an angel.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Samir Rizkallah, playing Abdullah in "Bella Donna," was quizzed by technical advisor Ramsay Hill as to his literacy in Arabic. He promptly inscribed an Arab proverb which was placed over the fireplace in one of the film's main sets and which, Rizkallah holds, tells the story of the picture—"A man between two women is like a rabbit between two dogs." So any shots in the finished film including that proverb should make it a howling success in Saudi Arabia, Port Said, Aden, Medina, Mecca, etc. . . . Wire from Prentice-Hall states that 110,600 copies of Rosamond Marshall's novel, "Duchess of Hotspur," another hotfoot for the censors, are being run off the presses before publication . . . "Ice-Capades of 1946," which downtown sport pages herald as a major sporting event of the season, being as how the newspapers receive large contributions to their "charity funds," opens tonight . . . In the "Perils of Pauline" yesterday, Betty Hutton had to mount a fire engine's ladder on a crowded set. As she climbed she extemporized, "Oh, my poor baby, I think he'll turn out to be a fireman!" . . . Irene Hervey will play the role originated on Broadway by Ruth Hussey, in the Coast company of "State of the Union." Company begins rehearsals in two weeks . . . Veronica Lake's daughter Elaine, 4½ years old, gives her first piano recital at the Bevhills hotel tomorrow—playing Chopin, no less.——D.D.T.

BILL ANSON GETS KFWB'S DISC JOCKEY POST

Bill Anson of Chicago's WBKB is new disc jockey of KFWB here. He is choice of ad agency, press and other industry persons. He is due to assume the job in two to four weeks after serving notice to his present employer.

Winner was voted in by 150-odd ad agency judges attending party at Ambassador Hotel. Contestants were piped via direct wire from various locales throughout country. Anonymous field is estimated to have started with dozen or more. This was boiled to seven for event. Bob Alda, Warner film player, m.c.'d when Martin Block, visiting ace jockey, declined invitation.

Smith, Bull and McCreery agency handled entire deal for WB. They will also direct follow-up promotion campaign budgeted for $50,000 to re-build 13-year-old station disc marathon. Three and half hour slot was formerly tagged "Make Believe Ballroom" under Al Jarvis, now on KLAC.

Time has been used for past five weeks without personality buildup in preparation for big splash. Some trade observers believe a good bet was lost in not jazzing spot immediately. Campaign to hypo will include car cards, billboards, Warner theatre tieups, trailers, trade and daily newspaper advertising.

Platter pilot gets minimum guarantee of $250 weekly in deal, plus talent fees, spot biz percentages, etc., for possible $1,000 take.

EARL CARROLL SKETCHBOOK

BRITISHERS WANT TO BRING OLD VIC REPERTORY HERE

Movement is on foot, fostered by number of British players here, to bring London's Old Vic repertory company to Hollywood, following completion of its six-week engagement in New York. Historic company opens May 6 at Century Theatre in east, personnel headed by Laurence Olivier and Ralph Richardson slated to come over from London via Clipper.

Group trying to promote westward trek is composed of such members of English colony as Ronald Colman and Benita Hume, Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer, David Niven and Robert Coote. Hollywood Bowl is being talked of as showplace for repertory troupe, if negotiations resolve into actuality. Understood there is strong likelihood that company will play here, repertory including "Uncle Vanya," "Henry IV," "Oedipus" and "The Critic."

June Duprez Will Join Repertory

June Duprez heads for New York, immediately she winds up in Republic's "That Brennan Girl," to join American Repertory Theatre in its season of plays. She will appear with such players as Eva LeGallienne, Margaret Webster, Walter Hampton and Victor Jory.

'Sing' Castings

Walter Catlett, Isabelita, Jack Marshall, Louis De Pron, Moro and Yaconello and the Guadalajara Trio were signed by Universal yesterday for featured spots in "Oh, Say Can You Sing." Picture rolls Friday with Will Jason directing.

CRESTA BLANCA WINES

LIGHT AND AIRY

—By JACK HELLMAN—

You can hear it buzzed around in the better saloons and one of these days is will emerge into reality. The "it" has to do with the setting up of a department, agency-attached or independent, specializing in new program ideas and their development. We're not even vaguely hinting that producers in the commission houses are not alerted to the improvement of their own programs but the main point is that there has been a general lack of fresh ideas or departures from accepted formulae. Such an organization as proposed would concentrate on only one element—new ideas. Their scope could be broadened to include the doctoring of ailing shows but that would be incidental to the main approach.

The handwriting is clear that the day of the sellers market is dissolving into a fadeout. The buyer will soon be having the whole say again and that means the product will have to improve or he'll take his bankroll elsewhere. The agency that hops on production specialization early will have the plush seat on the bandwagon. There is a definite need of creative thinking in the agencies and those who accept this challenging opportunity will find they have set up a defense against "wandering" accounts. The snipers will be busy as ever and clients will look to greener fields but those on the beam with new approaches to old problems will find their enterprise operating as insurance against more aggressive tactics by competitive agencies. An an independent adjunct to the business or agency-controlled it could serve a useful and constructive purpose. Three or four seasoned indie producers are toying with the idea and if it comes up feasible and remunerative enough they'll set up shop and go into the packaging business. Agents have done alright with their own shows and creativeness has never been their stock in trade.

Mistakes inherent in first shows will be overcome in the new device to be invoked by Gil Ralston in setting up the Don Ameche series for Procter & Gamble (Drene). Not one platter but as many as are deemed necessary to arrive at a successful format will be cut before the first program goes out on the air. In that way, Ralston deduces, the client can make a choice and errors of judgment corrected well in advance of the initial broadcast. Apologies for a first show have been a trade weakness and often the reviewer is asked to by-pass the opener because of script roughage and shaky production. Ralston's plan should find many takers and eliminate first night jitters. There's no excuse for putting a show on the air before it's ready.

Chain breaks . . . Just to keep you up-to-date on the Crosby rumors, it is now grapevined that he'll stay on NBC with General Motors footing the bills. Brother Everett and Lawyer O'Melveny met yesterday to discuss the more promising proposals. Story goes that Bing won't sign any deal before he gives Kraft an opportunity to match it. After all, a 12-year association is not broken off so easily . . . Jack Smith must have a picture deal cooking. His agency is checking on studio space at KNX . . . Sheila Graham, syndicate columnist, takes over the Rayve shampoo spot on Don Lee from Lois January May 5. When Ken Dolan heard that Rayve's agency was shopping for a film gossiper, he immediately put the NANA pillar filler on wax and spun it for a fast sale . . . Al Kabaker now handling radio writers for William Morris, additional to his duties with Dancer, Sample & Fitzgerald . . . Ronald Colman will do "If I Were King" on Academy Award Theatre May 11 . . . Georgia Gibbs, Kay Starr and Dinah Shore, in that sequence, do guest duty with Tony Martin from May 4 to 18 . . . Kay Kyser drops in on Lum and Abner Monday night, their first caller in three years.

Kyser hung up some kind of a record for the season when he made seven the wrong way on a Hooper roll. Fact is he did even better than that, tacking on a .2 overage just for good measure and to tease G. W. Hill. That, we believe, is the longest skid of the year. From the looks of the book most of his audience just closed up their sets and went away from there. Only real competish on the first half hour, where the —7.2 came up, is "Great Moments in Music," which picked up a mere half a point. On the second half hour Kyser's loss dwindled to 2.5, with another musical competitor, "Holiday for Music," taking .1 profit to hit the big board at 6.2. Kyser was tabbed at 10.9 and 11.5. The others checked in thusly: Bob Crosby 9.8, up 2.6; "Dr. Christian" 12.6, off 4.3; Eddie Cantor 16.1, off 1.1; Frank Sinatra 9, off 1.9; Jack Carson 7.1, off 2.7; Supper Club 8.2, off 1.7. On the Thursday line Dinah Shore's 3.4 drop to 11.1 was the most serious casualty. Minuses also showed up for most of the others. Abbott and Costello took 3.1 loss for 14.6; Bing Crosby 20.1, off 3.1; Burns and Allen 11.2, off 1.2; Jack Haley 17.8, off 1.7; Lum and Abner 5.6, up 1.5; Dick Powell 4.1, up .3; Rudy Vallee 10.8, off 1.6; "Suspense" 12.7, off 2.

Hitch hikes . . . Campbell soup has let its option lapse on Mickey Rooney and he's being offered around to other agencies with considerable interest by one of the big commission houses. He would be used to bolster an ailing show. Rumored that Campbell's payoff to Rooney while he was in the Army will add up to around $75,000 with the soup canner taking his loss . . . Ed Gardner renewed for another season by Bristol-Myers, his sixth with "Duffy" . . . Bud Ernst lost 51 pounds in a year as producer of "Queen for a Day" so his doc ordered him off the show. Jim Morgan takes over . . . Rudy Vallee is packaging a quarter hour strip called "So You Want to Be a Star," which he will narrate himself . . . Ida Lupino asked that Carlton Morse direct her starring piece on This Is My Best, "The Pond," so Don Clark graciously steps aside . . . Jack Benny and Fred Allen swap guest shots next month in New York.

CBS PREXY FEARS RADIO SCRAMBLE WILL HIT FM

Washington, April 24.—Reversing the field of broadcasters who have testified thus far, Frank Stanton, CBS prexy, told Federal Communications Commission at the clear channel hearing today that a general shuffle of standard broadcast frequencies would retard the development of frequency modulation.

"As we stand on the threshold of a new and superior service to the nation's listeners," he declared, "now is the time to look back into amplitude modulation and patch together temporary remedies. We should keep our eye on the FM ball and we believe that aural broadcasting of the future will be identified with FM almost entirely."

Stanton disclosed that CBS engineering and research people have figured out a nationwide coverage plan which will include a 200-station FM network and service nearly 90 per cent of the population of U.S. To cover the remainder, he said, two new super power AM stations would be necessary to provide rural service at night for the other 10 per cent.

Elmo Wilson, CBS research director, said two recent surveys made for the web emphasize that the same type of radio programs are generally acceptable for both the farmer and city dweller.

PETRILLO SERVES NOTICE HE WANTS PARLEYS ENDED

New York, April 24.—Although unable to reach an agreement today on any points among the money demands being made on producers by American Federation of Musicians, James Petrillo formally announced late this afternoon that he wants the negotiations completed by the end of the week.

Musicians topper explained, in part, that members of his executive board want to go home without further unnecessary delay. Today's meeting was the first since last Friday due to inability of Nicholas Schenck to attend yesterday's session because of a cold.

Spike Wallace Back From NY Meet

J. K. "Spike" Wallace, prexy of Local 47 musicians union, got in last night from New York, accompanied by Henry Roth, Phil Fischer, and Maury Paul, after attending sessions with international board of American Federation of Musicians and film producer reps. Ray Menhennick, spokesman for studioite musicians, and Lee Bagley, AFM v-p, remained in New York to continue discussions.

Hebert Off to SF

William Hebert, head of advertising and publicity for Samuel Goldwyn, takes off today for San Francisco. He will assist the S.F. Examiner in promoting the "I Am An American Day" event May 19. Danny Kaye, Eve Arden and the Goldwyn Girls will highlight the show.

Preem At Pasadena

Pasadena Community Playhouse will present American premiere of "Angels Amongst Us" from May 1 to 12. Framtisek Langer wrote the play which will be directed by Barbara Vajda. Gilmor Brown stars.

THEATRE GROUP WILL BATTLE FOR SHOW BUSINESS

New York, April 24.—Creation of machinery to fight adverse theatre legislation now holds top priority spot in current organizational plans of American Theatre Association. Reportedly angled by ATA's board of strategy as the opening wedge in a campaign to unite exhibs behind it, ATA will tackle immediately all existing or threatening legislation.

Theory is that though exhibs may split or vary in their views on trade practices, all see eye-to-eye on tax raids. In the main, ATA's clearing house in legislation fight will be of state-size, with at least one ATA member designated to keep tab on bills legislatively proposed to worst interests of theatres. A preliminary survey is now under way to collate current situation.

15 CENSORSHIP BILLS DUE TO COME UP IN LEGISLATURES

New York, April 24.—With 41 state legislatures sitting in session early in 1947, and at least 15 censorship bills certain to be proposed, the film industry quietly is girding to battle what promises to be biggest drive to date for state and municipal censorship. The drift towards censorship, a war aftermath, follows the idea that Hollywood has let loose after wartime seriousness.

The Motion Picture Association of America will spearhead drive against censorship, but will lean for support on other forces. Particularly, aid is expected from the National Board of Review, which is being strengthened so it more vigorously can oppose political censorship.

STRINGENT CODE IS BEING DRAWN FOR THEATRE ADS

New York, April 24. — Stringent control of theatre advertising will result from new theatre code now being drafted by New York License Commission. Commissioner Benjamin Fielding, at a luncheon meeting with Independent Theatre Owners Association, expounded the five principles governing theatre ads which are to be incorporated in the new code. Step is necessary, Fielding said, because of the number of complaints received from patrons.

He said code will probably ban false statements or misleading titles; indirect misrepresentation through distortion of details; statements or suggestions offensive to public decency; unfair representation of the life and history of all nations; and glorification of illegal activities.

SCRIBBLING

Dorothy Cooper hiked to writer and set on screenplay of "A Date with Judy" at Metro.

SORRELL STRIKE CASE GOING TO JURY TODAY

Trial of rioting charges against Herbert K. Sorrell and other film pickets is expected to be completed this morning and go to the jury in Burbank Police Court by noon. Final arguments to the jury were presented yesterday by William Esterman, defense attorney and rebuttal by Prosecutor George Irving will occupy this morning's session.

While Burbank trial neared an end, 389 pickets arrested at RKO and Paramount last October, were told yesterday that they must stand trial in Los Angeles Municipal Court. Ruling to that effect was made by the Superior Court Appellate department on grounds that although their names were not included in the original suit restraining mass picketing, they were still liable for trial.

Enterprise Gets Foster, Whelan and Head

Enterprise is borrowing freely from Paramount for the Harry "Pop" Sherman production of "Ramrod," bringing Arleen Whelan, Broadway star, and Preston Foster into the cast yesterday on loan-out deal with Paramount. Studio is also borrowing Edith Head, Paramount fashion designer for the picture. Miss Whelan vacations for three weeks in New York before checking in at Enterprise.

it was issuing the following statement by prexy Young:

"We have signed Bryan Foy as executive producer to make high budget films for Pathe Eagle Lion.

ESPY STAYS

"Contrary to published reports, Reeves Espy, who is now under contract to Pathe Industries, Inc., will remain in an executive capacity.

"No change is contemplated in the duties of Robert Benjamin, who is at present devoting nearly all his time to the J. Arthur Rank interests in the United States, United World Pictures, and Pathe Industries, Inc., as legal counsel.

"Harry Thomas will continue as head of distribution of PRC pictures."

Statement, although declaring that Reeves Espy would remain in an executive producing capacity, immediately raised conjecture as to his current status as prexy of PRC Productions.

"As to Espy," Young said last night, "there isn't more I can say at this time. I would rather make no reference as to Espy's status as president of PRC Productions. He is staying on in the employ of the company.

"We are now working on a program to merge all the companies on the PRC lot into one company—Eagle Lion. That may be some time off, and naturally, when and if the merger takes place, it will necessitate an administrative slate of its own."

LINDELOF HANDS AUTONOMY BACK TO FLACK GUILD

Self-government was handed back to the Screen Publicists Guild yesterday by L. P. Lindelof, prexy of the Painters Brotherhood. Trusteeship for local had been in effect since August, 1945. Executive board of SPG will now prepare for its annual election of officers to be held in June. Nominations for positions will take place in May.

Meanwhile, Motion Picture Publicists, IA Local 798, has engaged Robert W. Gilbert as attorney to handle matters before the National Labor Relations Board. Both groups of flacks, and the major studios, are pressing for an election to determine proper collective bargaining representative for studio press agents. Differences of opinion on whether the election should be industry-wide or confined to the nine major studios is one of the things stymying action.

WB BOARD VOTES STOCK DIVVY

common stock from 7,500,000 shares to 10,000,000 with a par value of five dollars. The present 3,701,090 shares now in the hands of the public would be doubled.

Strengthening its financial position, the board voted to prepay $4,773,000 of the outstanding bank loan on May 1. After payment of the regular installment due on that date, there will be left outstanding only $23,865,000 of the $37,000,000 bank loan floated last August.

In addition to voting on the stock dividend, stockholders at the August meeting also will pass on the employes pension plan.

The proposed stock divvy on Warners sent that issue scurrying to a new high while talk of other melons helped the entire motion picture list. Warners soared to 56 at one time, a gain of 5¾ points over the previous close and wound up at 54½. RKO hit a new top at 28 and finished at 27¼. Paramount was at a new high for 16 years at 81½, closing at 80. Loew's was within an eighth of its high at 40⅞, winding at 39⅜. Columbia gained ⅜ at 32⅞ while Universal finished unchanged.

The film issues showed this strength in a decidedly off market, the industrials being off 1.18 and the rails 1.02. Some insiders are predicting that Paramount will be cut two for one and perhaps even three for one as Loew's was a year ago.

versy, until after arguments on the court motion.

MPAA has retained former judge Samuel Rosenman, now in San Francisco, to represent it in the battle. Charles Poleti, former New York governor, is representing Hughes.

GEISLER FIGHTS SF BAN

San Francisco, April 24. — Jerry Geisler, Los Angeles attorney, planed in today to take up the cudgels for Howard Hughes in latter's forthcoming fight against police department for its ban on "The Outlaw." Attorney goes into court tomorrow to seek an injunction preventing police department from interfering with screening of the picture at the United Artists theatre.

Police swooped down on theatre Tuesday night, opening day, seized the print and arrested Manager Al Dunn. Raid was staged after the last show, and after film had broken every known record for an opening day at the house.

GRABS $4,200 IN DAY

The UA, seating 1,237, played to 7,964 admissions for estimated take of $4,200 on the single day. Dunn was booked on charges of exhibiting an indecent motion picture and released on $100 bail.

Police action was taken, according to Chief of Police Charles Dullea, as a result of a flood of complaints against the picture by church and Parent-Teacher groups. It marked the first time that a major Market street film house has been the target for such an action.

UA is one of a large circuit of theatres operated in this vicinity by Joe Blumenfeld. Latter is also in a partnership operation in the four Music Hall theatres in Los Angeles, where "The Outlaw" is currently going into its fourth week.

Also arriving on the local scene to confer with Geisler, Blumenfeld, Nat Nathanson, San Francisco branch manager for United Artists which is distributing the film, was Harry Gold, Hughes' representative on distribution deals.

$197,000 TAKE HERE

While "Outlaw" battles raged in New York and San Francisco, the film started its fourth local week in the four Music Halls yesterday after stacking up an incredible $197,000 estimate on the first three frames. Take is all the more unusual because of the small seating capacities of the four houses, which totals only 3,127. Third-week gross was $56,300, or $8,200 above first-week high set by any other film to play the four daydaters.

Goodwin, Wolpin Here On Music and Televish

Bernard Goodwin, business manager and veepee of Paramount and Famous Music companies, and Ed Wolpin, general professional manager, arrived yesterday from New York. Pair will be here for two weeks, during which time they will install Sidney Goldstein as Coast rep of Famous. Goodwin also is an executive of Paramount's shorts and television departments.

Shea Winds Tour

Larry Shea returned yesterday from his first swing through the Western Division of Ascap control area. Purpose of the four-week junket was for Shea to acquaint himself with the men in the division he now manages. He plans to make a subsequent swing in about two months on a routine checkup.

MET CHAIN BUYS SEPIA HOUSE

Lincoln theatre, 2000-seater on Central avenue, has been purchased by Metropolitan Theatres from Harry Popkin. New owners, a partnership composed of Fox-West Coast, Principal and Sherrill Corwin, will give house a policy of top all-colored stage attractions in addition to regular film bills.

Use of colored stage attractions will mean that top names among such bills will have a chance at two weeks in Los Angeles. Many now play at Orpheum, also operated by Metropolitan. Plans are to make the Lincoln a de luxe Negro theatre to meet demands of growing Negro population in this area and offer top colored talent bookings comparable to the Apollo in New York; the Royal in Baltimore; the Howard in Washington, and the Regal in Chicago.

'ANNIE' BIG DEBUT HALTED BY FALL OF SCENERY

scenery was being set this afternoon. Had the accident occurred at the scheduled opening it might have resulted in the death or injury of many members of the cast.

As a result of the accident today, there probably will be a demand for a sweeping investigation of legit houses which are not quite as closely supervised as film theatres.

The debut of "Annie" was to be one of the big ones of the year with a $9.60 nick. Music of the show was done by Irving Berlin with the book by Dorothy and Herbert Fields.

A touch of comedy relief was lent the mishap by Harry Kurnitz, Metro writer here trying to lure Gene Kelly back for a picture. When told of the affair, he piped, "Well, this is the first time a musical comedy producer has found that something other than the book needs tightening."

O'Keefe in 'Dishonored'

Dennis O'Keefe has been signed by Hunt Stromberg for the lead opposite Hedy Lamarr in "Dishonored Lady." Shooting is slated for May 6 getaway with Jack Chertok producing and Robert Stevenson directing.

Denny Thesps Again

Reginald Denny has resumed his film career with a featured role in RKO's "What Nancy Wanted." Aside from one legit chore, Denny manufactured airplane equipment during the war and gave up his thesping.

MALATESTA PENS ONE WELL DONE

Joe Malatesta, maitre de at Romanoff's since its inception has sold an original screenplay, "The Darling of the Tenements," to Arthur W. Kelly. Latter will make it as one of his initial 16m productions.

Malatesta, who was a writer in Italy prior to coming to Hollywood, has written several books of poems and prose since he began working around the film colony.

He also has completed another story, "The Prince of Beverly Hills," which is now being considered by a major film company as a starring vehicle for one of its top players.

KFI Gabber Will Marry Fan As Publicity Pitch

Ultimate in publicity will be tried by KFI with marrying off of announcer Bob Phillips to his pick of mass "audition" of femme listeners to his all night musicale who have penned proposals—and sometimes propositions.

Phillips, 30-year old, single, gabber, conducts disc shows from 1 to 6 a.m. nightly. Programs, "Music For Dreaming," "Moonlite Serenade" and "Concert in the Night" have attracted host of unusual letters. Station has ascertained Phillips' willingness to marry, and will shortly invite those who have

UA GRABS OFF PICCADILLY

London, April 25.—Despite bidding by J. Arthur Rank and 20th-Fox, purchase of the Piccadilly theatre has been sewn up by United Artists, as predicted in Daily Variety two weeks ago. First attraction will likely be "Duel in the Sun," coming in May as a two-a-day roadshow at legit prices.

Hal Wallis In Paris; Back in U.S. Next Wk.

Hal Wallis returned to Paris yesterday from Nuremburg and Berlin, it was learned at Paramount by cable advices. Producer is expected in London this weekend and in New York at the end of next week. Joseph Hazen and John Mock, executives of Wallis Productions, are accompanying him.

Starr Stars For $96

Jimmy Starr pulled off a one-man strike at Republic yesterday and won. Scribbler was hired by studio for a one-day chore to play himself in "Out California Way." Chore called for $100 for the effort. But when Jimmy figured out he would have to kick in $54 of the sum for an SAG card, he assertedly hemmed, hawed and hinted. Studio acted quickly and raised the ante to $150—net profit to Jimmy, $96.

Modesto Votes 3c Tax On Show Admissions

WB To Plan Exhibs' Part In Talking Pix 20th Year

Warners will lay plans for exhibitor participation in the 20th anniversary of talking motion pictures in a series of studio huddles next week. Attending will be Harry M. and Jack L. Warner, Ben Kalmenson, general sales manager; Mort Blumenstock, vice prexy in charge of advertising and publicity, and Alex Evelove, studio publicity head.

Plans tentatively call for special programs in theatres during weeks leading up to Aug. 6, when celebration ends, and honoring of exhibs for part they played in the change-over from silent to sound pictures. Features to be released during the period will also be discussed.

LEO BUYING NAVY SHIP FOR PLUGS

New York, April 25. — Metro will literally praise its films to the skies in the near future. Company has bought a huge dirigible, the Navy's K-type, to exploit its top product with huge electrical "running signs," presumably on the order of the famed New York Times sign in Times Square. The dirigible, which patrolled Atlantic submarine lanes during the war, will begin its advertising runs with daily and nightly cruises along the eastern seaboard. After several months, the dirigible will cross the BEL-TONE Records has notified Apollo Records that latter no longer can handle distribution of former's platters in NY, Baltimore, Detroit and Atlanta. Thereby ends one of oddest tieups in disc business, that of an indie firm handling sales in given localities of rival's products. Bel-Tone dissatisfaction stemmed from fact Opollo wouldn't sign a contract to take platters on a stipulated minimum-order basis. Neither Dick Elwell nor Bob Cook, partners in Bel-Tone, will admit that Apollo ever failed to push sales or favored own labels, although both firms specialized in past in precisely same stuff, race-records and westerns. Bel-Tone has signed established distribs in four keys where Apollo was erstwhile rep.

THE task of selecting the cast for the screen version of "One Man's Family" Looms up as an extremely difficult job. In its fourteen years on the air the famous radio serial has acquired literally millions of fans, and undoubtedly there are among these millions many different conceptions of what each character in the story should look like and how he or she should act. Abe Silk, head of Cinema Century Productions, which will produce the picture, realizes, of course, that it will be impossible to satisfy everyone, but in his auditioning, which starts soon, he will be guided by the consensus of opinion in the hundreds of letters he has received since the announcement that the picture would be made.

PROBLEM of increasing employment for generally idle members is particularly knotty for American Federation of Radio Artists due to internal conflicts. There is as much agitation against splitting up of available work as there is to break the monopoly on work held by the "charmed circle." Those busy are very touchy about any infringement of rights. They are quick to remind all that AFRA rules permit no work restrictions or quota systems. In consequence, meetings on subject find attendees at cross purposes, it's reported. This causes outsiders who have tried to help, particularly the Radio Directors Guild, to shy from involvement in actor dilemma.

CONSENSUS of opinion of rank and file of Warner Bros. studio workers yesterday revealed heavy support of company's projected employes' pension plan. Understood the project was quietly sparked some months ago by Harry, Albert and Jack Warner along with Samuel Schneider, company veepee. Indications point to the company having studied various types of pension formats. A committee, appointed by the board of directors, is currently preparing a plan which will be offered for approval at the August 1 stockholders meeting.

LOCAL odd-label record companies now dodge like a plague any temptation to broadside publicity on number of discs of any particular platter they have sold. In past many indulged in practice, announcing rather ridiculous totals, far in access of truth. The real switch frequently occurred when artists who had made the discs asked platteries for royalty payments predicated on the announced sales, rather than the real. This led, often enough, to lengthy disputes, some of which have never been satisfactorily settled.

FEUD between name bandsman and some of his associates has reached such proportions that leader won't play tunes published by his backers. Situation arose from backers' efforts to peddle their interest in ork when leader refused to listen to advice that he was carrying too large an operating nut and must pare it. Further advice pointing to outmoded style of band hasn't lessened the leader's attitude. Particularly poor business over prolonged period at present stand attests to accuracy of opinions expressed.

TOWN is literally crawling with male vocalists "at liberty." Publishers, band leaders, agents, and others are daily besieged by virile vocalists on hunt for a commercial chirping chore. Some are known but host of newcomers are flooding ranks. Majority are returned vets, some of whom sang before going in service. However, too many got their initial tests while in al fresco shows in jungles, etc., and stand little chance.

JOHN Steinbeck's deal with Bernie Byrens, who will produce his "Cannery Row," gives writer full approval of director and cast as well as final screenplay. Author did first draft of script himself. Steinbeck, who recently sat in on production of Mexican version of his "Pearls of La Paz," in Mexico City, probably will do likewise when film gets under way here.

KFWB's auditions for disc jockey should have been eye-opener for attending platter pilots. While not involved in the contest and attending only as invited guests, jockeys had opportunity of seeing—and hearing—at first hand what others think of them as a class, and how work and style are judged by agency men and others in trade.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

One time when cowboys roamed the range and rustlers prowled around,
The lowing of the cattle was the most familiar sound,
But now the steers perk up their ears in Magnacolor pix
And if the cowboy doesn't croon, they say "The film is nix."
When cattle roamed the ranges in the easy days of yore
The water, salt and grasses added up the final score,
But now when cattle browse around the fields of Hollywood
They eye a buckaroo and say "His tonsils ain't so good."

You can understand why steers are getting so persnickety about their film stars nowadays. When you buy a steak you are convinced that the original owner was under contract to the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Every now and then you read about an ex-private on a film lot hiring his ex-captain as an assistant. It was a good story after the Civil War, when there were flacks but no films.

'ICE-CAPADES' NEW SHOW IS TIRED AROUND EDGES

Current issue of "Ice-Capades," which opened last night at Pan Pacific, is by no means the best of the collection of six presented here by John Harris. Chiefly the icetravaganza lacks inspired production and, as with the others, shows signs of tiring. This aggregation generally brings out individual stars by the cluster but aside from Donna Atwood and Bobby Specht there are few to cheer about. Specht acts like a frapped counterpart of Superman and his figure skating lacks the spectacular flourish of the spin and speed boys.

Production is just as lavish and costumes gay and colorful, but the spark and taste is not there. One act follows the others with a lack of showmanly presentation. The music also falls short of such iced frolics as "The Follies" and Sonja Henie's revue and was on the ragged side for the capacity opener.

When a gal on runners juggling a few plates and balancing a ball on a stick wraps up the first act with the plaudits of the mob, then the others must be short on what passes for artistry among the ringsiders. The clowning is not up to Ice-Capade standard and certainly not standout.

More so than in previous ice shows, considerable liberties are taken with the audience. Time and again, a comic plops into the lap of a girl or makes passes at those along the rim. It's a bit overdone here. Despite all this, the refrigerated revue will do capacity business during the run here. The downtown sheets will see to that.

FCC Orders KFI To Lay Cards On Table

Washington, April 25.—The FCC jumped on the National Broadcasting Company today for its failure to come to the commission's hearing on clear channel radio service prepared to give full testimony "pro or con" on the present allocation of clears. NBC, last of the major networks to take the stand, said it planned to give testimony on the "major issues" of the FCC investigation in July after new engineering standards had been decided upon.

But FCC chief Charles R. Denny ordered the web to lay all its cards on the table—outside of engineering info—within the next week and to make clear its position on a possible reshuffle of clear channel assignments.

Only witness for NBC—in contrast to a four-man showing made earlier by both CBS and American—was Hugh Beville, director of research. Beville defended NBC's right to operate five clear channel stations on the basis of a program format geared to the needs of their particular area. Although farm folk generally like the same programs as city dwellers Beville said NBC clears were devoting more attention to the farmer than to any other occupational group.

He cited the farm programs of KFI, Los Angeles, and net owned station, KPO, San Francisco, on this count.

Justice Dept. Cocks An Ear For A Beef From Hughes

Washington, April 25.—If Howard Hughes makes good his threat and asks anti-trust action in connection with the Motion Picture Association of America's wallop at his film, "The Outlaw," the Department of Justice will of course listen to the beef.

However, the dope here is that if Hughes does make such a proposal he will not get far with it. The Justice Department looks upon MPAA as a trade body, one of whose purposes is to provide clean and fair censorship for the industry from the inside.

Both the Justice Department and the FBI are now fighting growing juvenile delinquency and at least one Department official has expressed the opinion that "The Outlaw" is the type of film to stimulate delinquency.

243G PICKED ON 'ROAD TO UTOPIA'

Five-week run of "Road to Utopia" at the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramount theatres racked up boffola gross of $243,700. The Bing Crosby-Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour comedy established new first-week records at both theatres and on the first three weeks of run, weekly combined totals for both houses topped any previous figures.

Austin, Sherrells Open in Las Vegas

Gene Austin and the Sherrell Sisters will open at the new Aztec Room in the El Cortez hotel in Las Vegas May 1. Ray Salmon and Kell Houssells recently purchased the hostelry, which is undergoing expansion and facelift. Plan is to put in new casino and largest nitery in the Nevada town.

Seattle Symph

Seattle, April 25.—Plans are under way for a summer music festival here to raise $150,000 for a proposed symphony concert season to reach thousands with good music rather than the usual hundreds. N. FOY WORKING FOR EARLY RELEASE

Arrangements are being worked out between Bryan Foy and 20th-Fox for early termination of his contract, so he can swing over to PRC to become production head. Foy's contract officially winds up late in October.

Producer currently has high-budget picture, "That's For Me," before cameras, with at least a month of shooting still to go. He estimates that he will be able to wind up final editing and scoring by late July, so he can make immediate switch to other lot.

Radio Directors Will Hold June Election

Radio Directors Guild hold special election of officers and council in June. Incumbents accepted positions in December, 1945, on terms that jobs would hold for six months only, and assist in organization of newcomer union. Nominating committee has been named to come up with candidates to replace Paul Franklin, prexy; True Boardman, v-p; Robert Dwan, secretary; Thomas Freebairn-Smith, treasurer, plus council of six.

Drifting Along

(Western)

MONOGRAM RELEASE. Producer, Scott R. Dunlap. Director, Derwin M. Abrahams. Photography, Harry Neumann. Story and screenplay, Adele Buffington. Film editor, Carrol Lewis. Musical director, Edward Kay. Sound, Glen Glenn. Sets, Vin Taylor. Assistant director, Eddie Davis. Production manager, Charles J. Bigelow. Wardrobe, Harry Bourne.

CAST—Johnny Mack Brown, Lynne Carver, Raymond Hatton, Douglas Fowley, Smith Ballew, Milbourne Morante, Thornton Edwards, Steve Clark, Marshall Reed, Jack Rockwell, Lynton Brent, Terry Frost, Ted Mapes, Leonard St. Leo, Curt Barrett and The Trailsmen.

REVIEWED at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, Calif., April 25, 1946. Running time: 63 MINS.

Here's an oats-opera that runs first 50 of its 63 minutes without a shot fired in anger, a chase, a fight, a stickup or much of anything that will excite the action-avid western fan. And the rather trite tale told doesn't compensate for the deficiencies in the slightest.

In the main, it's unfortunate, for Scott R. Dunlap has afforded the piece better than average production appurtenances and the cast is as roundly good as a searcher for sagebrushers could find in a hard day's gallop. Johnny Mack Brown has slowed up a bit of recent years, but he can still put on more show of activity than here permitted. Lynne Carver is as attractive and able a cowgal as any in current crop, and on acting ability Douglas Fowley can make usual western store-suit heavy look like a Ben Greet super. Raymond Hatton can make much of stock comic roles, if given the material. All look uncomfortable merely pushing along the plot with palaver rather than telling it with sixguns and pounding hoofs.

All technical departments are well-handled, with especial nod due cameraman Harry Neumann for slick framing of most scenes even though they were slowed by script. Vin Taylor's sets were superior to most sighted in this sort of fare, and director Derwin A. Abrahams drained what he could from the too-talkative yarn, which deals with Johnny Mack Brown's efforts to bring to justice a ring of crooks, operating behind hypocritical fronts as decent saloonkeeper and banker, who try to pry the deed to the ranch from the Sweet Young Thing. Even the hosses looked bored, or perhaps it was petulance, the script giving them so little to do.

DECCA ROBBERY LOOT RECOVERED

Loot from the burglaries at Decca records and Audio Pictures last year were discovered yesterday and a gun battle ensued between suspect and the police. Identified by him as Decca and Audio recording equipment amounting to over $50,000, sound apparatus was offered to W. W. Starr, radio equipment dealer, by Paul C. Norris. Police lying in wait for the suspect finally nabbed "Norris" later identified as wanted under the name of George W. Ward. He drew and fired on two of the three detectives. Ward escaped and a search of the surrounding district, including the Forum theatre, was instituted.

INT. EXECS TO MEET UN TOPPERS ON PRODUCT HYPO

Hypoing of International's production program will highlight confabs early next week between United World Picture toppers and the William Goetz-Leo Spitz combo. Contingent of UWP toppers, headed by prexy Matty Fox and including Monroe Greenthal and Robert Benjamin, are slated to arrive this weekend from New York.

UWP has finally surmounted many of the physical problems involved in effecting of a new distribution setup. Outfit expects to definitely have its sales force complete by Nov. 1, using the physical facilities of Universal exchange offices. Outfit had originally planned on getting going Sept. 1, delay, however, benefits International since Spitz-Goetz now have until October, 1947 to meet quota of eight pictures for UWP release.

Exhibs Decide On Amalgamated Setup

New York, April 25. — Exhibitor associations of Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware decided at a meeting today to appoint a committee to form an organization representing Allied, MPTOA and unassociated exhibs. Organization thus formed will decide whether to remain independent or join the new American Thatres Association. ATA's Ted Gamble, Si Fabian and Robert Coyne addressed an enlistment appeal to the exhibitors.

Maxies Go to Philly

Maxies Rosenbloom and Baer close at New York's Club 18 May 5 and move to the Latin Casino in Philadelphia to open May 6. Other dates are Boston Mayfair Club, May 22, and Glen Rendezvous in Newport, K., June 14.

'Band' Rehearsals

Kenny Williams, 20th-Fox dance director, starts rehearsals today for "Follow the Band" number in "That's for Me." Vivian Blaine, Harry James, Carmen Miranda and Perry Como appear.

THE GRAPEVINE: Night club industry is betting on continuance of the boom. Today's example of optimism is Lou Walters, operator of the Latin Quarter in New York, which specializes in mass-production whoopee. He is here to push plans for a new theatre-restaurant on the Strip. Place would be installed in the ground floor of a five or six story office building to be erected at Larabee and Sunset by Bill Penzner and would be patterned after his NY spot . . . Lew Landers will marry Rolli Friedland, widow of Anatole Friedland, the NY producer and songwriter, today in Las Vegas. They met in a Manhattan grade school 25 years ago . . . RKO believes it has a big winner in Dore Schary's production, "Till the End of Time," which deals with the problems of returning servicemen. Raves written on preview cards also lead the studio to believe Dorothy McGuire will be a top contender in next year's Academy Awards . . . The Gotham, one of Hollywood's oldest eating places, will be the locale of two days' shooting on "Nocturne." The old salami palace got its face lifted recently . . . Andrew Stone is holding a press reception presenting Eugene List, the ex-GI-pianist who entertained the Big Three at Potsdam, Sunday. Other guests of honor will be Adolphe Menjou, Gail Russell, Claire Trevor, Ann Dvorak, Jane Wyatt and Billie Burke . . . Bill Saroyan, the giddy genius, is out of uniform and into the inkpot again. His new novel "The Adventures of Wesley Jackson" will be published next month . . . Joe Hubble, News of the Day newsreel photog, has turned writer. Metro is reading his "Niagara Falls" script for a musical.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Speaking of advertising, while the tempest rages over "The Outlaw," the ads on Paramount's "Kitty" and Columbia's "Gilda" wouldn't exactly delight Mother Grundy . . . Yesterday was a bad day for Samuel Goldwyn's leading ladies. Myrna Loy showed up on the "Best Years of Our Lives" set with her arm swollen from a vaccination, and Virginia Mayo tripped and fell downstairs twice during shooting on "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" . . . Elliott Nugent plans to stay in Hollywood until fall, when he and Robert Montgomery are going to present two plays on Broadway . . . Dining at Glenn Billingsley's were Beverly Tyler and Guy Williams . . . Building note: Barbara Stanwyck wanted a room added to her garage to accommodate a friend who was homeless. The job took five months . . . Bill Gargan overheard it—"If girdles continue so scarce, the masculine outlook certainly should be broadened" . . . Production crew on "Little Iodine" has 49 ex-servicemen . . . Cast and crew on Pine-Thomas' "Fear in the Night" reversed procedure and tossed a baby shower for an expectant father, Irwin Berwick, presenting him with cigars and candy . . . The Ray Millands have abandoned plans for a trip to Rio . . . Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ford and Virginia Bruce hosted parties at Frank Kerwin's Seacomber at Malibu . . . Several studios are interested in Jimmy Alexander, who plays Curly in "Oklahoma," coming to the Biltmore May 6. He's a veteran of "Meet the People" and the Florentine Gardens floorshow.

CALL SHEET: Ex-Marine Sergeant Al Schmid, the blinded veteran of Guadalcanal whose story formed the basis for "Pride of the Marines," will visit the studio today and be Jack L. Warner's guest at lunch . . . LOEW-LEWIN shot more than 16,000 feet of film on tests of players, makeup and wardrobe for "Bel Ami" . . . MORGAN CONWAY planed to New York yesterday to confer with refrigerator manufacturers on his beverage-cooling invention . . . KITTY KALLEN, Dave Rose's vocalist, will make a personal appearance at the Orpheum early next month . . . CHARLES KORVIN is knocking out a magazine article titled "Why I Don't Mind Being a Romantic Heel" . . . NATALIE WOOD, six-year-old featured in International's "Tomorrow Is Forever," was elected president of her third-grade class at West Hollywood school . . . HERMAN BERNIE moves his agency offices from his Strip location to a new building on Beverly drive, built by the Yacht Club Boys, on June 1 . . . FREDDY MARTIN doesn't know whether to be flattered or offended. When he drove out of the Derby parking lot, he found himself surrounded by shrill young females. Elation died down when it became known they mistook him for Charles Boyer . . . ARTHUR MURRAY is tossing a party in his studios Sunday to present his first annual award to Vera Ellen as the screen's most versatile dancer.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Gene Norman, now emceeing the Armed Forces Radio "Downbeat" series, says the chore is a pleasure, working with live talent after disc-jockeying it with nothing in the studio except his shadow and ten thousand platters . . . Universal is working its way around the Mediterranean littoral, counter-clockwise, with such films as "Tangiers," "Flame of Tripoli," International's "Bella Donna," "A Night in Paradise," "Fandango," etc., on its slate . . . Sprig of greenery arrived yesterday with Columbia's publicity copy. We seized on it with happy cries, thinking maybe it was loco weed or something equally stimulating. It turned out to be a bit of boasting by Columbia in the scientific field. Studio has developed a plastic-dipping to be applied to greenery so it can be used in picture after picture without losing ts freshness . . . Hugh Martin, who wrote "The Trolley Song" for Metro's "Meet Me in St. Louis" with Ralph Blane, expects to be out of uniform early next month, after two years in the Army . . . Last time Bette Davis and Paul Henreid were teamed, in "Now, Voyager," they started a vogue when he gallantly lighted cigarets for both of them. In their current "Deception," he slaps her twice. Another vogue? . . . Pat O'Moore, playing a British agent in "Cloak and Dagger," has turned his power cruiser to commercial use by fishing for abalone, tuna and albacore . . . Maxies Baer and Rosenbloom are being taught a few dance steps by Arthur Murray to be included in their vaude act. Lots of fight fans thought they'd learned plenty about dancing in the ring.——D.D.T.

NY IMPERIAL HAS LICENSE LIFTED FOR MISHAP

New York, April 25.—License of the Imperial theatre, major legit house, was suspended today in what may be a prelude to an inspection drive against all legitimate theatres. Suspension, ordered by New York License Commissioner, came as a result of girders buckling while rigging and counterweight system for heavy "Annie Get Your Gun" scenery was being installed yesterday.

Condemnation forced postponement of show's scheduled opening in the house tonight. Musical, starring Ethel Merman, now switches to Philadelphia until the Imperial is repaired. Work is expected to take two weeks.

King To Direct 20th-Fox Dog Film

Light 'n' Airy

(on the ½ shell)

by JACK HELLMAN

Don't say you weren't told that most of your favorite programs drop back an hour after Saturday midnight and will continue on that Daylight Savings schedule through Sept. 22 when the hour will be paid back to Old Sol. For weeks now the traffic departments at the chains have been beating their brains out to shift shows arounds with the minimum of confusion and judging from the dearth of beefs they must have done a forthright job.

All skeins with the exception of Mutual and ABC move their Hollywood originations for the rest of the country back (or is it up?) an hour. Anyway, a show now heard at 4 p.m. for the east will be heard at 3 p.m. from Sunday on. So as not to confuse their audience and hold what they've got, ABC sends its programs east an hour earlier and repeats for the Coast via transcription an hour later. In other words, ABC shows will air east and west as at the present time. NBC and CBS move their t.c.'s back (or is it it up?) an hour with few exceptions and 90 per cent of the Don Lee-Mutual shows stay where they are. One of the few moving up (or is it back?) an hour is the chain's top audience participator, "Queen for a Day." If you miss out on your favorite program Sunday just charge it off to a mental lapse, that is if you've read this far down.

Chain breaks . . . Al Levy due in for two weeks to wrap up a deal for Century Artists . . . Bert Praeger will cut a record of Zeke Manners' "Hitching Post" at NBC Wednesday with a definite client in mind. Mike Cramoy dishing up the script . . . Again we hear the yarn about Henry Legler's party celebrating the signing of one of the top 10 shows. We think we know who it is but he's not in that select group . . . Les Gottlieb trained in with the missus and will be taken over the jumps by the Y & R production staff. He switched over from publicity to program development . . . "One Man's Family" will be 14 years old Sunday and has been exclusively NBC that long . . . Danny Kaye will be in the guest corner with Jack Benny Sunday.

Hitch hikes . . . The public will become partners in the ABC network through the purchase of stock. Headman Ed Noble said proceeds will be used to "expand broadcasting facilities and provide working capital for the development of television and frequency" . . . Don Lee-Mutual's Lewis Allen Weiss accepted citation of Armed Forces Radio Service in recognition of chain's contribution to entertainment of GI's during the war . . . In Hallmark's Radio Reader's Digest production crew here for Sunday's broadcast are Arnold Moss, Carl Bixby, Bob Nolan, Harry Ingraham and William Stoess . . . Cal Kuhl has a deal with William Morris and Sam Stiefel whereby he'll direct the Mickey Rooney show when and if it's sold . . Arch Oboler directs an audition of "Lights Out" with Boris Karloff Sunday for Milton Biow . . . Phil Arnold, five-year war vet, will guest with Ginny Simms tonight.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND

By RADIE HARRIS

Larry Olivier has cabled Theatre Inc., that he won't be available for any press interviews or social functions until after the openings of his Old Vic repertory. When he and Vivien Leigh arrive at La Guardia Airport next Monday ayem, they'll head directly for the St. Regis, but I'm willing to wager my new Easter bonnet that they'll have their first dinner at their favorite N.Y. rendezvous—the Chambord. Larry, incidentally, will conduct all his business from a desk at his press agent's headquarters on West 52nd St. . . . Susan Douglas's "Constellation," which has destined her for Hollywood, brings her to the Coast (29) to test for a picture . . . Francine Larrimore, skedded to make her return Broadway debut in "Possessed," has bowed out of this Lionel Wiggam drama, with the role now being cast for a younger heroine, as originally written. Wiggam, here on loanout from Walter Wanger, checks back to U next week to await the arrival of co-producers Violla Rubber and Margo Jones for a Coast try-out . . . If the seniors at the Finch School never miss a dramatic class, it's because their "prof" is actor Bill Post—and he's the "Post"-man who doesn' have to ring twice for attention. One of his pupils is Jacqueline Billingsley, the pretty package the "Stork" gave Sherman—and what a twist that is!

"IT'S A SMALL WORLD DEPT.: Harold Winston, station-wagoning along the highway into Mexico, spotted another station-wagon parked in a clearing, where a young lady, obviously in distress, was trying to mid-wife the birth of two puppies to her unco-operative pooch. As Winston drew alongside of her, he did a double take. The lady in distress was Beatrice Blinn, with whom he had worked when they were both at Columbia. She was now en route to Acupulco to open a shop—not for dogs!

"U" ON TOAST: Universal, in signing Ethel Smith to "organ"-ize for them, doesn't know it, but she accepted this one picture deal because of an electric toaster! It seems that when Miss Smith rushed east several months ago to marry Ralph Bellamy, in all the excitement, she forgot her toaster. Of course, to buy another one now, is as hard as getting a ticket to the Old Vic, but to make a special trip back to Cal. to retrieve it, seemed somewhat extravagant. Soooo, when Universal put in a bid last week, she didn't even ask the name of the picture. All that interested her was that she could fly to the Coast, expenses paid, and fly back with her precious utensil!

SCOOPING AROUND: If Hildegarde doesn't sign a new radio contract in the fall, she'll make a nation-wide concert tour. In the meantime, she'll tee-off a few picture house engagements at the Oriental in Chicago for the record-breaking figure (for a femme) of $17,000 per plus a percentage. No wonder Hildy is showing off her "figure" in a new stone marten jacket! . . . Faye Emerson and Elliott Roosevelt check into the Bev-Hills next week for a brief interlude, while Elliott fulfills a few lecture engagements in Southern Cal. His book, "As He Saw It" (a story of the conferences which he attended with his father) will be published by Duel-Sloane and Pierce this fall. Faye will definitely NOT return to pictures—is definitely NOT having a baby, but will spend the summer recording 130 transcriptions for her radio show, and if she can find the right vehicle, she may do one play at the Cape Playhouse . . . Fred Allen wants Ronald Colman and Benita Hume to visit his "Allen's Alley" next month, and they'll accept on one condition—that he can dig them up two opening night seats for the Old Vic! . . . Ernie Martin's east coast confabs with Dave Taylor and other program execs will obviously be a prolonged session. He's brought his frau, Nancy, with him and they've sublet Gilbert Seldes East 57th St. apt. for several months . . . Both Mitzi Green and Rosie promised each other that they wouldn't break up at Mitzi's 21st anniversary party at the Copa—so they both burst into tears simultaneously! But so did Ed Gwynn, Joan Edwards, Hildegarde, Jackie Coogan, Dolores Grey, Milton Berle, Monte Proser and everyone else who listened to the heart-warming tribute to this wonderful trouper. Too bad that Joe Green, who first taught Mitzi at the age of four, to impersonate Moran and Mack couldn't have been there to share his tears of paternal pride with Rosie!

ON THE CUFFO NOTES: Cedric Hardwicke, who admits he'd love to know the secret of how some of his confreres can stay in one hotel indefinitely, while he's forced to move in and out of nine within three months, is looking forward to returning to London in May so that, at long last, he'll have a place in which to stay put. So imagine his consternation, when he just received a cable from his wife, Pixie, telling him that she can't put him up at their flat, because with their son, Edward, home for the summer holidays, it's too small. However, she has made a reservation for him at the Savoy—only she doesn't know how long they will let him stay! Cedric will remain long enough to film "Nicholas Nickelby" and then, if he's free in time, he'll return to Hollywood for an Alfred Hitchcock melo. P. S. It might interest Cedric to know that the reason one of his confreres is allowed to stay at his hotel is because he owes the bar such a tremendous bill, they can't afford to let him check out! . . . The Robert Lerners (Jan Clayton to you!) have leased a home on Beverwill Drive . . . Victor Saville spent his first matinee in town visiting the Rado City Music Hall, where Gus Eysell kdded him that it was the Easter Show that was attracting the S.R.O. business! As soon as he checks back to Metro, he'll carry on the wearing of the "green," with "Green Dolphin Street" . . . Street scene: three proud mamas, strolling through Central Park with their offspring: Lana Turner, Dottie Lamour and Renee De Marco . . . At the Theatre Guild's third anniversary party for "Oklahoma," when Oscar Hammerstein cut the huge birthday cake, he cracked, "This, it gives me great pleasure to announce, is the first 'cut' 'Oklahoma' has even taken!"

MORRIS, GAILLARD IN TIFF OVER DISC CONTRACT

William Morris office yesterday sent letters to all recorders on Coast, pointing out that agency has Slim Gaillard under contract, and consequently alone is authorized to sell services of singer-composer. Morris has handled Gaillard since 1938, when he was partnered in East with Slam Stewart.

Morris in refusing to recognize recent pact which Gaillard himself negotiated, giving his exclusive waxing services to 4 Star Records. Popplattery until yesterday was under impression it had exclusive on nitery performer who cleffed current hit "Cement Mixer," but the four sides Gaillard already has disced for 4 Star will be just an individual deal and Morris will continue to book performer elsewhere.

Contract under which singer is tied to agency is standard form approved by American Federation of Musicians, which cannot be broken without approval of exec council of union.

'Red' Rowe Takes On KMPC Mike Chores

"Red" Rowe has been added to regular announcing staff at KMPC, in addition to heading the "Pappy Cheshire and Plainsman" program on station, a commercial. R o w e was drafted into regular ranks with departure of Dick Garfield and Jack Gardner, gabbers, from station. He also is slated to handle "Record Room," disc marathon, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Brent for 'Tripoli'

George Brent signed yesterday with Universal to co-star with Yvonne De Carlo in "Flame of Tripoli." Picture will be lensed in Technicolor, starting June 15. Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano will produce from their own story and Charles Lamont will direct.

RKO Sets 'Trail Street'

"Trail Street" will be filmed as sequel to "Bad Man's Territory" with Nat Holt producing for RKO. Holt will leave shortly to scout locations for the western saga.

The Autobiography of

CORLISS ARCHER

I was born in the pages of "Good Housekeeping." I first saw the light of day in the issue of January, 1943. They said I was just the type.

Then the word "radio" entered my young life. I was literally stepping on air when I made my first appearance before someone called "Mike," on January 7, 1943.

I made my bow before the footlights at the Biltmore Theatre in New York on March 7, 1943. The play was called "Kiss and Tell." I heard strange language like "long run," "S.R.O." and "rave notices," which, as I grew older, I learned meant 983 performances.

I was multiplied into four road companies. I was eighteen—I don't mean that was my age, I mean there were that many of me.

"Movies" was the next word in my lexicon. Shirley Temple put me into celluloid in a Columbia Picture released on October 18, 1945.

Now F. Hugh Herbert, my daddy, thinks I need more air, and is bringing me back to radio in the new "MEET CORLISS ARCHER" Program on C.B.S. beginning Sunday, April 28, 1946, at 5 P.M. (PST) by arrangement with Ward Wheelock Co. He tells me I will get a lot of soup (which is good for a growing girl) because Campbell's Soups is my sponsor.

And just because I like movies so much, Daddy Herbert is planning to film me again in "MEET CORLISS ARCHER," an independently produced sequel to "Kiss and Tell."

My, I've been a busy girl, but I love it. I keep making new friends in all kinds of places, some on the printed page, some on the stage, and a great many more on the air and in picture theatres. I certainly get around, they say.

SOCOPHONY FILES COUNTER CHARGES IN TELEVISION SUITS

000 treble damages and enjoinment of co-defendants from interference in its business or licenses, and an injunction preventing co-defendants from voting stock until case is adjudicated.

It is claimed that conditions of business operation were pre-arranged by co-defendants before birth of company via agreements allegedly in government complaint to be in violation of anti-trust law.

Arthur Levey, Scophony American prexy, filed individual's counter claim, asking $270,000 damages personally against co-defendants. General Precision filed its answer yesterday to government suit. Others will file today, all generally denying charges of complaint.

Government is presently taking deposition of W. G. Elcock, director of Scophony, Ltd. Deposition taking should conclude tomorrow. Government is prepared to move as fast as possible thereafter to take the suit into court.

Philly Ork Plays Here on May Tour

Philadelphia Orchestra, batoned by Eugene Ormandy, will play at the Philharmonic auditorium May 20. It is first major tour of a symphony orchestra in the United States since 1937. Net proceeds from the concert will be added to the Toscanini Pension Fund for the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

Ankers With Curtis

Evelyn Ankers will have the femme lead opposite Alan Curtis in "Flight to Nowhere." Golden Gate production starts shooting Monday in Death Valley.

Menzies on 'Arch'

William Cameron Menzies has been inked by Enterprise as production designer for "Arch of Triumph."

HITCHING POST

Hitching

Verne Lindblade, salesman at KLAC, to Pearl Vorhees, of KRKD, in Los Angeles, early in June.

Lew Landers, film director, today weds Rolli Friedland, widow of late songwriter and vaude unit producer Anatole Friedland, in Las Vegas.

John Hodiak, film actor, to Anne Baxter, actress, in June, according to bride elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth S. Baxter, of Burlingame, Cal. It will be first marriage for both.

Kay Scott, Paramount actress, to become bride tomorrow of John Nurney, local businessman, at Church of the Good Shepherd.

Unhitching

Joan Crawford yesterday was granted divorce from Phillip Terry.

MuscleBoundGhost

John Meredith, one of Amber's boy friends in 20th-Fox's "Forever Amber," was told he'd have 10 days off, so he hied himself over to PRC for one of top roles in "Ghost of Hidden Valley," Buster Crabbe starrer. He returned to resume love-making to Amber yesterday, but so muscle-bound from fighting in western that he can scarcely shuffle.

MUSICIANS CONFER ON SEPIA HOUSE

Negro Musicians' Local 767 officials will sit in on weekend session with operators of Orpheum, who this week took over colored house, Lincoln, with plans to convert it into vaudfilmer using sepia stageshows, to smooth out impasse struck yesterday.

Lincoln's new management does not want to hire regular pit band, pointing out that house will be booking Negro musical combos on stage weekly and hence will not require pitmen. Local 767 has countered that operators have regular pit crew of ten men at Orpheum, paid weekly whether used or not, according to contract with Local 47, white union.

Decca Bringing Out 'Stardust' Album

Decca Records has consummated unusual deal to bring out album titled "The Stardust Road," which will be released next autumn simultaneously with publication of Hoagy Carmichael's book bearing same tag. Decca cleared stunt with composer and also with ARA, pop-plattery to which Carmichael is under discing pact. However, tunes in Decca binding will be none of Carmichael's, but those whose history he traces in his tome.

New 'Big Town' Pix

Pine-Thomas will continue the "Big Town" series with "I Cover Big Town," second film in the sequence. Philip Reed and Hillary Brooke will continue with their roles supported by Robert Lowery.

Brady Reports at U

Fred Brady reports today for his stellar dual role in Universal's "Oh, Say Can You Sing," in which Paula Drew and Sheila Ryan will be his leading women. Stanley Rubin produces and Will Jason directs.

Kalmenson Coming

Ben Kalmenson, Warner Bros. general manager, arrives from New York early next week. Sales topper will confer with Jack and Harry Warner on 1946-47 product.

Ethel Smith at U

BRITISHER WINDS PLATTER SURVEY; LEAVES FOR N.Y.

Wally Moody, British pop-platter exec, leaves for NY today after camping on local scene ten days to observe American waxing methods and to scout talent. An official of Electric Musical Industries, Ltd., Moody will sail back to England May 12 on the Queen Mary.

EMI controls four of the five disc labels in Great Britain, other being Decca. Moody's firm has deal with Columbia whereby it markets U.S. recorder's product abroad. While in town, the Briton was shown around by Bill Richards, Col's Coast recording chief. Moody last night said he had signed no talent while in this country, although he scouted NY before coming here. His chief want was small swing combos, which he had planned to record here and take masters back to plant in London, but he found no fancied ones which were not already available to his companies.

'Deception' Hits Cameras At Warners

"Deception" went before the cameras yesterday at Warners with Bette Davis, Paul Henreid and Claude Raines starring. Irving Rapper directs and Henry Blanke produces. Studio now has a total of five features at work. Others are "Life with Father," "Cloak and Dagger," "Cheyenne" and "Stallion Road."

Meredith Signed for 'Magnificent Doll'

Burgess Meredith yesterday signed for role of James Madison in "The Magnificent Doll," to be produced by Skirball-Manning for Universal release. Meredith will forego his planned trip to London in order to work in the picture which rolls May 15.

Kennedy Set for Start

RKO will put the last of current series of two-reel comedies starring Edgar Kennedy into work next Tuesday. Hal Yates is to direct the short, "The Big Blow," for producer George Bilson. Florence Lake, Dot Farley and Jack Rice head the supporting cast.

Strawhat for Coast

Another strawhat production group will join the Coast circuit, when the Sequoia Summer Playhouse opens in Boulder Creek July 3. Set for 10-week season, group will present eight plays under the direction of David Reed with Ira Grossel as production manager.

DISC JOCKEY USES BATTERY

Don Otis, program director of Capitol Transcriptions, returns to his first love of disc jockeying—but with electricity added. He has been set to pilot half hour transcribed program over KFI for Desmond's clothiers, starting next Sunday. Show set for six months and will feature all-Capitol talent for opener, including King Sisters, Frank DeVol orchestra, Hal Derwin, baritone, and Buddy Cole instrumental group. Initialer airs at 9 p.m.

OUT OF HORN'S MOUTH

Ruth Davis set for fortnight at Nevada Biltmore hotel, Las Vegas, starting May 22.

Rudy Vallee inked for "Americana" album of songs by Mercury Records. Date for discing as yet unset.

Henry King ork has completed rhumba album for Black & White Records.

Mort Greene and Leigh Harline will collab on songs for RKO's "Beat the Band."

Phyllis Gayle planed to Chicago to sing with Gay Claridge band at Chez Paree.

Benny Carter has cut second batch of platters for Keynote, featuring Sonny White on piano.

Johnny Greene, Kitty Callen, Larry Adler and Dave Dexter guest on Al Jarvis program over KLAC Sunday.

Jimmy Jones band opens ten-week stand tonight at Sherman's, San Diego. Will be followed by Wilson Humber's crew, inked in for similar engagement.

Al Jahns' ork set for entire summer at Navajo ballroom, Big Bear Lake, reopening site on June 16 and running to mid-September.

Nick and Vicki Collins jotted for Nevada Biltmore hotel, Las Vegas, opening May 2, and will directly follow stand with week at Orpheum here, May 14.

Radio Rogues jumping to Omaha for fortnight at Frolics, opening May 11.

Andy Russell has been definitely set for week of May 28 at Orpheum. Red Nichols' quintet, which had been penciled in for that stanza, moved back to June 18.

Buddy Rich band discs four sides for Mercury Records today.

Modernaires will thrush against Page Cavanaugh Trio background at the Troc starting May 8.

Marlin Skiles, George Duning, Arthur Morton, Hugo Friedhofer all working on the background score of "The Jolson Story" at Columbia.

Jule Styne-Sammy Cahn tune, "Anywhere," and Chet Forrest-Bob Wright song, "It's a Blue World," will be thrushed by Amanda Lane in "Sing While You Dance."

Ben Blue will bow into NY La Martinique early in May.

Irving Talbot yesterday began stick-waving over Frederick Hollander's score for "The Perfect Marriage" for Wallis Productions.

Desi Arnaz and his orchestra will wax an album of rhumba music for Victor upon band's arrival in New York next week.

Opie Cates and his outfit will etch 24 sides for Four Star discs within the year.

"Take Me Back to My Boots and Saddles," standard western hit by Walter Samuels, Teddy Powell and Leonard Whitcup, has been recorded by John Laurenz for Pan-American Records. Song was published in 1935 by Peer International.

"You Are My Sunshine," Governor Jimmie Davis, standard song, and "When My Blue Moon Turns to Gold Again," standard by Wiley Walker and Gene Sullivan, have been recorded with new arrangements by Denver Darling for De Luxe Records.

Lionel Hampton and his orchestra are scheduled to give a concert at Carnegie Hall in New York next Sunday.

Veloz and Yolanda are featuring "La Bamba" and "Bambuca," new dances set to songs of the same titles, recently published by Peer International.

"Au Paradis" and "Heureux Comme un Roi," published by Ralph S. Peer's Paris office, will be published and exploited in this country by Peer International.

Garwood Van has signed with Standard Transcriptions to do a series of recordings.

Hugh and Carl Farr, members of Republic's Sons of the Pioneers, have tied in with RCA-Victor to record eight sides annually.

"The Jumping Bean," song by Tim Spencer, purchased by Republic for Roy Rogers in "Shine On Texas Moon."

IF A FLACK PLUGS MUST HE JOIN PLUG UNION?

Meeting will be whistled up over weekend of Coast board of Music Publishers' Contact Employes to decide whether an official beef will be forwarded to NY headquarters of the songpluggers' union, compaining that press-agent Barney McDevitt is plugging songs although not a union member.

Furor sporadically has flared among local contact employes since McDevitt was hired three weeks ago by pub combine of Miller-Fiest-Robbins, with specific duties of getting disc jockeys all along Pacific coastline to spin discs of firm's tunes. At that time McDevitt asked union's prez, Bob Miller, if he need join organization and was told no.

Since, there has been much agitation among members here to make Coast board go to mat with Miller on matter, with unionists pointing out they were forced to join MPCE at cost of $109 in order to get their plugging jobs and that McDevitt is doing essentially same work.

Trio of Cowpokes Help Lane-Carson

Trio of Republic western stars, Roy Rogers, Allan Lane and Sunset Carson, will make "guest appearances" in company's "Out California Way," fourth Magnacolor western co-starring Monte Hale and Adrian Booth. They will appear as themselves in story about young cowboy trying to crash motion pictures.

Ellen Drew Set

Ellen Drew will portray dual role in "The Crime Doctor's Honor," second film for the actress under her new Columbia contract. Picture rolls May 6 with Warner Baxter in the title role.

Hoffman Sails 'Ships'

Charles Hoffman will produce "Ships in the River" at Warners. Property will star Viveca Lindfors.

DOCERE ET RERVM EXCOLERE CAVSAS CONSTITUTION

It is with pride that we of MCA congratulate Edgar Bergen on receiving radio's highest honor and tribute, the Peabody Award for 1945, a richly deserved citation that radio listeners will applaud, and which highlights our business association of ten years.

"COMBINING GOOD CITIZENSHIP WITH GOOD BROADCASTING"

IN THE WARNER MANNER

Radio Station KFWB

Owned and Operated in Hollywood by Warner Bros. Pictures Inc. has Received the Peabody Radio Award

FOR "OUTSTANDING PUBLIC SERVICE" DURING 1945

"WE FEEL THAT ALL IN THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY
MAY WELL TAKE PRIDE IN HAVING STATION KFWB
AS THE 'HEART' OF HOLLYWOOD"

Jack L. Warner

—and thank you, Variety, for the "Outstanding Spot News Coverage" Award for 1945.

SOME OF OUR "OUTSTANDING PUBLIC SERVICES"

The only station in the nation to broadcast every minute of every session of the United Nations Conference in San Francisco. (Now doing the same thing at the UNO meeting in New York — still the only station to do so.)

Winner of the annual "Variety" citation for "Outstanding Spot News Coverage" in 1945.

Abandoned all commercials and devoted entire broadcast day (19 hours) to the "March of Dimes".

Inaugurated a continuous 19-hour broadcast devoted to "work or fight" to intensify civilian production efforts.

Inaugurated the first Red Cross show that combined all stations in Southern California. Tickets of admission to the Studio netted almost $100,000 for the Red Cross.

Inaugurated the first big USO radio show.

Inaugurated the British War Relief show.

Abandoned all commercials for 24 hours to bring complete night and day coverage of VE Day.

Abandoned commercials and augmented regular staff with Hollywood personalities offering specialized reports and analysis throughout day and night of VJ Day.

Created the Greek War Relief show from the Chinese Theatre.

Broadcast and participated in the "Story of China" pageant which featured Madam Chiang Kai-shek.

Inaugurated "personalized" broadcasts for charity drives. Personnel of all motion picture studios gather to be addressed at their studios by leaders of the industry through facilities of KFWB.

Awarded "Meritorious Public Service" medal by "This Month" magazine for unique program "Tomorrow's News Tonight".

ARCH OBOLER'S PLAYS

MUTUAL BROADCASTING SYSTEM
THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1946
10:00 - 10:30 pm EWT

ANNCR: The Mutual Broadcasting System brings you a new series entitled ARCH OBOLER'S PLAYS, written, produced and directed by Arch Oboler.

(MUSIC ..... UP AND UNDER)

ANNCR: Today -- ARCH OBOLER SPEAKS.

(MUSIC ..... FADE BEHIND)

ARCH OBOLER: The Mutual Broadcasting System is giving me the opportunity to bring you a series of my original plays. My intent can be simply stated: to bring to the radio audience a group of melodramas, and comedies, and adventures, and mysteries which say something through entertainment, and which admit that the listening public, in this year of radio 1945, has a brain and knows how to use it when listening to radio drama.

SPECIAL EVENT PICK UP

ROOSEVELT HOTEL, NEW YORK CITY
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24, 1946

ANNCR: From the Roosevelt Hotel in New York City the next voice you will hear will be that of Dean Drewry, speaking of Arch Oboler, winner of the Peabody Drama Award for 1946, for his sustaining series over the Mutual Broadcasting System.

DEAN DREWRY: This award is presented to Arch Oboler in recognition of his pioneer and continuous efforts, imaginative and intelligent, not only to adapt drama to the requirements of radio, but to create a dramatic form especially for broadcasting.

country and ply along the Pacific Coast.

Title of picture will be in letters 40-feet high, with continuous running messages in letters 25-feet high and covering distance of 200 feet, on either side of blimp. Minimum of 5,000 light bulbs will be used for signs on each side.

It is estimated signs will be visible at distance of five miles, and will be seen by population total of 22,000,000 as dirigible makes its daily air jaunt over 40,000 square mile area, extending 150 miles in each direction from Lakehurst, N.J. First picture to get far-flung promotional stunt will be "The Green Years."

Giant searchlights, each 800,000 000 candlepower are to be set up on top of Capitol and Loew's State Theatre buildings, and catch blimp in their cross-beams as ship passes over New York. Carl L. Lange, ex-Navy captain and former chief of staff to Adm. Charles Rosendahl, will head all former Navy personnel manning craft.

Peters Resigns As Manager of KIEV

L. W. Peters has resigned as manager of station KIEV and will leave on May 1. He has been with station for 13 years. Immediate plans were not disclosed in detail, however, Peters has indicated that he will go into business affiliated with rado industry. Dave Cannon and Reed Callister, owners, will supervise operation until new manager is named.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

You remember the old cartoons of a figure breaking through the front page of a paper. You can use a form of that to visualize the present international situation with the figure breaking through the page representing the Soviet. The Soviet is becoming the rugged individualist of the international arena, a persistent battler for things as she sees them. The trouble is that we see the same things as differently as if we were from different planets. We all see the same totalitarianism and objectionable form of government in Spain, but we look calmly and wonder what is the best way to oust Franco. We say we do not want to start a war, unless it is proved that Franco is a threat to us. But Russia says, "Franco is a fascist. He ought to be out and now. And what difference if there is violence? You fellows hesitate and talk too much. You talked through Manchuria, Ethiopia, Munich. I say, act now." We insist that we can't act on an affair unless it is proved our business. So on and on. But despite this difference in approach, despite the disagreements in the security council, in the Big Four, and on Manchuria, we are making gains.

'Pauline' Waits On Hutton Dancing

Shooting on "Perils of Pauline" shuts down Monday at Paramount for one week, for rehearsals of Casino de Paris production number. Company has been working so steadily under direction of George Marshall that Betty Hutton, who stars, has had no opportunity to learn intricate steps of sequence.

Toscanini in Italy

Milan, April 25.—Arturo Toscanini has arrived from the United States, to conduct at re-opening of La Scala Opera House on May 11. He will spend several days resting at his country home near Crena before reporting for rehearsals.

Toler in Hopalong

Sidney Toler draws featured role with William Boyd in "Devil's Playground," first of new Hopalong Cassidy productions.

PUPPETS GIVEN UP BY MOREY AND SUTHERLAND

Morey and Sutherland, who have completed five three-dimensional puppet shorts for United Artists release, will confine their production activities to flat animation for all future product. Switch over to straight-drawing cartoons is necessitated by additional costs necessitated in turnout of puppets.

Pair, who originally were with Disney, left there to start cartooning on their own, but were confronted with lack of animation talent, due to war. When no artists were available, production of puppets was set up, since it was possible to procure talent who could do these.

RIGHT TO CANCEL ANY LONG RUN PIX SOUGHT BY INDIES

Minneapolis, April 25.—Proposal is being advanced by President Bennie Berger of North Central Allied, independent exhibitors organization here, for conference of distributor and independent exhibitor representatives to frame new unified contract form which will be more satisfactory for independents.

Berger contends that present contract form contains many clauses objectionable to independents and considers only distributors' interests. He wants contract form to be drawn up jointly by distributor and independent exhibitors — a form to be standard for adoption throughout industry. He demands that consideration be given to independent exhibitors' interests.

One clause advocated by Berger would give subsequent-run independent exhibitors privilege of canceling any picture having "an unduly long downtown first-run," milking its box-office possibilities. He charges that subsequent-run exhibitors are "suffering intolerably" from such milking.

Berger claims that as result of milking even such a picture as "Bells of St. Mary's" is not doing satisfactory business in the neighborhood situations.

'Abie's' Film Cast May Hit the Road

Anne Nichols, author of "Abie's Irish Rose," is now considering using some members of the cast of the screen version, which Eddie Sutherland is producing and directing for Bing Crosby Producers Inc., in the cast of the road company she plans to send out with the play this fall.

More 'Outlaws'

"Border Outlaws" will get the greenlight May 15 from Constellation pictures. Cal Shrum, Alta Lee, Max Terhune and Don Weston head the cast.

Chivalry of 1946

Pauline Starke, vet silent day star who started in "Birth Of A Nation," visited Warner Bros. yesterday and turned up at the "Life With Father" set to say hello to William Powell. They gabbed an hour or so about old times, but when Powell took her to the stage door he was his gallant self to the last. "Well," Pauline," he said, "it was certainly a pleasure renewing memories of the last TEN years."

ACE DISC JOCKEY LEAVING SUPPER CLUB SHOWS

Martin Block, country ace disc jockey and star of Chesterfield Supper Club program, leaves for home base in New York Sunday (28) after two weeks here. He will return here permanently in January, 1948—having been sold on California and having bought a home in Encino yesterday.

Though working Chesterfield show, plus another net show for Columbia Records, Block is still associated with his original disc jockey operation in New York. Contract with indie station that has made him a virtual millionaire is up in December, 1947. He will not renew it, he says.

Int Signs Gordon, Kanin for Script

Garson Kanin and Ruth Gordon signed yesterday by International to collaborate on an original, "The Art of Murder." It is Kanin's initial film chore since his recent release from the Army.

Freddie Bartholomew Elopes With Flack

Freddie Bartholomew and Maely Daniels, Los Angeles publicist, were married yesterday morning in surprise ceremony in Las Vegas. Couple returned immediately to Hollywood in chartered plane, for test of actor at Paramount.

LOCATION HOPS INCREASE

Time apparently isn't far distant when majority of studios will utilize chartered planes—if they don't actually own them—for transportation of troupes to location sites.

Golden Gate Productions has arranged for transport plane to take "Flight to Nowhere" company to Death Valley on Sunday, where several days of exteriors will be shot. Another plane will then take company headed by Producer William David and Director William Rowland to Las Vegas for further sequences.

Walter Colmes has chartered plane for Monday, to transport himself, Director Bernard Vorhaus and principals of "Snow Cinderella," which he is making for Republic release, to Timberline Lodge, near Mt. Hood, Ore. Republic week ago hired four planes to carry "The Angel and the Outlaw" troupe to Monument Valley, Ariz., directly to site of location, and one will remain during six-week stay.

THE $64 QUESTION
IN HOLLYWOOD TODAY

First, get the picture:

When violence broke out in the film strike last October it was producers who appealed to the AFL to end the strike.

The AFL acted. Men were ordered back to work. The unions were told to "make every effort" to settle differences between them. A three-man committee was set up to handle any differences which remained after thirty days.

This was the so-called Cincinnati ruling of the AFL executive committee, and all parties agreed to abide by it.

In the days that followed, the unions made some progress in settling issues, especially where both sides really tried. For example, on Nov. 27, United Brotherhood Carpenters and IATSE Grips reached a signed agreement covering all carpenter work.

On Dec. 26, the AFL committee ruled on unsettled issues.

This was the so-called three-man directive, and it took some work from the IA in certain classifications. It also gave the IA some work. To our union it restored—on paper—jobs we had tried to recover since 1936, which we had gone to court to recover. It gave machinists their old jobs and said, "The committee takes cognizance of the fact that the Int'l Ass'n of Machinists has discontinued its affiliation with the AFL, and expresses the hope that reaffiliation will soon take place."

Now we get to the question.

Since Dec. 26 the major concern of this union and other members of the Conference of Studio Unions has been to see the letter, spirit and intent of the directive, which was asked for by producers, put in effect.

It hasn't been.

Early in March, questions of interpretation came up. The C. S. U. suggested a way of arbitrating such questions. When producers revised this plan, the C. S. U. accepted. On April 2 notice of this acceptance was sent producers.

So there is the $64 question in Hollywood today—as studios hum, but as pictures are tied up, sets deadlocked, and as thousands of dollars are thrown away and strife fostered because somebody will not or cannot act in common justice and restore peace to the studios.

Why isn't the directive, which producers asked for, enforced?

Why don't producers put their own arbitration machinery in motion?

The C. S. U. will go along.

Pointed questions. We intend to go on asking them until peace, justice and decency are restored in Hollywood labor relations — and common sense efficiency in picture making.

Local Union No. 40

Member, Conference of Studio Unions

The Conference of Studio Unions is composed of local unions of AFL Carpenters, Painters, Electrical Workers, Set Designers, Building Service Employees, Special Officers and Guards, Story Analysts, Sheet Metal Workers and Publicists — all self-governing — and Machinists, temporarily under suspension by the AFL.

Copies of the complete text of the AFL directive of Dec. 26, 1945 and of the producers' proposed arbitration procedure may be had by writing this union at 1225 N. Highland Ave., Hollywood, or phoning GRanite 5139 or EXposition 7772.

Because of the refusal of the Motion Picture Producers Association to conclude any plan for the employment and rehabilitation of the qualified Screen Writers who served in the Armed Forces, the Screen Writers Guild will meet at the Hollywood Masonic Temple on Monday evening, April 29 at 8:15 to discuss and remedy this situation.

Other important matters will be discussed.

All members of the Screen Writers Guild are urged to attend.

PRODUCTION OF

"OVER 21"

"Nimble and engaging . . . drew continuous laughter . . . smartly acted, admirably directed, well mounted; should draw back to the Mayan the discriminating patronage that has been routed by the dingey stupidities housed there in recent weeks."

Patterson Greene,
L.A. Examiner

"The Lou Levy production of this farce is of good professional calibre . . . the harried husband is played with real understanding by Pat McVey . . . 'Over 21' deserves to stay around . . . should keep the Mayan open for a long time."

Virginia Wright,
Daily News

"One of the pleasantest surprises in a long while . . . had its audience convulsed with laughter . . . played with exceptional sparkle by the cast headed by that very competent comedienne Mabel Albertson . . . ."

Edwin Schallert,
L.A. Times

"Smoother than the usual local production."

Harrison Carroll,
L.A. Herald-Express

"First night turnout gave cast a spontaneous reception through the three acts of raucous comedy and spicy repartee."

Variety

"Resulted in considerable enjoyment."

Musicians Set 33% Pay Tilt Pattern For Pix

New York, April 28. — The agreement whereby the eight major film studios have granted American Federation of Musicians 33 per cent increase in salaries, according to contract signed here over weekend, will serve as pattern in the negotiations of new labor contracts between picture industry and all trade unions. Although the 33 per cent tilt has been widely hailed and does affect most musikers employed by studios, the overall average for all AFM members is but 25 per cent.

The salary hike was agreed to after studio reps were shown

'AMBER' PUT TO BED FOR WEEK

"Forever Amber" will pause in production all this week at 20th-Fox, due to Peggy Cummins being bedded over weekend with relapse from her recent bout with the flu. Doctors ordered Miss Cummins, who plays title role in film, abed with instructions to rest. This is third time film has been stalled in production because of lead's recurrent illnesses.

Sinatra Relents and Will Take the 25G

Frank Sinatra changed his mind over weekend and, with doctors' nod, has accepted the two weeks of personals for which recently he was penciled, then backed out when medicos advised him to rest. Singer goes into Downtown theatre, Detroit, for stanza of May 9, and plays Chicago, Chicago, week of May 17. He's getting guarantee of $25,000 a week, plus percentage deals for both dates.

PAR PIC MOVES INTO THE HALL

New York, April 28.—"To Each His Own" has been set to follow current "Green Years" at Radio City Music Hall. $6 Million Boxoffice Upbeat Revealed By U.S. Tax Figures

Washington, April 28.—February, with a total admissions tax collection of $36,374,650, was one of the all-time sock months for show business. Figure is nearly $6,000,000 above the February 1945 mark and betters by almost $6,000,000 the January 1946 tax collection.

Reflecting one of the biggest b.o. marks ever recorded, figure is particularly impressive since February was only a 28-day month. It is estimated that almost 90 per cent of the total came from film houses.

BILL READY FOR SPEEDY TAKEOVER

Paris, April 28.—Marking a revolutionary step, a bill to nationalize a major part of the French film industry will shortly be introduced by Information Minister Gaston Deferre. HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

FLAGSTAFF is latest location center for Hollywood studios, and this fact has that Arizona city's Chamber of Commerce burning the midnight oil in effort to figure out ways for luring further motion picture companies to use its environs as a location base. John Ford will take his 20th-Fox "My Darling Clementine" troupe to Flagstaff on a special train early in May, entire company of over 200 persons then shoving on to Monument Valley for exteriors. Warners over weekend dispatched its "Cheyenne" troupe to Flagstaff, Director Raoul Walsh heading company of nearly 150 for Dennis Morgan starrer, and Republic's "The Angel and the Outlaw" currently is locationing some miles outside city limits, but using town as working base. C. B. De Mille already has scouted territory around Flagstaff for his forthcoming "Unconquered," although majority of exteriors will be filmed near Pittsburgh. Part of Paramount's "California" was filmed in this same area, and also 20th-Fox's "Leave Her to Heaven."

TWENTIETH-FOX will make use of certain war film footage which played an important role in activity of O.S.S. men during war, for scenes in "13 Rue Madeleine," story of Office of Strategic Services which Lous de Rochemont will produce. This footage is from films made secretly by photographers of the French underground, showing collaborators at some of their traitorous jobs, and prior to end of war was shown to O.S.S. personnel behind the lines in France, so they would become familiar with the people they must both observe and avoid. Part of this film was used after liberation as evidence against the offenders, and was responsible for sending them to firing squad. Films were presented by present French government to Richard de Rochemont, formerly head of France Forever Committee, who in turn presented them to his brother for use in picture.

ONCE a month, Director George Stevens does a retake as a lieutenant colonel and puts on the feed bag with the guys who were associated with his old SHAEF special coverage unit during the war in Africa and Europe. Nearly every lot is represented: RKO, Joe Biroc; Columbia, Bill Montague, Don Starling, Art Seid, Harold Lee; Hal Roach, Dick Cahoon, Holly Morse; Liberty, Stevens, Ivan Moffet; 20th, Hal Herman, Jack McEdwards; Paramount, Bill Mellor; Crosby Prod., Leo Tover; Fairbanks, Bob Scribner; and Warners, Barney Oldfield. Outfit touched every place there was a battle, and have the movie film to prove it. Even though a World War II organization, outfit has no axe to grind.

COMET has a flexible length for its six scheduled releases for United Artists. Producers Buddy Rogers and Ralph Cohn shot enough footage on "Little Iodine" for a 70-minute feature. View of rough cut will determine whether comedy needs paring, and then sneak preview will be determining factor of final length. Comet is committed to 60-minute streamlined features, so producers have ten minutes leeway to tighten film. If comedy warrants it though, producers will leave it run full length.

ROCKY Mountain area stations are being sighted in by American Federation of Radio Artists as next in campaign to up announcer wages. Denver and Salt Lake stations, and others in territory, haven't escaped notice of union as allegedly being light on pay in comparison to rest of western territory. As soon as national reshuffle is in hand and local network outlets re-contracted (with increases, too), union will move over the crags to wangle raises.

(Melodrama)

REPUBLIC RELEASE. Producer-director, W. Lee Wilder. Screenplay, Mindret Lord. Photography, Henry Sharp. Musical director and scorer, Alexander Laszlo. Sets, Frank Welch. Supervising editor, John F. Link. Film editor, Asa Clark. Sound, Ferrol Redd. Makeup, Jack Casey. Wardrobe, Lucille Sothern. Production manager, Bartlett C. Carre.

CAST — Paul Kelly, Douglas Fowley, Anne Gwynne, Maris Wrixon, Selmer Jackson, Cyril Thornton, Jack Conrad, Cy Kendall, Walter Soderling, Vic Potel, George Chandler, Phyllis Adair, Ted Stanhope, Dick Scott, Eula Guy, Forrest Taylor.

PREVIEWED at RCA projection room, Hollywood, Calif., April 26, 1946. Running time: 68 MINS.

On an obviously low budget all hands here involved converged to fashion a wholly entertaining meller which will do well in the duals for which it was intended.

Producer-director W. Lee Wilder presents a taut, credible yarn that wastes no motions, builds interest and suspense all along the way and has a deft twist of a finale that will produce surefire satisfaction for any customer.

Story basically is strong and further helped by novel daubing of characters and natural, meaningful dialog. Tale is of a Los Angeles newspaper reporter, a glib, cocky, clever and complete heel who marries a gal with five million and so fragile a ticker the medicos have figured her to die in six months. Newsman tossed her a hypocritical pitch, knowing of her approaching doom and with sidewise but steady stare on the bankroll. He's involved with a gangster's moll and brings her into a conspiracy to knock off his wife when she lingers more than allotted time. Events, plot twists and sequences leading up to clever, punchy denouement lend the piece a lot of weight and interest.

Douglas Fowley turns in a well-measured portrayal of the heel, and Paul Kelly makes much of character of police lieutenant who has known the newsman all his life, is rather fond of him, but senses the caper from the start and turns up the thing at the finish. Fowley and Kelly make their roles wholly natural and believable.

Anne Gwynne's performance of the moll, a sullen, sultry witch, is strong. Maris Wrixon does all right as the rich lass, a rather difficult role that script could have more finely and fully delineated. Jack Conrad as a small-time hoodlum does some slick character work. He's a newcomer Republic plans to build up after this effort. He makes so much of a character out of the part he possibly may suffer from being stamped in future assignments. All other parts are just bits.

Wilder's direction was sure and he built a pressing suspense that was felt throughout the footage. Naturalness of the yarn, incidentally, was helped by fact much of it was shot on streets around Hollywood and at beaches. Henry Sharp's camera and Alexander Laszlo's score gave tone and proper pitch to production. Mindret Lord's script, an original, had wallop and was ideally tight and tense. His lines may not have sparkled, but they were very natural. He might have squeezed in just a laugh or several. All the technical departments and details parred the high general average of the major elements concerned in "The Glass Alibi," which, too, is blessed with a good, telling title.

FitzPatrick Will Make Shorts As Indie Prod

James A. FitzPatrick will produce "Famous Music Masters" series of musical shorts on his own. Deal had been set for producer to make series for Metro, but they couldn't get together at last minute on contractual arrangement, so FitzPatrick bowed out. Bow-out will have no bearing on his contract with Metro to produce "FitzPatrick Traveltalks." This agreement still has three years to go.

Producer already has started negotiations for stage space. As last resort, if space here is unavailable, he will go to New York, where he already has an arrangement for space. Series will be filmed in Technicolor and on high budget. FitzPatrick probably will make only six this year, although there is a possibility he may turn out 12.

24 Hour Club Winners Named; Will Be Honored By Truman

Pacific Coast winners of the "24-Hour Club" contest in connection with the 1946 Red Cross drive in theatres will be taken to New York and Washington to receive honors from President Harry S. Truman, Basil O'Connor and Spyros Skouras. Winners, announced by George Bowser, exhibitor chairman, and Herb McIntyre, distributor chairman, were:

William Eberline, San Francisco, exhibitor winner; Guy Gunderson, Burbank, alternate winner; George Jackson, RKO, Portland, distributor winner; and William A. Calihan, Metro, Los Angeles, alternate.

Winners in the various exchange areas were: Los Angeles, Calihan and Gunderson; Portland, George Jackson, RKO, and Mrs. Elaine George, Star theatre; Seattle, Wally Rucker, Metro, and Kenneth E. Ames, Dishman theatre; San Francisco, Floyd Bernard, 20th-Fox, and Eberline, New Fillmore theatre.

PAR SKEDS SHORTS SALES MEETINGS

Series of 10 regional conferences of district, branch and sales managers of Paramount's short subjects department have been scheduled by Oscar A. Morgan, sales manager for shorts and Paramount News.

First of the huddles to discuss 1946-47 shorts product opens today in New York and then Morgan leaves for tour of country to hold confabs in Boston May 1-2; Philadelphia, May 3-4; Cleveland, May 6-7; Atlanta, May 10-11; Memphis, May 13-14; St. Louis, May 15-16; Chicago, May 17-18; Denver, May 20-21; and San Francisco May 23-24.

Kosiner Coasting

New York, April 28.—Harry Kosiner, Edward Small's eastern rep just returned from Europe, leaves tomorrow for Hollywood.

SPYROS SKOURAS FETED ON ANNI

New York, April 28.—In honor of his 53rd birthday, 30 film industry toppers hosted Spyros Skouras with a surprise luncheon at the Sherry-Netherlands over the weekend. Highlighting the event, was the presentation of $53,000 to Skouras for the Greek War Relief, which he heads. Money was donated by approximately 800 industry execs.

Barney Balaban and Harry Warner manned a special committee which petitioned industry leaders to contribute $53 each. With $51,300 collected in this manner, Balaban donated the rest to carry out the "53" motif. Balaban presided over the luncheon and speakers included Jules Brulatour and Murray Silverstone, with former hailing Skouras as a "real showman and a great family man."

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The "remarkable concession" the Russians made in reducing their claim from the original demand for a third of the Italian fleet is now revealed as even more remarkable than had been imagined. Now they just get a larger share, more than twice as much as any other nation. The 25 per cent the Russians get will be most important as the basis of the navy the Russians now are building, and since these are vessels built for the Mediterranean, they are just about built to order, a little out of date perhaps, but hardly used. The Russians now need bases in Tripolitania, the Dodacanese and elsewhere in the Mediterranean. However, we might as well let the Russians have some war vessels to play with, if we can in return help restore order to Europe, if we can see that somehow the people of Poland, Rumania, Hungary, Austria, Bulgaria and Finland get the rights and opportunities for which we fought a war, get the kind of democracy we do not have to enclose in quotes.

'LAMBS'LL GAMBLE' COMES UP WITH SNAKE EYES

New Haven, Conn., April 28. — "Lambs Will Gamble" opened at the Shuberts as possible B picture material. It doesn't indicate serious stage consideration. Plot follows the conventional whodunit lines against a class gambling house background located in the desert near Palm Springs. A deluge coops up an assortment of characters for a 24-hour stretch during which a murder is committed. A mock trial unearths the guilty party according to formula.

Roles are routine, leads being played by Walter Gilbert, as the operator of the spot, and Sunnie O'Dea, femme film star who had a one time crush on him. Arthur Hunnicutt as a hick sheriff; Lex Lindsay, a columnist; and Walter Greaza, a judge, set the supporting pace for a large cast.

Two handsome interiors bolster the setting department. Staging finds its best outlet in a fairly interesting third act.

Welles' Show Costly Shambles in Boston

Boston, April 28.—An uproarious shambles of faulty scene-changes, hung-up backdrops and muffed light cues marred the opening at the Opera House tonight of Orson Welles' $200,000 production of Jules Verne's "Around the World in 80 Days." First night decidedly found piece decidedly unimpressive, but there is present in the musical high potentialities for films.

Production goes lavish with 40 scenes located in many countries. There is a maze of complicated scenery and films and color slides are added for not too telling total effect. Plot clings closely to the novel, detailing a detective's chase of an Englishman around the globe to win a bet. Prime defect in plot is that the pursued isn't aware of being tagged, with result there is lack of tension. Humor also is lacking.

Cole Porter's score is not outstanding, his lyrics particularly being under par. Arthur Margetson is great as the Englishman and Mary Healy scores with her warbling, as does Dorothy Bird with her hoofing. Others featured include Alan Reed, Julie Warren and Larry Lawrence, plus Welles himself, in a pretty corny magic routine. Show runs three hours, and chunks are certain to be lopped from the show.

COMET PREPS NO. 2 AS 'IODINE' WINDS

"Little Iodine," first of Comet's six scheduled releases for United Artists, winds today at Morey & Sutherland Studios, with director Reginald LeBorg bringing in the comedy on schedule.

Producers Buddy Rogers and Ralph Cohn start their second feature, "Miss Television," May 10, with LeBorg also directing the musical. Ann Hunter, formerly known as Juanita Alvarez when under contract to RKO, will play the title role. David Bruce and Cleatus Caldwell are the romantic toppers. Miss Hunter reports tomorrow to musical director Hal Borne to begin rehearsals for the song numbers.

GREECE SETS UP NEW RULES FOR FILM IMPORTS

Washington, April 28. — The Greek government has set up new regulations on film imports to help figure country's capacity to pay for foreign pictures, according to George Canty, State Department's film specialist.

Effective as of year ending May 30, all pictures imported by Greece will be divided into two categories. First group will include all films distributed by subsids of the producers. At present, due to space shortage, all American major studios except 20th-Fox are represented by one distrib agency, although each company plans eventually to establish its own exchange. 20th-Fox spreads its product through a member of the Skouras family who is an exhib in Greece.

180 PIX A YEAR

Number of imports in this first category is limited to 180 annually for all countries. Beyond this quota, a special import license will be required. According to Canty, presumption is that foreign exchange will be made available for these 180 pictures and for those which enter Greece on special licenses.

In the second category will be those films imported on a royalty basis, which are limited to 60 for all countries. These pictures will be sold against a minimum guarantee. Greece's new regulations chiefly will affect this second classification and provide that, when a film actually is released, the buyer must deposit the amount of the minimum guarantee with the Bank of Greece. Purpose appears to be to enable the government to ascertain that there is sufficient foreign exchange to release the films.

State Dept. officials do not appear to attach much significance to the ruling. They consider it largely a bookkeeping arrangement established by Greece to determine how much drain on nation's foreign exchange the film imports will be.

Mel Rose Setting Up Record Biz Here

Mel Rose, prez of Melrose Records, eastern odd label, arrived Saturday from NY to set up distribution on Coast for his product. Upon arrival Rose pacted Skip Nelson, vocalist, for his platters.

MGM Signs Blind Hero

Al Schmid, blind Marine hero, signed over the weekend by Metro for a role in the Pete Smith Specialty, "Playing by Ear," featuring an all-blind cast.

• JUST FOR VARIETY •

THE GRAPEVINE: Metro is seriously considering Lucille Ball for the role Jeanette McDonald played when studio remakes "San Francisco," as a Technicolor musical with Jack Cummings producing. Who'll play the roles initiated by Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy hasn't been decided. Picture, with its terrific earthquake effects and almost as startling casting of Tracy as a priest, was one of Metro's biggest hits . . . Margo's marriage to Eddie Albert must be happy enough to keep the outside world—and her own career—as faint as the echo of the sea in a conch shell. In the past three weeks she rejected an offer of $50,000 to make a Spanish language film in the Argentine and two Broadway show offers as well . . . If you look like President Truman, the Metro casting department would probably like to see you. Studio is looking for an actor to portray the President in "The Beginning or the End," the atomic bomb story. Studio execs are considering several local prospects while the New York offices are testing others. Why not test that Bevhills veepee of the Security bank? . . . It wasn't the desert sun which reddened the faces of two film couples who exited hastily from Palm Springs. The owner of a bungalow court checked their registrations against the Los Angeles directory, found no such names listed, and the couples left rather quickly. Looks like a new trend in motel operations . . . Harry Butcher's memoirs "My Three Years with Eisenhower" are scheduled for translation to the screen, but the recently published "Top Secret," by Ralph Ingersoll, editor of the pinkish New York PM and a former staff officer of SHAEF, will probably get the asbestos glove treatment in story departments. Hitherto an Anglophile, Ingersoll did a hatchet job on the British military caste, blasted Field Marshall Sir Bernard Montgomery and exhibited less than enthusiasm for Eisenhower.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Merle Oberon was very unhappy Saturday morning on the set of "Bella Donna" at Universal. By some snafu, she had been called four hours before she was needed for her first scene and the atmosphere in her dressing room was compounded of misery, fury and indignation. But someone in the International production department saved the day with a gag. While Miss Oberon was still fuming, a beautifully-wrapped parcel arrived at her door. It was a small beef roast, and with it was a note remarking, "You've got a beef coming" . . . Viveca Lindfors, Warner's recently-imported Swedish star, has captivated the lot and her prospective co-workers with her friendly and cooperative attitude . . . Jean Pierre Aumont kept a daily diary while serving in the French tank corps before the collapse and afterwards while serving with General de Gaulle's forces. It will be published by a Canadian firm next month . . . Untitled thriller by Gordon McDonald, whose "Shadow of a Doubt" and "They Won't Believe" were previously filmed, has the studios on a bidding spree. Atlantic Monthly bought the magazine rights after reading the first three chapters . . . And here's the sassiety report: At the Mocambo, Seymour Chotiner and Gerrie Noonan, Anatole Litvak and Paula Drew, Jeanne Crain and Paul Brinkman, John Dall and Sonja Henie. At Kurt Krueger's buffet dinner, Andrea King and Nat Willis, Bill Eythe, Helen Walker, Charles Russell, Diana Barrymore, Victor Cutler, Oliver Thorndike, Anne McKee and John Emery. Foursome at the Beverly Hills Club: Hyatt Dehn and Ginny Simms, Bob Cummings and his wife. At the Brown Derby, Jane Powell and Johnny Sands.

CALL SHEET: JUNE HAVER'S mother, Marie, has opened a talent agency . . . GEORGE JESSEL planes to New York today for broadcasts and personals at the Roxy in connection with his production for 20th "Do You Love Me?" On his way back he'll take in the Kentucky Derby and be guest speaker at the Kentucky Colonels dinner . . . VINCE FLAHERTY'S sports column in the Examiner has taken a turn for the better, much better, now that he's forgotten Hollywood and confined his observations to the stadiums, arenas and gyms . . . IRVING PICHEL, in the International dining room, asked Charles Korvin (birthplace Hungary) if he and Robert Capa (also Hungarian-born) were countrymen. "Yes," Korvin replied. "Both Americans" . . . GENE DE PAUL will be separated from the Army May 4, goes to New York to pick up his mother, then proceeds to El Paso for his marriage. His song-writing partner, Don Raye, and several other Hollywoodites will also attend the marriage May 18 . . . GARWOOD VAN read a medical statement that the average man is slightly taller in the morning than at the end of the day and cracked, "I thought most guys just got short at the end of the month!".

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: "London Letter" put out by the British travel agencies has come up with a startling observation. The columns of the London Times have long been noted for duly observing the first robin of spring and other phenomena of the countryside, but "London Letter's" sharp-eyed observer reports: "Happily there are signs that the spirit of London is with us again . . . Only the other day I noticed my first man-about-town with his jaunty curled brim hat, his carnation and his beautifully furled umbrella." Come, come, now, his beautifully furled what? We thought that Chamberlain had made the umbrella a badge of nincompoopery, even if it was beautifully furled . . . Lionel Barrymore huffed and puffed, and out went the 68 candles on his birthday cake Saturday . . . Forgive the owlish trend in our outlook, but bird life in Hollywood has taken on a bizarre aspect. 20th-Fox employes swear that three little owls sit on a fence near the Pico entrance of the studio every afternoon to watch the personnel roll homeward. But Saturday the trio takes up its roost at 1 p.m. to bid them a fair weekend. More sensitive types, however, claim they just sit there and sneer . . . Jack Hively claims it's new. A barkeep was polishing his glasses at opening time when in walked a pink elephant, a green giraffe and three white mice. Unmoved, the barkeep told them, "You're early, boys—the guy hasn't shown up yet."——D.D.T.

'CORLISS ARCHER' NEW CAMPBELL SUNDAY AIRER

The Campbells have been coming along with new shows at pretty regular intervals since Bill Bacher and Louella Parsons closed up "Hollywood Hotel" some years ago. As restless as the croutons in the big tureen at Camden, the canners set great score by Hooperatings, and programs which failed to land among the select have been short-lived.

Modest budget exhibits such as "Meet Corliss Archer" are a new experience to the soup crowd, and if it carves a niche among the elite of radio and takes a cut out of Walter Winchell's audience in the opposite corner, it is safe for at least another season.

"Corliss" is no radio fledgling and has been around long before the interest of the Campbells was whetted. Something had to be grabbed up fast when the decision was reached to make a last request of "Request Performance"—get off the air!

Mickey Rooney was under option, but that was allowed to lapse and a new show had to be bought fast. Over the protests of Young & Rubicam, "Corliss" was sold to Campbell and yesterday the F. Hugh Herbert piece broke through the cellophane.

It's highly speculative that "Corliss" will do any better than "Request." Stencilled after a dozen other family comedies, or perhaps it's fairer to say it preceded many of its genres, it will command a moderate audience but won't cut into Winchell's following materially. Janet Waldo is back as "Corliss" and given competent cast support by a cast of solid AFRA performers. Direction of Edna Best was smooth and spirited and the family flavor is as steaming as the cream-of-mushroom commercials of Del Sharbutt.

Campbell has been selling soup with all manner of programs over the years and a comedy of adolescents such as "Corliss," while a departure, may send the sales spiraling. If it doesn't and the rating lags, there will be a new show riding CBS wavelengths when the leaves turn brown in the Fall.

HERBERT SEEKING TEMPLE LOANOUT FOR 'CORLISS'

Negotiations are on between F. Hugh Herbert and David O. Selznick for loan of Shirley Temple to play title role in "Meet Corliss Archer," picturization of Herbert's present radio series and a follow-up to "Kiss and Tell," which author and Sol Siegel produced with Shirley starred last year as an indie for Columbia release.

Siegel, currently under producer contract at Paramount, will be associated again with Herbert in new picture, which will be an indie. No release has been set as yet, but Paramount is considered likely, with Siegel's tie-in there. Understood both Selznick and Miss Temple are amenable to actress undertaking role, with time element, due to Shirley's previous commitments, an important factor.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

We're hearing a lot about program development these days and well may the ad agencies slant their thinking toward this stepchild of the business. Its importance, never before manifest as it is today, has been seized upon, not merely as a device but as a salvation. The trend, and it's definitely that, is taking a sharp turn and the day of throwing around tax money and buying just any old show is colder than yesterday's mutuel ticket you didn't cash. The agency with creative brains and production know-how will not only hold what they've got but will move in on less enterprising competitors.

It's no trade secret that big air spenders are examining their advertising dollar closer and the media making the best showing will get the bulk of the budget. Also coming in for closer scrutiny will be the type and quality of shows, heretofore taken on the spin of a record. Agencies are well aware of this turn of events and are not taking it lying down. No less than a half dozen agencies are moving their personnel around to give off at least a semblance of specialized production and idea developmnt. It's not what they're doing but what they come up with that will balance the scales their way. This time it's no flash in the pan but long range planning that will show up in the billing. The chips are down and well the big commission men know it. Next season clients will be buying shows again instead of taking what the seller has to offer. It's much more important than it sounds.

Arch Oboler may not be commercial but you've certainly got to admire the man's honesty. Few days ago a story was given out that he would direct Boris Karloff in an audition of "Lights Out" for Milton Biow. When Oboler heard about it he blew a fuse. He immediately contacted NBC's Niles Trammell and Biow and told them they would be suckers to buy it or put it on the network. And don't forget, "Lights" is owned jointly by Oboler and NBC. "It's not a healthy program for broadcasting because it attracts only warped minds and semi-psychopathics," he belittled. He was also mindful that the show at one time was rated at 15 and that's pretty fancy for a program that cost only $1,500. "But it won't sell merchandise so what good is it?" he offered by way of a clincher and flipped the switch for "Lights Out."

Chain Breaks . . . Flyer for today: Bing Crosby will groan for General Motors next season under the agency aegis of Foote, Cone & Belding on NBC in the Sunday time being vacated by General Electric and Phil Spitalny . . . Betty Rhodes, original First Lady of Television and now caroling at "Parky's," will get a master buildup as RCA-Victor's No. 1 singer. She starts making four sides today and Victor flew out Russ Case, its music director, to supervise the recordings. She moved into the top position vacated by Dinah Shore . . . Luckies may pay the highest price for tobacco but they don't for singers. When the fee was quoted on Dennis Day for Hit Parade the thumbs went down. It now looks like Andy Russell takes the spot . . . Danny Kaye is still trying out new writers to isolate his best character for radio. Latest are Herbert Baker and Lee Brody . . . Jeannie McKeon booked for a guest shot with Tony Martin next month and can have her own shows on CBS for the saying . . . General Mills string of Irna Phillips daytimers may start from here much sooner than September . . . Al Levy is here from N.Y. to move that big package deal closer to the dotted line . . . Shirley Strotz, daughter of NBC's western division head, and Bill Mullen of Lennen & Mitchell radio staff in New York, will be married here next Saturday . . . Lorena Danker and Cornwell Jackson flew in over the weekend from biz confabs at Thompson hdq in New York . . . Dennis Day has an offer of $8,000 weekly for a series of personals this summer and may take it.

Don Lee's television department got a fancy run-around from the fight crowd after it had made extensive preparations to video the Ike William-Enrique Bolanos title scrap tomorrow night. Invited by Promoter Cal Eaton to televise the fight for the 300, more or less, set owners in southern California, the chain went ahead and installed facilities for transmitting the action of the first championship bout. When the managers of the fighters heard about it they put out their hands and wanted to know how much scratch was in it for them. Don Lee's W6XAO is operating on an experimental license so anything paid for the telecast would be out of pocket. Deal went completely cold but there'll be fight films on the screens that night, for Harry Lubcke, tele head of Don Lee, has arranged for pictures of previous championship fights.

Hitch hikes . . . Tom Lewis leaves May 7 for New York to sit with the Young & Rubicam executive committee. He'll be back the 20th . . . Memo to those who have written in: "It Pays to Be Ignorant" will be back in its old spot (KNX, 5 p.m., Friday), bouncing back after it was bounced for "Holiday & Co.," which got the bounce . . . Jack Benny ends his Hollywood stay for this season Sunday at NBC . . . Page Gilman out of the service and back on "One Man's Family" . . . Ed Gardner and his tavern crew go dead serious Friday to drive home the gravity of famine conditions in Europe . . . The Hooper needle in the Friday list moved up as much as it moved down so no one was badly hurt. Alan Young took a plus point-two for 5.3, Danny Kaye also managed a .1 rise to 10.7 and the othr Coasters bobbed along like this: Duffy's Tavern 12.3, up .2; Durante-Moore 9.3, up .7; "Holiday & Co." 4.4, off 1.1; "Maisie" 9.1, up .5; "People Are Funny" 15.7, up 1.8; "Aldrich Family" 11.2, off 4.3. Topping the daytimers is "Ma Perkins" with 8.2, that mere fraction ahead of Tom Breneman.

PAR FOUND GUILTY BY NLRB IN UNION CHARGE

Washington, April 28. — Paramount Pictures has been found guilty by NLRB examiner, William E. Spencer, of discharging George A. Heap and George A. Geary for union activities. Spencer recommended to the Board that:

1. The two men be rehired by Paramount "without prejudice to their seniority and other rights and privileges."

2. The men be reimbursed for any losses suffered in income during the period of their discharge.

The finding involves organizing activities in behalf of the Technical Engineers, Architects and Draftsmen's Union, of the American Federation of Labor. Both men were employed in the Paramount engineering department. Heap was employed as a structural engineer on Dec. 27, 1944, and was discharged April 20, 1945. Gary was hired Jan. 20, 1945, and discharged on March 31, 1945. Spencer stated in his report that there was no merit in Paramount's contention that Gary was discharged for incompetence and that Heap quit by mutual agreement.

Harry Popkin Named Prexy of Cardinal

Harry Popkin has been named president of Cardinal Pictures Corp., newly formed indie production outfit. Popkin recently produced "And Then There Were None" for 20th-Fox release. Cardinal will film "Sheila" with a $1,000,000 budget as first of three films on 1946-47 slate.

SORRELL TO FACE NEW TRIAL PLEA ON MAY 9

Motion for new trial of Herbert K. Sorrell and seven other defendants, found guilty of failure to disperse, after long trial in Burbank Police Court, will be made May 9 when they appear for sentence. Defendants, with exception of one, were found not guilty of rioting and disturbing the peace after 24-hour deliberation by jury, which heard trial resulting from charges made during October strike violence at Warners studio. Tony Schiavone was found guilty of disturbing the peace. If motion for new trial is denied, defendants will file appeal.

New Camera Will Shoot Like A Gun

search Council, of which Oster is a member. Regarded as a major step forward in camera operation technique, the mount will be employed for the first time by director William A. Wellman in the shooting of air scenes in "Gallant Journey."

CAN USE IN PLANE

Because of its power-driven operation, the mount will now make possible the use of a film camera in the heavy slip-stream of a fast-flying plane. Wind resistance and wind stress, factors which interfered with hand-held camera use, no longer will prevent the making of aerial shots.

Working in cooperation with military authorities, Oster will install the first model of the device in an Army camera ship already equipped with built-in compressors necessary for use of the hydraulic instrument. A four-inch lever is used to control the mount, which will enable the operator to put the camera through any desired sighting pattern.

ARMY COLONEL AIDS

Col. C. A. Shoop, formerly commanding officer of the Muroc Army Test Flight area, who is serving as technical director on "Gallant Journey," has been aiding in the construction of the mount. Elmer Dyer, noted aerial cameraman, will be the first to use the device when he begins special lensing assignments for the air film. The camera plane to be used for the picture will be a slow-flying Stinson artillery observation ship, to be piloted by Paul Mantz.

Application for patent rights for the hydraulic mount have already been filed by Columbia. It is expected that such mounts later will be adapted for use on camera cranes and dollies, since it will facilitate all camera operation.

FRENCH MGR. TELLS OF UNDERGROUND

Andre Ullman, general manager of Paramount theatres in France and Belgium and a leader in the resistance movement during the war, arrived for conferences with Henry Ginsberg and other Paramount officials.

Ullman recounted that after the Allies landed in Normandy, and the French underground was undermining the Nazis' rear areas, he made his way to Paris and found that the staffs of Parisian theatres had organized to shelter Allied paratroopers, published secret newspapers and cooperated with the rest of the underground movement.

Before the war Ullman was general manager of the Paramount studios in Paris.

OBITUARIES

ARTHUR THOMAS

Funeral services for Arthur Thomas, 63, former astist and scene painter, are being arranged today by Edwards Brothers Colonial Mortuary. Thomas died Friday at his home at 3029 South Grand avenue. At one time he was known as a painter of murals. He came to Hollywood in 1935 and worked in motion picture studios here until he was forced to retire in 1938 because of blindness. Surviving is his widow, Edna.

WILLIAM S. GILLIS

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today in Pierce Bros.' Hollywood mortuary for William S. "Bill" Gillis, pioneer film character actor, who died last Wednesday. Gillis appeared in films for more than 40 years, chiefly doing bits. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Juanita Gillis. Interment will be in Valhalla cemetery.

CHARLES J. BROWN

Charles J. Brown, 66, who was employed in the Paramount studios' transportation department for more than 20 years, died Friday at his home here. Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Pierce Bros.' Hollywood mortuary, followed by interment in Inglewood cemetery. Brown is survived by his widow, Mrs. Etta Brown, and a daughter, Mrs. Jack Bissett.

GEORGE E. VAN GUYSLING

Funeral services today will be conducted at 3 p.m. at Pierce Bros.' Washington Blvd. chapel for George Edmund Van Guysling, 81, who died Wednesday after two-year illness. A pioneer film cameraman and at one time veepee and general manager of the old Biograph Co., Van Guysling was credited with developing the first practical motion picture camera, in 1889. He is survived by a brother, Minard J. Van Guysling.

SPRIGGENS MAKES CHARGES AGAINST SPADE COOLEY

Cards were laid on union trial board's table Friday (26) when Deuce Spriggens preferred charges of solicitation against Spade Cooley at Local 47. Bands are currently alternating on bandstand at Western Palisades ballroom, Santa Monica, and Cooley is charged with trying to ease out and otherwise undermine his western pardner. Second hearing, before exec board, is set for tomorrow.

Bobbie Bennett, operator of cactus capery under lease from Walter Newcomb, supports Spriggens' charges. It's claimed that immediately upon being booked to share regular Saturday night date with Spriggens, Cooley began overtures to Miss Bennett to cancel Spriggens. Failing to impress Miss Bennett, it's charged, that he could do as well or better without Deuce, Cooley went to Newcomb and tried to have Miss Bennet's lease terminated so he could take over operation. Situation is said to be rife with other under-the-table machinations.

Spriggens has been in spot steadily since September, 1945. Cooley was booked in to split musicking last month. Spriggens left Cooley's band about a year ago with five others and formed his own crew. At the time Miss Bennett was managing Cooley. Now she manages Spriggens.

Par Buys 'Lion'

Original story, "Wilbur the Lion," has been purchased by Paramount for use in the George Pal Puppetoons. New character is elderly circus lion who retires and returns to his native land.

VAUDE ACT LOSES IN AGVA RULING

American Guild of Variety Artists ordered its San Francisco office to collect $378 in back commissions owed local agent Harry Rogers by Park & Clifford, hand-balancing act in cast of Earl Carroll's Vanities, vaude unit, current at Golden Gate theatre.

Turn, AGVA has established, was set in unit by Rogers and has toured for past seven weeks at $550 per stanza, meanwhile refusing to pay booker his commission. Rogers at first planned to attach act's salary, but dropped idea due to cost of getting an attorney. AGVA will ask performers to pay and in event Rogers doesn't get the money, act will be declared nationally "unfair" by union.

Musicians 33% Hike Seen As Pattern For Entire Film Biz

government figures proving that cost of living has risen 33 per cent since January, 1941, and it is understood that in shaping up new contracts with various unions, the studios will gladly grant salary boosts representing difference between 33 per cent rise in cost of living and amounts of increases previously given since January, 1941.

In other words, if union since then had received salary raises amounting to 20 per cent, ability to get an added 13 per cent will be virtually assured.

STRAIGHT 33% GAIN

Since majority of AFM members employed by studios have had no increases since 1941, their gain is straight 33 per cent, but the average under new contract will approximate 25 per cent since some union men have been given wage tilts in past five years.

The deal agreed upon by James C. Petrillo, his AFM exec board and the reps of the eight major studios, is retroactive to April 1, 1945, and runs to September 1, 1948. In addition to salary increases, pact calls for minimum employment of 104 additional musicians for a total of 339. Under old contract, 20th-Fox, Metro and Warners had minimum of 35 men, Paramount, 30; Columbia, Universal and Republic, 25 each, for a total of 235 musikers getting a minimum of $100 weekly. New pact calls for addition of 15 men by Metro, 20th-Fox, Warners and Par, and 11 more men by each of other four companies. Also in the contract is stipulation that musicians get two weeks vacation annually with pay.

MUSIC BILL UP MILLION

It is estimated that music bill for studios will be tilted less than $1,000,000 a year by new pact, with total cost henceforth between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. Opinion here is that studios made a favorable deal, particularly in view of Petrillo's original demands, and very importantly in connection with the non-accumulative clause.

AFM at outset of negotiations wanted pay to apply weekly regardless whether musicians worked or not. However, studio reps had this demand pared down to annual minimum wage. On non-accumulative basis, added cost to studios might have amounted to $5,000,000 more annually, it is estimated.

VICTORY FOR STUDIOS

Since Petrillo also wanted minimum of 90 men per studio and 100 per cent salary hike, per his original demands, it is felt that agreement calling for $13.33 per hour increase rather than $20, and guarantee of 339 men as against first demand for 720 is also regarded as victory for studios.

For many recording musicians the new increases represent first salary tilts on any size given them since films have used sound. Petrillo's demand for use of additional men in studios is pointed out as not being unreasonable in view of fact Los Angeles' Local 47 has approximately 12,500 members, only minority of whom are employed by films.

Concessions made in pact by AFM to studios include elimination of demand that recorded music on any film be restricted to two minutes for any one hour's work; also, the amount of recorded soundtrack will remain unlimited. So far as sideline or part-time musicians are concerned, they will receive salary increase of 25 per cent for eight hours' work, with overtime scale applying after that period.

Instead of guarantee of not less than $15,600 yearly for musical contractors on engagements utilizing two or more recording musicians playing ensemble, it was agreed that they would remain on straight hourly basis as in past. Another notable victory for studios is retention of breakdown sheet which Petrillo sought to prohibit and consequently keep studios from decreasing size of orks on various jobs as need for them is reduced.

Lesser clauses in new contract, which had been agreed to prior to signing of pact here Friday night, include, importantly, agreement that soundtrack can be transferred from 35m to 16m at no added cost, and on television it was agreed that before any film was to be videoed producers would sit in with union to discuss deal to cover situation.

After sessions spasmodically staged here since April 9, final agreement was drawn between union and studio reps following three days of lengthy, intensive confabs. It is estimated that greater part of this week will be spent drafting pact in legal form, following signing of which, three of the Coast reps here for the meeting, Fred Meyer, Charles Boren and Milton Schwarzwald, return to Hollywood. Others who sat in with Petrillo were Nicholas Schenck, Barney Balaban, Ned Depinet, Nate Blumberg, Sam Schneider, Jack and Harry Warner, Jack Cohn, Abe Schneider and J. E. McMahon.

Screen Guild Holds Sales Meet May 9-12

Screen Guild Productions will hold its first annual sales meeting May 9-12 at the Blackstone hotel, Chicago, with John L. Jones, prexy, and Robert L. Republic's "The Outlaw and the Angel," with James Edward Grant directing, starts shooting on location at Sedona Valley, Ariz., this week. Location stint is scheduled to end May 22.

FRANCE MOVES FOR EARLY SEIZURE OF FILM INDUSTRY

workers also have been invited to participate at the meet.

Plan calls for creation of a Nationalized Cinema Organization to be headed by a Commissariat General. Under the set-up, the Commissariat General would jointly represent the Information, Labor and Education Ministries. Format calls for the organization to include the Billancourt and Continental studios, the former Tobis UFA distribution facilities as well as the current Actualties Francaises Newsreel. Included in the set-up would be several Paris theatres with a total 11,500 seating capacity and 15 additional houses, seating 15,500, in seven other cities.

It is reported that the nationalized combo might possibly include the Tirage Maurice Laboratory. Film toppers believe the organization would definitely monopolize the documentary field.

Development, in line with current nationalization trend, indicates that the proposed nationalized film combo is the first step in the plan to sever the film industry from capitalistic control. Move had been agitated by Louis Daquin, Technicians Labor Union secretary, following his recent return from the Czechoslovak Film Festival.

NAZI TELE TUBE UPS POWER TEN FOLD

Washington, April 29.—A German super-iconoscope, claimed 10 times as sensitive as the standard German scanning tube for video, is reported in a new release by the Department of Commerce. Increased sensitivity of the tube is said to be due to the superior storage of properties of its mosaic.

Mosaic of the tube, developed by Telefunken Laboratory, is capable of storing images for several seconds. Details of the super-iconoscope are included in the report.

That Thing Called Love Puts 390G In Box Office

Los Angeles first runs are emphasizing femme appeal this week with "Gilda" and "Kitty" as newcomers and "Dragonwyck" and "Devotion" among holdovers. Gross outlook is up to a very rugged $390,000, handsomest in several weeks, on strength of ad exploitation and star names. 'Gilda," screening at the RKO Hillstreet and Pantages theatres is shooting for socko $69,500 to lead the town, while "Kitty" looks likely to stack up fine $59,000 at the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramount theatres.

"The Outlaw" continues its record-breaking pace at the four Music Halls and looks certain to catch $50,000 or better on the fourth

Cantor Signs Two Year Deal As Kaye Sub On Pabst Show

Eddie Cantor changes sponsors next year on one of the most attractive contracts ever offered a radio star. He has signed with Pabst at $20,000 a show starting in September of 1947. His present deal with Bristol-Myers has 39 weeks to run from next October. Danny Kaye has asked for and received his release from Pabst, effective at the close of the present cycle in June.

Cantor's commitment with Pabst is on a straight two-year basis, with options for two additional two year terms. He will have full say on everything on the program except the commercials. Pabst, through Warwick & Legler agency, has assured Cantor that it will fully cooperate with him on his various public service campaigns, which have long characterized his long career in radio. Cantor's parting with Bristol-Myers is on friendly terms and he is finishing out his contract although Pabst was eager for him to start next fall. Cantor deal was set by Henry Legler, who was here last week to complete the negotiations.

LEASE IDEA IS PUT UP TO GROUPS

Screen Writers Guild's plan to ban outright sale of original material to films has been given the support of the Auththors' League, it was reported at last night's membership meeting at the Masonic Temple by Emmet Lavery, president. HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

METRO has assembled a vast store of modern technical equipment in filming the treasure hunt of explorer Irwin A. Williamson off the Florida coast. Studio location group is currently recording Williamson's search for a reported $30,000,000 in gold aboard the sunken Spanish galleon Santa Rosa for a Pete Smith Specialty, "The Mystery of the Santa Rosa." Equipment includes new "walkie-talkies" for use by under-sea divers in guiding camera crews; special radar equipment which enables lensers to trace divers' courses; new 12,000 volt underwater lights, permitting clear photography over 250 foot area in ocean depths and new type bathysphere, allowing photography at greater depth than any former diving bell. Lensers state that new equipment permits wider scope for undersea photography than had previously been possible to attain.

MAY issue of Capitol Records' throwaway promotion magazine, due out today, will carry a prominently boxed "correction" anent last month's story on Ted Steele, musical director of KMPC. Steele threatened to sue Capitol unless a retraction was printed on story stating he was delinquent in dues to musicians' local in Las Vegas. Steele flatly denied he ever belonged to union in Nevada town. Item that incensed the former band batoneer who has turned radioite was part of a blast directed at Steele for banning be-bop music on KMPC. Piece was written by Dave Dexter, editor of Note, jazz fan-mag, who helped put Capitol's publication together last month when Frank Stacy, editor, was hospitalized.

INTERNATIONAL is going all out for realism in creating Cairo nitery of 1900 vintage for "Bella Donna." Not only has Bernard Herzbrun re-created in props the proper atmosphere, but main character in scene is Rouhia Bey, the girl who won fame for refusing to do a command performance for Marshal Rommel when Nazis captured Tunis. This dancer, born in Tunis of an American mother and a Corsican father, was reared in a harem and started her professional career at the age of 12, performing in night spots from Casablanca to Port Said. Robert Capa, former Life photographer now under contract to International, met Miss Bey in Algiers several years ago and is responsible for her appearance in picture.

INTERSTATE bus lines on Coast no longer will let touring troupes charter their vehicles for long treks, on grounds that every bus is required to handle common-carrier trade on regular runs. A colored unit, put together by Ben Carter and Mantan Moreland, sepia bit comics in films, got roundly turned down this week when group sought a bus to tour six weeks through south, opening in Atlanta May 13. Unit is now trying to arrange rail reservations and routing. Unit, which includes Nina Mae McKinney, Judy Carroll, Basin Street Boys and Saunders King ork, will tour Negro ballrooms, with talent putting on two floorshows sandwiched into customers' sessions of shuffling.

LOCAL ballrooms continue to keep a strong front in recent decision to try to induce band agencies to reduce salary demands of name combos. Latest turndown is General Artists Corp.'s offer of Tony Pastor ork at $5,000 weekly. Danceries, in nixing, pointed out that crew last year played Palladium here and Mission Beach, San Diego, reportedly for $4,000. Several months ago ballroom operators were tumbling over one another in rush to bid for bands at far higher figures than ever before paid on Coast, but last week sharp reaction resulted.

RUMORS of musicians union establishing new restrictions on radio work for newcomers to area are denied at Local 47. Union's standing rule that permits only casual jobs for first three months of visiting troubadors will stand. There will be no added nix similar to film studio regulation that requires residence here for a year before accepting film work, according to union. Idea has been suggested from time to time but chronic beefs from outlying locals against the film studio rule makes union shy from any change in radio situation.

"ON Charte Dans Mon Quartier," currently biggest song hit in France and only ditty since prewar days to sell more than a million sheet copies, will be published in the U.S. late this month by Southern Music Co., which has secured rights from Societe D'Editions Musicales Internationales, Paris pub firm. Eddie Heyman has been set by Southern to give the ballad a new set of lyrics. American version is tentatively titled "Ploum, Ploum, Tra La La."

NAME band that was once field topper in disc sales is now in sales doldrums —and trade is blaming it on leader's insistence that he pick his own tunes. Report is that band hasn't sold more than a handful of platters in this territory (and presumably elsewhere) in past six months. Recording company boss is crying the blues and trying to convince leader that as a tune-selector he is a very good musician.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

You hear of sturdy pioneers in olden song and story.
Their noble deeds are burnished with a sort of golden glory.
They trekked the plains in creaking wains where danger lurked to blight them,
By rugged hills and rocks and rills where Redskins lurked to smite them.
But they roamed across the land with crude accommodations
They never had to stand in line to wangle reservations.

While censors and producers are squabbling about the lack of costumes on the screen, up comes a letter from Melvyn Martin, as follows:

"The Brothers Warner must fear that the slightest sign of a "costume" picture would mean death at the boxoffice. In all their ads for the current 'Devotion' you will notice that the cut of Olivia de Havilland is from 'The Male Animal;' the insert of Sydney Greenstreet is from 'The Mask of Dimitrios,' and the shot of Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid from 'In Our Time.' Couldn't they afford new settings? Or could 'Devotion' have been made before the other three?"

Maybe Alex Evelove, our favorite authority on midwestern wild life, can tell us all about it.

Selznick Will Shoot All Films With Real Locale

Policy of filming actual backgrounds for all important pictures, regardless of locale, was announced yesterday by David O. Selznick. Studio disclosed that Alfred Hitchcock Clippers from New York to London May 6 to shoot authentic backgrounds for "The Paradine Case."

At the same time it was announced that Mervyn Leroy will send a camera crew to Concord, Mass., to photograph backgrounds for "Little Women" on the actual scene of the story.

Hitchcock will stop off in New York for conference on May 5 with James Bridie, Scottish playwright, being brought here from Glasgow to do the screenplay on "The Paradine Case."

"With airplane travel making Hollywood only a 60-hour trip from any place on the globe," Selznick said, "there is no reason why backgrounds for every good film should not be shot in the actual locale of the story, wherever that may be."

INT GIVEN OKAY FOR BUILDING PROGRAM

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

It's more important to us than to any other nation that we work out a German treaty that settles not only the length of the occupation, but other details. Our occupation zone is mostly scenery, and as long as it is not integrated with the other zones, where coal, manufactured products and food are available, it cannot function. It lacks sufficient food, coal, raw materials, finished products. The result is a greater financial burden on us, a tendency among the Germans in the zone to hoard what they have, a lack of confidence in the currency and in our policies. Our job of occupation and of re-education is made more difficult. There is less stability. We therefore want centralization of communications, transportation, trade, finance and foreign trade. We want the Ruhr and Rhineland question settled. Byrnes has brought up the issue in a press interview, as well as before the Paris conference, with the obvious intention of arousing the United States public through editorials, radio forums, lectures. If public opinion is influenced, Byrnes will then have more power behind him in pressing the issue. At present, says General Clay, the Americans are in a worse position than anyone, except the Germans themselves.

Trade Showing

Boys' Ranch

(Drama)

METRO RELEASE. Producer, Robert Sisk. Director, Roy Rowland. Original story and screenplay, William Ludwig. Photography, Charles Salerno, Jr. Art direction, Cedric Gibbons and Edward Carfagno. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis. Musical score, Nathaniel Shilkret. Sound, Douglas Shearer. Costumes, Irene. Film editor, Ralph E. Winters.

CAST—Jackie "Butch" Jenkins, James Craig, Skippy Homeier, Dorothy Patrick, Ray Collins, Darryl Hickman, Sharon McManus, Minor Watson, Geraldine Wall, Arthur Space, Robert Emmet O'Connor, Moroni Olsen.

TRADESHOWN at Westwood Village Theatre, Westwood Village, Cal., April 24, 1946. Running time: 99 MINS.

Folks who go for child actors—and there are enough of them to create a healthy stir at any box office—will find "Boys' Ranch" better than usual entertainment. Story carries a heavy "message" load, being frankly an exposition of one successful method of dealing with the juvenile delinquency problem. But the preachment is woven into a yarn that has plenty of melodramatic thrill and suspense and production and direction keep the plot up front and the sociology in the background.

Jackie "Butch" Jenkins amply justifies his star billing as a solemn, old-mannish little boy turned over to the Boys' Ranch by a grandfather who can't give him adequate care. Sharon McManus is an appealing youngster as his little playmate.

Balance of the cast, both boy and adult, does outstanding work, with the main acting chores among the boys going to Skippy Homeier and Darryl Hickman. James Craig gives a good performance as adult lead of the show.

Craig plays the role of a retiring ball player who befriends two delinquent youngsters and gets them out of jam with the law on the day he is leaving baseball for Texas ranch life. Boys are paroled to him and he finds himself unexpectedly saddled with them and responsible for their care. The "Boys' Ranch" for the regeneration of youngsters who would otherwise face the doubtful education of the reform school is an outgrowth of this incident.

Story is chiefly that of the two boys originally befriended by Craig — Hank (Darryl Hickman) who promptly becomes a top example of what the ranch can do to build boys into useful citizens and his pal, Skippy (Skippy Homeier), who fights to the last againts respectability and is converted from his crook philosophy only when he finds his misdeeds have put Hank in danger of death. He braves a river flood to save his pal's life and owns up to a theft to save his reputation.

Production is handled with top showmanship by Robert Sisk and Roy Rowland's direction keeps the story moving and points up the thrills.

Photography by Charles Salerno, Jr., is fully in keeping with balance of excellent production.

Byron Quentin Will Produce 'Design'

Mozelle Britton Dinehart yesterday signed contracts with Byron Quentin for latter to produce "Invitation by Design" in New York. Mrs. Dinehart is being sought for femme role with Ralph Morgan in possible star spot. However, production of "Separate Rooms" on the Coast may prevent her taking role.

SUTHERLAND AND MOREY BUILD THIRD STAGE

Morey and Sutherland will start construction of a new sound stage at their studio on Occidental Blvd. within next 90 days, and will erect a second in nine months. This will give them total of three stages with latest equipment, studio currently having one in operation.

Producers are building to give them space for their new program of live-action pictures, which will augment their present cartoon schedule. No attempt will be made to rent them to indie producers, although whenever outside pictures can be squeezed in between their own product space will be made available to indies.

First building will be put up at cost of $150,000, measuring 100 by 120 feet, and will be 60 feet high, 10 feet over average stage height, to accommodate shooting of musicals. Building is slated for completion within 90 days after start.

Plan now is to produce two medium-cost features annually, in $350,000 to $500,000 budget range, leaning toward comedy side. Takeoff live-actioner gets under way in six months. Company's current cartoon slate is six annually, released through United Artists. Although pair have made no deal with UA for release of their new features, it is likely they will negotiate with this concern for distribution of their product.

' JUST FOR VARIETY '

THE GRAPEVINE: Motion picture publicity will have to fight for space in the downtown papers. The newsprint shortage is more acute than ever, with drastic cuts expected and no improvement in the pulp situation seen during 1946 . . . Members of the "Angel On My Shoulder" cast whisper that Paul Muni did most of the directing on the "jinx" picture . . . 20th-Fox isn't too worried about Paramount's "Kitty" taking the edge off "Forever Amber," though both heroines and their adventures are similar. It's pointed out that everyone expected Warners' "Jezbel," study of a Civil War minx, to trim the sails of Scarlet O'Hara and "Gone with the Wind," grosses of which David O. Selznick is still counting . . . Dennis Morgan is planning a safari—North American style—when he finishes in "Cheyenne." He's going to track down mountain lions . . . Backer for Edward H. Griffith and Gene Fowler in their "Rip Van Winkle" plans is Joseph Ginsberg, a private banker . . . Up to their scratchpads in an article about this town are Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, who plans to tag it "Life with Father in Hollywood" . . . Lew Ayres received a number of invitations to speak from the pulpits of Hollywood churches after his Easter appearance in the Bowl . . . Bill Gargan heard it—"I don't like golf. It's just an excuse for carrying concealed weapons and a Scotch breath."

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Don't think Las Vegas can't take it—even those night club comedians' jokes about renaming the town "Lost Wages." Its flackery yesterday announced the town wouldn't mind at all if the practice of calling it simply "Vegas" is continued, stating: "The Chamber of Commerce relishes tradition flaunting . . . Imagine Angeles, Frisco or Dago! The California dons would turn over in their graves." And now pardon us while we go out and flaunt a tradition . . . Paramount has lost no time in rushing "O.S.S." through the final production stages. It's already been previewed twice . . . Paul Jarrico and Edward Dmytryk, set by RKO as writer and director on "The White Tower," are taking their research seriously. They go skiing weekends to get atmosphere, and bumps, for the story located on a Swiss mountainside . . . Hair stylists claim the redhead trend is developing as it never has since Clara Bow converted "It" from a pronoun to a noun. One reason, say the experts, is that red hair films well in Technicolor . . . That scowl on Barry Fitzgerald's face isn't merely a character actor's trademark. First the beer shortage caused cancellation of his weekly airer for Ballantyne's. Several days ago he learned the cottage he bought on Cape Cod was destroyed in the recent forest fires . . . Today intrudes on yesterday in "Gallant Journey's" location scenes. Jet-plane pilots circle the Van Nuys location, in a sort of aerial double-take, when they spot the early-day flying machines on the ground, and thereby ruin a stretch of soundtrack . . . Introduced to the actor who's supposed to kill him in "Where There's Life," Bob Hope suggested, "Why not hire my agent? He's been knifing me for years." (Note for the Sunset Strip replate: this is just a gag).

CALL SHEET: DANNY KAYE has firepower, of a sort, in "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty." Three cases of ancient firearms have been culled from museums around the country for use in Kaye's dream life on the screen . . . PAT O'BRIEN addresses the Rotarian luncheon today at Earl Carroll's on the problem of returning veterans . . . JOHN MURRAY'S three-act comedy is getting a tryout at the Pasadena Playhouse currently . . . SONNY TUFTS and MICKEY MOORE caught 62 abalone and 87 barracuda in a day's fishing south of Ensenada but failed to bring back the evidence. "We gave them to the native we rented the boat from," they explained . . . PETER O'CROTTY thought up a similie and passed it along, having no use for such long words in his own literary endeavors: "Catastrophic as when Willie mixed bubble gum with grandpa's chewing tobacco" . . . A. RONALD LUBIN won Paramount's tennis tournament by defeating actor James Brown. In the doubles, however, Brown and Robert Blumofe defeated Archie Marshek and Philip Reed in the finals . . . JUDY BRENT says she's nabbed 22 roles in the last couple of years by reading Daily Variety for production tips . . . EDWARD BLONDELL, brother of Joan Blondell, quit his job as portrait photog at Warners to open his own office at Newport and specialize in marine photography . . . ALEXIS SMITH has dropped four pounds since beginning the riding sequences in "Stallion Road" . . . MARTHA VICKERS' parents left for a six-week vacation to Chicago. This is not a tip for the wolverine tribe.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Death, as it must to all alligators, came to "Evan- geline." Yes, the 400-year-old (estimated) alligator actress passed away recently. She made her film debut in 1906 when she was just a young thing of 360 and one of her greatest roles was in "Trader Horn," in which her lovely sawtoothed profile was in several closeups. But the artistic soul that lurked under her suitcase complexion still lives. Stuffed by an alligator-mortician, probably with old press clippings, she is now appearing in RKO's "The Falcon's Adventure" . . . George DeWitt, now Sunday editor of the Examiner, has found he slipped from bad to worse when he deserted the notorious Washington, D.C., housing shortage for Los Angeles' ditto. He's still looking . . . Lucey's which has hitherto banned all flashbulb artists, is throwing open the portals to a photog. Earl Theisen, the Look cameraman, will lurk in salads and under napkins to shoot a layout on the place . . . Bobby Breen makes his first vocal appearance out of uniform tomorrow night at the B'nai B'rith party at the Biltmore Bowl . . . Metro is lining up stories for Lucille Ball after she returns from a four-month vacation to New York . . . Dore Schary believes that his three male leads in "Till the End of Time"—namely, Bob Mitchum, Guy Madison and Bill Williams—will be "top stars in a year's time" . . . Nat Pendleton claims he had to call the fire department to rescue his salmon, Millicent, who was stranded on the roof. He explained: "Millie had gone up the drainpipe to spawn."——D.D.T.

20TH MAY NAME SPECIAL FLACK FOR 'AMBER'

New York, April 29. — Charles Schlaifer is planning to take the entire home office exploitation staff, plus Rodney Bush and field exploiteers under his direction to the Coast the end of May to brief them on marketing aspects of top 20th-Fox films, including "Forever Amber."

It is likely that a special publicist will be set to handle "Amber" to escape any Jane Russell-"The Outlaw" tangles with censor boards and the Motion Picture Association of America.

Official announcement of Schlaifer's new contract as advertising-publicity head for 20th-Fox will have been made before Coast trip.

Rathbone, Leontovich For 2-Player Legit

Basil Rathbone and Eugenie Leontovich have been signed to co-star in "Obsession," French play by Louis Verneuil. Legiter has only two characters and will try out at the Lobero theatre in Santa Barbara June 13, prior to San Francisco run starting June 16. Homer Curran is producing in association with Russell Lewis and Howard Young. Jane Hinton is writing the English version in collaboration with Ouida Rathbone.

Job Play for B'way

Thomas Job's new play, "Dawn in Lyonesse," will be produced on Broadway this fall by Paul Fiegay and Oliver Smith. Job is the author of "Uncle Harry." New show is another psycho-shocker.

Light 'n' Airy
(on the ½ shell)
by JACK HELLMAN

"The McGee's" are riding the first Hooper wave again after a brief displacement by Bob Hope, who is 9 off the lead figure of 27.1. Contending with "Fibber" for the Tuesday night potential is "This Is My Best" with 7.9. Hope's competish proved negligible. Lux moved into the third spot with 22.2 and of the evening's audience split up 8.3 with each "Info Please" and Telephone Hour. The others of the top 15 and their competish trailed along in this fashion: Bing Crosby 20.1, (Kostelanetz 4.9); Screen Guild Players 20. (Contented Hour 6.8); Charlie McCarthy 19.7 ("Mrs. Danberry 3.5); Fred Allen 19.6 (Crime Doctor 7.8); Red Skelton 19.5; Walter Winchell 18.8 (Manhattan Merry Go Round 10.1); Jack Benny 17.8 (Thin Man 6.3); Jack Haley 17.8; Amos 'n' Andy 17.7 (Inner Sanctum 4.3); Eddie Cantor 16.1 (Frank Sinatra 9); People Are Funny 15.7; (Alan Young 5.3); Joan Davis 15.3 (Sherlock Holmes 8.7).

Crossley (CAB) rates the three leaders in the same sequence, with "Fibber" at 25.3, Hope 21.5 and Lux 21. Making up the remaining 20 are Charlie McCarthy, Bing Crosby, Red Skelton, Fred Allen, Jack Benny, Screen Guild Players, "Mr. D.A.," Walter Winchell, Eddie Cantor, Jack Haley, Amos 'n' Andy, Cass Daley, Joan Davis, People Are Funny, Aldrich Family, Burns and Allen, Ralph Edwards. Daytime leader continues to be Tom Breneman.

Stiffest jolt handed the weekend Hooper list fell with a thud on Charlie McCarthy, clipping him for 5.3. Others posted the following: Ozzie and Harriet 7.9, off 1; Cass Daley 12.4, off .6; Blondie 8.8, off 4.4; Fanny Brice 9.1, off 4; Gildersleeve 12.3, off 2.8; Jimmie Fidler 5.1 up .9; Parky's 6.1, off 1.7; Louella Parsons 6.9, off 2.3; Request Performance 6, off 1.1; Gene Autry 4.5, off 1.2; Hollywood Star Time 3.8, off 2.1; Westinghouse 6.6, off 1.9; Nelson Eddy 4.5, off 2; One Man's Family 7.4, off 3; Academy Award Theatre 4.9, off 1.3; Dick Haymes 8.3, up 4; Judy Canova 15, up 1.5; Life of Riley 10.9, off 3.2; Tony Martin 6.2; Mayor of Town 10.7, up 1; Ralph Edwards 14.9, off 2; Bob Burns 10.3, off 2.6; Ginny Simms 6, off .3.

Chain breaks . . . If Bing Crosby signs the General Motors deal he will receive around $300,000 a year out of which he'll net some $52,000. His figures in a stock transaction in addition to his weekly stipend . . . Paul Munroe, radio head of Biow, in town to cut record of Dashiel Hammett's "Sam Spade," for Eversharp-Schick . . . Lloyd Nolan being paged for the part and Bill Spier directs . . . Art Marquette, agency exec, and Carl Stanton of Dancer, Sample & Fitzgerald weekend arrivals . . . Mark Woods, prexy, and other ABC execs, due here May 17 for television hearings . . . Bob Redd signed for another year as producer of the Jack Haley show . . . "Queen for a Day" is a year old today . . . Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt makes a plea for Cancer Society on Walter Winchell's program Sunday.

BROADWAY RUNAROUND
By RADIE HARRIS

Moss Hart kiddingly refers to his new play as "Oak Room in the Plaza," because that's the locale of all his midnight supper confabs with Gertrude Lawrence. Although the plot is still a beeg secret, the basic theme is the eternal triangle—this time, two men and a woman. Like "Lady in the Dark," the production will be an elaborate one with revolving stages and Hazzard Short, of course. How soon Broadway will see this newest Lawrence-"Hart" affair depends on Miss L's future plans, which at the moment are like the lady known as Jenny—"she can't make up her mind." Following a three-month holiday on Cape Cod, she'll either resume "Pygmalion" with a cross country tour, or take it to London for a limited engagement (with Cedric Hardwicke, again at the directorial helm, and also playing "Mr. Higgins"). Whatever the decision, Hart can afford to wait. From past experience, he knows that it will take at least that long for Fanny Holtzmann to draw up the clauses in the contract. A few years ago, when this legal wizard handed him Gertie's contract for "Lady in the Dark," it weighed more than the script—a fact which occasioned him to crack, "I think I'll now change the title to "All This—and Holtzmann too!"

BROADWAY BALLYHOO: Robert Donat's return to Hollywood will again be postponed indefinitely, according to the latest dispatch from my London Philo Vance. It seems that Donat, inspired by Larry Olivier's personal success with the Old Vic, is forming his own repertory company, teeing off with "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and followed by "The Sea Gull." What no Dumas, Mr. Small? . . . Although Mary Martin is skedded to do "Alice Sit By the Fire" for Paramount this summer, Helen Hayes will beat her to it—on the stage of the Buck's County Playhouse. This will undoubtedly be the straw-hat Event of the season, because sharing honors with this first lady will be her 17-year-old daughter, Mary MacArthur, making her stage debut at a much riper "old age" than her famous mother. Helen, who confides that this will be the biggest thrill of her career, has asked Josh Logan to direct . . . The Jinx Falkenburg-Tex McCrary ayem etherizer will go television as soon as their "heiring" takes place . . . Now that "St. Louis Woman" is a click at the Martin Beck, Ed Gross is anxious to get into action again and the script that is hypoing his interest is the musical, "Napoleon with Brandy"—book by Sid Silvers and words and music by Edward Heyman and Harold Spina . . . It must be a quiet laugh to the Old Vic troupe to know that for the N.Y. engagement, a $6.60 top will prevail, with preem ducats at $24 a pair (and try to find a pair at double the price!). In London the best seat in the house cost $2, with the government lifting the tax because of its civic and educational importance.

HEARING "VOICES:" It's rather incongruous to say poor Alfred de Liagre when "Voice of the Turtle" has made him such a rich producer. Yet, my sympathy is herewith extended for the casting headaches he's had with this three character play, which couldn't be greater if he had been Reinhardt casting "The Miracle!" Now, it's John Beal who is quitting, along with Martha Scott (June 1). Reason for Johnny's notice is because he didn't want to tie himself up for a year, the terms of the new contract. With Van Druten on the Coast to direct the Warner screen version and then heading for London with "Delly" for the West End debut of Margaret Sullavan and Jo Cotten, no one will be on hand to supervise and direct and new replacements, so anyone who is signed now, will have to stick for the run of the play. I understand that Gene Raymond, during his N.Y. visit, expressed a desire to return to the Broadway that hasn't seen him since "Cradle Snatchers" and lent a listening ear to "Delly's" proposition (what about your RKO contract, Gene?), but in the event he can't get him, Alan Baxter, originally skedded for the Coast company to replace Hugh Marlowe (who is leaving along with K. T. Stevens to continue their careers as "Mr. and Mrs.") may go into the N.Y. spot opposite Beatrice Pearson, with Boyd Crawford, just out of the Navy, taking over Bill Page" in L.A. Whew! No more casting today!

ONCE OVER NIGHTLY: Gus Schirmer, Jr., will start off his straw-hat in Greenwich with an S.R.O. attraction—Tallulah Bankhead in "Private Lives" . . . Patricia Collinge has been called in to play-doctor the book for Grace Moore's "Madame Pompadour" . . . De Witt Bodeen, on sabbatical from RKO for a two-month Mad-hattan whirl, is also here to see his agent, Dr. Powker, about a Broadway production for the new play he has just written about a Swedish family in the San Joaquin Valley, tagged "Harvest of Years" (aside to Mady Christians: If you ever get tired of "I Remember Mama," there's a wonderful part in it for you) . . . Gene Buck, Mae Murray, Harry Hirshfield, Irving Berlin, Joe Howard, Senator Ford, Gilda Gray, Rae Samuels, Harlan Dixon, Jim Barton, Billy Gould and Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney will be on hand at the Cafe Zanzibar's gala celebration in honor of Bill Robinson's 60th anniversary in show business, a "kopasetic" event for everyone . . . Lenora Corbett, who has turned down every script since her eventful debut in "Blithe Spirit," will make her first pro appearance on Sunday evening, May 5, at eight o'clock. The occasion will be an ABC television broadcast of "Blithe Spirit" with Miss Corbett creating her original role of "Elvira" and Carol Goodner, Estelle Winwood and Phillip Tonge in the distinguished supporting cast, directed by Owen Davis, Jr. The man persuasive enough to lure Lenora back into harness is NBC's television prez, John Royal, who also happens to be the lady's husband!

COOGAN WRINGS SOME LAUGHS OUT OF LAME SCRIPT

Jackie Coogan took his network bow on CBS last night in a harmless little comedy concoction called "Forever Ernest." It wasn't a romp for the one-time kid star and he had to struggle most of the way to wring laughs from the cliche-ridden script. Effecting a nasal lisp as the jerky soda jerk, the character is not without certain advantages. The sympathy is all on his side and he never overplays his hand. While the script for his opener wasn't too meaty he was fortunate in having the skilled support of top AFRA stockers.

Coogan projects an easy mike personality and his timing kept the situations buoyant and moving. As the series progresses and the scripts are tailored more to his character, he should make the part stand out. It's up to the writers to fashion for him fresh material and situations not too shopworn from the wear and tear on other shows. Coogan has something definitely for radio reminiscent of Harold Lloyd and Eddie Bracken.

Harry Kronman, long a successful writer, made it a double debut by turning his hand to direction and coming off with inspired results. The big hurdle here is the writing and situation comedy calls for frothy continuity without the hackneyed premise and the constant reaching for gags. Commercials on the openers were laid on with a heavy hand and none too convincing even at the hands of such a solid seller as Dick Joy.

METRO AGREES TO MAY 15 RELEASE OF 'LEAVE' DISCS

After much discussion Metro yesterday agreed to let pop-platter companies release tunes from "No Leave, No Love," Van Johnson starrer, on May 15 as originally scheduled. Film, which has been canned for some time, was carded for national release on May 5 until change of plans at Metro set the freeing of film back to early autumn. Immediately studio notified the 14 record firms which already have prepared platters using songs from picture that discs should be withheld from market until film is released.

Several of the disceries really went to bat, notably Capitol and Cosmo. Former has waxed two "No Leave" ditties with Dinning Sisters vocalizing and pointed out that platters had been distributed and orders taken and that waxery believed Metro should live up to original agreement.

Cosmo, which has prepped four ditties from picture, with Pat Kirkwood, film's femme lead, doing the warbling, made similar pitch to studio, with result May 15 date will stand.

Metro originally firmly fixed release date on music to follow picture's release because it was thought that tunes might be plugged into stale state before film reached public, as happened when "Atchison, Topeka" achieved its peak popularity six months before "The Harvey Girls," in which it was featured, reached the screens.

Roeder Will Make Monthly Visit Here

Samuel Roeder, Western Division Counsel for ASCAP, will make his first monthly visit to offices here the first week in May, it was announced by Larry Shea, ASCAP Division Manager. Roeder, henceforth, will spend first week of each month at Western headquarters, conducting legal business for offices and members here.

Fourth for Rogers

Republic starts fourth Roy Rogers' starrer of the year today when "Shine On Texas Moon" rolls under director William Witney. Edward J. White produces and cast has George "Gabby" Hayes, Dale Evans and Sons of the Pioneers featured.

FCC IS LIFTING RESTRICTION ON DISCS ON RADIO

Washington, April 29.—FCC today opened the way for networks to send transcribed shows into some areas without announcement that each is a recording.

ABC was authorized to use the new system for 30 days to see how it works. Joseph A. McDonald, of ABC, requested suspension of Rule 3.407 because the webs were badly scrambled in their timing due to partial daylight saving time in the country. FCC wrote to McDonald:

"You point out that some of your affiliates will be operating on daylight saving time while others will be on standard time, and that accordingly the American Broadcasting Co. is recording practically all of its network programs at Chicago and Hollywood and then feeding various legs of the network from the records one hour later.

"Your letter further states that to require the announcement of such programs as transcribed would be unduly repetitious and unnecessary. The Commission today considered your request and granted it for a period of 30 days." FCC set up the following conditions, waiver is not applicable where an individual station makes an off-the-line recording. It is applicable only where web makes the recording in Chicago or Hollywood and broadcasts the discs an hour later. Each station which receives the transcribed programs must announce the fact once a day between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m.

Mrs. Rathvon, Bergman Hopper Back to NY

New York, April 29.—Mrs. N. Peter Rathvon arrives tomorrow for stay of week or ten days on personal business. Ingrid Bergman and Hedda Hopper also due in tomorrow from Coast. Adrian Scott and his wife, Anne Shirley, are heading Coastwards Wednesday. Ethel Barrymore trains in same day. Spyros Skouras heads west this weekend.

AT LIBERTY

Down Mexico Way

By LUISA MARIA ALVAREZ

Mexico City, April 29.—In the state of San Luis Potosi (potosi means extraordinary wealth)—warm country, rich soil—near the Laredo Highway, comedian Cantinflas has a ranch, "El Detalle." From the house set on a hill one can see unending lines of lemon trees. In this delightful spot Mexico's most loved star turns farmer and cowboy. But Cantinflas has not only made a refuge where he can rest and play at ranching. He helps small neighbor farmers who have found a friend in the wealthy actor. Farm machinery is at their disposal. And farm hands at "El Detalle" live in comfortable bungalows built for them by Cantinflas. Other land owners, many of Revolutionary extraction, would do well to copy the cinema star's method of raising the peasant's standard of living.

A bull ring is being built near the ranch house and will be inaugurated next month. Cantinflas will turn bullfighter for his friends and his own entertainment.

On a nearby hill a chapel will be erected and named "Nuestra Senora de la Soledad" in memory of the actor's mother.

As we visited "El Detalle," producer Alfonso Sanchez Tello remarked: "Cantinflas is the only person I know who keeps office hours for the sole purpose of handing out money to people."

One can very often find the star at his office in Mexico City, while dozens of people wait in the reception room. Each case is investigated and the needy obtain the aid they seek.

The motion picture industry has become important to the country. The government is conscious of this. Producers find official doors open and facilities at all government departments, with the exception perhaps, of the Department of War. This may be due to the fact that Secretary of War, General Francisco Urquizo published a book not very long ago and sent a copy to each producer, frankly stating his expectations of having his story put on the screen. Producers read the book. They wanted to please the Secretary of War. But what can you do with a book and no story? General Urquizo did not get to see his name on the Mexican screen. It seems that since then he is not friendly toward the cinema industry. Publicity-loving politicians are a problem. A lot of good paper has been sadly wasted on books written by them within the last few years.

A well known producer says the pillars of our industry are Cantinflas, Jorge Negrete and Maria Felix and, if we were to be suddenly deprived of them, our cinema would be badly crippled.

The Argentine cinema's top stars are Hugo del Carril, Libertad Lamarque and Catita. We have taken away the two first mentioned. Libertad has just arrived here. Argentina will have to quickly replace "two pillars."

BAN ON STORY SALES GAINS

proposal after hearing a report from George Kaufman, chairman of a subcommittee appointed by Richard Rodgers, Dramatists Guild prexy to check into the plan. League Council's recommendation now goes to Dramatists Guild, the Authors Guild and Radio Writers. Latter has already acted favorably on proposal and its acceptance by Authors Guild is being recommended by AG's prexy.

Writers see adoption of proposal, which will require the leasing of original material to studios for a specific period instead of outright sales, as a big step toward returning to creative writers the rights which have been gradually taken over by producers.

A number of SWG members have started leasing their stories rather than selling them. One in particular, James M. Cain, has turned down studio bids for rights to his latest novel and is offering it on a lease basis only.

STAHL AND 'AMBER' PARTING

the weekend on the pretext that Peggy Cummins, who plays the title role, is ill.

It was reported last night that Stahl was taken off the picture because he had been "riding" various members of the cast.

Either Henry King or Joseph Mankiewicz will take over direction of "Amber," it was understood, with the decision to be made in the next day or two.

Darryl Zanuck arrived late yesterday afternoon from Palm Springs and went into immediate consultation with producer William Perlberg in an effort to iron out all current difficulties. They are expected to make an announcement of film's production status by this week-end.

Studio's official account of the upheaval is as follows: "By mutual agreement with the studio, John M. Stahl is withdrawing from the direction of "Forever Amber." Plans for resumption of production will be announced later in the week. Darryl F. Zanuck is returning to the city to confer with William Perlberg, producer of the picture."

Peggy "Amber" Cummins was at her home when told by Daily Variety of the development. Through her mother, Mrs. Margaret Cummins, the star expressed "amazement" at the turn of events.

Bridesmaids Picked

Eddie Sutherland yesterday selected the six girls who will be the bridesmaids in "Abie's Irish Rose," which he is producing and directing for Bing Crosby Producers Inc. The six are Betty Gregory, Kay Jewell, Lucille Noble, Jean Herbers, Shirley Winters and Virginia Ellsworth, who were picked from about 60 candidates.

LYRIC, SEATTLE'S OLDEST THEATRE, BEING TORN DOWN

Seattle, April 29.—The old Lyric Theatre here, first playhouse to be built after the disastrous fire of 1889, is being torn down. The Lyric, which was popular during the gold-rush days, never went in for heavy melodrama. It was the center for vaudeville, burlesque and tab shows and during the '90's and for a number of years after the turn of the century was Seattle's livest night spot. A famous saloon, Our House Bar, was on the theatre's first floor.

John Cort controlled the Lyric for awhile, and Russell and Drew, as well as Lewis and Lake, were other Lyric producers.

In the heart of the Skid Row district, the building has been used of late only as a mission or gathering place for some religious sect. Among famous names who got their start at the Lyric was Fatty Arbuckle, who played in burlesque there in 1907.

Feld Winding Prep Of 'Bloomer Girl'

"Bloomer Girl," the Nat Goldstone-Milton Feld package deal at International, will roll within the next three weeks on the Universal lot. Film is slated for United World Pictures release.

OBITUARIES

MRS. HARRY BURNS

Mrs. Harry Burns, 42, nee Helen Lockwood, former vaudeville singer and dancer and wife of the stage and screen comedian, died April 27 in Philadelphia from heart attack. Originally with "Kid Kabaret," Gus Edwards' production, she was on the stage over 20 years, retiring when her husband came to Hollywood to work in pictures. In addition to her husband she is survived by a sister, Ruth Lockwood Leavitt, and a brother, Harry F. Lockwood. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at Simonson Funeral parlor in Richmond Hills, N.Y.

VIRGINIA HARNED

Virginia Harned, 73, retired Broadway star, died in New York yesterday. She was former wife of E. H. Sothern, and the widow of William Courtenay. Several years ago she retired from professional life.

MRS. IDA EDWARDS

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. for Mrs. Ida Edwards, 69, mother of Jimmy Edwards, Southern California theatre owner, who died April 27 at St. Luke's hospital in Altadena, following an operation. She leaves her husband, two sons and three sisters. Services will be held at Turner, Stevens and Turner Mortuary in Alhambra, followed by interment at Evergreen cemetery.

Next P-T picture on their regular program for Paramount will be "I Cover the Big Town," second of series, which Bill Thomas will direct. This rolls May 21. "Jungle Flight" goes June 20, followed by Albuquerque."

Rep Starting Two And Winding Pair

Two films starting and two winding highlight Republic's current week's production slate. "That Brennan Girl," with Al Santell producing-directing the Adele Rogers St. John original, rolled yesterday. "Shine On Texas Moon," Roy Rogers starrer, goes today with William Witney directing for producer Edward J. White. Two pictures wind simultaneously Saturday: "Out California Way," with Lou Gray producing and R. G. Springsteen directing, and "G.I. War Brides," which George Blair is directing for producer Armand Schaefer.

Evergreen Theatres Holding Convention

Seattle, April 29.—Evergreen Theatres will hold a postwar reunion and general convention of Evergreen managers of Washington and Oregon in the Olympic hotel here tomorrow. HOLLYWOOD RADIO INDUSTRY'S NO JOB UTOPIA Hollywood's ether can't ease the multiple growing pains that come with being radio's second biggest center. Despite the rosy dreams of aspirants and itinerants, unemployment in radio makes it considerably less than a mike Mecca. Contrary to the bleatings of "schools" and job counsellors, there's little opportunity. There's opulence for only a few.

Following facts and figures, gleaned from unions and other sources give lie to the fable. Actors' plight is the worst, with nearly seven to one job. Technicians are best off by only slightly oversupplying demand. Numerically, musicians head the list, but they have more avenues of employment than radio. Nearly all unions are trying, within constitutional limits, to tighten up on membership applications and transfers to ease situation.

AFRA'S 2,000

American Federation of Radio Artists — controlling actor-announcer employment — has approximately 2,800 paid up (workable) members. There are 1,700 actors, 550 singers, 423 announcers, 50 sound men, 25 commentators and a few m.c.'s.

It's estimated indie stations absorb about 70 announcers, while nets employ 40. Free lance jobs are estimated at peak of 400 weekly. This is split between four nets and about 30 agencies originating shows here. However, it doesn't follow that 400 different people work these jobs, for there is considerable doubling.

Radio Writers Guild pegs membership at slightly more than 400 writer-producers, plus 125 associate members. Figure is said to represent 95 per cent of town's total writer-producers. For them there are 60 program and news department staff positions. Agencies and package shows attend another 215, according to Guild, which estimates average of 275 weekly pay checks for members. Doubling bugaboo also enters here.

RDG HAS 120

An approximate 120 members comprise Radio Directors Guild. Another 100-odd are not members, networks employ 38, and Guild states it has majority on all but Mutual. Ten are known to be with agencies, making for total of 82. Possible increase over foregoing figures is seen in potential of: 12 more on indie stations, net potential of 50, and an agency potential of 75, according to AFRA's latest agency show list. This jumps total to possible 137. Radio Technicians of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers comprise unit of 200 within union.

Musically, picture is nothing to sing about. About 130 musicians work on staff basis in stations with live music. Overall per week in radio, including recording and transcription work, is estimated at peak of 800 jobs—for membership of approximately 12,000. About 500 of total jobs are in commercial radio. Of course, there's much doubling in radio field, as with actors, directors and writers. Niteries, films, theatres, etc., are open to some, and many also teach. But with all openings, it's figured there is still an overall total in show biz here of 3,500 jobs for the 12,000.

OSTRER MAY DO COL FILMS

London, April 30.—Maurice Ostrer announced today he is pulling out of the Rank organization. He plans to produce four pictures yearly as an independent. He will not link with Sir Alexander Korda as reported.

It is reported that Ostrer will also sign with Columbia to produce in England for that company.

Ostrer was topper with Gainsborough Productions, Rank subsidiary. His resignation is effective Sept. 1. His disagreement with Rank is said to have been over difficulties in getting stars and technicians for his productions. "Caravan," last Ostrer production for Gainsborough is currently getting top grosses.

Project is proving so successful that Oliveira will shortly publish a text, "Portuguese in Phonetics," to be used for educational purposes.

Bigotry Drama Limited In Appeal On Broadway

New York, April 30.—Don Appell's "This, Too, Shall Pass," an earnest and persuasive drama on bigotry in a small midwest town, has limited chances and looks like the tenth consecutive in-the-red entrant at the Belasco since last June.

Appel's play is honestly written but seems too pat at times, and the acting occasionally becomes arch and ineffective. Sam Wanamaker as a Jewish boy, Kathryn Givney as the bigoted mother and Ralph Morgan as the father are fair in their roles. Appel's direction becomes too highstrung at times. Raymond Sovey's set is excellent.

UNIVERSAL RELEASE. Producer, Warren Wilson. Executive producer, Joe Gershenson. Director, Charles Lamont. Assistant director, William Tummel. Original screenplay by Warren Wilson and Oscar Brodney. CAST—Joan Davis, Jack Oakie, Mischa Auer, Kirby Grant, John Litel, Jacqueline de Wit, Gloria Stuart, Thurston Hall, Lewis L. Russell, Raymond Largay, Victoria Horne, Verna Felton, Jack J. Ford, Phil Garris.

PREVIEWED at Universal Studios, Studio City, April 26, 1946. Running time: 73 MINS.

The standard, time-tried farce foundation material of amnesia and mistaken identity has been freshened up by smart scripting and direction to make "She Wrote the Book" the kind of show that generates laughs. Joan Davis, Jack Oakie and Mischa Auer work hard, fast and boisterously in providing entertainment that will extend the initial box office pull of their names on the marquee. The book "she wrote," incidentally is called "Always Lulu" and if you want to draw a satirical parallel between that and "Forever Amber"—why, that's an extra laugh for good measure.

The real Lulu who "wrote the book" is played adequately by Gloria Stuart. As wife of the dean of the college where Miss Davis teaches calculus Miss Stuart doesn't dare to risk the scandal that would result if her authorship were known. So she prevails on Miss Davis to pose as Lulu in New York and pick up the royalty checks due on the book.

Miss Davis tries to duck out on various press parties and publicity stunts arranged by Oakie, gets bumped in the head in a traffic accident and wakes up with a perfectly developed case of amnesia. She accepts Oakie's assurance that she is the Lulu Winters whose first-person story of love and adventure is the hottest thing being currently banned from the book stands. She starts living up to the reputation of Lulu and the complications are many and merry. They are heightened by the real love interest growing out of Miss Davis' pre-amnesia meeting with Kirby Grant.

Auer and his characteristic comedy are introduced into the piece as a bartender. Grant does a good job in the chief straight role of the piece and Jacqueline de Wit performs smoothly and effectively as the armed and menacing wife of Thurston Hall, aging playboy, who falls for the charms of the pseudo-Lulu. Rest of the supporting cast matches the excellent performance of the principals.

Warren Wilson can take a bow both as producer and collaborator on the tightly plotted script. Charles Lamont directs with accurate sense of farce timing, gets full value from the comedy situations generally, but has broadened and extended slap-stick sequence featuring Miss Davis, Oakie and Grant, a little too much. Camera work of George Robinson is one of creditable elements of the production.

20TH-FOX RELEASE. Producer-director, Ernst Lubitsch. Screenplay, Samuel Hoffenstein, Elizabeth Reinhardt. Based on novel by Margery Sharp. Photography, Joseph La Shelle. Art direction, Lyle Wheeler, J. Russell Spencer. Set decorations, Thomas Little, Paul S. Fox. Editor, Dorothy Spencer. Costumes, Bonnie Cashin. Music, Cyril Mockridge. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Orchestral arrangements, Maurice de Packh. Special photographic effects, Fred Sersen. Sound, Arthur L. Kirbach, Roger Heman.

CAST—Co-stars Charles Boyer and Jennifer Jones. Features Peter Lawford. Supporting players, Helen Walker, Reginald Owen, Reginald Gardiner, Margaret Bannerman, Sir C. Aubrey Smith, Richard Hayda, Sara Allgood, Ernest Cossart, Una O'Connor, Florence Bates, Billy Bevan, Queenie Leonard, Michael Dyne, Christopher Severn, Harold De Becker, Jean Prescott, Charles Coleman.

TRADESHOWN at studio, April 26, 1946. Running time: 100 MINS.

"Cluny Brown" is Lubitsch at his best, a smartly-turned out sophisticated comedy calculated to attract strong reaction from every class of audience. Co-starring Charles Boyer and Jennifer Jones and in support a top quality cast, action is gay and uninhibited, a credit to all concerned with its making, and there is some of the most amusing satire of English middle class life yet glimpsed on the screen.

This is the story of a Czech author hunted by the Nazis and a young English girl whose uncle Arn insists that she turn domestic and keep her "place." It unfolds in England a few months before the war, and from London, where Boyer, as the author meets Cluny—Jennifer—who, of a Sunday, subs as plumber for her uncle when Reginald Gardiner's sink is stopped up an hour before his cocktail party. Scene then shifts to the country manor of Reginald Owen and Margaret Bannerman, where Cluny goes as second maid.

Plot is the sort with which Lubitsch excels, with his subtleties and his shafts of humor timed perfectly for laughs. As both producer and director, he is responsible for a picture bountiful in entertainment and genuine human appeal.

Boyer contributes his customary smooth performance and Miss Jones, in a part somewhat of a departure from past appearances, does an excellent piece of work. She makes of Cluny a delightful character who will immediately catch on with the audience. Peter Lawford is seen as an earnest young Englishman whose admiration for Boyer and his writings is boundless, and at whose family's place in the country Boyer stays. He shades his comedy with feeling. Helen Walker is standout as girl he's in love with, and both Reginald Owen and Miss Bannerman, his parents, are highly effective. Others who deliver strongly include Gardiner, Sara Allgood, Ernest Cossart and Una O'Connor. Sir C. Aubrey Smith is in for catchy brief moment.

Screenplay by Samuel Hoffenstein and Elizabeth Reinhardt, adapted from Margery Sharp's best-seller, is a clever piece of writing and merits praise. There is some rough cutting in final reels, but script is craftsmanship job throughout. Photography by Joseph La Shelle assays highly, too. Particularly good is art direction by Lyle Wheeler and J. Russell Spencer, and set decorations of Thomas Little and Paul S. Fox. Remaining technical credits likewise are of merit.

A Stolen Life

(Drama)

WARNER BROTHERS' RELEASE. Producer, Bette Davis. Director, Curtis Bernhardt. Screenplay, Catherine Turney; adapted by Margaret Buell Wilder from novel by Karel J. Benes. Photography, Sol Polito and Ernest Haller. Art, Robert Haas. Editor, Rudi Fehr. Sound, Robert B. Lee. Dialog director, Jack Gage. Set decorations, Fred M. MacLean. Wardrobe, Orry-Kelly. Special effects, William McCann, E. Roy Davidson, Willard Van Enger and Russell Collings. Makeup, Perc Westmore. Music, Max Steiner. Orchestral arrangements, Hugo Friedhofer. Musical director, Leo F. Forbstein. Assistant director, Jesse Hibbs.

CAST—Bette Davis, Glenn Ford, Dane Clark, Walter Brennan, Charlie Ruggles, Bruce Bennett, Peggy Knudsen, Esther Dale, Joan Winfield, Clara Blandick.

TRADESHOWN at Beverly theatre, Beverly Hills, Calif., April 26, 1946. Running time: 109 MINS.

In this maiden effort of her own production unit, Bette Davis stars in a strictly femme-appeal piece which will garner strong returns lured by name-studded cast.

Film possibly would have been punchier had it been trimmed somewhat. Start is rather slow and there is some redundancy in midway sequences that streamlining would have eliminated. Dialog hasn't steady sparkle, and the male characters aren't as sharply defined and as convincing as they might have been. Possibly this is due to fact that women scriveners largely worked up the yarn.

Basic idea is highly interesting. Miss Davis plays deft dual roles, as twin sisters. One is vain, selfish sophisticate with ever-roving eye for men; other is repressed, sincere, over-generous girl who is trying to fill out her rather empty life by striving to attain some stature as a painter. Inevitably the lad the finer twin finds and loves is swept away from her by opposite sister. Marriage which results is obviously unhappy, and neat climax is reached when twain sail a small sloop through a storm, craft founders and the baser sort of girl drowns. The goodie pretends she is the wedded one, hoping thus to get the boy, but then faces dilemma when husband cannot believe she's reformed and indifferently insists she scram out of his life. How the finale is achieved is wholly anticlimactic and just a trifle too precious due to inept dialog.

Miss Davis delivers particularly well, finely framing two sharply different sisters so each is keenly etched and their clashing characteristics are emboldened. Glenn Ford does well as husband, besting the script which at times presents him as rather a dope. He has some inane lines to utter, but manages through sincerity and sound histrionic sense to master these situations.

Dane Clark has thankless part of embittered, impoverished artist. Role is inserted halfway through footage and Clark accomplishes purpose, to lend some color. He's forgotten at finale, role being left suspended in air. Walter Brennan stoutly supports as another color character, New England Yankee cut in familiar pattern, terse, salt-airy and rather too rude. Charlie Ruggles turns up in one of his stock roles, cousin of twins. His presence is meant to leaven the piece with humor, but his lines should have been meatier. Bruce Bennett is in for only one scene, but he scores. Peggy Knudsen, Esther Dale, Joan Winfield and Clara Blandick make most of roles that essentially are bits.

Curtis Bernhardt's direction was sure and he shaped up the suspenseful situations with knowing cleverness. Dual-photography will be hailed probably as best yet achieved by pictures. Sol Polito and Ernest Haller handled, with special-effects' assistance from William McCann, S. Roy Davidson, Willard Van Enger and Russell Collings. Robert Haas' art credit is extremely well-deserved, sets having gleam and polish. Orry-Kelly provided 24 costume changes for Miss Davis, some of which will have femmes goggling. Star probably luxuriated in clothes after having been bound up in period costumes in last two films. Max Steiner has provided a punchy score which considerably implements the drama with emotional overtones.

Most of "Stolen Life" was shot at Laguna, where swell stimulation was achieved for Massachusetts' coastline, locale of story.

(Melodrama)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Rudolph C. Flothow. Director, William Castle. Original screenplay, Eric Taylor, Aubrey Wisberg. Based on the radio program, "Crime Doctor," by Max Marcin. Photography, Henry Freulich. Film editor, Dwight Caldwell. Art direction, Hans Radon. Set decorations, William Kiernan. Sound recording, Howard Fogetti. Musical director, Mischa Bakaleinikoff. Assistant director, Carl Hiecke.

CAST—Stars Warner Baxter. Features Adelle Roberts, Martin Kosleck, Mona Barrie, Marvin Miller, Charles D. Brown, Robert H. Barrat, Craig Reynolds, Wilton Graff, Charles Lane, Charles Arnt, Ted Hecht, Peggy Converse, Irene Tedrow, Thomas Jackson.

REVIEWED at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, April 30, 1946. Running time: 67 MINS.

Okay entry in the "Crime Doctor" series from Columbia. Series fits into a standard pattern and this one is acceptable supporting fare. Its budget production by Rudolph C. Flothow measures up, and William Castle's direction achieves sufficient action to keep the script by Eric Taylor and Aubrey Wisberg moving along.

Plot pits Warner Baxter, the medico who practices sleuthing on the side, against a gang of heavies which puts new faces on escaped crooks. Three victims later Baxter rounds up the brains of the mob, but not until he makes himself a test tube for poison, the lethal weapon used on all the victims. Crooks operate behind a mortuary front while brains is a respected real estate agent and discredited doctor skilled in plastic surgery.

Baxter is good and others in the cast deliver uniform work. Victims include Adelle Roberts and Peggy Converse. Making up the heavy contingent are Martin Kosleck, Marvin Miller and Wilton Graff. Among the suspects are Mona Barrie, Craig Reynolds, Robert H. Barrat and Charles Arnt. Good police support is supplied by Charles D. Brown and Charles Lane.

Henry Freulich's photograph, settings, etc., lend okay framework for budget allotment.

TECHNICOLOR NET DROPS TO 667G DURING 1945

Net profit of Technicolor, Inc., and its subsidiary, Technicolor Motion Picture Corporation, for the year ending December 31, 1945 was $667,441.54—a drop of more than $190,000 over the previous year, according to the annual report released yesterday by Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, president and general manager. Net for 1944 was $859,156.42.

The report stated that strike conditions during 1945 resulted in increased costs and diminished profits.

Net earnings per share of capital stock were 74 cents as compared with 95 cents in 1944.

The net profit of Technicolor, Ltd., the company's British branch, for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1945, was listed at 40,049 pounds. Total footage sold by the British outfit in 1945 was 42,482,000 feet.

The report stresses the need for expansion to meet the demand for Technicolor product in England, stating that it "may be necessary to expand to be able to photograph as many as 20 feature length productions a year in London as compared with present capacity of four or five."

United States output of Technicolor 35-millimeter release prints totaled 160,471,837 feet during 1945 as compared with 161,979,084 feet in 1944. Orders for both domestic and foreign prints have increased, due to more playing dates in the theatres and return of foreign territory to the market after the war.

Net sales reached a new high of $11,614,779.66 in 1945. Consolidated current assets are listed as $7,185,981.96 and liabilities as $2,423,590.49.

The report recognizes the 16-millimeter output as an increasingly important part of the company's business, with between six and seven million feet of the narrow gauge put out during the year.

Loder, Lamarr Co-Star

John Loder was signed yesterday to co-star with Hedy Lamarr and Dennis O'Keefe in "Dishonored Lady," Jack Chertok produces for Hunt Stromberg.

ELECTIONS DELAY U.S. PIX IN ITALY

Rome, April 30.—American efforts to close a deal for release of United States pictures probably will be stymied till the June 2 elections. With the interim coalition government now in power, everybody is passing the buck on the responsibility of opening the gates to foreign enterprise. The opposition of the Scalera Brothers and other former Fascists to the importation of American pictures darkens a gloomy picture. Certain Fascists the Allied government failed to purge are feeling their oats and tossing their weight around.

• JUST FOR VARIETY •

THE GRAPEVINE: Jan Clayton, Broadway's latest musical comedy toast ("Carousel" and "Show Boat") interrupted her honeymoon to journey here for tests for "Jennie Was a Lady" at Metro. She arrived yesterday and reports at the studio next week . . . Literary inflation note: Erich Maria Remarque, who was paid $300,000 for screen rights to "Arch of Triumph," received $25,000 almost twenty years ago for the more sensational "All Quiet on the Western Front" . . . Metro is trying to get "The Yearling" into release before David O. Selznick's "Duel in the Sun" hits the screens. Both star Gregory Peck in outdoor drama . . . Studios are exhibiting interest, again, in Joe E. Lewis, who has already wowed 'em in night clubs but never scored in films . . . Jean Ravaud, the French import tycoon, is bringing 40 carloads of champagne to the Coast in the near future, mostly Mumm's bubbly baubles . . . Club Savoy, downtown black-and-tan, is using nylons as patron bait. Every femme entering the place has the opportunity to buy one pair of hose at the OPA ceiling of $1.55 . . . That well-scrubbed and wholesome look notwithstanding, Ingrid Bergman is billed in the Argentine as "La Exotica" for "Saratoga Trunk."

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: There's a more or less grateful extra around town who says a top feminine star helps her get an occasional job. The star is her daughter . . . Sydney Greenstreet, during his vacation in New York, will be the guest of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. He was their top character man until Warners signed him a half dozen years ago . . . Ann Sheridan pulled out for Mexico City in company with her wardrobe woman and best friend, Martha Giddings. She'll spend five days there, then join Steve Hannegan in New York, and won't return until "Serenade" hits the sound stages . . . Cafe society: Ida Lupino hitting the night spots with the David Nivens. Mr. and Mrs. David Bruce entertained a party at Har-Omar. Jackie Coogan and Ann McCormick, setting their wedding for sometime in May, at Beverly Tropics, Olga San Juan and George Jessel at Ciro's. And at the Seacomber at Malibu Beach, John Hodiak and his fiancee; Anne Baxter; Mr. and Mrs. John Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Keefe, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ford entertaining a party in honor of their daughter Patricia, Philip Reed stagging it, and Virginia Bruce with Ali Ipar . . . Frank Fouce's California and Mason theatres mark May 6 on the calendar with a red circle. It's the Cinco de Mayo celebration, Mexico's Independence Day, and an 11-reeler, "Heart of Mexico," will be shown . . . Billy Wilder's the target for a lot of sly remarks on his plans to take a camera crew to Lake Louise and Banff in mid-May. His pals claim he has a vacation with pay in mind and hum "Springtime in the Rockies" with sardonic interpolations.

CALL SHEET: MORRIS ANKRUM doubles as actor and dialog director for Metro's "The Mighty McGurk" . . . BARNEY RUDITSKY, who was in charge of NY's Broadway detective detail from 1921 to 1941 during the gangsters' heydays, will be technical advisor on RKO's "Nocturne," in which George Raft will play a Broadway detective . . . RICHARD NEY threw a barbecue at Pebble Beach for the crew on "A Woman of My Own," in which his wife Greer Garson is starring . . . JEAN ACKER, Rudolph Valentino's first wife, will play a role in "Perils of Pauline" . . . BEBE DANIELS is giving a cocktail party Friday night for Lord Lascelles, nephew of the British king . . . BENNIE KRUEGER, Rudy Vallee's musical director, defines "engagement" as—"in war, a battle; in love, the calm that precedes the real hostilities" . . . ABE SCHILLER will manage a new addition to Lucey's, tagged the Walnut Room, which will be for use of private parties . . . JUNE FRASER, comedienne in Slapsy Maxie's revue, will be given a screen test by Samuel Goldwyn tomorrow . . . KAY KYSER, who will stage the Mardi Gras of Stars at the Coliseum, May 9, with all proceeds going to the County Housing Authority, plans to place all the acts on a mobile stage which will wheel around the stadium and give everybody a chance to look and listen.

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: Sidney Skolsky and Al Jolson were lunching yes-terday when a third party came to their table and inquired if Skolsky was going to the fight last night. "No," Jolson answered for him, "he can't go. Schwab's is preeming a new sulfa drug tonight" . . . Mother and daughter were cast in 20th "Carnival in Costa Rica" yesterday when Maria Delgado, former Mexican stock company actress, and her daughter Rosita Delva were assigned roles . . . Irving Cummings, Jr., and Robert North established some kind of literary speed record last week. They read newspaper accounts of the mysterious disappearance of Henri Bar, wrote a film story based on it and titled "The Agate Cups" and sold it to Sol Wurtzel in one day . . . Fred Brady says alcohol is a liquid good for preserving almost anything except secrets . . . For the first time in his career, Eddie Cantor, appearing on a San Francisco radio program, "Breakfast on Nob Hill," was paid off with a pudding. Fred Levy, one of the show's sponsors, gave him a frozen champagne pudding, and Cantor says it's "the only time I ever ate my wages" . . . One of Angna Enters' paintings, "Swann and Odette," now on exhibition at the Francis Taylor galleries in Bevhills, was bought by Joan Fontaine . . . Today 12 Los Angeles high school students "take over" various departments of Warners studio in connection with Boys Week. No cracks! . . . Perry Ward, emcee of the "What's Doin' Ladies" airer, was finally made victim of his own japery. As a surprise prize, he gave a baby alligator to a lady contestant. The lady almost fainted, and rejected the prize. Now Ward is sharing his bathtub with an alligator.——D.D.T.

FRISCO JURY WILL HEAR BEEF ON 'OUTLAW'

San Francisco, April 30.—Howard Hughes' fight over police seizure of "The Outlaw" will be heard by a jury. Following producer's failure to obtain a writ from Superior Court to prevent police from interfering with screening of the picture at the United Artists theatre, entire matter was set for jury trial May 15 in Municipal court before Judge Twain Michelson.

J. W. Ehrlich has taken over as attorney on the case and will defend Hughes, the theatre and its manager, Al Dunn, who is out on bail after being charged with exhibiting an indecent picture. Jerry Geisler of Los Angeles was flown here to handle restraining order motion for Hughes but has now returned south.

La Cava, Scripters Bringing Kelly Home

New York, April 30.—Director Gregory LaCava and writers Harry Kurnitz and Charles Lederer left for Hollywood today after successfully selling Gene Kelly on taking on immediate film chores on their "Lights for Living," forthcoming Metro production. Actor, currently on terminal leave from the Navy, at first wanted an indefinite holiday but finally agreed to return to Hollywood for the picture assignment.

Emery's 'Angel'

John Emery will star in "Angel Street," Gryphon Productions' first show at Laguna Beach Playhouse, opening June 25. Keenan Wynn has been set to follow in the straw-hat season in "20th Century." Others considering star spots are Claire Trevor, Constance Moore and Dennis O'Keefe.

OXLEY WILL MAKE BONGO PLATTERS

Harold Oxley, indie ork agent, yesterday received license from Musicians' Local 47 to record and shortly will debut his own pop-plattery using label of Bongo. First item issued by new firm will be four sides by Teddy Stauffer's newly formed 17-piece band.

Al Katz, Coast chief of Oxley agency, last month incorporated own odd label, F-M, and received Local 47 license to wax, but to date has prepped no discs.

Light 'n' Airy

(on the ½ shell)

by JACK HELLMAN

Not so many months ago we itemed that Danny Kaye was unhappy with his lot on the Pabst show and would like to get off. Paul Warwick, whose agency handles the beer account, happened to be in town at the time and took us sharply to task for even insinuating that everything wasn't triple peachy on the show. Warwick asked for and received a retraction. We just wanted to be obliging although we knew better. By now it is generally known that Kaye is washing up with Pabst at the close of the present cycle. Now for the other member of the firm, Henry Legler. In the column a few days ago we printed what was being bruited about in the trade, that Legler had signed one of the top stars for Pabst. We were told to change our brand of hop. So what happened? Legler did sign Eddie Cantor for Pabst and he, for our dough, is a top star. So, fellows, quit kidding and when a reporter gets the jump on a story don't try so hard to blow it down.

Radio Directors Guild of Hollywood moved toward a compact national organization by voting to join up with the New York and Chicago guilds. Membership went on record as favoring an alliance with the eastern groups and yesterday Paul Franklin, head of the local RDG, flew to Washington to confer with officers of the N.Y. and Chicago guilds and American Federation of Labor. Latter will be petitioned for a national charter to replace the federal or local charter under which the N.Y. chapter has been functioning. By summer the national body of RDG will open negotiations with the networks.

WASHINGTON HULLABALOO

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, April 30.—The almost fantastic preparations for photographing the atom bomb tests have been disclosed here by Col. Hereford Cowling on a brief visit to town. Col. Cowling, one of the original officers who worked with Col. Bill Keighley in the AAF photographic division during the war, is now in charge of what is left of that setup.

He is chief of the Photographic Division of Air Materiel Command at Wright Field, Ohio, which has taken over all pix work for the AAF. Cowling succeeds Col. Richard Cunningham, former Metro film editor, whose last chore for the Army will be supervision of all the picture work connected with the atom bomb tests.

Photographic feat will involve 120 men and 12 camera planes. Six of these will have the new automatic cameras, a postwar development, operated by remote control. Camera, incidentally, is the product of Henry Rogenti, civilian employe at Wright Field, who has received a joint WD-AAF award for the idea. Explosion of the bomb will set off the cameras.

Films, both still and motion picture, will be flown to St. Louis after the tests and will be analyzed by a joint AAF-Navy group, and then released to the newsreels, papers, etc.

Forty Hollywood cameramen have been recruited for this assignment.

To continue with the AAF postwar setup, Cowling states that, wherever feasible, films will be farmed out to existing commercial concerns. He plans 25 pictures a year, none designed for theatrical use. Of these, six have already been contracted for with commercial companies, with 12 more to be contracted before July 1. Cowling's present staff consists of 465 men, only 120 of whom are military. By midsummer staff will be almost completely civilian, with vets filling spots as far as possible.

At present all combat footage is being properly catalogued and otherwise whipped into shape and will be available for industry use.

Bill for the expansion of the Library of Congress motion picture activities, shelved during the war, has been dusted off and has now reached the House Appropriations Committee. Capt. John Bradley, drafted from the National Archives to head the library's enlarged film operation, testified before the committee a few days ago.

Bradley tells government film workers that actual construction has begun on the proposed storage vaults at Suitland, Md., just outside the city. One cinder block storage unit is almost completed, with further construction depending upon how much congress is willing to spend.

The overall project involves active cooperation of the film industry and will offer many services to Hollywood. Capt. Bradley reminds that the idea originated with Will Hays in 1922.

Among other services planned by the Library, Capt. Bradley revealed a project for research on audience reaction and related subjects. If this is undertaken, it would be the first time the government attempted such a study for pix. FCC has done similar jobs for radio.

The 47 tons of foreign films sent over by the Army to the Library of Congress are still in crates in New York. Library plans to analyze reels enclosed, screen them and offer them for certain uses by the industry. However, it is liable to be several years before the analysis is complete, unless the Library gets a larger staff for the purpose.

Hollywood bound in the near future: Eric Johnston, who hops west soon after the C. of C. convention in Atlantic City May 2; Arch Mercey, new government film liaison with industry for OWMR, who plans to huddle with producers; Capt. John Bradley, Library of Congress film head, who will discuss further cooperation between the industry and the Library . . . Ted Gamble in town throwing his weight around in favor of the British loan . . . Gene Autry's visitors at the S-Q Ranch rodeo here included Republic prexy Jimmy Grainger, who stayed on for a few days, and Smiley Burnette, who got a big hand at the show . . . Loew's Carter Barron yachting along the Florida coast . . . Charles Coburn, here in "Merry Wives of Windsor," will be feted by Metro along with advance screening of "Green Years" . . . 20th-Fox does a sneak preview of "Cluny Brown" tomorrow night, a rarity in these parts . . . State Department's list of foreign visitors includes at least seven Latin American musicians and a growing list of picture people, latest being Senorita Consuela Mates, of a film distributing firm in Ciudad Trujillo.

Dorothy Claire, singing at Loew's Capitol, has had nibbles from RKO and Monogram. She heads for the Coast to guest star on Bing Crosby's radio show May 9 and will also appear at Slapsy Maxie's. Nice artiste with class.

RADIO RECORDS VARIETY MUGG'S MARRIAGE

John Richard Hurley of Daily Variety staff and Mildred Maier, of the Crosley outfit did a retake over the matrimonial route yesterday morning, with the event etherized over ABC on the Bride and Groom session of the day.

It was quite a thrill to the couple to be deluged with necessary housekeeping prerequisites and wearing apparel, unobtainable on the open market today. The couple couldn't carry off the lot that was given them by the sponsors and local tradesmen.

There was one of those giant washing machines, the envy of all brides, a heap of silverware, cosmetic kits, cameras, clothes for the bride, flowers, as well as the bride's costumes and a diamond studded wedding ring.

It was quite a show put on in the theatre of the Chapman Park hotel before an audience of several hundred. Among them were some service men, who had no place for a quiet gin rummy game, so they garnered one of the tables and played their game as the show went on.

The marriage service was performed in the hotel chapel by Rev. Alden Lee, during a commercial on the program while the audience got plenty of laughs during the dialog that ensued between John Nelson, who conducts the daily proceedings and the bride and groom.

They'll have a week-end honeymoon at the Samarkand hotel in Santa Barbara, as the climax of the nuptials.

Only thing the couple didn't get, which they wanted most, was a five room bungalow to live in.

Mike Spector Heads Talent Dept. of U

New York, April 30.—Mike Spector today was named head of Universal's talent department here. He will work under Adolph Schimel, executive coordinator of talent and story departments.

Crowded Acres

Conflict with Universal's "The Michigan Kid" in use of Kernville location site held up scheduled start and changed production plans for Republic's Roy Rogers starrer, "Shine On Texas Moon," yesterday. The "Moon" will start filming today instead of yesterday as originally skedded and at the studio instead of on location.

SEG MAIL BALLOTS GO OUT TODAY

Screen Extras Guild will mail ballots for election of officers and directors today to more than 3,000 film extras. To be counted, ballots must be returned prior to 4 p.m., May 13. Candidates for office include both present SEG officers and board and leaders of the defunct Screen Players Union. Total of 89 names are on the ballot. Vote counting will be handled by Graves & Coburn, certified public accountants.

FitzPatrick Readying Three 'Music Masters'

First three of James A. FitzPatrick's "Famous Music Masters" shorts are being readied for production. Trio includes "Beethovan," "Brahms" and "Schubert," symphonic stories of their lives and best-known compositions. There will be total of 26 in completed series, which will embrace practically all of the world's most famous classical composers.

'Abie's' Family Full

The complete cast of principals in "Abie's Irish Rose," which Eddie Sutherland is producing and directing for Bing Crosby Producers Inc., was assembled for the first time yesterday when J. M. Kerrigan and Emory Parnell reported for their roles of Patrick Murphy and Father Whelan.

ASCAP RE-ELECTS OFFICERS; GIVES 25G TO PREZ

New York, April 30.—Entire slate of officers of American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has been re-elected for another year. After heated argument, prexy Deems Taylor was voted $25,000 annually, with restriction that no one hold chair longer than two years. In the verbal tug-of-war over payment of salary to the prez, writer-members adamantly favored and publishers opposed.

Other re-elected officers are Gus Schirmer and Oscar Hammerstein II, veepees; George W. Meyer, secretary; Donald Grey, assistant treasurer. Ray Henderson has been added to ASCAP board to replace Irving Caesar, who was voted off last month in the general membership election.

COL. LEVINSON IS GIVEN DECORATION BY WAR DEPT.

Colonel Nathan Levinson, head of Warners sound department, yesterday received the War Department Certificate of Appreciation "for patriotic services rendered in a position of trust and responsibility to the government" during the war.

The award was made at the Warner studio by Col. Albert M. Pigg, acting Service Command Signal Officer of the Ninth Service Command. Colonel Pigg stated the presentation was made in recognition of Levinson's work in organizing and guiding the Army's film training program.

This is Levinson's second award. In 1941 he was presented with a special award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences by Major General J. A. Mauborgne, chief of the Signal Corps.

Rank and U Join For 16m Distribution

New York, April 30.—Universal and J. Arthur Rank are currently developing plans for the establishment of a new company to handle theatrical distribution of 16m stock of all Universal films throughout the world, with the exception of the United States. Arrangements on the new setup are being made by Joseph Seidelman, Universal International prexy, and Ian Cremieu-Javal, head of Rank's 16m operations.

Morris Agency Ups Its Capital Stock

New York, April 30. — William Morris agency has increased its capital stock from 1,000 shares of no par value to 1,100 shares—100 at $1 par and 1,000 at no par value. Move was made because of a rearrangement of stock holdings between William Morris, Jr., president, and Abe Lastfogel, a partner in the firm.

PEGGY CUMMINS OUT OF 'AMBER'; RECASTING PIC

role there will be considerable recasting of other roles.

All the film shot during the past month will be scrapped. This will mean a loss of more than $300,000 without figuring the overhead. With that in, the debit will exceed a half million.

The about face on "Forever Amber," with the tearing up of the film shot and the recasting of picture as well as the changing of directors constitutes one of the big bombshells of recent years in the film business.

Three directors are under consideration for the new deal on the picture. Among them is Henry King. The script by Philip Dunne, which won considerable acclaim for the manner in which it retained the romantic elements of the novel with the approval of Joe Breen of the Production Code, will be retained.

Twentieth-Fox planned issuing a statement on the status of "Amber" yesterday, but this was abandoned last night.

Dinah Shore Parts With Birdseye

Dinah Shore leaves Birdseye sponsorship at the close of the season after three years. Frozen food packer is quitting radio because of food shortages. Young & Rubicam agency has several other clients interested in the singer, who has maintained a high rating since she headed her own show.

LIBERALS BIDDING FOR NY MIRROR

New York, April 30.—An unusual newspaper deal is about to be broached, aimed at providing heavy competition to the NY Daily News. Subject of lot of huddling here and in Washington currently is plan to purchase NY Daily Mirror from Hearst, keep most present features, and slant editorials to liberal side. Behind deal are several big bankers and big-time industrialists who have pledged total of $12,000,000, and may possibly ante up to $20,000,000 to get Mirror. Hearst has not yet been extended formal offer.

Prods, Labor Groups Okay Program To End Disputes

prexy of Motion Picture Association, said: "Under this plan, which will be tried out for a minimum of 30 days at all the major studios, representatives of all labor groups scheduled to take part in the making of a set will meet and agree on the proper division of work before the preparation of the set is started.

"Any disagreement which cannot be settled at such a conference will be referred for final settlement to the producers' labor office directed by Pat Casey.

"This is an important step toward acceptance of the kind of arbitration procedure which the producers have advocated to bring about industrial peace in the studios."

IA CONDITIONS

Commenting on the IATSE participation in the trial plan, Roy M. Brewer, International representative, stated: "Any disputes arising during the coming month that cannot be settled by the business representatives of the unions involved, to prevent a work tie-up, are to be referred to the producers labor relations office for a ruling to be based solely on the facts of the particular case, and the recent jurisdictional decision, as applied to existing A.F. of L. rulings, decisions and grants of jurisdiction."

Brewer went on record that the IA favors a sound plan to handle jurisdictional disputes as they arise but outlined six minimum conditions such a program must include.

GOOD FAITH NEEDED

They are: 1—The local unions must meet in a responsible and business-like way through AFL procedure and regard for the rules of common courtesy and work out a mutually acceptable plan that their International can approve; 2—The International unions must commit themselves to guarantee compliance with any pledges made and the producers also must pledge to enforce the program from their end; 3—The program must comply generally with the rules and policies of the AFL; 4—The program must not be used to attempt to whittle away any established jurisdiction of AFL unions, but must concentrate on settling borderline disputes of interpretation of existing rulings and decisions on jurisdiction;

5—The program must recognize the broad general distinction that theatrical work belongs to the IATSE and building trades work to the Building Trades unions; 6—All parties to the program must give assurance that they enter into it in good faith.

Osserman on Tour

USO CAMP SHOWS WIN CITATION OF ARMY, NAVY

Washington, April 30. — USO Camp Shows has won a joint Army-Navy citation for its "unique and outstanding service" during the war. Statement announcing citation said:

"USO Camp Shows, Inc., was commended for providing live entertainment for the armed forces in training, in hospitals, on outpost duty, and in combat areas around the world. Through this agency, the resources of the entire amusement industry were brought into focus which contributed directly to the morale of men and women on every fighting front and in every quarter of the globe.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

No one but a traveler from Mars would expect both Jews and Arabs to like any report on Palestine. The reaction to the one by the Anglo-American Committee is as expected. A report that said Palestine should be a Jewish state would be denounced by the Arabs, and one that did not say it should be a Jewish state would be attacked by the Zionists. This report says neither. It says the State of the future, under a mandate for sometime, should be neither Jewish nor Arab, and that it should accord equal rights and opportunities to each. However the opening of the gates of Palestine, with 100,000 Jews admitted immediately, the number in detention camps in Europe, and the way open for 700,000 more who do not want to remain in Europe, would make Palestine a State in which there would be so many Jews that the political balance of power would be naturally Jewish. Since the Jewish people are more inclined anyway toward assuming political responsibility and taking advantage of and developing opportunities, economically, culturally and otherwise, the eventual Palestine State would be Jewish, even if not called that. To many observers, this report seems most fair. It provides finally for opening the gates to at least the 100,000 Jews still behind fences in Germany, a situation that is a disgrace to a world that considers itself civilized.

Ferber Given $50 For Extra Years On 'Trunk'

"Lease deal" on movie scripts being urged by the Screen Writers Guild got graphic illustration yesterday in the report that Warners is paying Edna Ferber an additional $50,000 for a two-year extension on the film rights to "Saratoga Trunk."

Original deal made by Miss Ferber through her attorney, Morris Ernst, gave the studio the picture rights for a 5-year period, at the end of which time they were to revert to her. The picture, last one turned out by Hal Wallis for Warners, was some time in the making and was kept in the vaults over two years before release. Result is that, with the picture now showing, the rights are due to revert and studio must have extension to continue screening.

CHI DIMS ITS MARQUEES

Chicago, May 1.—Dimout regulation for the city identical with that existing during the war, was put into effect today by the Illinois Commerce Commission in order to offset serious fuel shortage existing in metropolitan area here as result of coal strike.

The order goes into effect Thursday. Immediately hit will be all theatres and niteries which sport lighted marquees, as well as the electric signs around town. The weather has been balmy here, so the various spots will not suffer from lack of heat.

Allyson Sought As Co-Star With Dick Powell In 'Johnny O'Clock'

Loanout of June Allyson to co-star with her husband, Dick Powell, in "Johnny O'Clock" was being sought last night in negotiations between JEM Productions and Metro. Miss Allyson is trying to persuade Metro to let her do the provocative role in the gambling story. JEM signed Powell for his third essay in rough and tumble yesterday, and announced that Robert Rossen, who is writing the screenplay from Milton Holmes' original, will be given his first try as a director on the film.

Holmes' melodrama, which will be released by Columbia, follows the pattern of his previous two hits, "Mr. Lucky" and "Salty O'Rourke." He will act as associate producer to Edward G. Nealis on the film.

Loaned out by Hal Wallis, Rossen has recently written the screenplays for "A Walk in the Sun" and "The Strange Love of Martha Ivers." He was a playwright and legit director before coming to Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

RELIGION is constantly getting growing nod from recording companies, and just as churchmen recognized radio as proselyting medium as soon as the ozone achieved mass popularity, so now they are lured to discs since platters are peddled by the hundred million yearly. Latest excursion of religion into wax is th eight-sided alburn of sermons of Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen, "Catholic Hour" orator. Item has just been released by new plattery, Angelus Recording, which is operated by Ed Dukoff, Danny Kaye's flack. Msgr. Sheen has allotted his royalties on discs to Negro maternity hospital in south. Bibletone, NY discery, which pioneered religion on platters and to date has issued 22 albums which have sold well, is prepping new idea, a package of two records and 32-page booklet of Biblical stories. Stunt is aimed at tots, who are directed to read stories in brochure, simultaneously spinning discs which are mere sound effects to accompany and consequently tone up yarns. One of most novel ideas is being advanced by organization known as Gospel & Song, headquartered in Inglewood. Outfit buys ether time, being locally on KFWB, plays its platters presenting hymns and sermons and offers to send listeners discs on free-will gift basis. Idea must be paying off, since the radio-time buys are mounting.

DUST raised over more sensational features of the Howard Hughes-Motion Picture Association fracas has hidden the significance of the first legal test of the Production Code Administration, film legalites say. If the suit is pushed to a final decision, lawyers believe that not only will the PCA but the entire right of the industry to regulate itself may be vitally affected by the court. They point out that the PCA has never before been tested under anti-trust laws. Two pivotal points Hughes must prove to uphold his argument are that denial of theatre outlets is both material and unreasonable restraint of trade. Legalites are inclined to believe that Hughes may come a cropper attempting to hurdle the argument that self-censorship is necessary and reasonable. On this score, Department of Justice expressed opinion that MPA acted within its power in creating PCA. Justice stand, however, does not eliminate the right of a private legitant to challenge the code as monopolistic.

SCOTTY Welbourne, head of Enterprise's still department, stole a march on other studios in locating and obtaining equipment for new still lab. Such material has been practically non-existent during the war due to shortages. Assigned task of setting up a complete lab on Enterprise lot, Welbourne, after scouring country for equipment which wasn't there, finally made contact with a photographic concessionaire at an Army camp near Bakersfield. This concessionaire had sufficient equipment in several different locations to outfit fully Enterprise lab. Equipment includes such things as enlargers, dryers, tanks and drums, and lab now is ready for operation. Nearest estimate any photographic supply company in country could make in delivery of required equipment was 120 days.

FOLLOWING in wake of price war between pressing plants, a cost cutting fracas augurs between record cutting studios leasing facilities to outsiders. Plethora of processors and pressers led to price slashing in effort to attract recording companies from one plant to another. With number of cutting sites increasing owners are checking each other's activities and prices in effort to lure accounts with lower costs. One such location, also landlord with office space to let, almost guarantees itself cutting jobs via leases for office space. Included in leases is clause optioning all recording and transcription work that producers, agencies or others might require in conducting their businesses.

PARAMOUNT is struggling with a real "doctors' dilemma" in the filming of "Welcome Stranger" because of British taboos on use of medical terms and showing of surgical instruments in pix. One of the highlight sequences of the picture is performance of an emergency appendectomy by Bing Crosby on his colleague Barry Fitzgerald. Both play roles as doctors in the story. Most of the actual operation scenes will have to be filmed twice—one version for British and the other for American release—because the British censorship code forbids use of such words as "ether" and "anaesthetic" together with the display of surgical instruments.

UNITED Press yesterday was getting quotes from Hollywood toppers, players and producers, to refute statement reportedly made by Sir Thomas Beecham, orchestra conductor, upon his return to London from sojourn in United States and Hollywood. Film names were asked to reply to statement, "Hollywood is a universal disaster, compared to which Hitler, Himmler and Mussolini were trivial and fleeting incidents. Films are ruined by their continued distortion of American life." UP is understood to be taking up cudgel in defense of Hollywood with a mighty swing.

NEGRO Musicians' Local 767 has established two different nitely scales, depending on hours of their operation. Minimum at regular club is $60 for four hours daily, six days a week. At so-called "breakfast clubs" scale is same for three hours' work daily because spots don't open until after midnight and their working hours are deemed most inconvenient on clock's face. "Breakfast" joints, which of late have mushroomed all over downtown, have no liquor licenses, but peddle setups and dish out floor-shows and dancing.

JOSEPH M. Schenck stated yesterday that 20th Century-Fox has not decided to replace Peggy Cummins in "Forever Amber." Mr. Schenck stated that he has seen the footage of Miss Cummins in the picture and in his opinion she is perfect for the part. With respect to any changes to be made in either stellar or other parts Schenck said that would be done by Darryl F. Zanuck.

Since Eve and Adam romped around the earliest plantation
And learned a lot of things beneath the tree of education
And gleaned sufficient facts of life to start the human race
This dizzy world developed into one unending chase.
The coppers and the robbers chase each other on the screen.
The cowboys chase the rustlers on the rugged western scene
And in the costume dramas where the boudoir lights are dim
The panting wolf pursues the gal, or she is chasing him.
The cloak-and-dagger heroes chase a flock of foreign spies
While oriental agents hunt with venom in their eyes.
Old Nimrod was a chaser in the simple days of yore
And chased the lion and the deer on many an ancient shore
And though in thespian pursuits he never won renown
The guy deserves a monument in Motion Picture Town.

Producers do a lot of chasing, strictly in an artistic sense, of course. They chased across the ocean to find an Amber and now they are chasing around Hollywood for a pinch-hitter. Dave Selznick once put on an international chase for Scarlet O'Hara, but all the time he had two aces back to back. He had a story and Clark Gable.

GENERAL SERVICE IN $1,000,000 EXPANSION

Expansion program for General Service Studios that contemplates eventual expenditure of more than $1,000,000 and the laying out of more than $500,000 within the next nine months was announced yesterday by Prexy C. J. Tevlin. Tevlin at the same time discounted complaints of stage space shortage.

Plans for immediate increase in the studio facilities call for construction of two new sound stages on the lot. Used for these will be the old silent stage now used only for storage. This has an area of 400 by 110 feet and will be converted into two fully equipped, modern sound stages. These will be ready, Tevlin said, within the next 60 days and first production to occupy them will be Hunt Stromberg's "Dishonored Lady."

ROOM FOR 12 PIX A YEAR

Addition of the two new stages will provide production facilities for 12 pictures yearly instead of eight, which is the present capacity of the studio.

Completion of the stages will make it possible to accommodate three productions on the lot simultaneously.

Already under construction is a new mill and carpenter shop which will contain 14,000 square feet of floor space, have a ceiling height of 85 feet and will accommodate any required mill work regardless of the size of the set.

Of the extra equipment being purchased by General Service some has already been delivered, including a new Mitchell noiseless camera unit, first to be delivered since the war. A second one of these is expected within 30 days and another later. Cameras were ordered in 1944.

NEW LIGHTING SETUP

Also being provided is complete lighting equipment for another producing company and the studio has commitments for arc lighting equipment adequate for production of two Technicolor pictures simultaneously. They have also contracted with Allys Chalmers Company for entire new generator plant, which will be ready within six months and which will triple present power capacity.

Other new equipment, already on hand or due for early delivery, includes Western Electric sound equipment for new projection room, eight new Moviola editing machines.

Planned for the future, Tevlin said, as soon as materials are available is a new four-story office building to cost an estimated $400,000. "Office facilities," he said, "are the chief bugaboo at present and there is no immediate hope of increasing them."

$50 Derby Tickets From Heaven For 'Duel In Sun'

Free $50 win tickets on horses entered in the Kentucky Derby are going to be fluttering in the air above Louisville tomorrow as part of latest "Duel in the Sun" exploitation stunt. Paul McNamara, chief flack for David O. Selznick, is going to sprinkle Louisville and surrounding towns from a plane with parachutes, one in every hundred of which will carry a certificate entitling the finder to one $50 win ticket on one of the Derby entries.

Other parachutes (they're all stenciled with pic title) will contain a race program listing the stars in "Duel in the Sun" and a lead pencil bearing the name of the film.

Plane from which parachutes are released will tow a 100-foot banner reading, "A sure film winner—'Duel in the Sun.'"

The stunt is tied in with the Louisville Courier-Journal and the lucky certificate has to be exchanged for a mutuel ticket by the sports editor of the paper. In case the winning certificate is not presented within two weeks the ticket will be cashed and the money donated to charity.

McNamara expects to reach a total of 175,000,000 with the "Duel" message through this stunt. He estimates 56,000,000 persons will see it in the newsreels; 50,000,000 hear about it on the radio; 65,000,000 read about it in the newspaper sports sections and at least 4,000,000 around Louisville actually witness the stunt. Of course, he may be counting some of his audience two or three times.

CAGNEY TO STAR IN 'RUE MADELEINE'

James Cagney will go on loanout from Cagney Productions to 20th-Fox to star in "13 Rue Madeleine." Louis de Rochemont will produce the story based on the O.S.S. and picture will be made in semi-documentary fashion. Henry Hathaway is to direct. Cagney's own production, "The Stray Lamb," will be postponed until mid-August in order to permit the actor to work at Westwood.

General Builds Shop

Construction started yesterday at General Service studios on new mill and carpenter shop to cost reported $43,000. Building will be just inside Las Palmas entrance, on west side of lot, on site where tank now stands.

LEGIT OPENING

'ANGELS AMONGST US'

"Angels Amongst Us" had its American premiere at the Pasadena Community Playhouse last night. Allegory was translated from Frantisek Langer's Hungarian. It apparently concerns an angel who returns to earth with the purpose of practicing euthanasia on sickly mortals. The angel appears in the guise of a kindly old doctor who is finally caught by the forces of law and order. The play is a maundering, verbose and overlong disquisition on the subject, is not commercial, is not very entertaining. Barbara Vajda directed with a pedestrian pace suited to the dialogue. Gilmor Brown and Gene Knudsen carried the top roles to the best of their ability.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

The Austrians are the losers in the first of the tussles over in Paris. For one thing, they wanted South Tyrol, a land in which the people are temperamentally and linguistically Austrian. Go into the Tyrol, and you hardly know you cross a border, as far as the appearance of the country and the nature of the people is concerned. However Austria is part of a big problem these days, and gets less attention because she is less important economically and politically than Italy, and also because she was on the German side in the war. By refusing this Austrian request, we accede to an Italian demand for maintenance of the Brenner border. Thus we prepare the Italians for losing some of their claims in the Venezia Giulia area. Our argument in Paris has been that all these problems are inter-related, as this case shows. We have tried to get the whole Austrian situation on the agenda because we say we cannot consider reducing occupation forces in Italy, for instance, until they are cut down in Austria, since Italy is a supply line to Austria. The Russians insist, however, that we consider the Italian question separately, and they say they are not prepared to talk about Austria at this time. Our main objective was to reduce the occupation force burden on Austria, which is economically weak anyway, to eliminate the zoning that goes with the occupation and that further disrupts Austrian economy, and to put an end to the economic deals that the Soviet has been effecting in and through her zone.

TWENTIETH-FOX RELEASE of a Sol Wurtzel production. Director, James Tinling. Screenplay, Aubrey Wisberg. Story, Aubrey Wisberg. Photography, Benjamin Kline. Art director, Jerome Pycha. Set decorations, Sydney Moore. Editor, William F. Claxton. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Sound, John Carter. Assistant director, Rex Bailey.

TRADESHOWN at Enterprise studio, Hollywood, Calif., April 25, 1946. Running time: 76 MINS.

"Rendezous 24," Sol Wurtzel's first picture for 20th-Fox release under his new indie setup, is an exciting, well-developed melodrama which is a natural to cash in on present high interest in the atomic bomb. First on this subject to reach screen, feature hits a fast pace in opening sequence which is maintained as action moves from this country to England and Germany. Wurtzel made every cent count in his production and has turned out a high-class money picture with far more entertainment value than many films carrying higher budgets.

Plot is motivated by search of both American and British Intelligence agents to locate a secret laboratory in Harz Mountains in Germany, where an atomic energy is being developed which will return Germany to power. William Gargan, American, joins Pat O'Moore, English, in this frenzied quest where time is the element they are fighting against, since it is known that Nazi scientists plan to blow up city of Paris at a certain given hour. Hideaway lab is located exactly one minute before lever is to be pulled which will raze French capital.

Screenplay by Aubrey Wisberg, from his own original, is thoroughly believable and showmanship piece of writing, which James Tinling directs for best dramatic effect. Characterizations without exception, are well-drawn, too, and sum total is a solid piece of picture-making, a credit both to Wurtzel, as producer, and all concerned with film's making. Photography by Benjamin Kline is interestingly conceived and sets by Jerome Pycha, decorated by Sydney Moore, have been atmospherically designed. Emil Newman directed musical score.

Gargan gives one of his most ingratiating performances and does bangup job as American agent, with O'Moore a close second as the Britisher. Both are thoroughly convincing in roles which get them in plenty of trouble. Maria Palmer has neat part as Nazi who poses as Swedish journalist, and both Herman Bing and Bert Roach are in for comedy portrayals. John Bleifer and Kurt Katch make capital with villainous characterizations, and David Leonard, Henry Rowland and Paul Kruger contribute interesting bits.

TOO MANY BIG PIX NO. 1 WORRY OF DISTRIBUTORS

New York, May 1. — Distributors are none too happy over the supply of big pictures now on hand. Some sales quarters quietly admit that fewer hit films among competitors is to be preferred, but the trend appears the other way.

Not only are pictures now at the height of their intrinsic value, but an appreciable number, actually less than outstanding in entertainment punch, are contributing to the current problem by being able to command more playing time than they deserve.

In face of the glutted market, cases are developing among distribs where selling and release schedules on top productions are being held up with a view of protecting these films. Theory is that distrib will watch for the right openings and roll the big films when the market can best absorb them. Meanwhile, companies are actually restricting runs in order to make room for new pictures, their own and others.

Bailey Seeks Support For Negro Musicians

Ed Bailey, prez of Negro Musicians' Local 767, last night admitted he is preparing a pitch to James C. Petrillo to gain support of the exec council of American Federation of Musicians in a campaign to increase employment of colored windjammers in film studios. At present, only one Negro, Calvin Jackson, is regularly employed on the lots and reportedly he is the only one who ever has been. Jackson is an arranger and assistant to Georgie Stoll at Metro.

Lionel Barrymore Waxes 'Hallowe'en' Fantasy

Lionel Barrymore, set by ARA for album of four 12-inch sides, for narration of the fantasy "Hallowe'en" which Barrymore wrote and last summer premiered with a reading in the Hollywood Bowl. On wax the vet actor will be backed by Miklos Rosza stick-swishing a 40-piece ork and song interpolations by Marian Bell, Edwin Lear and John Ford.

MG Preps 15 Cartoons

William Hanna and Joseph Barbera, Metro cartoon directors, have hit a new production peak with 15 leaping inkers being readied for 1946-47 release. Pair are creators of the Tom and Jerry series.

' JUST FOR VARIETY '

THE GRAPEVINE: 20th-Fox is running short of leading men, apparently, with most of the contract list tied up in current productions. So Otto Preminger, producing and directing "Daisy Kenyon," is looking into greener pastures. He would like Metro to lend him James Craig as the male lead in "Daisy" . . . Latter studio is throwing open its gates Friday for newsreel cameramen to record the start of "The Beginning or the End." After that, filming of the atomic bomb story will be surrounded with hush-hush, counter-intelligence operatives and E. Phillips Oppenheim atmosphere . . . Yawning-glories: Warners now has both of 'em, Gary Cooper and Ronald Reagan, credited with being Hollywood's champion relaxers. Both sleep in their dressing rooms between takes . . . His friends are trying to tell a top star, recently out of uniform, he should try to get the monocle out of his throat and recover his American accent. They say he'll lose some lucrative guest shots in radio if he "doesn't stop imitating Ronald Colman" . . . Henri Sokal, co-producer of "Snow Cinderella" with Walter Colmes, went looking for snow in the Mt. Hood country and promptly got a three-day blizzard. Company was snowbound for three days—and Sokal wired an urgent plea for sun-glasses . . . Cecil B. DeMille stopped Andy Hervey, Paramount's head planter, exclaiming, "Good heavens, for a moment I thought you were Harry Truman!" Andy, a Republican practically since Tippecanoe-and-Tyler-too, could understand his cry of alarm.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: It's Bing Crosby's birthday today—so here's a small present for the boy. British Broadcasting Company reports that two-thirds of its requests for records to be played on the "Forces Favourites" program, for Allied troops in all parts of the world, are for Bing's waxings . . . Got a photogenic watch that isn't working? Anson Bond productions announces it is "now casting for thirteen Gruen Watch Company pictures to be photographed in color." Or did we read it wrong? . . . Getting the accents to match for a film with a foreign background is always a problem in Hollywood, with its actors recruited from all points between Chicago and Chungking. Irving Pichel, directing "Bella Donna" for International, believes he solved the problem. He had two Hungarian accents, Robert Capa's and Charles Korvin's, to match with Samir Riskallah, Egyptian, and Arnold Moss, Broadway actor. So he had Moss, an expert in dialects, teach Riskallah how to speak Anglo-Egyptian with a Hungarian accent! . . . Society section: One of the plushier parties of the season was last night's buffet-dinner dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Darryl F. Zanuck for Lord Lascelles, nephew of the British king. Attending were the Oleg Cassinis (Gene Tierney), Tyrone Powers, Joseph Cottens, Douglas Fairbanks, Jrs., Richard Greenes, David Nivens, Walter Wangers, Rex Harrisons, Reginald Gardiners, Gene Markeys, Lewis Milestones, William Perlbergs, and more than we have type to tell about . . . Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Nugent, at Chasen's entertained the Howard Lindsays, Russel Crouses and Robert Montgomerys. The party honored Mrs. Lindsay (Dorothy Stickney) who's returning to NY . . . At the Players Capt. John Morse and his wife, Bonnie Baker, dined with Anatole Litvak . . . At the Bevhills Club, Margaret Sullavan walked in with a jacket which exactly matched the Scotch Plaid Room.

CALL SHEET: SIGMUND ROMBERG will be a one-day hero in Newark tomorrow. As highlight of the city's cancer fund drive, tomorrow has been designated Sigmund Romberg Day. Immediately thereafter Romberg heads for Hollywood after a two-year absence. He'll work on the music for Skirball-Manning's production of his operetta "Sunny River" . . . SUBA, New Yorker magazine artist, is doing a series of pen-and-ink sketches on Goldwyn's "The Best Years of Our Lives" . . . LORETTA YOUNG is learning to ice-skate for her role in "Katie for Congress" . . . JOHNNY MACK BROWN is heading for a series of personals . . . RICHARD CARLSON received word that Collier's is buying his short story "The Lie" . . . ROBERT SIODMAK, directing "The Killers," took over Hollywood Legion stadium yesterday for two days of shooting prizefighting scenes for Mark Hellinger's first independent production . . . BETTE DAVIS removed her engagement and wedding rings for the first time since her marriage six months ago to William Sherry. Line of dialogue in "Deception" was the reason. It was: "No, no rings," with business of showing ringless hands to Paul Henreid . . . RALPH BLANE and GEORGE BASSMAN believe they're bringing Metro's transportation cycle in song to a close with "The Bicycle Song" for "Jenny Was a Lady" .

ON THE SOUNDTRACK. One of Metro's adolescent actors is proving troublesome to his directors. The egotistic lad either refuses to take direction or, worse yet, cagily accepts his director's advice in rehearsal but does things his own way when the cameras are rolling . . . Scientific note: The Technicolor lighting on "Life with Father" is so strong it sours the breakfast milk right under William Powell's nose . . . Fred Brady just got the kiss-off from Kismet. For three years he's been angling for Broadway. Just after signing a Universal contract, he got a NY offer . . . Victor McLaglen's daughter, Sheila, has abandoned her designing job in Bevhills and heads for NY and a try at the stage . . . Vera Gordon helped Art Baker, who plays the rabbi in "Abie's Irish Rose," get into the mood for his role. Yesterday she brought him a dish of her famous gefelte fish for lunch . . . Marguerite Chapman, at Sammy Kaye's opening, watched the gyrations of a bouncing young thing on the Palladium floor and observed, "She looks as though she were born in an idling Ford, 1927 model" . . . Ida Lupino and her mother are taking off for New York in a few days . . . The sedate American Magazine, glancing up from its preoccupation with George F. Babbitt, is casting a more benevolent eye on Hollywood. Tomorrow's issue features a Jerome Beattty profile on Diana Lynn . . . Ethel Meglin claims her odd cousin Goodrich had a battleship tattooed on his bald sconce. Now only the bottom is visible. Goodrich had a brainstorm the other day.——D.D.T.

GRIERSON WILL MAKE 39 SHORTS FOR UA RELEASE

John Grierson, former Canadian film commissioner who last year turned out series of shorts for United Artists based on "March of Time" idea, will produce total of 39 shorts for UA release, under new deal.

Grierson has formed new organization which will operate under name of The World Today, Inc., with headquarters in Toronto, where majority of films will be made. He will also maintain offices in London and New York.

Output will be divided into three series, dealing with world affairs, scientific advancement and nature, to be known, respectively, as "Worldwise," "Wonderfact" and "Venture." First series is expected to be completed by September.

Associated with Grierson will be Stuart Legg, who produced "World in Action" series for Canadian National Film Bureau, and Basil Wright, former head of English Crown Film Unit, with wide experience in documentaries.

'Archie' Gardner Offers Services to UNRRA

Ed "Archie" Gardner is using every effort and resource at his command to aid the task of helping the millions of people who are starving as a result of the war. Not only is he making eloquent and heartfelt pleas on his "Duffy's Tavern" program, the first time this comedy radio show has ever taken a dramatic angle, but he is in constant touch with the office of Director LaGuardia, of UNRRA, placing his services at the command of that organization in any way that he can be used.

Why I am Making Gallant Journey

EVER since I heard the amazing story of John J. Montgomery, the first man to fly an aeroplane, I have felt that his life would make an exciting, different, and fine motion picture. It wasn't alone the story of man's first flight in 1883 which appealed to me. Most of all it was the simple, warm story of the young man, and of the girl whose great love played such an important part in his gallant achievement. To me it's a wonderful story of those wonderful yesterdays at the turn of the century, rich with humor and human emotions — about one of the most exciting and significant events I have ever attempted to screen. Glenn Ford, Janet Blair, Charles Ruggles, Henry Travers, and the entire cast share my enthusiasm and are turning in outstanding performances. Columbia Pictures and everyone concerned with the making of this picture are cooperating whole-heartedly to make it a fine production. I hope "Gallant Journey" will be one of my "lucky" ones!

GOLDMAN DEAL SETTLING WITH MAJORS SEEN

Philadelphia, May 1.—Settlement of William Goldman's triple-damage claim against the majors is foreseen in the visit the Philly independent circuit operator paid to Spyros Skouras in New York Monday. Goldman and Skouras huddled in the latter's office after postponement of Federal Court hearing which was to determine the amount of damages to be paid Goldman.

Distribs last fall lost decision to Goldman in the anti-trust action growing out of his inability to obtain product for his Erlanger theatre. With the finding in his favor, the sum to be paid, tripled under the terms of the Clayton-Sherman acts, is awaiting determination.

Stannard Joining Alaska Theatres

Seattle, May 1.—Frank Stannard has resigned as manager of the Florence-Circle theatres of the Sterling circuit to become buyer and booker for the Alaska theatres of W. B. Gross. Milton Druck has been transferred from the Mission theatre to succeed Stannard and Charles Leaming has been moved from the Madrona to succeed Druck.

Passport Mugs Shot For 'Macomber' Crew

Passport mugs were shot by Frank Tanner, still photographer, yesterday of the 125 members of cast and crew of "The Short and Happy Life of Francis Macomber" leaving next week for a month's location in Mexico. Pix are needed on general passport issued to the company by the Mexican government.

32G 'Katie' for RKO

RKO yesterday received greenlight from the Civilian Production Authority to construct a $32,000 interior set for "Katie for Congress." At same time, CPA denied Azteca Films, Inc., authority to construct a $50,000 headquarters at 1743 S. Vermont. Azteca's present lease has a year to run and construction has been deferred until building materials are less critically needed elsewhere.

LIGHT AND AIRY

By JACK HELLMAN

It takes a heap of things to make a rating and high on the list of successful ingredients is the spirit of friendly cooperation among all hands. Once through a rehearsal and broadcast of the Judy Canova show it becomes apparent why it sits atop the Saturday night lineup with a sound late season Hooperating of 15. Everyone pulls together toward the common goal of getting a good show on the air and never a word is uttered in anger. From the time Fred Fox and Henry Hoople turn over the finished script to Producer Joe Rines for a fast run-over by Judy and the cast it's a smooth operation with an air of playfulness rather than the tense, gripping ordeal that other programs make of their half hour on the air and the suspenseful moments before. Rines has brought along the show to its high estate after an early setto with NBC over "quality" and the client is getting better than a two-for-one payoff on the basis of $1,000 production cost per Hooper point. Getting a program on the air shouldn't have to be pull and tug all the way. The Canova show has proved that a high rating can be achieved without the occupational ills that beset those who will let it and take the hard way around.

Broadcasters should be heartened by the action of the FCC in partially suspending the dictum requiring stations to call a disc a disc. It has been a source of wonderment to those in the trade why this ruling has been so rigidly enforced when even a trained ear couldn't detect the canned from the fresh. ABC, which carried the ball, is on probation for 30 days and it is to be assumed if there aren't too many squawks the ruling may be scrapped completely. Plattering shows, especially during the daylight saving period, will solve many problems and prove a boon to confused traffic directors. It also opens the way for Miller Tape (film) and wire recorder, which are even less susceptible of detection than the grooved pancake.

Chain breaks . . . Bing Crosby has been telling his friends he'd like to get lost next season and forget all about radio. Or would you rather string along with some of the other guesses like General Motors or Texaco? . . . Larry White flitting back to his home base today after sitting in on the "Sam Spade" waxing for Schick . . . Don Bernard will be in the air for the good part of the next three weeks. "Blondie" crew will be in Gotham for the unveiling of the giant Supersuds sign (with bubbles) in Times Square . . . Billie Clevenger back at NBC emceeing the phone calls after seven weeks in sick bay . . . Cal Swanson has departed J. Walter Thompson in N.Y. for a partnership with Matty Fox in an illuminated adv. sign enterprise . . . Jean Hersholt will be "Dr. Christian" for at least another five years for the vaseline outfit that has been bankrolling him for the past nine. He's really one of the unsung heroes of radio. Year in and out he goes quietly along hitting the high Hooper spots sans fanfare or hoopla . . . Cass Daley and Frank Kinsella head for South America this summer . . . Myra Marsh and Pinky Hunter added to the cast of Jim Doane's "Amazing Mrs. Danberry" . . . Just in case you're interested Hooper checkers wait for six rings while CAB (Cossley) hangs up after four and "Hoop" has it figured out that 98 per cent of the phones that would have answered have done so by the sixth ring.

Exploitation adjunct to broadcasting is becoming increasingly popular with stars who have come to look upon promotional publicity as important to their future as the increases at option time. Eddie Cantor's leave-taking of Bristol-Myers next year for the more promotion-minded Pabst brewers points up this trend in thinking. Changeover in sponsorship by Jack Benny and Joan Davis also was predicated on budgeted appropriation to keep the star and program before the public through media other than radio. Cantor's brilliant career over one of the longest unbroken spans in the business has been given repeated impetus by his consciousness of campaigns in the public interest and these have been turned to richly earned capital. Pabst is sympathetic to such showmanship and that is the chief reason why Cantor is making the change after six years with Bristol-Myers.

Hitch hikes . . . Andy Russell is weighing an offer of $1,750 a week to canary this summer on Luckies Hit Parade. If he takes it he can carry on in the fall at $2,500, which is high moola for three or four songs. For a week at the Orpheum in June he banks $8,000 and he tops that figure by $2,000 at the Paramount, N.Y. . . . For the next three weeks Frank Sinatra takes the air from Chicago and Detroit where he'll swoon 'em in theatres . . . It's Bing's birthday today and a lot of sponsors would like to present him with a brand new, shiny contract . . . After nine years with Young & Rubicam, Carroll O'Meara is returning to his labor of love—radio writing . . . Velma (Mrs. Jerry) Hausner resigned from the Lum and Abner staff after 10 years . . . Jimmy Saphier's packaged audience participator, "That's Life," starring Jay C. Flippen, takes a free ride on CBS starting May 9. Howard Blake writes and produces . . . "Break the Bank" subs for Alan Young this summer . . . Bob Coleson awarded distinguished service citation and silver medal by Treasury Department for his work on the War Bond drives . . . Tommy Riggs takes over the Borden show from Ginny Simms May 10 . . . Alan Ladd will be Bob Hope's guest at NBC Tuesday . . . Walter Craig cutting records of commercials in an effort to entice Ass'n of American Railroads into radio . . . ABC carries the Louis-Conn fight under Gillette sponsorship.

SONORA LOCATION OUTFIT IS BACK IN BUSINESS

Sonora Motion Picture Association, in Sonora, Calif., has reopened its offices for first time since the war, and will resume its activities in servicing Hollywood motion picture companies on location in Mother Lode country.

First company to benefit by its service is Sol Lesser's "The Red House," which will spend five weeks working out of Sonora. Organization, headed by Ernest Durhan, former Hollywood actor, takes care of all construction and location problems, including such points as housing, transportation, selection of sites, labor, horses and riders. It has a list of paid-up Screen Actors Guild members to supply as extras when needed, too.

Outfit currently is working with metro to set possible locations for picture, and expects to handle arrangements for Republic Roy Rogers film.

Ask $30,000 to Back American Theatre Assn.

New York, May 1.—Financially well-fixed members will be called upon to finance the American Theatres Association, new national group, for its first four months. Association would borrow $30,000, it is understood, to provender the organization until the machinery clicks to the point where state assessments meet cash outlays. With finances due for immediate attention, the committee is slated to meet today to mull the problem.

EXTRAS GUILD SEZ CENTRAL IN DEAL TO TRIM PAY

Screen Extras Guild moved against Central Casting Corp., and major studios yesterday in an attempt to halt what they charge is studio plan to break down extra wage standards. Central and studios are charged with attempting to decrease wages by forcing $5.50 calls upon extras used to taking $10.50 calls.

Notice was served on Howard Philbrick, Central head, that SEG would not grant waivers for non-guild members until after work calls had been offered to its entire membership of approximately 3,500 extras. Guild also demanded $687.50 in penalty checks for use of 125 non-guilders yesterday on a set at Universal. Demand was made in letter to Philbrick from James F. Haning, executive secretary of SEG.

Guild is currently negotiating new contract with studios and one of its demands is abolition of the $5.50 call with minimum scale to start at $10.50 for general extra work. Meantime it is operating under an interim guild shop agreement with studios.

THREE DUTCH FILM COS. RETURNING TO PRODUCTION

Washington, May 1. — Production of motion pictures has commenced again in the Netherlands, the Department of Commerce's Office of International Trade announced tonight. Three small groups of producers in Haarlem have begun operations.

Two are pre-war firms which specialized in documentaries. The third is a new outfit interested in developing a "Dutch cinema art" and will produce full length features and shorts.

Pre-war production in the Netherlands was almost entirely newsreels, documentaries, with one or two full length features annually. In 1930 the U.S. and Germany each sent about 40 per cent of the features screened there. After the Nazis came into power, Germany's share of the market fell and America's climbed. By 1939, the U.S. was exporting 49 per cent of all the features and more than half of all films screened in Holland.

SPRIGGENS GETS REHEARING ON COOLEY CASE

Fight between Spade Cooley and Deuce Spriggens, dismissed at Local 47 on "insufficient evidence" last Friday, gets another hearing before trial board tomorrow at 10 a.m. Spriggens contends Cooley solicited his job at Western Palisades, seeking to spot his western band in place of Spriggens' crew, a violation of Federation regulations. Beef generated counter charges of a dishonest gate receipt count, and has embroiled Walter Newcomb, wealthy realtor and ballroom owner, in tiff with Bobbie Bennett, dancery lessee.

Cooley flatly denies charges preferred by Spriggens, which were backed by Miss Bennett. Trial board dismissed motion for lack of evidence when promised witnesses failed to show. However, on the retake, Spriggens promises to bring along whole band, which was on location in western film last week and unable to attend. In opposing, Cooley will counter-charge that he didn't get a fair shake on 50-50 percentage of gross he had contracted for prior to his release April 19.

O'Brien Sues Cantor

Robert O'Brien, writer, yesterday filed a $24,750 breach of contract suit against Eddie Cantor, charging that latter hired him for a year last September but fired him without cause on February 5. O'Brien is asking for unpaid balance on $750-a-week salary.

FILM INDUSTRY WAGES UP

Employment and wages in motion picture production showed considerable gain for March over preceding month and was way up over March, 1945 averages, according to California Labor Statistics Bulletin. Average weekly earnings of $79.78 was hit by workers during March, as compared to $68.91 during March, 1945.

Gain was registered with only a slight increase in the average number of hours put in each week. Average hourly earnings for 42.7 hours per week during March was $1.846, as compared with 41.2 hours per week at $1.674 an hour during same month a year ago. Index of employment jumped from 110.3 per cent in February to 120.8 per cent in March, this year. March, year ago, percentage was only 77.7. Payroll index moved up to 215.1 per cent from February's 197.5 per cent and March, 1945, percentage of 120.2.

U.S. DISTRIBS IN FRANCE FACING SHUTDOWN

Paris, May 1. — The position of American film companies in France is very precarious with distribs facing prospects of closing within three months if U.S. pictures are refused entry into country.

Prospects are dim currently, with French industry fearful of American competition. Only hope of relief is the Leon Blum Loan Mission being successful, with relaxation of import ban deemed sure to follow. The French obviously are holding restriction threat as a club over head of U.S. State Department.

SKOURAS ARRIVES FOR MEETINGS ON 'AMBER'

uck over the sudden upset in the production plans for "Forever Amber," biggest film upheaval since the ruckus between Metro and Selznick over "Gone With the Wind."

The conferences in which producer William Perlberg is probably to participate are expected to result in definite new casting and production plans.

Major interest among studio topper yesterday revolved around "Amber." Less than 24 hours after exclusive publication in Daily Variety that the film was laid to rest for a few months, Darryl F. Zanuck issued the following statement:

"Production on 'Forever Amber' has been suspended until late summer, due to the fact that the film so far shot has failed to measure up to the high standards originally planned.

PERLBERG STAYS

"When production resumes, William Perlberg will continue as producer, and the present script by Philip Dunne will be used. No decision has yet been reached as to who will direct, nor have any changes in cast as yet been decided upon. Such a decision will not be reached until all of the exposed film has been edited and evaluated."

Understood initial major decision to be reached by studio toppers will be the naming of a director on the film to succeed John M. Stahl. Currently, Henry King and Joseph Mankiewicz are the top choices among the directors available. With Peggy Cummins due to be replaced in the star role, the British importation's future is currently up in the air. As one studio topper stated yesterday: "They should find a story for Miss Cummins more suited to her fine but individual talents."

Constant bickering from the start of the picture over casting was given as one of the main reasons for the production halt and the fading out of director Stahl. One of the principals in the dispute, it is said, maintained that Miss Cummins, while a fine actress, was miscast in the "Amber" role which, he claimed, should be played by a woman of more maturity.

MOVE TO ENGLAND?

Among other suggestions for the shooting of the romantic drama of Britain's Restoration era, was that the film might be shot in England. On this idea, Skouras, fresh from London, could give first hand information.

Miss Cummins last night remained in seclusion in her Beverly Hills home. Her mother, Mrs. Margaret Cummins, maintained a solitary vigil over her daughter.

"We are both very weary over the whole matter," actress' mother told Daily Variety. "Peggy's plans are rather uncertain at present. From now on, it is up to her agent and the studio. I would like so much to say more but the studio has admonished us against making any statement."

To the suggestion that a trip may be a good thing for Peggy, Mrs. Cummins replied: "You may be right, a trip away from Hollywood for a while might be so refreshing."

Pay Dirt

If you don't find what you want on one of these old studio lots just ask for it. Enterprise, taking over California Studios, demolished the western street scene and decided that the dirt street should be paved with asphalt macadam. Crew started digging and eight inches under the dirt found—asphalt macadam pavement.

INDIE EXHIBITOR CIRCUITS OFFER STOCK IN NY

New York, May 1.—Plan involving flotation of a stock issue and disposing of minority interest to the public is being offered to Wall Street financial houses by independent circuit operators. Scheme, new to films, is to hedge holdings against a future depression. With plenty of other business, Wall Street is not interested as yet.

Idea is to sell the public up to 49 per cent of stock at this time when high profits in theatre business would make the stock bring a good price. Should a depression later cut profits and the stock dip, theatremen would have an opportunity to buy it back. Otherwise, an operator's 51 per cent interest brings in a tidy income anyway.

Rodin Admits Ork Owes Hopkins $150

At hearing held yesterday at American Guild of Variety Artists' local office, Gil Rodin, manager of the Bob Crosby band, admitted that Jewell Hopkins, femme vocalist recently dropped from ork, still was owed week's salary of $125 and $25 for a one-niter. Payment will be made to chirp today, Rodin promised. Miss Hopkins, in bringing charges at the AGVA hearing, had originally stated to union officials that she further was owed two weeks in salary in lieu of fortnight dismissal notice given her by band. Rodin proved that thrush had been given standard notice, while Miss Hopkins explained she evidently hadn't recognized notice as being what it turned out to be. Singer is current at Club Royale, downtown nitery, and Crosby combo is on stand at Meadowbrook Ballroom.

Rep Has Five Films Before Cameras

Greenlighting of Roy Rogers' starrer, "Shine On Texas Moon," yesterday put Republic into one of its production high points for the year. Studio now has five other films working; four on the lot and one on location. Lot shooters are "That Brennan Girl," "The Plainsman and the Lady," "G.I. War Brides" and "Out California Way." On location is "The Angel and the Outlaw."

Rogers Inks Hannemann

Walter Hannemann was signed yesterday by Charles R. Rogers as musical film editor for "Angel on My Shoulder" for which Dmitri Tiomkin is doing original score. Scoring is expected to start in two weeks. Pic is planned for September release.

PLUGGERS PREXY RULES AGAINST PAID SECRETARY

Coast branch of Music Publishers' Contact Employes (songpluggers' union) yesterday were notified by Bob Miller, outfit's national prexy headquartered in NY, that idea of installing a salaried director-secretary here was unfeasible.

Plan was broached fortnight ago when Al Comparte quit as union's topper because dities were taking too much time away from his necessary work as Coast chief of Republic Music Co. Comparte was not salaried, but received $200 yearly for expenses. Idea presented to Miller suggested hiring of retired music man at about $75 a week to devote full time to union affairs on Coast.

Miller, in nixing, pointed out that there are only 115 members of outfit here, that their dues are collected by NY via mail and that sums realized from this area would scarcely underwrite cost of a salaried official. The prez suggested eight members of local board of governors alternate over six-month periods in chair vacated by Comparte. Matter will be discussed at board meet Friday.

BOWL MUSICIANS ARE GRANTED $15 A WEEK RAISE

New contract has been signed by Hollywood Bowl Association with musicians union effecting $15 increase per man over last season's weekly wage of $70. With new $85 weekly salary musicians will give minimum of eight services, including rehearsals, during the eight-week (July-August) season. Under old agreement they also performed eight services.

It's almost automatic that number of services necessary for Bowl orchestra will run beyond the minimum of eight. Added income is expected that will hike wages to approximately $100 weekly, including overtime. Estimate is that services will run to at least 11 weekly.

Union will immediately enter into negotiations with Los Angeles Symphony, to effect a similar deal. Desired increase over last year's salaries was not disclosed but it's understood union would like to duplicate Bowl deal with symphony.

convertible preferred stocks, amounted to $5.29 per share on the outstanding 2,119,709 shares of common stock.

Figures in the final report slightly exceed those given in the published estimate of last March 28. Estimated total net income was $12,700,000 and estimated net per share was $5.27.

Combined operations of the corporation and its subsidiaries including the Roxy Theatre, Inc., and National Theatres Corporation and all its subsidiaries amounted to $5,217,180 for the fourth quarter of 1945 as compared with $2,095,927 for the third quarter of 1945 and $2,992,562 for the fourth quarter of 1944.

The year 1944 showed a consolidated net profit for the corporation of $12,480,491, which, after all deductions, amounted to $6.04 per share on the 1,771,364 shares of common stock outstanding at the close of 1944.

The report shows current assets at Dec. 29, 1945 of $94,836,983 and current liabilities of $41,365,718. Total assets of the corporation and its subsidiaries are shown as $148,983,268.

The combined gross income of the corporation, including the National group of theatres and the Roxy Theatre for the entire year of 1945 was $185,672,542, highest ever reached in the history of the company.

Federal income taxes for 1945 were estimated at $21,650,000, of which $13,700,000 was excess profits tax. Federal income and excess profits taxes totaled $10.21 per share for each share of common stock outstanding Dec. 29, 1945.

HOLLYWOOD INSIDE

COLUMBIA Records quietly is doing a burn and casting a steady stare at Frank Sinatra, but probably has not formally mentioned source of the sizzle to plattery's prize disc item. Angle is that two months ago Sinatra recorded "Something Old, Something New" and "How Cute Can You Be" for Columbia, which stashed recordings in vaults for summer release. Barton Music Co., Sinatra-owned, published the tunes and apparently without Col's knowledge released them for waxing to Majestic Records. Latter label immediately cut ditties with Jack Smith on vocal, whom firm is trying to build up as a Sinatra rival, and now they have hit retail stalls, with Barton consent, while Col's renditions still grace the future-release list.

IT seems there were two press agents—in this case Perry Lieber, chief flack at RKO, and Bob Denton, local publicity head for the Union Pacific. So Lieber invited Denton to a preview of the Claudette Colbert starrer, "Without Reservation." Denton accepted the invitation and sat as quietly as possible while scene after scene on the screen featured the rival Santa Fe railroad. He let it pass till Lieber called up later to arrange for railroad reservations on the Union Pacific for some RKO execs. And then, remembering the picture plugs for the Santa Fe, he said "nothing doing—let 'em walk." Yesterday a gorgeous, large bouquet arrived at the Denton home—not for Denton but for Mrs. Denton. But the peace is not yet.

THERE have been numerous praisery campaigns to put various young actresses over as "another Garbo," another Lana Turner," etc., etc. But for the first time, since silent days at least, "another Mary Pickford" appears in publicity output. Sol Lesser is ballyhooing his latest find, Allene Roberts, 17-year-old former Birmingham gal, as the "Mary Pickford of the talkies." Miss Roberts got in the public eye first at the age of 12 when she was picked in a New York Mirror contest as the "most charming child." When Lesser signed her on for "No Trespassing" and gave her one of the two femme leads, she had been studying television in Hollywood for the past four years. "No Trespassing" is her first picture.

REPUBLIC is upping budgets on its general program, aside from serials and various western series, with eye to hitting more class houses. During next 60 days, only one low-budgeter is slated to go before the cameras, while currently three of season's costliest pictures are in work, "The Angel and the Outlaw," "That Brennan Girl" and "The Plainsman and the Lady." More high budget films are now in preparation than at any time in past, and backlog of company is its costliest, in point of individual picture. Company has slated more distant and elaborate locations, too, for its top product, one film, "Rio de Janeiro," to be filmed partially in Brazilian city of that name with full troupe.

WITH matter of wages settled, studio musicians are curious about anticipated changes in administration of studioites. Inside is that no change in administration of incumbent International Studio Representative, J. W. Gillette, is expected before AFM's national convention in St. Petersburg, Fla., this summer. Possible that Gillette will be replaced by another appointee, presumably an out-of-towner, of International Board. Incumbent would then, it's figured, go on life pension much the same as Joe Weber, retired founder of union and honorary president. Greater cooperation between Local 47 and International Rep would then be effected.

NEW contract between film extras and studios, expected to be inked shortly, will give atmospheric players their first raise since 1942. Complete elimination of the $5.50 call is one of the points already agreed upon by studios, it is believed. Raises generally in all classifications will be higher than those recently granted New York extras, according to reports. Point still to be agreed upon is to what date the new pact will be retroactive. Extras have been without a contract since December, 1944, and without a raise since 1942, when negotiations that would have upped several classifications broke down completely.

RUMORS are rife that Duke Ellington band has been set for an outdoor jazz concert here this summer soon after his date at Orpheum, July 2. If so, fact is being kept under hats of all concerned and will be until after appearance at theatre, for contract between Orph and William Morris agency, handler of Ellington, contains unusual clause that if band is inked for any sort of appearance in this area at all, fact cannot be announced in any way or advertised until he has concluded Orph date, regardless of how much later next showing is.

Herbert is currently readying his film script of "Corliss Archer" as a sequel to "Kiss and Tell" and will produce it independently. Simultaneously he is writing a "Corliss Archer" radio serialization which bowed Sunday on CBS with Campbell's Soup sponsoring.

Somewhere In The Night

(Melodrama)

TWENTIETH-FOX RELEASE. Producer, Anderson Lawler. Director, Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Screenplay by Howard Dimsdale and Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Adapted by Lee Strasberg. From story by Marvin Borowsky. Photography, Norbert Brodine. Art direction, James Basevi and Maurice Ransford. Set decorations, Thomas Little and Ernest Lansing. Music, David Buttolph. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Orchestral arrangements, Arthur Morton. Sound, Eugene Grossman and Harry M. Leonard. Costumes, Kay Nelson. Makeup, Ben Nye. Film editor, James B. Clark.

TRADESHOWN at Twentieth-Fox Studios Westwood, April 29, 1946. Running time: 110 MINS.

"Somewhere in the Night" is a neat example of what tight scripting, alert direction and good acting can do to give lively interest to a basic idea that has been worn thin by repeated filmings. The show makes no pretense to epic importance but grades up as a first class thriller with strong box office possibilities. Melodrama attains breath-taking suspense in spots and doesn't let the audience down at any point.

John Hodiak fits nicely into the role of a returned soldier, adventuring confusedly and dangerously in amnesia. Nancy Guild, as femme lead, is easy to look at, gets across convincingly in the romance sequences. Josephine Hutchinson proves fully adequate in a part that is brief, but nevertheless one of the most exacting femme roles of the piece, and Margo Wood shows up well as a gal heavy.

Richard Conte does an effective job of keeping the audience guessing as the smoothie who turns out to be the top menace of the piece. Lloyd Nolan wins a large share of the trouping honors as an unusual type of detective lieutenant and Fritz Kortner satisfactorily threatening in a featured villain role.

Work of the rest of the supporting cast is all of a sort to entitle them to full measure of applause.

The odds are against anybody who sets out to get a new angle on the old amnesia plot, but Joseph L. Mankiewicz, directing and collaborating on the script with Howard Dimsdale, and Lee Strasburg, who adapted the Marvin Borowsky story, succeed in doing it. Yarn starts with Hodiak waking up in a Marine hospital with fully developed case of amnesia. His only link to the past is a letter which indicates that he may be such a character as is wanted by the police, and another brief note signed by "Larry Cravath" informing him that $5000 has been deposited to his account in a certain bank. The letters tag him with the name of George Taylpr.

Show gets smooth and well-appointed production by Anderson Lawler.

The camera work of Norbert Brodine is excellent throughout and is especially notable for novel angle shots in the hospital scenes that open the picture. Melodramatic build-ups of the film are intensified by David Buttolph's music.

Film Reviews

Six Gun For Hire

(Western)

PRC RELEASE. Producer, Arthur Alexander. Director, Harry Fraser. Screenplay, Harry Fraser. Photography, Jack Greenhalgh. Musical diector, Lee Zahler. Sets, George Montgomery. Sound, Lyle E. Willey. Film editor, Roy Livingston. Assistant director, Sidney Smith.

CAST—Bob Steele, Syd Saylor, Jimmie Martin, Jean Carlin, I. Stanford Jolley, Brooke Temple, Bud Osborne, Budd Buster, Stanley Blystone, Roy Brent, Steve Clark, Dorothy Whitmore.

REVIEWED at Hitching Post, Hollywood, Calif., May 2, 1946. Running time: 58 MINS.

Chockful of action, here's a sagebrusher which roundly will please those with a passion for this fare. There's no more acrobatic a cowpoke star than Bob Steele and in "Six Gun For Hire" he runs the full gamut of his repertoire of roughhousing and hard-riding. As his standard comic sidekick, Syd Saylor lends solid support and in a barber shop sequence offers far more genuine laughs than normally found in westerns.

This is a retelling of that same cattleman-rustler war that has been waged for years on celluloid. Steele's role is poured from the ancient mold —U.S. marshal who arrives, hiding his identity until the climax when he commences to corral the culprits. Fortunately the story is never permitted to impede the pace and its illogical moments are forgotten in the welter of flailing fists, flying lead and chases.

Cast uniformly good, with special nod due contingent of heavies, topped by I. Stanford Jolley, ring-leader. Steele is the two-fisted, strong, silent sort who has no time for wimmen himself, but he does see that Jean Carlin gets her herd back from the meanies and straightens things out so she can wed Jimmie Martin, who is cast as too callow a type of juve to get much sympathy from western fans.

Harry Fraser directed his own original story in manner that emphasized all its stronger points. Fisticuffing is all much more realistic than frequently encountered, and Fraser staged the chases so cameraman Jack Greenhalgh could make the most of his framing of them. Producer Arthur Alexander afforded a worthy cowtown setting and provided a sizable pack of extras to make posses and villainous gangs look formidable, item many oaters have overlooked of late.

Mysterious Intruder

(Mystery Melodrama)

COLUMBIA RELEASE. Producer, Rudolph C. Flothow. Director, William Castle. Original screenplay, Eric Taylor. Photography, Philip Tannura. Musical director, Mischa Bakaleinikoff. Film editor, Dwight Caldwell. Art, Hans Radon. Sets, Robert Priestley. Sound, Jack Haynes. Theme music, Wilbur Hatch. Assistant director, Carl Hiecke.

CAST—Richard Dix, Barton MacLane, Nina Vale, Regis Toomey, Helen Mowery, Mike Mazurki, Pamela Blake, Charles Lane, Paul Burns, Kathleen Howard, Harlan Briggs.

REVIEWED at Million Dollar theatre, Los Angeles, Calif., May 2, 1946. Running time: 62 MINS.

Richard Dix, starring in this latest of his "Whistler" series, plays a private-eye who is much more credible than usually encountered. It all totes up to good low-budgeter for the duals that would merit affixing of superlative adjective of description had there not been a sad sag of an ending sewn on. Dix gets accidentally shot to death at finish for no explicable reason. It just doesn't fit nor will it satisfy audiences.

Only other criticism that should be leveled is that stunt of having "Whistler" narrate between sequences on soundtrack slows pace. That talk touch is hallmark of this series, lifted right off CBS program from which films stem. What's oke for the ozone isn't for films in this instance.

Star plays a shamus who tries to beat cops to solution of murder of one of his clients, gets entangled in the inevitable series of subsequent killings and is himself prime suspect in eyes of cops. There are some nice characters inserted in story that skirts in and out of half-world and fact most are believable heightens interest.

Barton MacLane makes much of role of tough copper and Charles Lane makes presence felt as not so tough partner. Helen Mowery scores as a moll, ditto Mike Mazurki as an ominous ogre shot off early in the reelage. Pamela Blake played a goodie gal with possibly too much restraint, while Regis Toomey came through with finely etched character.

Producer Rudolph C. Flothow afforded piece highly satisfactory appurtenances and in the round director William Castle presented yarn well. Philip Tannura's camera generally good, though several sequences were rather dimly lighted.

As It Looks to FLANNERY

(Famous CBS Commentator)

We're back in the strike whirlpool again. One of the main points to consider when you're forming an attitude on a strike is the wage. For instance, in the Los Angeles transport case, operators of the two-men cars and coaches, which are most numerous, now get $39.60 for a 44-hour week. They want a 40-hour week and about $49.20 a week. The basic pay of the two men car operators now is 90 cents an hour, that of one-man cars $1.03. You can get at the same kind of figures on the threatened national railway strike, although working conditions are more important there. In judging the coal strike, you are at a handicap in reaching an objective judgment because John L. Lewis has so far not said whether he wants a wage increase, and has not said how much he wants as royalty per ton to set up his health and welfare fund. He asks the operators to agree on the principle before he'll continue to talk. Some of our reaction in the coal strike will be because of John L. We are bound to consider public responsibility, the effect on Europe that needs coal almost as much as wheat, and the way Europe and Asia may determine whether it goes Left or Right as it watches our system in operation.

In Fast Company

(Comedy)

MONOGRAM RELEASE. Producers, Lindsley Parsons and Jan Grippo. Director, Del Lord. Screenplay by Edmond Seward. Tim Ryan and Victor Hammond. Original story by Martin Mooney. Photography, William Sickner. Production manager, Glenn Cook. Musical director, Edward Kay. Sound, Tom Lambert. Technical director, Dave Milton. Supervising film editor, Richard Currier. Film editor, William Austin.

CAST—Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall, Jane Randolph, Judy Clark, Bobby Jordan, Billy Benedict, David Gorcey, Douglas Fowley, Marjorie Woodworth, Charles D. Brown, Paul Harvey, Luis Alberni, Mary Gordon, Bernard Gorcey, George Eldredge, William Ruhl, Dick Wessell, John Indrisano, Frank Marlowe, Marcel de la Brosse, Stanley Price, Charles Coleman, Walter Soderling.

PREVIEWED at the Campus Theatre, Hollywood, Cal., May 2, 1946. Running time: 61 MINS.

"In Fast Company," second of Jan Grippo's Bowery Boys series, featuring Leo Gorcey, closely follows the slapstick pattern set in the initial production. Leo Gorcey carries the comedy load with his Bowery Boy pals feeding him for laughs. Latter are plentiful and picture is a cinch for good box office reception in its intended market.

Gorcey and the boys, however, don't benefit too much from the script and from Del Lord's direction. Screenplay could have been tightened up to better advantage and Lord misses at times in building up the comedy situations. But he has paced the show smartly and kept the action from dragging into dullness. Picture boasts several minor sequences of fisticuffs and rough-and-tumble and climaxes with a big free-for-all that will give the action fans their money's worth.

Yarn concerns the adventures and misadventures of the Bowery Boys that result when the neighborhood priest (Charles D. Brown) gets them to do the Good Samaritan by taking over operation of an independent taxi outfit when the owner (Frank Marlowe) is battered into the hospital by thugs of the rival taxi company. The Leo Gorcey brand of comedy courage wins out over the thuggery, puts the rascally manager of the big company on the spot with the actual owner and saves the day for Marlowe.

Picture is adequately acted, production gets good value out of the budget and camera work of William Sickner is adequate.

Adrian Scott Back From London Trek

Adrian Scott arrives today from two-week stay in London. While in British capital he went into casting problems of "So Well Remembered," which he is slated to produce for RKO in England later in season. He will report to N. Peter Rathvon, studio chief, on status of British production and RKO's immediate production future there.

OPERA ADVANCE SALE SETS NEW 345G RECORD

When the curtain lifts on "Vagabond King," first of the Civic Light Opera attractions, tonight at the Philharmonic, advance seat sale will total $345,000 for the ninth season. Of this figure, $322,000 is represented in season tickets and $23,000 in single seats. Advances for San Francisco, where "Roberta" bows Monday night at the Curran, are $225,000 for season tickets and $20,000 for single seats. Total advance for the Coast is $590,000.

These figures represent a 50 per cent increase over last year's score of approximately $400,000 pre-curtain time sales. The 1945 season, eighth in Los Angeles and sixth in San Francisco, was the highest mark at that time and went on to do a total gross of $990,000 at the close of the slate.

"Vagabond King" will play here for three weeks, followed by "Roberta" May 27. "Bloomer Girl" comes to the Philharmonic June 24 with "The Fortune Teller" as the final production of the year, opening July 27.

McLeod Postpones His Salmon Tale

Norman Z. McLeod has postponed until next spring the start of his first indie production, "The Big Fish," story of war of Alaskan salmon canneries. Director, currently helming Goldwyn's "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," won't complete this stint until June, and salmon fishing will be too far along then for McLeod to get footage he needs.

New Honor for Warner

"El Diploma de Honor" of the Latin-American Consular Association will be awarded Jack L. Warner at special ceremony in the Biltmore hotel Monday in recognition of his film, "Hitler Lives?"

THE GRAPEVINE: It's beginning to look as though Humphrey Bogart is allergic to makeup, or maybe it's just Hollywood writers. His loanout by Warners to Columbia isn't enjoying smooth sailing. Bogart has already rejected two versions of the screenplay by Oliver H. P. Garrett. Now Garrett and John Cromwell, who will direct, are sweating over a third draft, and meanwhile Humphrey is lolling on his yacht, sniffing the salt breezes, and probably pondering the story of Ferdinand the Bull, who did not want to fight but just wanted to smell the flowers . . . Viveca Lindfors, Warners' recruit from Sweden, is taking the local housing shortage in her stride, though she's doing her share of house-hunting. A similar blight is on Stockholm, she says . . . Unpublished reason for divorce suit against a director is his latest picture's leading lady . . . Metro execs are unhappy because Gregory Peck and Jane Wyman, reported to be slightly sensational in "The Yearling," are not under contract at Culver City . . . Daniele Amfitheatrof's score for "Suspense" pleased the King Bros. so much they've signed him to a new two-picture deal . . . And, while we're still in the Success Dept., Lilli Palmer's work in a rough cut of the first five reels of "Cloak and Dagger" show that Milton Sperling and Joseph Bernhard have a potential new star on their hands, Lilli Palmer. She's the Vienna-born wife of Rex Harrison.

HOLLYWOOD CAROUSEL: Danny Kaye can't help looking at himself in the mirror, and it isn't merely vanity. His interest is clinical, since he was a guest in a home where one of the children had contracted mumps. Kaye never had the mumps when he was a child, and he figures that on him —in the middle of a picture—they wouldn't look good . . . If you have a pet buffalo, better keep him under cover. Ed McGovern, 79-year-old ex-buffalo hunter, pal of Buffalo Bill and a pistol champ in 1914, is heading this way. Harry Sherman has signed him to play a role in "Ramrod," an Enterprise production . . . The Upper Crust: William Powell and his wife Diana dining at Talk o' the Town. The Curtis Bernhardts entertaining Bette Davis and her husband, the Claude Rains and Mme. Jeanne Vernier. And at The Kings' Phil Harris and Alice Faye, the Truman Bradleys, Frankie Albertsons and John Garfields . . . There's a wisecrack here if someone would just dig it out: Loretta Young posed in $4000 worth of night gowns for a Life Mag layout on Hal Wallis' production "The Perfect Marriage" . . . Paramount is feverishly searching for authentic yodelers. A dozen of the Tyrolean nightingales are needed for scenes with Bing Crosby in "The Emperor Waltz," and so far the search has been in vain. Bathtub amateurs need not apply . . . After all the furore on "Forever Amber's" production halt, it seems Peggy Cummins isn't in the doghouse—just a dog picture, "Bob, Son of Battle."

CALL SHEET: GLENN FORD is the victim of a new honor. The Bobby Soxers of America have proclaimed him "Man of the Year," same title bestowed previously on Van Johnson and Frank Sinatra . . . MYRNA LOY is driving to work these mornings in a 1946 car presented by her husband, Gene Markey, as a belated wedding gift . . . GEORGE FRAZIER, New York magazine writer, is in Hollywood to do stories on Milton Holmes and Mark Hellinger . . . BENNY GOODMAN'S wife gave birth to a daughter several days ago. They'd both hoped for a boy, and settled on the name "Benjamin." Caught unawares by the appearance of a daughter, they've named her "Benjie" . . . ROBERT CUMMINGS is brushing up his hooks and jabs with Lou Nova on the latter's ranch in the Valley in preparation for fight scenes for Seymour Nebenzal's "The Chase" . . . WALTER LANTZ went fishing in the High Sierras and caught himself a mess of trouble. Car broke down, and now he's waiting for spare parts to be sent up from Los Angeles . . . RUDOLPH CAMERON, early silent star, who co-starred with Anita Stewart, is back in makeup, playing a character role in "Down to Earth" at Columbia . . . HERMAN MILLAKOWSKY has bought two plays based on the life of Edmund Kean, 19th century Shakespearean actor, for a film production . . . BILL LUNDIGAN slapped on the makeup for the first time in three years as one of Hedy Lamarr's leading men in "Dishonored Lady."

ON THE SOUNDTRACK: The busy little bees in Enterprise's flackery have counted up drinks consumed in "Arch of Triumph" and in "The Lost Weekend" and come up with the claim that Ravic outdrinks Don Birnam 10 to 1—without getting drunk. Apparently Ravic had a hollow leg while Birnam merely had a hollow head . . . Southern Comfort's signboard re-enactment of the steamboat race between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez will be switched on tonight at 9 p.m. at Sunset and Vine. As an alarmist press agent puts it, "The Mississippi river will flow down Sunset boulevard." Aside from such frenetic enthusiasm, it's the world's largest animated billboard . . . Alertness of one indie radio station manager is beginning to annoy other employes, who claim he opens their mail in his eagerness to keep abreast of all details . . . Flu-bug has bitten Frank Lattimore . . . Sol Lesser's "Red House" troupe is having a field day on location at Sonora. Shops there are bulging with hard-to-get merchandise such as nylons and white shirts, and the restaurants are serving steaks "so thick you could milk 'em if they had horns" . . . Bevhills Rotisserie, opening in June, will have a no tipping policy . . . 20th-Fox execs are impressed with Harry James' improved acting in "That's for Me," and are eyeing story properties with the bandleader in mind . . . So you think you're busy? John Pearce is headwaiter, waiter and piano-player in a Sunset boulevard restaurant.——D.D.T.

SUTHERLAND AND MOREY SKED MORE COLOR SHORTS

Morey and Sutherland have inked deals for two Technicolor shorts, one with American Cancer Society for an educational reel, second with National Carbon Co., for industrial film. Former will be presented as an animated cartoon, latter in combination live action and animation to cost $50,000.

Cancer short is for showing to schools and social groups, to make public aware of disease and its diagnosis and cure. Film to be made for NCC will be exhibited by company before theatre projectionists, engineering and chemical societies and colleges. It is made for purpose of demonstrating latest development in arc lighting for color photography and arc projection in color.

Harold Lloyd Will Do 'Strong Box'

Next Harold Lloyd starrer for California Pictures will be "The Human Strong Box." Preston Sturges will produce as well as script the screenplay, based on Fredric Mauzens story.

TWINS SEE BRITISH FILM UPLIFT IN NEW COMPETISH

Current battle between the J. Arthur Rank film empire and Sir Alexander Korda's far-flung interests is a healthy situation for the British film industry, according to John Boulting, who, with his identical twin, Roy, arrived yesterday for consultation with Matty Fox and other United World Pictures toppers.
